Comets Win At Ashley Tourney

The Riverdale Comets gained the trophy for the champion of the holiday tourney held at Ashley January 2 and 3. The Comets defeated Waterloo in the opener, 41-32, then turned back Bellefountain 54-42 in the championship game. Bellfountain defeated Ashley 50-47 to enter the final game In the consolation contest, Ashley won a thriller, 57-55 from Waterloo in a double overtime.

In Friday night's game Waterloo scored the first basket, then was held scoreless for the next 5 minutes or so as Riverdale gained a 7-2 lead with 1:40 to go in the first quarter. The Comets successfully employed their all-court press and led 13-4 at the end of the period. Only 1 foul was called in the quarter, on Waterloo.

6:40 remained in the second period before Riverdale was called for a foul, then they committed 4 in a little over 2 minutes. They led 15-7 during the period, then 17-11 at the half.

Riverdale maintained its lead in the third stanza, holding at 18-13 with 4:00 to go. The third quarter ended at 27-19

With good play-making by Vinson and Bry in the last quarter the locals led 37-25 at the 2:47 mark. Clauser got in for 2 buckets in the closing minute and the final was 41-32.

Saturday's championship game started out a tie at 2-2, and 4-4 before the Comets' all-court press again brought them a lead at 10-4. The quarter ended at 15-10.

Bellefountain caught up with Riverdale in the second period tying it at 17-17 before taking a 23-19 lead. Clauser broke away for a lay up that tied it at 24-ail. A basket by Bellefountain and one by Butler kept the score at 26-26 at the half.

The Comets went into the lead at the 3:45 mark of the third period, 34-30, then held at 38-34 at the quarter.

Riverdale led 42-37 with 3:40 to go, then 46-39 with 1:31 remaining before pulling out to the final 54-42 margin of victory.

COMET CNIPTIONS—The all-court press has been an effective weapon for the Comets this year, helping a lot in this tourney. — Jerry Smith, son of principal Joe Smith, got into the first game partially Friday night. He wasn't looking, though, when the ball landed in his lap. It cost him one sack of pop corn. — You had to come early Saturday to get in the Riverdale section. The local fans filled their portion of the bleachers and even filtered into the other sections, a good showing of support for the team despite its many-numbered road trips. — Waterloo's school song was rendered by about 6 lusty voices, which made up in enthusiasm what they lacked in numbers. — Dale Dowden not only was high scorer for the locals but also exhibited good sportsmanship, accepting without question the sometimes-doubious "palming" call which the officials called him for on two or three occasions in the final game. This is on contrast to the too-frequent showing of temper by several of his mates in the last several games, which shows a lack of appreciation of the game of basketball, the loyal support by Riverdale fans and the name of the school the team represents.

Vinsons Purchase Local Grocery

Announcement was made last week end of the sale of Dunten's Market in Saint Joe. Purchasers and new owners of the grocery and building in which the business operates are Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Vinson of Saint Joe.

Dunten's Market has been operated by Mr. and Mrs Lloyd Dunten of Saint Joe for the past 9 years. They formerly owned a grocery in Fort Wayne.

PTA Meets 13th, To Hear About Russia

Because of a basketball game scheduled for Tuesday, January 20, the night of the regular meeting of the Riverdale P.T.A., the P.T.A will meet one week earlier, next Tuesday evening, January 13, at the high school gym in Saint Joe. Meeting time is 7:-30 p.m.

The public is invited to attend.

Guest speaker for the evening will be Lee McDuffy of LaOtto who was one of a group from this area who visited Russia last summer. Mr McDuffy will tell of his trip and will answer whatever questions may arise in the course of the evening's talk.

Entertainment will be provided by students of both the elementary and upper grades at Riverdale.

The February meeting will also be changed due to a second conflict with the basketball schedule. Tentative date for February is Tuesday, February 10.

Services For Harry Shuff

Funeral services were held for Harry Ellsworth Shuff, 68, of Auburn last Monday afternoon. Mr. Shuff died Friday at the Veterans Hospital in Fort Wayne of a complication of diseases. He had been in failing health for the past year.

Born in Saint Joe on January 14, 1890, the son of the late Hillery and Mary Shuff, the deceased and his family had resided at Saint Joe until a little over a year ago. He was a retired B&O railroad trackman. He and Lula Lutz were married at Hillsdale, Mich., on September 26, 1922. Mr. Shuff was a veteran of World War I.

Survivors include the widow; 5 sons, Chalmer, Maurice, Robert, Medford and Harold; 11 daughters, Mrs. Jacqueline Wertman, Mrs. Joan Dreher, Mrs. Janice Witte, Mrs. Shirley Marks, Mrs. Claudia Noragon, Mrs. Catherine Clady, Mrs. Mary Jane Snook, and Linda, Faye, Kaye and Roseann; 17 grandchildren; a brother, John; and a sister, Mrs Elizabeth Milliman.

Mr. Shuff was a member of the old Methodist Church at Saint Joe.

Burial was in the K. of P. Cemetery at Saint Joe.

This Week In AMERICAN HISTORY

BY WILLIAM BRODIE

PHILIP FRENEAU

Philip Freneau, the "Poet of the American Revolution," whom George Washington criticized and Thomas Jefferson praised, was born in New York on January 2, 1752. Of French-Huguenot and Scotch descent, son of a New York wine merchant, Philip Freneau was a poet, editor, soldier, seaman, the always staunch American patriot who won friends among the common people and their supporters, and made enemies of many influential men. Alexander Hamilton hated him.

At Princeton College, where he was a classmate of James Madison, Freneau wrote the poem, "The Rising Glory of America," which was read at his graduation in 1771. Other patriotic verses deriding the Tories and the British won him fame in the trying years leading up to the Revolution and made him an outspoken champion of American freedom.

Earning a living wasn't easy for one as poetically inclined as Philip Freneau. Just before the Revolutionary War broke out he sailed to the West Indies where he got a job as secretary to a planter on one of the islands. After two pleasant years on this job, during which he wrote some lyric poetry, Freneau returned to America in 1778 and joined the American army. Then the call of the sea lured him and he sailed away on a privateer. While at sea he was twice captured by the British. The second time he was imprisoned in New York harbor on a filthy prison ship whose terrible conditions almost killed him. Finally released, more dead than alive, he recuperated at his family's farm in New Jersey. Now he wrote "The British Prison Ship," one of his most bitter satires, and other poets of the sea.

Many other patriotic poems and songs were written by Freneau. These verses helped to hearten and inspire the American soldiers during the dark days of the war and to earn for Philip Freneau the title of "Poet of the American Revolution." Other fine poems in which he was to make use of native themes and natural settings, as in his beautiful "The Wild Honeysuckle," brought him consideration as the first national poet of America.

But, politically, Freneau was more important as an editor. He published several newspapers, including the patriotic Freeman's Journal in Philadelphia (1782-85), and the Daily Advertiser in New York, after his marriage to Eleanor Forman in 1789. Freneau was not afraid to write boldly and bitterly. He did not dodge when he took a stand. His mind was keen, his spirit fearless. He was a fiery democrat, loving liberty and hating all forms of tyranny. Philip Freneau hit hard and named names.

In 1791 he moved to Philadelphia to publish the National Gazette in opposition to Alexander Hamilton and the Federalist party. Violently pro-Jefferson and anti-Hamilton, Freneau attacked the aristocratic, centralized policies of the Federalists with such fury that George Washington called him "that rascal, Freneau." But Thomas Jefferson praised Freneau, and said he "saved our Constitution, which was galloping fast into monarchy."

After the National Gazette ceased publication in 1793, Philip Freneau did some additional liberal writing. Then he retired from public affairs and went to sea for a few years, before retiring to his farm near Freehold, New Jersey. Nearing the end of his 80th year he died on the night of December 18, 1832, when he lost his way while returning home in a blizzard and was found frozen to death next morning close to his farmhouse.

Philip Freneau died forgotten by his countrymen for whom he had given so much of his life in service. He was a poet who stood firmly against oppression. He was an editor, fiery, savage and even abusive at times, who fought for freedom and democracy in the young republic whose future he helped to shape. He deserves to be better nown in American history.

Dr. D. O. Miller of Butler, DeKalb County Red Cross chairman, has called attention to the fact that blood from the Red Cross Blood Center is free. Charges made for blood transfusions are sometimes misconstrued as including a charge for the blood itself. It is pointed out that the blood is free, the charges made by hospitals and institutions being for services rendered in giving the transfusion.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald McCann and son, David, returned this week from a trip to Colorado Springs, Colo., to visit Glen Freeburn. The McCann's got in on some of the good winter weather in that part of the country on the return trip.

Christmas Day guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Hook and son, David, of New Haven were Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Hilbert of Montpelier, O., Mr. W. A. Hilbert of West Unity, O., Mr. Von Hilbert of Mission, Texas, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Hook of Saint Joe, Mr. and Mrs. Farrell Evans of Bryan, O., Mr. and Mrs. Don Cook and children, Billy, Patty Ann and Denny, of Fort Wayne, Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Shanks and children, Sue Ellen, Gary and Janet, of Findlay, O., and Mr. and Mrs. Vance Hook and daughters, Lu Anne and Chari Lee, of Hicksville.

About 40 young people and adults enjoyed caroling in Spencerville on Christmas morning and then breakfast at Chaney's Restaurant with Izetta Chaney, Margaret Chaney and Frances Doll as hostesses.

Better Late . . .

Part of every DeKalb County Fair is the showing of 4-H livestock by county youth and the subsequent auction at which merchants and individuals in the county and elsewhere "support" the sale of the animals by pledging whatever amount they wish to add to the selling price of the sale animals. The program possibly has its merits, giving a sort of reward to the young men and women for their efforts in raising the stock for show. But there is also the other side, that there is no lesson taught in efficiency or practicality in handing out a little extra cash at the end of the fair show. A 4-H leader in this community a few years ago opined that the program was not as commendable as it appeared. We have heard since comments from farmers themselves that the idea isn't so good. Learning to groom one animal or a few for show is a bit different from raising a herd for a living; and the reward goes to a comparative few.

Businessmen and individuals who support the auction are given public credit for their contribution, which is a logical thing. However, in printing the list of local contributors a few months ago, this paper did an injustice to one contributor who is perhaps doing a better job of giving assistance to the 4-H movement because the firm helps a greater number. The firm's name did not appear in the list of contributors because it did not subscribe any specified amount to be used to augment the auction prices; so the omission of its name was not intentional. It is late, but not too late to point out that our local elevator, as its part in assisting local 4-H youth, gives a discount to all those young men and women who may be preparing livestock for the big show. Thus, a greater number of 4-H members receive the benefits of financial aid, rather than just the few whose animals are chosen as the best and who therefore receive the benefits of higher supported prices for their choice animals.

So, just for the record, in fairness to one of our businessmen, we want to point out that our elevator has made its contribution in its own way toward helping 4-H youth even though its name did not appear in print previously for such recognition.

Local News

The Saint Joe Volunteer Fire Department made a run December 24 at noon to the Roy Littlefield residence east of Saint Joe. The building was gutted by fire. The property is owned by Harold Kagey.

The Ladies Aid of St. Peter Lutheran Church in Spencerville has been indefinitely postponed due to the severe weather and the Chaney house fire.

Among a group of 4-H boys and girls visiting Chicago December 29 and 30 were Clarence Bry of Jackson Township, Esther Fetters of Concord Township and Junior Witt of Spencer Township. The group won the trip for their outstanding 4-H records.

Week end guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Beebe of near Saint Joe were Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Beebe and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wynne of Gaithersburg, Md.

Mr. and Mrs. John Haverstock and family of Fort Wayne and Mr. and Mrs. Donald McCann were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Strombeck.

St. Peter Lutheran Church held its congregational meeting January 4 at 2 p.m.. Council members elected were: Howard Timmerman, Marian Furnish and Glen Brendel.

Mr. and Mrs. Chalmer Beaty, Mrs. Howard Alwood and Mrs. Viena Rude attended the funeral of Harry Shuff Monday afternoon at the Gerig Funeral Home in Auburn.

Mrs. Clara Foltz had the misfortune of breaking an arm just before Christmas.

Mrs. George Doll reminds readers: "Don't forget our feathered friends and the squirrels this cold snowy weather. They really love grain, bread or nuts."

LIGHT SLEEPER – Chicago, Ill. – Showing off a new do-it yourself idea, model Blanche Kos sits in front of a hypnosis machine in Chicago. Called a Brain Wave Synchronizer, the machine induces a state of trance or deep relaxation in susceptible individuals by blinking a light, according to its inventor, Sidney A. Schneider, of Skokie, Ill. He says it will hypnotize at least 50 per cent of all persons who watch the flickering light for from two to five minutes, and will give others a feeling of tranquility.

FUR BEARING – Austin, Tex. – Happily collared and leashed, Skipper, a two-year-old Florida Grey Squirrel, takes a ride on the shoulder of his owner Milton Hill in Austin, Tex. Hill has turned down offers of up to $100. for his unusual pet, which he raised after it was found by his dog.

LADIES LITERARY CLUB

The Ladies Literary Club held its Christmas party on Wednesday, December 17, at the home of Mrs. Don Burley, with 16 members and 2 guests present.

A turkey dinner was served at tables lighted by candlelight.

Response to roll call was "A Christmas Thought." A quartet, comprised of Mrs. Harold Baker, Mrs. Robert Musser, Mrs. Wayne Storer and Mrs. Forrest Bevington, sang two Christmas seletcions. Mrs. Weldon Shafer gave a Christmas reading, "Mary and Willie's Prayer," after which the group sang a few Christmas carols. Following the program, a gift exchange was held.

The guests of the club were Mrs. Lora Leighty and Mrs. Everett Mavis of Auburn. The committee for the evening was Mrs. Forrest Bevington, Mrs. Carl Perkins and Mrs. Don Burley.

4-H'ers Make The Best Better

Norma Waddy

David Weber

Neal Godby

Larry Yarian

Life is much safer in Indianapolis since Norma Waddy, 17, has been participating in the 4-H Safety project. This alert 4-H'er has corrected so many hazards that she was named 1958 state winner in the 4-H Safety program.

She was awarded an all-expense trip by General Motors to the National 4-H Club Congress held in Chicago the first week in December.

Miss Waddy received her first safety award in 1952, and by 1954 she was Marion County safety champion.

She has inspected several Marion County farms for safety hazards. She teaches and urges safety in talks and demonstrations through her club, school, and church.

Her interest in safety has reached thousands through her appearances on the county extension Farm and Home Program, WISH-TV.

David Weber, 19, of 36 W. Roberts Rd., also of Indianapolis, was chosen state winner in the 4-H Garden program, and awarded a congress trip by the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Co.

One of Weber's greatest interests as a home gardener has been in the use of chemicals in soil and plant improvement. With this enthusiasm as a background, he is now majoring in agricultural science at Purdue University. Prize money and profits from his garden sales are being used for his education.

A junior leader of the Perry Boys 4-H Club, Weber is also interested in entomology and forestry projects.

Neal Godby, 19, of Sheridan, state winner in the 4-H Poultry program, was awarded a trip to the national congress by the Sears-Roebuck Foundation.

Godby's pullets have won ribbons at county fairs since 1951, and has been a state blue-ribbon winner.

As a member of the state winning poultry judging team, Godby was sent to Chicago for the national contest, where his team placed third.

Larry Yarian, 18, of Auburn, won state honors in the 4-H Soil and Water Conservation program. His trip to the congress was given by Firetone Tire & Rubber Co.

During his nine years in the Go-Getters 4-H Club, the problems of soil testing, terracing, contour farming and crop rotation have occupied most of his attention. Yarian has planted and built windbreaks, and cultivated specific kinds of trees and bushes as part of his project. He also worked on such related projects as crops, animal husbandry, forestry and wild life.

Yarian gave many talks and demonstrations for county and state meets in these fields, winning a collection of blue ribbons, gold achievement medals and reserve or grand champion awards.

Yarian is president of his local 4-H Club, the DeKalb County junior leaders group, and the county tractor maintenance club.

DADDY

My first Christmas morning
in his presence so dear
This wonderful Saviour divine,
As I look on His face, His marvelous grace,
I wonder that He can be mine!
The glorious light of His truth so enthralls
No light upon earth so sublime,
Happy, I sit at My Master's feet
Having said "Not my will, but thine."
Yes, it was hard, so hard to leave,
My dearly loved ones, but Oh!
When He said "Come my child, welcome home"
I was ready to go!
I'll wait for you here with my blessed Lord,
Loved family, neighbors and friends;
We will meet once more on this beautiful shore
In this wonderful world without end!
"A wonderful Saviour is Jesus my Lord
A wonderful Saviour to me,
He hath hidden my soul in the cleft of the rock
Where rivers of pleasures flow see"

—Dedicated to the memory of Fred E. Hile who passed away October 25, 1958, by his wife Katherine, children and grandchildren.

Our Job

to help you live better Electrically

Our job is generating electricity and getting it to where it's used. We're in this business because it is concerned with the supply of a fundamental requirement of modern living, because it's an honorable one, because we like it, and because we want to earn a living at it.

We aim to give one kind of service to everyone . . . the best that's possible. That means supplying our customers with what they want when they want it. It means being courteous at all times and maintaining attractive easy-to-do-business-with offices. It means doing everything we can to keep complaints from arising, and it means prompt and fair handling of those that do.

We are a citizen of each community we serve and take an active part in its affairs. Like any other citizen, we want our neighbors to think well of us. Besides, it makes good business-sense. We can only prosper as the community prospers so we help it thrive in every way we can.

Such is our job as we see it. We are trying to do it well and to do it better all the time.

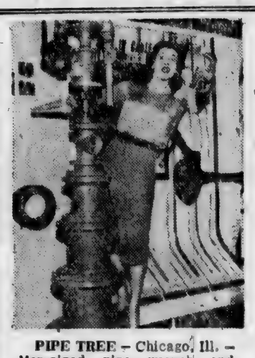
PICTURES OF THE WEEK

SMILE, PLEASE — Kankakee, Ill. — The photographer led a dog's life trying to pose these 93 pooches for a picture at Kankakee, Ill. Getting the frisky canines to sit still was like "piling up 93 marbles on a glass-top desk," says Dr. John Bernotavicz, Director of the Gaines Research Kennels at Kankakee. It took seven hours to pose the dogs for a ten-second TV commercial to introduce a new dog meal. All pedigreed, the dogs represent 23 different breeds.



PIPE TREE — Chicago, Ill. — Man-sized pipe wrench and pretty Chicagoan Bettie Thomas yield in strength test to unusual "tree" of pipe flanges. The pipe flanges, fittings and valves are all made of rigid vinyl plastics developed by B. F. Goodrich Chemical Company.

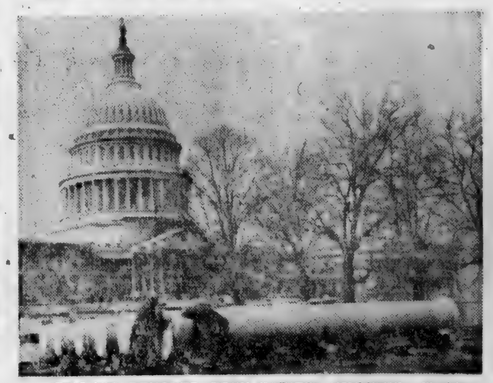
AIR SHIP — New York — A ship that can cross the ocean without touching water is presently under development by a British aircraft company, according to a science publication. In this sketch by artist-author Frank Tinsley for the January 1959 issue of Mechanix Illustrated magazine, the ship floats on compressed air forced through nozzles in its bottom. Shaped like an elongated saucer, the vessel would carry up to 1,000 passengers, and would be pushed at speeds up to 100 miles an hour by two giant airplane-type propellers driven by gas turbines.

WASHINGTON — Paula Suter, 4, of Baltimore, Md., and Marvin Fields, Jr., 5, of Miami, Fla., hold a private conversation while being photographed in connection with the United Cerebral Palsy fund-raising campaign to be conducted next May. Marvin is the "Senior Marcher" and Paula the "Junior Marcher."



PILLARS REMOVED FROM CAPITOL BUILDING — Washington — Removed from the historic east front of the Capitol Building (Background), these six heavy sandstone pillars are being secured by workmen here. The remaining columns will be removed after workmen finish an intricate molding operation on the facing of the roof covering part of the portico. The east front is being moved forward about 32½ feet to enlarge the building.

What Is The Largest "Farm Group" In Indiana?

108,000 Farm Families That Regularly Save Trading Stamps Are The Biggest "Farm Group" In Indiana.

America's farm families are traditionally thrifty. The same pattern of thrift is found in Indiana. It is only natural, therefore, that the response of Indiana farm families to one of the oldest forms of thrift—the trading stamp—is so noticeable.

Today over 108,000 farm families save them. You might almost say that these savers constitute the largest single farm group in the state.

During 1957 alone, thousands of dollars worth of trading stamp merchandise went into farm households in the state, and every 2 seconds a farm family is redeeming trading stamps.

There is still another side—direct income for farmers. During 1957 the stamp industry purchased from Indiana farmers $1,462,000 worth of primary materials that go into the manufacture of merchandise for stamp redemption.

No one can contemplate these facts and fail to realize that both personally and economically the trading stamp industry is a meaningful and welcome force in the life of our state.

The December meeting of the DeKalb County Farm Bureau was held December 22 at the Farm Bureau building in Auburn. Mrs. Harold Stabe of Richland Township was elected assistant county women's leader and Mrs. Frances Nelson of Butler was re-elected county pet and hobby leader for 1959. The annual Credit Union meeting will be a pancake supper January 17 from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. at the Auburn Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. and Mrs. James Maxwell and daughters were Christmas week end guests of their parents, Roy Maxwell of Saint Joe and Mr. and Mrs. George Doll of Spencerville. Other guests in the Doll home on Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Koch and Peggy, Mr. and Mrs. Davey Doll and family, Eck Hursh and Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Hursh and family.

Walter Zonker, Sr., 60, a former resident of Saint Joe was buried Friday, December 26, 1958, in Riverside Cemetery at Saint Joe. He died the preceding Friday at his home in Fort Wayne.

The Auburn congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses are making preliminary plans to attend a 3-day training program at Coldwater, Mich., February 6-8. Richard E. Hankey, presiding minister for the group, said plans were confirmed December 29 at a meeting held in Kendallville. The object of the program is to equip everyone of the preaching fellowship of Jehovah's Witnesses in the practical use of the Bible as a help in fortifying the spiritual morale of people in this community.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hartsough of Goshen and Mrs. Viena Rude and Mr. Roy Koch of Saint Joe spent Christmas Day with Mr. and Mrs. Chalmer Beaty and family at Spencerville.

The Saint Joe Valley Home Demonstration Club's next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Laura Washler January 16.

Ralph Sechler will be chairman of the Red Cross Fund drive in Saint Joe and Concord Township for 1959. Glen Moore will serve in the same capacity at Spencerville and in Spencer Township.

Over 900 gifts were contributed to the Mental Health Christmas Gift Project. The gifts, contributed by DeKalb County organizations and individuals, were distributed at parties beginning December 14. Patients at the Fort Wayne State School were recipients of the gifts.

Joe Freeburn was apparently overcome by exhaust fumes as he worked in the pit at Yeiser's Standard Service Monday. He "blacked out" and was assisted to a chair, then lost consciousness again after reviving temporarily. No apparent ill effects were suffered and he is back on the job.

Around the Town

With the Editor

A week ago we were at the gym shooting baskets. Phil was running around with a ball and practicing dribbling when he asked, "Dad, who was it on the Pistons that used to do this?" With so much to go on, I didn't know where to guess, so I started naming the players. "Yardley? Hutchins? Houbregs? Noble? Foust? ...." None of these rang a bell for him. He had a clue to offer, though. "It had a 'foot' or something in it." -The name, he meant.

Then I had it. I replied, "Shue?" Phil had a sheepish grin on his face as he said faintly, "Yeah."

At Christmas, or was it New Years, we were having the Haberkorn family get-together and to help celebrate the occasion Grandpa Haberkorn had a bottle of champagne in a sack when they arrived. Later when we enjoyed its bubbling taste, Phil said he wanted a taste. He took a little sip Then came this observation from our 7-year-old:

"Ug-g-g-. I don't see how you adults stand the stuff!"

The resuscitator which the Boy Scouts underwrote for the town has come in mighty handy. Last Friday was the latest occasion, when Skeet Meese suffered a heart attack at Clauser's and scared everybody. But he was up and perking again Monday morning.

They must have some real good oxygen in that tank.

I thought maybe we were slow in getting that big Christmas tree down across the street until I read in Cliff Milner's column Monday of a Fort Wayne family that doesn't get theirs down sometimes until April or May. Last year they decided not to take it down until South Side got knocked out of the basketball tourney, and look what happened. Another year they took down their decorations on Memorial Day.

I kinda hate to see the trees come down. For some reason the Christmas spirit seems good only before and including December 25. On December 26 already it's old stuff - with some people. Opening a bunch of gift boxes seems to close something else.

CARD OF THANKS

To our many friends, all who remembered us in any way at Christmas time, we say thanks, especially to those who came with the roast turkey and trimmings. Again, thanks to all.

Clara and Joe Foltz

The Riverdale Comets won a rugged contest at the Waterloo gym Friday night by a 64-51 score. The reserve squad wasn't so fortunate, however, losing to the Hicksville reserves by 37-27.

The Comet reserves were point starved Friday night going for 5 minutes and 42 seconds before scoring a point, then on a fielder by Paul Friend. They were scoreless through the first quarter until the clock showed 0:18 to go before the Friend bucket broke the ice. In the meantime Hicksville was running up a total of 10 points. The quarter ended at 12-2.

The Comets were held to 2 points in the second period with Hicksville holding a 17-4 half-time lead.

The Comets finally hit the range in the third quarter but it was late. They trailed by 25-17 at the end of three quarters. They then pulled up to 26-20 before Hicksville shot to a 32-22 lead, holding the 10-point margin at the finish, 37-27.

The Varsity battled Hicksville in a see-saw first quarter which ended with the Comets leading 12-10. A tight Ace defense toward the end of the quarter held the Comets on the outside but they worked a set play as the quarter ended to gain the 2-point lead.

The second period was closely contested with rugged play leading to a time-out called by the Aces. Riverdale remained in the lead, at one point by 20-17, then 28-24 at the end of the half.

The Comets pulled to a 35-28 lead in the third period before the Aces called a time-out with 3:52 to go. The Comets' rebounding was devastating in this period and aided in their pulling to a 42-29 lead. The quarter ended at 46-35.

Riverdale led 53-45 at the 3:33 mark of the last quarter. Play was again on the rugged side with the Comets yet holding a rebounding edge. Friend and Butler fouled out in the closing minutes of the final period, but the Comets' bench took up the slack and Riverdale won it, 64-51.

COMET CNIPTIONS—The reserves' shots were rolling off the basket right and left in the first half. This plus Hicksville's 2 big men didn't help the Comets. — In the second quarter the reserves were guilty of several mistakes, losing possession of the ball several times. They had another siege of missing in the final quarter. — Rugged is still the word for the varsity game. The Comets stuck to basketball and profited by it. every player in the game doing a good job, rewarding another big Riverdale crowd — The fans on the Riverdale side were "entertained" by an exhibition of nervous frustration across the way, not on their team's bench. — The Comets were really rough off the boards on occasion, coming off with the rebound repeatdly when it counted, then showing some sparkling set plays. — It was a waste of strategy to foul Gerry Heyman, as the score book shows. — There were as many lying on the floor as standing in the reserve game, many scrambles leading to the boys' getting bowled over. The varsity managed to stay on their feet. — What do others think of Riverdale? From the Waterloo Press (concerning the Ashley tourney): "The Marines (Bellefountain) gave it a whale of a try for a full three quarters but tried in the final stanza under a withering Comet attack. The Comets definitely possessed the stronger bench and displayed ball-handling finesse typical of Brookfield clubs."

Claude Laub Elected By Commissioners

Claude Laub of Spencerville was elected president of the board of county commissioners at a meeting held January 1, 1959. H. Earl Huselman was elected vice president and Vern Myers secretary.

The commissioners announced appointments for the various county positions under their jurisdiction. Included was that of Virgil Kimes of Spencerville, who was appointed custodian of the court house. Mr. Kimes formerly was employed by a Fort Wayne firm. He has resided in DeKalb County for 30 years.

Other appointments included:

Dr. C. R. Clarke as county physician.

Winslow VanHorne as county attorney.

Sacred Heart To Close; Group Seeks New County Hospital

An announcement made last week that Sacred Heart Hospital in Garrett would be closed March 1, 1959, because of operation at a loss has resulted in several meetings in the past several days. The latest development was the presentation of a resolution to the DeKalb County commissioners asking the board to consider the establishment of a county hospital. The resolution was presented by the board of directors of the DeKalb County Hospital Association after its adoption at a meeting held Sunday.

After hearing the request Monday, the commissioners made the following statement:

"The Board of Commissioners acknowledges receipt of your resolution of January 11th, 1959. We recognize the urgency and the gravity of the hospital problem in DeKalb County and we desire to take whatever action the citizens of this county desire within the limits of the authority given to us by law.

"The law provides two methods by which a hospital board may be created. First, 200 resident freeholders of the county may file a petition for the establishment of a public hospital, after which said proposal is submitted to a referendum, or, second, a petition may be signed by not less than 30 per cent of the resident freehold citizens of the county, with not less than 50 freehold citizens of each township, in which case no referendum is necessary, but under which the commissioners are authorized to consider the establishment of the hospital.

Winslow VanHorne, attorney for DeKalb County, explained at Sunday's meeting that if an existing Indiana law providing for the erection of joint city-county buildings were amended to include the words "or hospitals", it would be possible for the county to finance the construction of a county hospital on a lease-rental basis. Funds would be made available from a bond issue and would be repaid on a 30-year basis.

The DeKalb County Hospital Association is chartered by the state of Indiana as a non-profit organization. The association intends to build and maintain a non-profit hospital in DeKalb County as soon as possible. The reolution presented to the county commissioners is one of the steps taken toward achievement of that goal. A donation of $50 from the Auburn Jeudi Soir Club has been received. As an authorized non-profit organization, the association may receive such donations, which should be made through the treasurer, Mr. Overmeyer.

Two committees have been appointed by the association. Mr. Overmeyer and Dr. Miller were appointed to serve as site selection committee. Mr. Farrington, Dr. Miller and Rev. Buuck were appointed to serve as a ways and means committee.

A boost to the efforts of the hospital organization was given in the past week by the DeKalb County Medical Association which has gone on record as favoring immediate erection of a new hospital. It is the opinion of the society that DeKalb County must have a completely new hospital to meet the needs of the community for full and adequate hospitalization.

At the present time a maximum of 45 beds is available in county hospitals, 33 at Souder Hospital in Auburn and 12 at Sanders Hospital, also in Auburn. The minimum requirement for a county of the size of DeKalb is 65 beds.

Souder Hospital was founded in 1915. The first surgery was established in 1913. An addition was built in 1931. A further addition of a nursery, delivery room and 6 additional beds was made in 1953. In 1955 a new surgery, X-ray and laboratory were added.

Sanders Hospital was established in 1926, with addition of a nursery and service room in 1943.

Current action for a new hospital came on the heels of an announcement by the Franciscan Sisters that Sacred Heart Hospital was operating at a loss of $2,200 per month.

Because of the age of the building, it is considered useless to attempt alterations to the building to improve its standard. This plus the operation at a loss for the past 8 years led to the decision to cease operations.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish at this time to thank all our friends and neighbors for the kindness shown at our hour of need, also for the beautiful flowers.

Turn About

Americans are inclined to be a bit self-righteous at times. It wasn't too many weeks ago that we were quite insulted and ruffled at the "reception" given the vice-president of the United States on a visit to a foreign country. Most Americans were very put out at the missile-throwing shennanigans at that time. Just think - throwing things at OUR vice-president. Our national dignity was upset then by what others felt justified in doing; we thought it was terrible.

What do we think now? The shoe is on the other foot. Some of our highly esteemed American citizens have taken upon themselves the same liberties which they thought so uncivilized. A visiting Russian dignitary has received the same treatment in our country as did our vice-president in another country.

One of the secrets of maintaining a high standing in the eyes of other peoples is to refrain from resorting to barbaric tactics which may be used against us. Despite our disgust with the actions and principles of other governments, our people should be ready to abide by the decision of our own government in granting the courtesy of a civilized greeting when officials of other governments visit our shores. There may be the memory of slaughtered humanity in the background, there may be the knowledge of human suffering and injustice overshadowing the whole situation, yet we Americans have a standard to live up to.

Pelting a visiting dignitary hurts no one but ourselves. And it points out that the "goodness" which we naturally credit ourselves with (we're Americans, you know) is not goodness at all sometimes, but self-righteousness.

It's a bitter pill.

Most middle-aged men enjoy dancing, if they can sit fairly close to the stage.

Indiana Salutes National 4-H Champions

Ten Indiana boys and girls walked off with 1958 national honors at the National 4-H Club Congress held recently in Chicago. All received all-expense paid trips to the congress, and with one exception, $400 college scholarships were awarded by leading business and educational groups.

Achievement winner Linda Lou Gould was further honored as the top girl national achievement winner and awarded a trophy of silverware by the President of the United States.

The Hoosier champions were among some 200 national winners honored at the final banquet of the Chicago congress, attended by 2,000 club members, leaders, and guests from 49 states, Hawaii, and Puerto Rico. The 4-H Club programs are under the supervision of the Cooperative Extension Service.

This Week In AMERICAN HISTORY

BY WILLIAM BRODIE

FIRST PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION

There wasn't much excitement when the first election of a President was held on Wednesday, January 7, 1789. Everybody was sure who the first President would be. George Washington had no rival for the office. But it was a guess as to who the Vice-President would be. Thomas Jefferson was ineligible because he came from the same state as Washington, Virginia, and Alexander Hamilton, the best-known Federalist, was not yet thirty-five.

This first national election was run on a sort of test basis. The important men who drew up the Constitution had finally agreed that the President should not be elected directly by the people because the country was "too large" and the people "too ignorant" to handle such an important matter. The attitude of the Constitution-makers was reflected by John Adams who said that "the proposition that the people are the best keepers of their own liberties, is not true." And Roger Sherman of Connecticut added that, "the people immediately should have as little to do as may be about the government." It was decided to have the President chosen by electors from each state.

Each state was to appoint electors equal to the number of Senators and Representatives it had in Congress. The way these electors were to be chosen was left up to each state's legislature, which set the qualifications for voting. The right to vote was restricted. A man had to own a certain amount of property, or be worth a certain sum of money, before he was eligible to vote. The few states, about three, that allowed "popular" suffrage, required voters to be taxpayers. And in most states there were also religious qualifications for voting and office-holding. It is doubtful whether more than 6% of the population could vote at this time.

On Wednesday, January 7, 1789 the election of Presidential electors was held. Five states, Connecticut, Delaware, Georgia, New Jersey and South Carolina, had their legislatures appoint the electors. Three states, Maryland, Pennsylvania and Virginia, had their eligible voters choose the electors, Massachusetts used both methods. In New Hampshire and New York the legislatures quarreled about choosing electors. New Hampshire barely decided in time. But New York's legislature could not agree before the deadline for the appointments. Its electoral votes were lost, and New York did not participate in the first Presidential election.

North Carolina and Rhode Island had not yet ratified the Constitution and were not eligible to vote for electors. Technically, they were not yet part of the United States. Only ten states, therefore, voted electors for our country's first President.

On the first Wednesday in February, which fell on February 4, 1789, 69 electors from ten states met in New York City to vote for a President and Vice-President of the United States of America. Everyone of the 69 cast his vote for George Washington for President, as was expected.

For Vice-President there were several candidates and the electors split their votes. John Adams got the biggest share of the vote, 34 out of the 69, and he was elected Vice-President, much in the manner of a tail to the Washington kite. In age, Washington was 57, Adams 54 at the time.

In this rather cautious manner the infant nation chose its first head of state. And with ever-increasing freedom and widening democracy the method has endured, for to this day the President and Vice-Presidnt are the only elective Federal officials not elected by direct vote of the people.

Boosters Meet Next Thursday

The Saint Joe Booster Club will hold its quarterly meeting next Thursday, January 22, at 7:30 p.m. at the fire hall.

President Frank Sechler urges members and those interested in community affairs and in becoming members of the club to attend the meeting.

The quarterly meeting was originally scheduled for December, but because of the rush of the holidays was postponed.

However, the board of directors held a meeting in December at which time they discussed the progress of the public park, planned for a recommendation to the town board concerning local sidewalk repair and replacement and discussed other problems.

CULTURE CLUB

The Christmas Party was held at the home of Mrs. Joseph Baidinger on December 17, 1958. A delicious turkey dinner was served.

Mrs. John Freeze, the county federation president, was an honored guest. The hostess gave an inspirational Christmas reading. Several amusing games were played followed by a gift exchange. Roll call was "A Christmas I Remember."

Madonna Wade was hostess for the January 7 meeting.

Members read the club commandments and repeated the pledge to the flag.

Mrs. Wade gave devotions from the 3rd chapter of the Book of John. Barbara Bishop presented the lesson on Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Nevada.

President, Ruth White.

Vice president, Barbara Bishop.

Recording secretary, Helen Hoffer.

Corresponding secretary, Deanna Friend.

Treasurer, Ruth Fetters.

Critic, Virginia Laux.

Assist. critic, Marian Furnish.

Press correspondent, Mary Lou Brookfield.

Assist. press correspondent, Alice Reidenbach.

Tasty refreshments were then served.

What Is The Largest "Woman's Club" In Indiana?

Every day over 1,029,000 Indiana women make it a point to shop where they get trading stamps. This large group of smart, thrifty Indiana shoppers, with their common interest in trading stamps, can be thought of as a huge "woman's club" with membership in the state.

Of course this "club woman" gets wonderful things for her home and family through such favorites as S&H Green Stamps. Through her thrift and diligence she provides "extras" for her family. And although she may seldom think about it, her active saving is enormously good for business in our state.

Last year, for example, trading stamp companies purchased $25,538,000 worth of products from Indiana manufacturers. Making these things provided jobs for 2,392 Indiana people. S&H Redemption Stores, paying local rent and taxes, employ many more.

In the light of these facts it would seem that not only Indiana women, but everybody in the state can be thankful that the trading stamp is a part of our way of life.

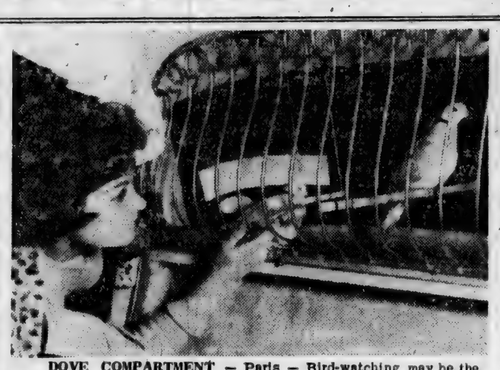
PICTURES OF THE WEEK

SPIES IN THE SKY — New York — Fifty years of "sky spying" is encompassed by these photos of the old and the new in air reconnaissance. At top is America's first military aircraft, the U.S. Army Signal Corps' Wright Flyer, vintage 1909, which enabled its pilot to scout enemy positions, fly home and report. At bottom is the newest "sky spy," an unmanned aircraft recently flight-tested by the Army Signal Corps. Designed by the Rheem Manufacturing Company, the craft is controlled completely from the ground. It sneaks over enemy positions and reports electronically on what it sees. The plane requires no airport, since it is launched from an army vehicle with rocket boosters and opens a parachute in order to land.



DOVE COMPARTMENT — Paris — Bird-watching may be the newest hazard for motorists in Paris, where starlet Claudie Laurence checks a pair of doves comfortably caged at the back window of a new Simca sedan. The designers say the bird cage won't interfere greatly with the driver's rear view.

BIRD WITH BRAIN — The startling Starling of Reidy's roost is very polite. That cigarette is not for him; he never indulges. He is simply passing one to Mrs. Reidy. Butch acts the host at parties, seeing that everyone has enough cigarettes, and he also plays the dictator at home. He has decided he is boss of the household.

HOW IN THE WORLD? — Memphis, Tenn. — "Now how in the world did that get up there?" seems to be what five-year-old Michael Likins is thinking as he looks up at a hula hoop stuck on a light pole in Memphis, Tenn.

PICASSO SOLD FOR $152,000 — New York — A world auction record for nine French paintings was set at the $1,548,500 sale of Hotelman Arnold Kirkeby's collection at the Parke-Bernet Galleries, Inc. The highest price paid was $152,000 for this early work of Pablo Picasso, "Mother and Child."

IT'S ALL DONE BY LIGHTING — London — This beautiful clock with a mosaic case is the work of Swiss Artist Wasenn, which took him 500 hours to complete. Shown by Miss Valli Newby, the clock is one of the exhibits at the 4th International Watch and Jewelery Fair. It is operated by an electric cell; needs only 4 hours of light — real or artificial — to function, and it goes all the time.

Local News

Dr. C. O. Miller of Butler, chairman of the DeKalb Co. Red Cross, has announced that Gray Lady service has recently been added to the local chapter program. Mrs. E. E. Zeller, Mrs. C. J. Maxton, Mrs. Leonard Wagoner, Mrs. R. G. Mutzfeld, Mrs. H. W. Knisely and Mrs. William Nimmo, all of Butler, are at present serving as Gray Ladies at the Indiana State School in Fort Wayne and at the Sheehy Convalescent Home in Butler. Applications for service with the Gray Ladies can be made at the chapter office in the court house at Auburn. A training course will soon be offered.

Marcia Keller lost a $5 bill near or in Clauser's Grocery Saturday morning. She is very unhappy about the whole matter, and someone else is $5 richer.

Rev. Ivan O. Miller, pastor of the Ltheran congregations at Spencerville and Saint Joe, was unable to conduct services Sunday due to a virus infection. The congregational pot luck dinner and annual meeting at Saint Joe was also cancelled. The congregational meeting has been rescheduled for Sunday, January 25, at 2:00 p.m.

Mrs. Parlia Hull and Mrs. Don Keller motored to Auburn last week.

The Junior Red Cross program is being introduced to the schools of DeKalb County by the local chapter of the Red Cross The Junior Red Cross magazine for schools has been directed to the schools in the county.

Recent dinner guests of the Don Kellers were Mr. and Mrs. Glen Wineland, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wade and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Dunten.

Thomas L. Hart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Karl Hart of Spencerville, has been elected president of Delta Chi Fraternity at Ball State Teachers College at Muncie. Tom is a 1956 graduate of Riverdale High School. He is a junior at Ball State and is on the elementary education curriculum.

The Lutheran Women of the Church of St. Mark Lutheran Church held an all-day meeting Thursday at the church.

Farmers have only a few more weeks in which to apply for loans or purchase agreements on most of their 1958 grain and related crops, Ray W Miller, chairman, DeKalb County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, has announced. January 31, 1959, is the deadline for obtaining price support on wheat barley, grain sorghums, oats, rye and soybeans in most areas. Since January 31 comes on Saturday, a non-business day, the deadline is automatically extended to Monday, February 2.

Mrs. Ethel Wineland spent last week in an Auburn hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Morr, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Morr and Mr. and Mrs. Sammy Morr and daughter, Renee, were Sunday dinner guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ginder and daughter, Brenda, at Fort Wayne. Mrs. Walter Morr and Mrs. Ginder are sisters.

Ray Means has been unable to perform his duties as janitor at Riverdale High School due to a prolonged eye infection. Clayton E. Baker has been serving as substitute at the school. Mr. Means expects to return to his duties next week.

Marine Sgt. Clayton B. Baker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton E. Baker of Saint Joe, arrived on the French Riviera December 18 with the Second Battalion 6th Marine Regiment to spend the Christmas and New Years holiday season. Tours to various cities such as Paris, Cannes and Monaco were arranged for the enjoyment of the Marines, and special holiday dinners were prepared. At the end of the 2-week vacation, the 1,700 leathernecks returned to duty and amphibious warfare training with the U.S. 6th Fleet.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Keller were dinner guests of the Lloyd Duntens recently.

Mr. Waldo Rosenbury has been seriously ill in Miami, Fla.

Mrs. John Crothers is recovering from injuries suffered in an automobile accident on the way down south. She and Mr. Crothers are wintering at Bradenton, Fla.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
International Uniform Sunday School Lessons
BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Bible material: Mark 10:32-45.

Devotional reading: John 13:1-17.

COST OF GREATNESS

Lesson for January 18, 1959

There is a religion which specializes in destroying desire. If you wish to be saved, they will tell you, you must stop wishing for anything, even to be saved. You must go farther than that, you must get rid of the wish to get rid of all wishes. The happy man is he in whom all desire is dead.

Jesus never indulged in such talk. He had no hard words for ambitious men. Of course it made a different story, when men were ambitious for the wrong reasons or for the wrong things. But ambition as such, he never condemned. Two of his nearest friends told him one day, not too privately either, that they wanted to sit at his right hand and his left when at last he should be King. That was another way of saying they wanted to share his power and his greatness. The other disciples were disgusted and angry; but not Jesus. All he said was, in effect: Greatness has a price; are you prepared to pay it?

The Towel

The price was a cup that must be drunk; a baptism to be undergone. It is quite plain that these are figures of speech, as Jesus used them to those ambitious brothers James and John. For Jesus was never baptized after that, and all the cups from which he drank were ordinary cups such as all poor families used. This price-of-greatness Jesus himself illustrated by what he, greatest among the great, was and did. At the last supper, it was remembered afterwards what Jesus had done besides presiding at the meal. He knew he had come from God, knew he was going again to God, and that the Father had given all things into his hands. Surely these words spell greatness beyond comparison. Yet knowing his greatness, "he took a towel . . ." (The story is in John 13.) The cost of greatness is to become a servant. The mark of greatness is not power-over but service-to.

The Teaching

Well, you might say, that towel incident was something special. Jesus sat among those men as their acknowledged Master; if for a few moments he took the part of a slave, a personal valet, he soon enough put on the teacher's gown again. Is there some way of serving others where we are, as we are—is there any way in which a teacher, for instance, can be "servant of all" without leaving the classroom or putting on an apron? Again Jesus shows us the way. All through his public life he was a teacher. What he had to say was more than personal opinion, it was a message from God. Yet Jesus was always humbly at the disposal of those he taught, with all their stupidity and selfishness. Much of his teaching, if not most of it, was simply speaking to questions or remarks other people made. When a heckler would ask him a question, he seldom brushed it off. He never said, "I am too busy to answer you" or "Your question is too stupid for words." On the contrary, he met people where they were and answered the questions they had, not the questions they doubtless should have had. So the professional man or woman can take his profession as a mere ladder to the big money, or as a means of humble service, in Christ's name and spirit.

The Cross

For Jesus, being at the service of others was not a matter of keeping office hours, of "being available." That was much; but there was a last and highest point. Day by day he spent himself for others. But at last he gave his life, not bit-by-bit, hour by hour, but all at once, poured out like wine of sacrifice. The Son of Man, he said of himself, did not come to be served but to serve . . . But what did it mean, to him, to serve? The servant's towel was dramatic. The serviceable teaching was less dramatic, more useful. But these did not reach far enough. When his saying about "not to be served but to serve" was remembered, they remembered the end of the sentence: "to give his life a ransom for many." Jesus' road to greatness took him straight to the Cross. No by-passes lead to greatness. Thinking over the roll-call of Christian heroes—the reader may name his own—one quality is found in them all: they loved themselves last.

This Week In AMERICAN HISTORY

BY WILLIAM BRODIE

"THE MAN WITH THE HOE"

The Sunday edition of the well-known newspaper, the San Francisco Examiner, carried on January 15, 1899 a poem that was to cause a tremendous stir all over the world. The title of the poem was "The Man With The Hoe," and it was written by Edwin Markham, a 47-year-old ex-cowboy and schoolteacher of California.

"The Man With The Hoe" was Markham's boldly written protest against the degradation of labor. He was inspired to write the poem after he saw the famous painting of a brutalized toiler with with a hoe by Millet, the French artist. "I could not get the picture of the degraded 'Hoe-Man' from my mind," said Markham. "It haunted me like some threat of eternal judgement. I could hear Christ crying out from the ruin of that man . . . "

Edwin Markham, who could be so stirred by sight of a painting, was born in Oregon in 1852 of old colonial stock, the son of pioneer parents. At the age of five he was taken by his widowed mother to live on a lonely ranch in central California. Here Markham spent his youth, working in time and by turn as a cowboy, a farmer, a blacksmith. Eager for schooling, he got little before his 15th year, but his desire for education led him in time to the State Normal School at San Jose.

After getting his college education Markham went into teaching. He also contributed poems and articles to magazines, but none of his writings stirred up any real interest until his "The Man With The Hoe" was published in the San Francisco Examiner. At the time he was principal of the Observation School of the University of California at Oakland.

In 1897 Edwin Markham married his second wife, Ann Catherine Murphy, a pretty California school teacher who shared his interest in literature. She married the tall, loose-jointed, bearded Markham despite her scruples against marrying a man with a beard, because "he wrote such wonderful poetry."

No other poem published in America aroused the emotions of people as did "The Man With The Hoe" with its dreadful picture and awful prophecy.

It begins:

"Bowed by the weight of centuries he leans
Upon his hoe and gazes on the ground,
The emptiness of ages in his face,
And on his back the burden of the world.

And it ends:

"How will it be with kingdoms and with kings—
With those who shaped him to the thing he is—
When this dumb Terror shall rise to judge the world,
After the silence of the centuries?"

The poem was popular from the moment it was first printed. It expressed the economic and social thought of many persons concerned with the cause of exploited labor. It brought to Edwin Markham immediate fame and won him the title of "Poet Laureate of Labor." The poem was hailed as "the first authentic American voice in our time to be raised against the injustice that is in the world."

Edwin Markham got $40 for his poem from the San Francisco Examiner. Over the years "The Man With The Hoe" was translated into 40 languages and reprinted some twelve thousand times in newspapers, magazines and books. Nothing else that Markham wrote during his long lifetime of 88 years ever had as much popular appeal as "The Man With The Hoe." But that one poem was enough to establish his lasting fame. No less a critic than H. L. Mencken called it "the greatest poem ever written in America."

first gave an explanation of opera, and a brief history of opera. She then gave the story of Puccini's "La Boheme," using several records of the opera.

Mrs. Robert Musser presided at the business meeting. 14 members responded to roll call. Election of officers was held with the following elected:

President, Mrs. Robert Musser.

Vice president, Mrs. Wayne Storer.

Recording secretary, Mrs. Forrest Bevington.

Corresponding secretary, Mrs. Elwood Hart.

Treasurer, Mrs. Harold Baker.

Critic, Mrs. Roy Baker.

Parliamentarian, Mrs. Frank Shull.

Historian, Mrs. William Staman.

The January 21 meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Maurice Kline.

Following adjournment, the hostess served light refreshments.

S.S. CONVENTION COMING

February 20 and 21 are the dates that have been chosen for the 1959 DeKalb County School Convention. The dates and initial plans were set at a meeting of the executive committee, along with a convention planning committee, on December 28 at the Auburn Missionary Church. The host church for the convention will again be the Auburn Methodist Church, who have offered their facilities for the fourth consecutive year.

Although programming has not been completed, the committees have placed at least one new feature in this year's convention. The Saturday afternoon session, which will close the convention, will be moved to Brownie's Restaurant, north of Auburn, where a noon luncheon and closing inspiration and business sessions will be held.

Loyal Ringenberg of Grabill, president of the association, and Rev. J. Clair Peters of Butler head the program committee; Joy Gerig of Auburn, music committee; David Wagner of Auburn and A. J Smith of Waterloo, membership committee; Lewis Walter of Auburn Mrs. Raymond Rakestraw of Auburn and Rev. Willard Sanders of Corunna, publicity.

The committee urges churches to begin making plans for sending their Sunday school teachers and other officers to the convention. Reservations for the Saturday luncheon can be made by contacting Lewis Walter, RI, Auburn.

WATER, WATER, EVERYWHERE — Smart enough to head for the near-by water tap instead of his distant pool when he wanted a drink, this King Penguin at the Zoo now seems to be learning that the shortest way there is often the longest way 'round. Unable to turn the faucet with his bill, he had to waddle off to the pool anyway, after having made a detour that was more educational than thirst-quenching.

ANNIVERSARY OF AVIATION — Kitty Hawk, N.C. — A Marine helicopter hovers above the crowd as an honor guard from Cherry Point, N.C., Marine Air Station places a wreath at the foot of the Wright Brothers Monument. Several hundred persons braved the cold winds of Kill Devil Hill where, 55 years ago, the Wright Brothers made their first flight.

FEATHERING HER NEST — With the chicken she literally "mothered" perched on her shoulder, Mrs. Ella Petry displays two eggs produced by the bird at St. Leonards, England. When the hen itself was only an egg, Mrs. Petry carried it next to her own skin for three weeks before it hatched. The hen now has rewarded its human "mother" by producing two eggs of its own.

Cubs Get Awards

The December Cub Scout Pack meeting was held December 20 in the high school gym with about 80 persons present.

Opening ceremony was under the direction of Den 3. Den mother reports and den skits were given.

Advancement awards were made as follows:

Bear badges—Kenneth Furnish and Stanley Lake.

Closing ceremony included the Living Circle with all Cubs, den chiefs and den mothers taking part.

Last but not least was the arrival of Jolly Old St. Nick who made everyone happy with gifts.

ASKS MRS. NORMAN GOSHERT.

"That's one of the reasons why we bought a 'quick recovery' electric water heater. It fits anywhere and doesn't need a vent." The Gosherts always have plenty of hot water; and since their water heater is nearest the point of greatest use, they save money.

Survey Shows Confusion On 'Right-To-Work'

82 per cent of 1,000 Hoosiers endorsed the principle embodied in the Indiana Right To Work Law during a public opinion survey conducted last week by an independent Indianapolis research organization.

"Do you believe that you should be permitted to get and hold a job without being forced to join a union?" was one of a series of questions put to a representative group of citizens. Among the 1,000 who were interviewed in person were 406 who stated that either they or members of their families are union members.

The results of the sampling of opinion were released late Tuesday by the Indiana Right To Work Committee, Inc., which is seeking to thwart an attempt to repeal the Right To Work statute during the current session of the Indiana General Assembly.

Committee vice-president L. A. Hooser declared that the survey conclusively proves that labor union officials have succeeded to a degree in misrepresenting the 1957 law.

"The real significance of the poll," Hooser stated, "is this: first, it illustrates that a vast majority of Hoosiers believe in the principle contained in the Right To Work Law. Secondly, it proves that crafty union officers - by deliberately confusing the issue - have influenced some people who actually believe in the law's principle, to oppose the law itself.

"Whereas 818 of the 1,000 interviewed expressed opposition to compulsory unionism, 502 specifically said they favor the Right To Work Law.

"This reveals that many people do not understand that the only purpose of this law is to protect each individual's right to get and hold a job, whether he is a member or non-member of a labor union.

"They have been misled by the great amount of propaganda from union officers who are trying to strip all workers of their basic freedom of choice," Hooser concluded.

The survey was timed to coincide with the opening of the Indiana General Assembly's 91st biennial session so that it would clearly reflect the current sentiment of the general public.

While the state's 1,372,400 families include only 500,000 union members, a much higher ration of industrial workers was questioned in the survey.

"Actually," Hooser declared, "we leaned over backward and asked the researchers to take an extra number of interviews in areas where industrial workers predominate. During the public hearings, we will furnish the survey results to the members of the labor committees of both the Senate and House, and we are confident these results will be studied closely by our legislators."

A paradox was presented by the answers furnished by 406 members of union families. 57 per cent said they oppose the Right To Work Law but 65 per cent said they "should be permitted to get and hold a job without being forced to join a union."

Formulated by the research organization, the survey questions were asked in the following order:

"What do you think about the Indiana Right To Work Law - you favor or oppose it?"

Favor—502 or 50 per cent.

Oppose—310 or 31 per cent

Don't know—188 or 19 per cent.

"Do you believe that you should be permitted to get and hold a job without being forced to join a union?"

Yes—818 or 82 per cent.

No—136 or 14 per cent.

No opinion—46 or 4 per cent.

"Do you or any member of your family belong to a union?"

Yes—406 or 41 per cent.

No—594 or 59 per cent.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Ted:

Just a note to thank you for the paper for the passed 6 mo. It makes home a little nearer. Hope to write more later.

Dear Friends in St. Joe,

From Sunny Arizona to you in the cold country of Indiana we wish to say Merry Christmas to you all and A Happy New Year.

We have been having wonderful weather as the enclosed weather report from our little paper will verify. We had a hard frost the middle of November that frosted the grass and got some of the flowers. It was a record cold for so early in the season. There was much snow in the mountains to the north of us and Phoenix had snow in the South Mts. at the south edge of Phoenix. It was the first that some people had ever seen snow there. But when that was over, we have had it nice every since. Guess it got out of its system.

We are all O.K. and busy as always. Ira still works in the O. S. Stapley Hardware and at this season it keeps everyone on the run there as they have quite a big store with a large gift department.

Richard is growing up. He is a Sophomore in high school here this year. Most of you remember him as a pretty small child as he had not started to school when we left St. Joe.

As for me I keep busy, too. I work for the Richfield Oil Co. Bulk Plant as bookkeeper. Business is heavy there at this time of year as the cotton harvest is in full swing and it takes fuel to keep the cotton pickers running. Since the pink boll worm invaded the cotton here this year they have to have all the cotton picked and the stalks cut and plowed under by the 15th of January so the ranchers are working full time.

Several of the people back there have visited us as they passed through or were visiting in Arizona. So if anyone of you get out this way stop and see us. We are always glad to welcome our friends.

I am enclosing a check for ($2.00) two dollars to pay up our subscription that is somewhat past due. We get the paper real good, sometimes on Monday after publication. That is as fast as a letter comes from there.

Your friends,
Ira, Agnes and Richard Moore

The weather report in the "Buckeye Valley News" indicates the highs for the week of December 4 in the 70's and 80's with the lows in the 30's and 40's.
Between our Hoosier (DeKalb County) friends in Arizona and Florida enjoying the sunshine and warm weather, the winter goes aw-w-w-ful slow. —Ed.

Dear Sir:

Your esteemed newspaper recently gave notice to a letter from Mr. Carl B. Munck, President of the National School Boards Association, criticizing Reader's Digest articles on school construction costs.

Mr. Munck's letter elicited a reply from our Executive Editor, Mr. Kenneth W. Payne. I enclose a copy for your information. You are free to use any part or all of this if you wish to do so.

Sincerely yours,
Sterling W. Fisher
Director of Public Relations
Reader's Digest

The letter referred to points out that building of schools and building of industrial and other facilities cannot be compared in the same light, that Reader's Digest merely expressed a view which was intended to contribute to better use of school construction funds. —Ed.

Dear Ted,

I have been wanting to thank you for sending me the paper. It sure is good to get the news from home. It makes me feel a lot closer when I can read the names of people I know.

I may not get home for a while so I would like to take this opportunity to say hi! to all my friends in Northern Indiana.

Comets On Win Spree; Defeat Ashley, Albion For 5 Straight

The Riverdale Comets continued their winning ways in the past week taking a 61-56 win over Ashley at Waterloo Friday night, then downing Albion at Albion Tuesday evening by a 69-67 score.

The reserves dropped two close ones, losing to Ashley 50-48 Friday and to Albion 47-46 in an overtime contest Tuesday.

The Ashley varsity took an 8-5 lead Friday night before the Comets edged ahead at 9-8 at the 3:40 mark. Riverdale then held a 14-12 lead with 2:-31 to go when Ashley called a time out. The Comets went into their effective all-court press in the last two minutes and jumped to a 22-13 lead at the quarter.

The Comets extended their lead to 30-15, then to 40-24. The all-court press continued to fluster Ashley. The half ended at 44-29.

The story was different, however in the third and fourth quarters as the Comets offense sputtered while Ashley slowly closed the scoring gap, trailing by 50-40 then by 52-45 at the end of the third period. The Comets rebounding was almost nil.

Ashley pulled to 52-47 when Riverdale called time out in the fourth quarter. 5:22 showed on the clock. Butler fouled out at the 2:00 mark and Ashley trailed 56-53. Dowden hit a free throw and Vinson 2 more free throws to make it 59-53. Bry hit a bucket and Ashley got one more to bring the final score to 61-56.

In Tuesday's contest, Riverdale held a comfortable 10-point lead over Albion at the half, 37-27. There was only a 4-point margin at the end of the third period, however, and it was nip and tuck the rest of the way. Riverdale outlasted Albion to win 69-67.

COMET CNIPTIONS—The reserve game with Ashley was a rough and hotly contested game. — The locals' rebounding strength suffered when Smith and Heyman fouled out in the last quarter. — Despite snow on Friday and snow and freezing rain Tuesday, Comet fans made a good showing for the games. — The all-court press by the varsity, their specialty, gave Ashley fits, although it appeared the Comets themselves might be bothered by an all-court press as Ashley tried it for a short time but then dropped it. — The Comets really relaxed in the third and last periods. They finally got rolling again, just in time. No rebounding was the story in the third period. — The Comets got a break in the last period when one of them, apparently miffed at a referee's decision on a foul, deliberately ran head-on into an Ashley player. There was a short scuffle and flurry of arms before they broke. Fortunately the officials did not see the incident. — The fifth and sixth grade basketball teams went back to Ashley Saturday accompanied by a bunch of their rooters. The sixth grade beat Ashley 18-16 but the fifth graders lost by a score of 4-3. — The sixth grade cheerleaders were all decked out in their pert outfits.

The Spencerville Cub Scout Pack Meeting, including dens from Spencerville and Saint Joe, will be held Friday evening, January 23, at 7:30 p.m. at the Spencerville Methodist Church. A district executive representing the Anthony Wayne Council will be present for the meeting.

Hope that the Sacred Heart Hospital in Garrett might be kept open after March 1, 1959, the announced closing date for the institution, was abandoned this week when a confirmation of the hospital's closing was made public. Garrett citizens had been working on the possibility that a solution to the problems might be gained through public action. However, the Franciscan Sisters announced Friday that no solution was workable and the hospital is proceeding with plans to close in a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Price Brookfield are the proud parents of a son, John Price, born January 14, 1959, weight 7 pounds 14 ounces.

A meeting of the Lutheran Men of Northeastern Indiana was cancelled this week due to the weather. Originally scheduled for Wednesday of this week the meeting will be held Wednesday, January 28, at 8 p.m. at LaOtto. Dr. E. E. Flack, dean of Hamma Divinity School at Springfield, O., will be the speaker.

Billie Jean Mason of Saint Joe was granted a divorce from John David Mason in DeKalb Circuit Court last week. The wife was awarded $1,000 cash, an automobile and a promissory note in the amount of $5,000 to be paid by the husband. All other property was left to the defendant. Custody of 4 minor children was awarded to the plaintiff's parents, Wilbur and Jennie Walter, of Saint Joe. The court directed the husband to pay $200 counsel fees for Mrs. Mason and ordered that he provide proper support for his children. The couple married December 24, 1943, and separated June 2, 1956.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sechler are the parents of a son, David Arthur, born Sunday afternoon, January 18, at the Lutheran Hospital in Fort Wayne. Weight—9 pounds 15½ ounces.

The Cub Scouts will collect scrap paper Saturday, January 24. Those having old newspapers to contribute are asked to have them ready by 9:00 a.m. Saturday.

Rep. E. Ross Adair was sworn into office last week at Washington, D.C. He begins his 5th two-year term as 4th District Representative. He has been appointed to the House Committee on Committees which assigns Republican members to various House Committees.

The annual meeting of the St. Mark Lutheran congregation will be held Sunday, January 25, at 2 p.m.

Rough on the constitution, the coal bin, the oil tank and the wood pile is Old Man Winter. Saint Joe and surrounding communities are in company with much of the nation in having wintery blasts make their presence known.

Snow closed Riverdale schools Monday, they opened Tuesday, then closed again Wednesday as rain and thawing snow froze with a drop in the temperature to make road travel precarious.

Freezing rain Tuesday night caused damage to trees in the area. Some property damage was also caused, one instance being a section of the News Office building pulled from the studs by the weight of ice on power lines into the building. Some inconvenience was caused customers of the electric and telephone companies which were occasionally disrupted in service.

Slush and water present Wednesday in great quantities were solidified Wednesday night and Thursday morning as temperatures dropped to little above zero, the promise being that cold weather will continue for a few days, at least.

Auburn Shares Split Sectional With 'Busco

Local sectional basketball activity will be split between Churubusco and Auburn this coming February 25 and 28.

Churubusco will be the sectional center with the sectional semi-final and final games being played in the gymnasium at the Whitley County school. Last year's host schools were 'Busco and Garrett.

Teams competing in the split sectional will be Riverdale, Auburn, Ashley, Butler, Garrett, Waterloo, Orland, Fremont, Angola, Bellefountain, Salem Center and Churubusco.

The sectional winner at 'Busco will then go to Fort Wayne March 7 for the regional tournament, to play winners from Adams Central, Fort Wayne and Kendallville.

The semi-state will be held March 14 with the state finals scheduled for March 21.

RIGHT TO COMMAND

The Teachers' Union in Jesus' time was made up mostly of priests. Some of these were mere political hacks, but many of them belonged to the old aristocracy, with pedigrees running back for centuries. They were no better than mediocre teachers, themselves, but they didn't like any one else moving in to their preserves.

So when Jesus came to Jerusalem, the big city, from up-country, and began to teach in the very shadow of the great Temple, the authorities were aroused. He could teach in Galilee all he liked and they wouldn't interfere—much. But let him come to the priests' capital city, where they were the ruling class, and they were determined he should line up as they told him—or else. . .What that "or else" was we know too well. But first they tried to get him into trouble with his public. For Jesus had what actors and writers call a "public," people who heard him every chance they had.

Show Your License!

The first move the priests tried was the same kind of thing a police officer does to any shady salesman or careless driver. Show us your license, they said in effect. If Jesus said, God gave me the right to teach, the priests would surely retort, What conceit! How could God authorize you except through US, God's representatives among his people? Or if Jesus said that some man, any man, gave him the right to teach, the priests would lose no time in telling him that they were the official Teachers' License Bureau and had never given him permission to speak. Either way, they figured, he would lose face with his public.

Jesus' answer stunned them. It meant: You tell me about John the Baptist and I will tell you about me. This was not off the subject, as we might think. Expressed more fully, what Jesus meant was: "Very well, suppose I received my authority from John the Baptist, as some of you may think? Where did he get HIS authority?

From Popular Consent?

There used to be a man who had no degree but his college A.B. The members of his church called him "Doctor" all the same. He used to say that his degree had been conferred by vote of the people. More important matters than titles can be conferred, in our country, by vote of the people. The authority of a president or governor comes from the people themselves. There is nothing essentially wrong about authority that comes from men at large. Indeed, unless the people consent, no man can wield authority. In one sense Jesus' authority came from the heart of the people. The common people heard him gladly, we are told. "This is our man and we love him. This is our man; he knows!" Unless a leader has something like that effect on people, he is a leader in name only.

From Personal Force?

But of course popular consent, popular enthusiasm, can be quite wrong. Look at Hitler in the height of his power. Every Nazi, millions of them, went screaming for him. He was Germany's "new Messiah." But that did not make him right. He was horribly wrong, in fact, for all the cheering.

There is another kind of authority, which comes from within. The man who has it does not need to appeal to any one else, he does not need to produce a license, he needs no sponsors. Now Jesus had that kind of authority and every one of his friends and admirers felt it. We read that after his "sermon on the mount" the people were astonished because he taught as one having authority, and not as the scribes. We know how the Scribes taught. They quoted authorities. Jesus HAD it.

From God?

Highest and truest authority is that which comes from God. According to the fourth Gospel, Jesus denied saying anything strictly on his own account. He spoke God's words, his teaching were God's teaching. "My teaching is not mine, but his who sent me," he said (John 7:16). Now every Christian in the world admits this. We all claim to believe that Christ's authority is divine. But do we act as if we believed it?

Around the Town

With the Editor

It's a good thing the sun was shining Wednesday this week and the temperature went up, a little. Or else I would have continued green with envy after receiving the following notation on a post card from Lehr Wilder, postmark, Port Richey, Fla.

"Just a line to let you know that its nice and warm in Florida. Will be back Feb. 1.
Lehr"

What was it I said a few weeks ago in one of these accompanying columns about maybe we might have an old-fashioned winter? There's no maybe about it anymore, is there?

The next time you're at a home game and the band is playing, take a look and see if you don't agree - - we've got one of the toe-tappingest bands in the land. I get a kick out of watching those white oxfords pumping away, particularly when the music is playing on the up beat but the foot is on the downbeat.

A little reminder to all the other lovers of barbershop quartet singing, the Fort Wayne Chapter S.P.E.B.S.Q.S.A. Parade of Quartets will be presented next Sunday afternoon at the Civic Theatre.

SPENCER TWP. HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Spencer Township Home Demonstration Club met January 14 at the home of Izetta Chaney. There were 16 members, 5 children and 1 guest present.

The meeting was called to order by Alice Kagey. History of the song of the month, "Tomorrow," was given by Alice Kagey and the club then sang the song, followed by "When the Roll Is Called Up Yonder" led by Alice Kagey.

President, Dorothy Kimes.
Secretary, Berniece Wilder.
Treasurer, Marie Ward.
News Reporter, Marjie Dwyer.

Reports were given by the secretary, treasurer and safety chairman, Garnet Furnish. The club collect was led by Jennie Walter. Roll call response was "What I never get around to doing."

Club books were distributed and the project lesson, "Know Your Fabrics," was then given by Jennie Walter.

The club prayer was led by Alice Kagey.

The February meeting will be held February 11 at the home of Ida Reed.

Avilla Another Victim Of Soaring Comets

The Riverdale Comets ran their win streak to 6 straight Friday night at Avilla, defeating Avilla by a 51-42 score. The locals' season record now stands at 10 wins and 6 losses

The reserves dropped their game, 43-29. They trailed by 26-14 at the half and 33-24 at the three-quarter mark. Avilla scored 10 and the Comets 5 in the final period for the score 43-29.

In the varsity game, Larry Friend got his shooting eye back again after dropping off in his scoring efforts lately to get the Comets off to a good start in the first quarter. The locals led 20-12 at the end of the first quarter.

Avilla closed the gap in score in the second quarter, pulling up to 22-19 before the Comets extended the lead to 30-24 at the half.

Avilla again rallied and trailed by only 2 points in the third quarter at 30-28. Riverdale shots were rolling in and back out during their moments of poor scoring. But they managed to get rolling again before the third quarter ended and pulled out to a 41-29 lead.

The Comets led 50-36 at the 2-minute mark in the fourth quarter and went on to the 51-42 win.

COMET CNIPTIONS — More body contact being allowed this year opens the door for occasional rough play and a few ruffled players. Such was the situation Friday in the reserve game with one of the Comets asked to leave the game. — It was good to see that familiar light-haired crew-cut bobbing up above the other players several times to make good on a basket. Larry Friend found his old spot again Friday, 7 or 8 feet to either side of the bucket. — Comet success in recent weeks has brought the appearance of new faces at games. Their flashy and frequently spectacular performances deserve this support. — No game is scheduled for the coming week end. The next one will be played Friday, February 6, at Harlan.

Lions Club Aids 3 Needy Students In Sight Program

Students in the Riverdale Elementary School are reaping benefits from the program of physical check-ups for the students through the efforts of the county school nurse. Statistics from the elementary school show that a total of 32 students have obtained eye glasses since the eye tests were given recently. The school nurse recommended consultation with a doctor when the tests indicated that a child might be having difficulty in school work because of sight impairment.

In connection with the recommendation for doctor consultation, the Saint Joe Lions Club has provided funds for three young students whose families were unable to provide the necessary glasses because of finances. The local service club, through contacts made by Mrs. Frank Shull, a Riverdale P.T.A. room mother, and Forrest Bevington, teacher in the elementary school and a member of the Lions Club, has undertaken the provision of eye glasses as a project of its sight conservation program. The club also recently took 2 local young people to a clinic in Michigan, one for correction of crossed eyes, the other for an eye examination at a cost of approximately $175.00.

Mr. Hill's room 4; Mrs. Middaugh 3; Mrs. Baker 3; Mrs. Miller 4; Mrs. Allen 1; Mr. Rawlings 6; Mr. Bevington 2; Mrs. Gobel 2; Mrs. Kuehn 1; Mrs. Bacon 0; Mrs. Impton 3; and Mrs. Platter 3; a total of 32.

In the upper grades, a report from Mrs. Virgil Laux, principal's secretary, indicates that 7 students returned slips from their doctors acknowledging an eye examination, with 6 of these obtaining glasses. There are probably more students who have obtained glasses or have at least received an extensive examination from their eye doctors but who have not reported such examinations by returning slips distributed by the school nurse.

Sp'ville Club Prepares Family Prog'm, Projects

The directors and officers of the Spencerville Community Club met with the Wayne Koch family Monday evening.

Various projects and aims of the club were reviewed and plans made to continue them this spring. Included was the beautification program under the direction of Mrs. C. R. Baumgartner.

It is hoped that more lights will be purchased by Spencerville home owners for installation and lighting this spring. Anyone wishing to purchase one of the outdoor lights is asked to contact Glen Moore, president of the Community Club.

A family night was set for Saturday, February 14, at the fire hall starting with a pot luck supper at 6:30 p.m. followed by a short business meeting and entertainment consisting of some very worth while films.

Pancake Supper Feb. 7

The Live Wire Class of the Spencerville Methodist Church will sponsor a pancake and sausage supper on Saturday, February 7.

The supper will be served in the basement of the church beginning at 5 p.m.

Adult servings will be 75 cents with children servings 50 cents.

CONCORD JR. HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Concord Jr. Home Demonstration Club met at the home of Phyllis Uehlein on January 12.

The meeting was opened with the club collect. The history of the song of the month was given by Katy Crow.

Installation of officers was made by Doris Yeiser. They are:

Rose Means, president.
Ellen Fetters, 1st vice president.
Hazel Schrader, 2nd vice president.
Marvella Dilley, secretary.
Marcia Sible, treasurer.
Norma Diederich, news reporter.

Later in the year the club plans to entertain the Progressive Homemakers and in turn will be guests of the Chatter Bells.

The treasurer reported a sizeable balance with which to start the year. New business was discussed.

The meeting closed with all repeating the club prayer.

Carnival-Supper Plans Hit Snag; No Chairmen

Ted Haberkorn, president of the Riverdale P.T.A. has announced that no volunteers or draftees have been forthcoming since the announcement at the January meeting of his unsuccessful attempts to find a chairman for the P.T.A.'s annual ham supper and a chairman for the accompanying carnival.

With only a short time remaining before Indiana state basketball tourney time, beginning February 28, and the beginning of agricultural activity for the spring months, a possibility looms of no supper and carnival this year, unless the necessary chairmen can be found. The situation was reported at the Janaury P.T.A. meeting with no results obtained. Several contacts have been made by the president with no success.

Unless chairmen are named by this coming Saturday, January 31, there will, in all probability, be no supper and carnival. The latest possible date for the event appears to be Saturday, February 21, the president pointed out. "This takes a lot of work by a lot of people. From the reactions of several who have been contacted, perhaps we need a year's 'vacation' from the carnival and supper. We have plenty of helpers but no bosses," he concluded.

The president and the P.T.A. will welcome anyone who will take over the supervision of the supper and another to handle the carnival.

Notice For Saint Joe Volunteer Firemen

Frank Monroe, Chief of the Saint Joe Volunteer Fire Department, issued the following statement this week concerning membership in the department:

"At our January meeting the subject of attendance at fire runs and regular meetings was discussed.

"Our by-laws state clearly that if a member misses 3 successive meetings without presenting a legitimate excuse, his name is automatically dropped from the membership list.

"It is not our desire to hurt anyone's feelings. But if you are one of these inactive members, we must demand regular attendance. If you cannot conform with this rule, will you please hand in your resignation."

Local News

The 81st annual meeting of the DeKalb County Farmer's Mutual Fire Insurance Company will be held Saturday, January 31, at the court house in Auburn at 1:00 p.m. DST. The terms of all officials and three directors are expiring. The present officails are: Oscar Noel, president; Chester Buttermore, vice president; Lloyd Mason, treasurer; Virgil Korff, actuary; Lester Boger, secretary; and the three directors whose two-year terms are expiring are Cleve Grube, Florin Knox and William Staman. Reports of the previous year's business will be given along with financial reports.

Bert Ort died at the age of 57 at his home on R3, Auburn, at 7 a.m. Sunday, the victim of a heart attack. He had been under a doctor's care for several months. Funeral services were conducted Wednesday at the Dilgard and Kline Funeral Home in Auburn with Rev. LeRoy Buuck, pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church at Auburn, officiating. Burial was in Woodlawn Cemetery near Auburn. Survivors include the widow, Dora; six sons; four daughters, including Mrs. Donald Yeiser of Saint Joe; 11 grandchildren; and two brothers.

A 3-month old baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Wolf of Garrett was found dead of malnutrition (starvation) Sunday morning. The Wolfs have two other children. The family is on relief and the father does part time farm work. The children had been left with a baby sitter Sunday morning. Concern over the condition of the baby led the baby-sitter to seek assistance. The police were summoned and they in turn called the county coroner, Dr. Perry Reynolds, who pronounced the baby dead of malnutrition. Further investigation of the case revealed Tuesday that there was no evidence of willful intent in the death of the baby. Also it was revealed that the father, though nearly blind, walks three and one-half miles back and forth to his work as a part-time farm laborer. The other 2 children, ages 3 and 2, have been made wards of the welfare department.

After four days of life without electricity, residents of the Ashley-Hudson area began "living" again Saturday night. However, telephone service was still "out!" The inconveniences suffered by the residents of that area came as a result of last week's snow, freezing rain and more snow.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon for Mrs. Blanche Hart, 81, a native of the Saint Joe community, who died Friday at the home of a daughter in Kent, Ohio. Surviving in addition to the daughter are a son, Carl Perkins, of Saint Joe; two grandchildren and two great grandchildren. Mrs. Hart was born in the Saint Joe community on October 5, 1877, the daughter of Thomas and Sarah Jane White. Her first husband, Calvin Perkins, died in 1902, and in 1956 her second husband, Clarence Hart, died. Rev. Ivan Miller conducted the funeral services and burial was in the Knights of Pythias Cemetery at Saint Joe.

A family birthday dinner was held Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Rucker of Saint Joe. Those celebrating their birthdays were Mrs. Lola Mae Rucker and daughter, Susan Kay, Sam Carpenter and Dorothy Rucker. Others attending in addition to Mr. and Mrs. Rucker and daughters, Diann, Sandra and Susan, were Mr. and Mrs. Sam Carpenter and Martha, Roberta, Sammy and David, Mr. William E. Rucker of Hicksville, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rucker and Robin and Christin of Columbia City. The family was also glad to welcome a new member to the family, little Miss Christin Ann, born to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rucker December 16, 1958.

ST. JOE VALLEY HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Saint Joe Valley Home Demonstration Club met on January 16 at the home of Mrs. Laura Washler as hostess with Mrs. Iva Yeiser as co-hostess. 16 members, 2 guests and 2 children were present.

The meeting was called to order with all repeating the club collect. Devotions were by Mrs. Doris Yeiser and all repeated the Lord's Prayer.

History of the song of the month was given by Mrs. Elizabeth Shull and then all joined in singing it.

Installation of the new officers was by Mrs. Doris Yeiser. Secretary's report and a short business meeting followed. The meeting closed with all singing the prayer song.

SISTERS OF THE SKILLET HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

Candlelight services marked the installation of officers for the Sisters of the Skillet Home Demonstration Club on January 22 at the home of Leila Moore.

The meeting was opened by the 1958 president, Effiebel McCann, with all members repeating the club collect.

She then turned the meeting over to the county president, Edna Prkins, who officiated at the installation. The home economics creed was then repeated by all members.

The new president, Jean Moore, then proceeded with the business of the evening.

A poem entitled "Past and Future" was given by Gladys Akey for devotions. History of the song of the month was given by Dorothy Christman and sung by the club members. Roll call was answered by 12 members. Edna Perkins was a guest and there were 2 children present.

A report was given on officers training school and members discussed project planning for 1960.

The meeting was closed by all singing the prayer song.

Refreshments were then served by the hostess and cohostess, Mary Ellen Beaty.

Tax Facts

(Prepared by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants)

Selecting the Proper Tax Form

If you are one of the millions of American taxpayers who spends the lion's share of his income feeding, clothing, housing and entertaining his family, chances are there is very little you can do to reduce your 1958 federal income tax bill—but you owe it to yourself to try.

First of all, decide which of the two individual tax forms you are going to use to report your income. If you choose the wrong one, you may automatically cut yourself off from a possible tax savings.

The easiest way to file is to use the simple 1040-A Form. It's a card the size of a check, on which you answer a few simple questions and have the choice of either computing your own tax or letting the Government do it for you.

You are permitted to use the card form if your gross income consisted only of wages, dividends or interest totaling less than $10,000, and if you did not have more than $200 of gross income apart from that listed on your W-2 withholding slips.

Before deciding to use the card Form 1040-A, you should consider these facts:

1. Your tax will be figured from a table which allows you a deduction of about 10 per cent of your income instead of itemized deductions for contributions, taxes, interest paid, medical and dental expenses, etc.

2. There is no provision in this form for filing as the "head of household", as a "surviving spouse" or for claiming special credits for dividends and retirement income.

If you are sure that these two points would not cost you any tax savings, and your income is within the limits for filing a Form 1040-A, you might as well use this simple card form.

When you elect to use the regular Form 1040, you still must decide whether to itemize deductions or take the standard deduction which usually amounts to about 10 per cent of your income or $1,000, whichever is less. Generally, you will save by itemizing deductions if you:

(1) Own real estate;
(2) Had unusual medical expenses;
(3) Had deductible child-care expense;
(4) Suffered losses from fire, storm, accident or theft;
(5) Made fairly large charitable contributions.

If you are supporting a dependent, although you are unmarried, you may be able to qualify as a "head of household" and figure your tax on a special table that gives you part of the advantage enjoyed by married couples filing joint returns.

You may qualify for a "head of household" status if you provide more than half the support of a parent, and more than half the cost of maintaining the parent's household even if the parent does not live with you. You cannot claim a "head of household" status if you file a Form 1040-A.

The Form 1040 is so arranged again this year that a taxpayer whose income was entirely from wages needs to use only the first one or two pages. Pages three and four are for other types of income and for computing the special credits for dividends and retirement income.

The instructions which come with your tax forms give further information on how to select the correct tax form.

Don't Pay Tax On Non-Taxable Items

You may think that listing your income is the easiest part of preparing a tax return. Actually, according to the Internal Revenue Service, this is where taxpayers make the greatest number of errors.

Not all of the money that may have come to you during 1958 needs to be reported on your tax form. For example, don't report:

(1) "Dividends" received on an insurance policy. They are considered merely a refund of part of the premium you paid.

(2) Social Security benefits, Railroad Retirement Act benefits, or payments received under Workmen's Compensation laws.

(3) Property or cash gifts received from other people, although the giver may have to pay a gift tax. Tips and other compensation for services must be reported, however.

(4) Inheritances and bequests. The estate may be taxed, but not the recipient.

If you were injured and received damages, this is not considered taxable income and it makes no difference whether your damages were awarded by a court or settled out of court.

When listing income you can also forget about most government benefits to veterans and their families. Dividends paid on veteran's Government insurance is not considered taxable income, but non-disability retirement pay and the interest on terminal leave bonds must be included.

If you were absent from work due to injury or sickness and received payments from your employer or his insurance company, these payments are non-taxable within these two limitations:

First, the maximum amount is $100 per week, plus any amounts which came from your own contribution to the plan.

Second, unless the absence was for sickness during which you were hospitalized for one day or for a personal injury, the payments are NOT tax free until after the first 7 calendar days of absence.

If these payments are included in the wages shown on your withholding slips, you should subtract the proper amount from your income in the place provided on the first page of the tax return (Form 1040). Attach an explanation as described in the official instruction book. You are entitled to exclude this amount even if you do not itemize deductions.

There is an interesting rule on prizes. Generally all prizes and awards are taxable. However, prizes awarded for scientific, literary or other achievements without any action by you to bring about your selection are not considered as taxable income to you. Most scholarships granted to college students are not taxable, and the value of the award does not have to be included in the student's contribution to his support.

The official instructions contain a list of the types of income which should or should not be included in your tax return. It is important to check this list carefully.

Claiming Dependency Exemptions

When you total up the exemptions on your 1958 tax return, remember that you are permitted to claim at least one exemption for every qualified dependent—and this includes yourself.

Count your exemptions carefully because each one takes $600 off your taxable income. Take one for yourself and two if you are 65 or over. This rule applies to both husband and wife on a joint return, and an added exemption may be taken if either is blind.

In addition, you are entitled to one exemption for each person who fits the definition of a dependent, but the extra exemptions for age and blindness cannot be taken for a dependent.

To qualify for an exemption a dependent must:

(1) Have received more than one-half of his support from you unless you file a Multiple Support Agreement (see below).

(2) Have less than $600 gross income unless he is your child and under 19 years of age—or a student of any age.

(3) Not file a joint return with his spouse.

(4) Have been either a member of your household or closely related to you, as defined in the official instructions.

(5) Be either a citizen of the United States or a resident of the U.S., Canada, Mexico, Canal Zone, Panama, or (in some cases) the Philippines.

Your exemptions usually depend on whether you and your dependents qualify under these rules at the end of the year. However, if your husband or wife died during the year you can file a joint return and take the same exemptions that both of you would have otherwise had.

If you shared with others in the support of a dependent, but none of you provided more than half, you may still be able to arrange for one member of the group to have the $600 exemption. You might agree, for example, to take turns claiming the exemption each year.

The one who claims the exemption must have contributed more than 10 per cent of the support, and he must have been a member of the group who collectively provided the necessary "more than one-half support." Each member of the group must have been entitled to claim the dependent except for the support requirement.

In order for one person to have the exemption all other members of the group who contributed over 10 per cent must sign declarations that they will not claim the dependent. The Internal Revenue Service provides Form 2120 (Multiple Support Agreement) for this purpose.

Taxpayers who are supporting dependents, but are not able to file a joint return, may qualify as the "head of household", and be entitled to use a special schedule of tax rates that give you half the benefits of income-splitting.

If you qualify as a "surviving spouse" you should not file a tax return as a "head of household." The tax of a surviving spouse is computed on the same basis as a joint return and gives the full benefit of income-splitting. A "surviving spouse" is one:

1. Whose husband or wife died in the preceding two years (1956 and 1957).

2. Who maintains a home for a legally qualified dependent (the dependent in this case must be a son, stepson, daughter or step-daughter).

Deductions That Cut Your Tax Bill

The big question facing the small taxpayer at this time is whether to itemize deductions or take the standard deduction.

Before you give up and file a "short" form, take the time to add up the family expenses that could be deducted. If the deductions that could be itemized total more than 10 per cent of your adjusted gross income, it will pay you to file a "long" Form 1040.

INTEREST ON LOANS — The interest you paid on loans is deductible. This includes any mortgage, automobile, appliance, home improvement or personal loans you may have had. Interest on installment purchases is also deductible. Evidence, such as a statement from the seller, should be obtained to show the amount of interest that you paid during the year.

STATE AND LOCAL TAXES—Most taxes, other than federal taxes, are deductible. These include state and local real estate, personal property, income, retail sales, gasoline and poll taxes. You can deduct auto license fees, but not auto inspection fees. If you don't have an exact record of some of these taxes, you can make a reasonable estimate.

CHARITABLE CONTRIBUTIONS—Gifts to charitable, religious, educational, scientific or literary organizations are deductible. Generally, these contributions are deductible up to 20 per cent (in some cases 30 per cent) of your adjusted gross income. In adding up your donations, don't overlook the old clothes, toys, books or furniture you may have contributed to a local charity or church. The fair market value of these gifts is deductible.

MEDICAL AND DENTAL EXPENSES—Unless you or your wife has reached the age of 65, your medical expenses are deductible only to the extent that they exceed 3 per cent of your adjusted gross income. Include in your medical deduction the cost of doctor, nursing, dentist's X-rays, and hospital services. You may also include premiums for health, accident and medical insurance.

CASUALTY LOSSES— You are entitled to deduct your uninsured home losses from fire, theft or storm. Damage to an automobile is deductible if the accident was due to faulty driving but not negligence on your part.

CHILD CARE EXPENSES—Widowed, divorced or legally separated taxpayers, and in some cases any taxpayer, who must pay for the care of a dependent while they work can deduct up to $600 of this expense. Check carefully the requirements in the official instruction book before claiming a "baby-sitter" deduction.

MISCELLANEOUS DEDUCTIONS—If you had certain expenses in connection with your employment (other than travel and reimbursed expenses), you may claim them as miscellaneous deductions. Examples would be tools, uniforms, union dues and employment agency fees. "Periodic" alimony or separate maintenance payments ordered by the court are also deductible under this heading.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
International Uniform Sunday School Lessons
BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Bible material: Luke 20:19-26.

Devotional reading: Romans 13:1-10.

IN TWO WORLDS

Lesson for February 1, 1959

One way the enemies of Jesus tried to ruin him without going to the extreme of violence was to try to make him ridiculous, to show him up as a teacher without answers, a sage without wisdom. So they asked him one day a question they could not have dared to answer themselves. Since Palestine was an occupied country at the time, it was a very hot question indeed: Is it right to pay taxes to Rome? "Yes" would mean the man who answered was a traitor to his people; "No" would get a man into jail.

The Face On the Money

Jesus' answer was not all Yes nor all No. As he had done before, he put the question right back to the questioners. First he asked to see a denarius. The very name of the coin was Roman; it would be about what a workman in those days would make in a day. Of course the only money the Romans would accept for taxes would be Roman money. Like all hard money, this piece had a picture on it, and some words in Latin around the edge of it. Jesus forced the priests' spies to admit that the picture was of His Majesty the Emperor, then Tiberius Caesar; and the Latin words also referred to him. In short, the whole thing was Roman. They would be reminded that the Romans came to Palestine in the first place by the Jews' request; that they had brought peace to the torn land; that the roads and public safety were maintained by the Romans . . . . all with tax money. Some of the tax denarius would stay right in the province. The face on the money spoke for itself. The Imperial Government had a right to lay a tax. "Give to Caesar what belongs to Caesar," Jesus said; but added in the same breath—"and to God what belongs to God."

Two Worlds

Ever since that moment, both followers and critics of Jesus have had trouble figuring out precisely what Jesus meant. One thing does seem clear enough. For the moment he was shutting the mouths of those who had tried to make him look silly. Without saying Yes or No to their tricky yet practical question, he called their attention to the fact that they owed Caesar something, and owed God something; and perhaps hinted that they were behind with their installments on both accounts. However, looking beneath the surface of Jesus' brilliantly simple answer, we can see a truth which is just as good for America as it is or was for a province of the Roman Empire centuries ago. Every man, whether he realizes it or not, is a citizen of two worlds. One is the human world around him, as in America here. All of us owe America a great deal. We can appreciate our country more if we stop to think that more people would like to move here than to any other country on the globe. Our country has a right to our loyal support.

The other world is called the Kingdom or Realm of God. It is not visible always ("it cometh not with observation"), but it is far more important, and infinitely more enduring, than any human commonwealth. If we owe our country much, we owe the Kingdom of God yet more.

Many Problems

It is not easy to say, indeed impossible, just where the kingdoms of this earth end and the Kingdom of Heaven begins. People speak of the two worlds as distinct; other people say they overlap. One thing is sure: if they overlap, they do so in us, for we are citizens in both worlds. This raises many problems, especially where the two worlds overlap. Suppose the State says a thing is wrong which I know as God sees it is right? Suppose the State commands me to do something I am quite sure God forbids? I know I should be a good citizen; but can I be a good citizen and go against my conscience? One thing is sure. If I try to be a citizen of man's world only, I shall find myself sometimes fighting against God. But if I take my citizenship in God's world only, I shall be indifferent to my human brothers and sisters. Only by loving both God and man can I be a good citizen of both worlds.

Before you decide on any new car, here's the biggest break you can give your dollars—and yourself: Drive a '59 Chevrolet. You'll find there's no reason to want a car that costs more—and no car you want that costs less!

Here are some of the things Chevrolet will tell you about when you drive it—

ROOMIER BODY BY FISHER—more width for seating comfort, more luggage space, and new in everything but its famous soundness.

MAGIC-MIRROR FINISH—keeps its shine without waxing or polishing for up to three years.

NEW OVERHEAD CURVED WINDSHIELD—and bigger windows—all of Safety Plate Glass.

NEW BIGGER BRAKES—deeper drums with better cooling for safer stopping and up to 66% longer life.

MODERN MRS. HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Modern Mrs. Home Demonstration Club held its first meeting for the year of 1959 at the home of the president, Phyllis Sipe.

The meeting was called to order by repeating the home economics creed. Devotions were given by Gladys Smith and the group was led in singing by Pat Griffin.

Mrs. Edna Perkins, county president, then took charge of the meeting by installing the new officers for the 1959 year. They are:

President, Phyllis Sipe.

Vice president, Virginia Applegate.

Secretary, Phyllis Amsden.

Assistant secretary, Janice Burley.

Treasurer, Ruth Timbrook.

Song leader, Pat Griffin.

News reporter, Gay Varner.

After the installation ceremony, program books were filled out. A short business meeting was held and then the losing side for the old year of 1959 entertained the winning side with games and refreshments. An enjoyable time was had by all.

The next meeting will be February 4 at the home of Helen Emenhiser.

Around the Town

With the Editor

Well, this week we give a chance for the crossword puzzle fans to hustle with 3 of their pets in this issue.

—Have to catch up, you know. And Eva Clauser can satisfy her yen for those little squares, again. She's on a puzzle kick, I hear.

A sense of humor shows up in unfunny situations sometimes. Take this item from the press wires this week:

"Morton Downey, Jr., son of the famous singer, was arrested Thursday night on a warrant charging him with four counts of passing checks worth $200, police said.

"Downey was arrested as he walked from a Western Union office in downtown Hollywood. He listed his occupation as 'a very bad singer. . . .'"

—How honest can you get?

I see where we have not only a new Co-op fuel distributor but also a new truck for his products. Harold Curie has taken over the route formerly serviced by Bob Miller.

—And that new truck! Boy, one of those cab-over-engine deals. A real sharp way for a new man to start in business.

FRANCENA LAKE

Francena Rhoads Lake was born March 2, 1872, in DeKalb County, Indiana, to William and Margaret Rhoads and departed this life at the Souder Hospital in Auburn on January 27, 1959, of heart failure.

She was united in marriage to William O. Lake on December 28, 1890, in the Lutheran parsonage at Spencerville with the Rev. E. H. Peters officiating.

Her three daughters, Mrs. Margaret Cook, Mrs. Ellen Hart and Mrs. Esther Cook; ten grandchildren; seven great-grandchildren; two sisters, Mrs. Lorena Charpie of Davenport, Iowa, and Mrs. Ella Emrich of Huntertown; one brother, Mr. Charles Rhoads, of Green Bay, Wis., and a host of relatives and friends are left to mourn her departure.

Her husband and one son, William Nelson, preceded her in death. William Nelson's son is now a teacher of driver's education in the Garrett High School. Mrs. Lake lived in and around Spencerville for almost 80 years.

Funeral services were held Saturday, January 31, 1959, at 2:00 p.m. in St. Peter's Lutheran Church at Spencerville where she had been a member for almost 80 years. The Rev. Ivan O. Miller officiated.

Insurance Exec To Address PTA: 'Adult Delinq'cy'

Mr. R. N. Hiatt, vice president of Indiana Lumbermens Mutual Insurance Company, will address the Riverdale P-TA on Tuesday, February 10, at 7:30 p.m. DST. The meeting will be held in the Riverdale High School gym at Saint Joe.

Mr. Hiatt will speak on the subject "Adult Delinquency" in a program furnished by the speakers bureau of the Insurance Institute of Indiana.

A question and answer period will follow Mr. Hiatt's address. Parents, teachers and other patrons of the local school are urged to attend the meeting to get some first hand information on this subject of vital concern to the public.

Entertainment will be provided by students from the Riverdale schools.

The meeting is scheduled a week ahead of the regular P-TA third-Tuesday - of - the - month schedule due to conflict with a basketball game.

Weather Closes School Again

Icy roads cancelled school last Friday as two buses of the Riverdale system skidded and another spun around as they began their morning routes. With these reports in from the bus drivers, Principal Joe Smith closed school for the day. No one was injured in the skids.

School remained closed again Monday as roads were in poor condition for driving. Students returned to school Tuesday but were dismissed early in the afternoon as a freezing rain began to fall and it was feared that buses could not make the trip later in the afternoon. Warm air followed the rain, however, and snow followed the warm air making it sloppy going for a time Tuesday afternoon before temperatures dropped in the evening and the big freeze was on again.

Hospital Plans Addition; Ready In August

Of interest to county residents concerned over the situation regarding hospital service is the announcement this week by Dr. Bonnell M. Souder that plans are in the making for construction of a 20-room addition to the present Souder Hospital in Auburn. The addition will make approximately 60 beds available at the hospital.

Dr. Souder presented the information on the planned addition in a letter from Lantana, Florida, where the doctor is vacationing. Addressed to the Auburn Evening Star, DeKalb County's Daily newspaper, the letter said that the decision to build the addition was prompted by the announcement of the closing of Sacred Heart Hospital in Garrett. The hospital hopes to have the addition completed by August of this year.

The above announcement came in the wake of an advertisement in a county advertising sheet last week asking support of a movement to keep the Sacred Heart institution open and voicing opposition to the proposed county-sponsored hospital on the basis of fear of high taxation necessary to maintain such an institution.

Adair To Speak At Lincoln Banquet Feb. 17

E. Ross Adair, Fourth District Congressman, will be the principal speaker at the annual DeKalb County Republican Lincoln Day banquet to be held Tuesday, February 17, at the Presbyterian Church in Auburn. The banquet will begin at 6:30 p.m.

Congressman Adair will present a report on the activities of the present session of Congress.

Honored guests at the banquet will be the Republican precinct committeemen and vice committeemen.

Sheriff Dorsie Likens is serving as ticket chairman. Tickets may be obtained locally from Wilbur Yeiser of Saint Joe and Maurice Hollabaugh and Glen Akey of Spencerville.

This Week In AMERICAN HISTORY

BY WILLIAM BRODIE

INCOME TAX ADOPTED

On February 3, 1913 our income tax was born when Wyoming became the 36th state to ratify the 16th Amendment to the U. S. Constitution.

"Rank Socialism!" shouted the political opponents among the Democrats and Republicans, mostly the latter. "Confiscation! A 'Soak the Rich Scheme'!" cried the conservatives. Their protests were in vain, and their denunciation of the tax as "wrong in principle and un-American in spirit," could not prevent the adoption of the 16th Amendment, which reads: "The Congress shall have power to lay and collect taxes on incomes from whatever source derived, without apportionment among the several States, and without regard to any census or enumeration."

Though it was now made part of the federal Constitution for the first time, the income tax was really not new. During the Civil War the Republican administration had imposed an income tax of 3% on all incomes over $800 to help pay for the war. And the Supreme Court had then ruled that the tax was constitutional. The tax was dropped a few years after the war ended.

The demand for an income tax proportioned to ability to pay, in order to provide for the rising costs of government, grew strong again by 1894. That year the Democrats in Congress, reacting to the growing liberalism of the populist movement, put through a tax of 2% on incomes of $4,000 and over. This tax was part of the Wilson-Gorman Tariff Bill during President Grover Cleveland's second term.

The conservatives ranted against this tax. The progressives were enthusiastic for it. Congressman DeArmond of Missouri said on the floor of the House, "the passage of this bill will mark the dawn of a brighter day, with more of sunshine, more of the song of birds, more of that sweetest music, the laughter of children well fed, well clothed, well housed . . . God hasten the era of equality in taxation and in opportunity!"

But now the U. S. Supreme Court voted 5 to 4 that the income tax was unconstitutional because it was a direct tax not levied according to population or apportioned among the States. One of the Justices, John M. Harlan, denounced the decision as "a monstrous, wicked injustice to the many for the benefit of the favored few." The eminent newspaper, The New York World, called it "another victory of greed over need."

The agitation for an income tax continued over the years with growing liberal and popular demand against conservative opposition. Costs of running the government were rising. Tariffs and excise taxes were not raising enough revenue. And in the face of this increasing need it was a Republican, jovial, 330-pound President William H. Taft, who suggested an income tax, despite the opposition within his own party led by Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island, himself a millionaire wholesale grocer.

President Taft told Congress on June 16, 1909 that a Constitutional amendment was necessary if an income tax was wanted. Congress quickly passed a resolution to submit the matter to the legislatures of the states. Eight states ratified in 1910, 21 states in 1911, 4 states in 1912. In nearly all these states ratification was usually by unanimous vote. On February 3, 1913 Wyoming became the 36th state to ratify, making up the required three-fourths of the states. The 16th Amendment had passed.

All told, 42 states ratified the amendment. And on February 25, 1913, Secretary of State Philander C. Knox certified that the 16th Amendment had become part of the Constitution. President Woodrow Wilson's Democratic administration was in office when the income tax went into effect as part of the Underwood-Simmons Tariff of 1913.

The new income tax began with a rate of 1% on all net incomes over $3,000. Married couples got an exemption up to $4,000. Only on incomes over $50,000 did the rate go above 2%. And within five years this income tax was bringing in the big part of the federal revenue.

Dunes v. Harbor Letters Given

Editor's Note: The following two letters are printed that readers may know of the reasons (or some of the reasons) behind the Indiana Dunes controversy. Readers may draw their own conclusions.

United States Senate
January 10, 1959

Dear Mr. Editor:

There has been appearing in your newspaper and others an increasing number of letters, pro and con, on the issue, 'Save the Dunes vs. Indiana Public Port and Industry."

Not by way of argument, but to bring the matter more clearly into focus, certain facts should be brought to the attention of our good neighbors in Illinois for their respectful consideration.

Indiana is not now nor has it ever contemplated liquidating or disposing of the Indiana Dunes State Park with its 2,182 acres of primitive woodland, drifting sand dunes, historical spots and with its three miles of beautiful shore line and bathing beaches.

On the contrary, the State of Indiana, through its Department of Conseravtion, has plans, when adequate funds are available, to augment the one access road now running into the State Park so that its parking areas can be enlarged and its water, sewage and bathhous facilities increased and new beaches opened.

The actual land in controversy is located some three miles west of the Dunes State Park and has approximately three miles of shore line extending further westward. It is not public ground and never has been but is owned mainly by two private corporations, the National Steel Company and Bethlehem Steel Company.

The one and one-fourth mile of National Steel frontage was stripped of its dunes formations some thirty years ago. The one and one-half mile of Bethlehem has some dunes. Northern Indiana Public Service Company is the owner of a quarter of a mile of the lake frontage on the east of the Bethlehem property.

The St. Lawrence Seaway will open in 1959 and will bring with it ocean going export and import traffic which spells a new era of prosperity for the hinterlands of midwestern America.

Indiana, the only state on the Great Lakes without an accessible deep water public port, is very desirous of preserving its economy and its present favorable industrial complexion.

For the past twenty six years Indiana has, on a bipartisan basis, sought to establish the site of a public port on its limited forty miles of shore line.

Various engineering surveys indicate that such a public port would be most feasible at a site where the Bethlehem and National Steel properties join.

Bethlehem Steel Company has already agreed on request from Indiana authorities to convey a portion of its recently acquired lake frontage for twenty five percent less than its cost. Negotiations are being conducted with National Steel Company for a parcel of its land.

Representatives of both political parties in Indiana have voiced their approval of this project. Labor, management, farm and business interests seem to be in agreement on its accomplishment upon final approval of its economic feasibility by the United States Corps of Army Engineers.

An Illinois senator introduced legislation in Congress to appropriate by purchase or condemnation all the lands located between the towns of Ogden Dunes and Dune Acres in Indiana for the purpose of establishing a national monument. This includes all the property of National steel Company, Northern Indiana Public Service Company, all the lake frontage of Bethlehem Steel Company and most of its back-shore real estate. Of course, it includes the proposed site of the Indiana public port.

It is earnestly suggested that, besides costing Indiana the potential of three large industries, its port development and several thousand acres of valuable taxable property and taxes on the ultimate improvements, as well as the benefits of thousands of new jobs, it constitutes an extravagant and useless attempt to duplicate with Federal funds what Indiana has already so well provided for her own citizens and guests from its neigboring states and else where.

Indeed, the tremendous cost of land acquisition alone, based on recent purchase figures, would exceed what funds Indiana might need for its public port.

Regretable and unfounded accusations have been leveled against Indiana's Governor, certain of its United States Congressmen, Senators and state legislators to the effect that their attempts to secure a public port for Indiana constituted "a multi-million dollar raid on the State and Federal treasuries." Charges of this character have not been made against the officials of other Great Lakes states who, to their credit, have attempted and succeeded in establishing public ports for their people.

It is well known and acknowledged that Indiana is a competitor with its sister states in the fields of commerce, industry, transportation and business; that, like Illinois, it enjoys a splendid geographical location which promises much for the future.

Sincerely,
Homer E. Capehart

The Honorable Homer E. Capehart
Senate Office Building
Washington 25, D.C.

Dear Senator Capehart:

Your recent press statement favoring destruction of the last undeveloped part of the Indiana Dunes for the Burns Ditch harbor project and industrialization by Bethlehem Steel Corporation has received wide coverage. Unfortunately, it blankets the facts with smog.

Contrary to your assertions, preservation of the Indiana Dunes for public recreation and conservation does not mean opposition to industrial progress and port development in Indiana. There is ample room in our Hoosier State for all these objectives if public interest be placed above the greed of political-industrial promoters.

Your statement that various engineering surveys indicate that a public port would be most feasible at a site where the Bethlehem and National Steel Corporation properties join is incredible. Not even the Harland Batholomew report, done at taxpayers' expense for State officials interested in promoting the project, went that far. In fact, this project, as a public port, has never received the unqualified approval of any responsible economist or geographer.

Aside from giving Bethlehem and National Steel Corporations a harbor built and maintained at public expense for their principal benefit, the major advantage of the Dunes site is that it is located in Charlie Halleck's congressional district.

Of Indiana's present 40 mile Lake Michigan shoreline, more than half of it has been preempted by heavy industry. Little of the remainder has been preserved except the present Indiana Dunes State Park and the undeveloped 3 1-2 miles of beach and duneland now in issue. The State Park, of which we are all proud, is already inadequate. Studies made for Indiana authorities, and borne out by National Park Service surveys, show that Indiana Dunes State Park cannot possibly meet the pressing need for public recreation and conservation areas accessible to our rapidly expanding population.

Unless Indiana Dunes State Park is enlarged or protected through public acquisition of the undeveloped 3 1-2 miles, the political-industrial schemers will ruin it through pollution of air and water and strangulation by badly located industrial facilities. This is underscored by the fact that Bethlehem recently set up a county dump in the area on the Little Calumet River.

I think it would be a public service if you would look into this matter deeply enough to answer the following questions:

(1) Do you approve of the fact that the 500 acre site for the proposed Burns Ditch harbor was designated by agents of Bethlehem Steel Corporation, the principal landholder in the harbor area?

(2) Do you approve of the fact that the Burns Ditch harbor site is hemmed in by the land holdings of Bethlehem Steel Corporation and National Steel Corporation, the two principal beneficiaries of the project?

(3) Do you approve of the fact that no public hearing was held on the selection of this 500 acre harbor site or on the $2,000,000 appropriation for it which was slipped through the last overtime session of the 1957 Indiana legislature?

(4) Are you aware of the fact that the Murchison controlled Consumers Dunes Corporation took title to 1200 acres of land in the heart of the harbor area for approximately $300,000 in 1954, sold it to Bethlehem's Lake Shore Development Corporation for $3,300,000 in 1956, and then went out business to avoid the $700,000 capital gains tax?

(5) Did you approve the offer of Bethlehem's Lake Shore Development Corporation to sell the State of Indiana up to 250 acres of this land at $2,062 per acre, a figure almost seven times the value at which Consumers Dunes acquired it and more than 20 times its assessed valuation?

(6) Are you aware of the fact that, as a result of this Consumers Dunes land transaction, the public records of the Indiana Secretary of State show that Austin L. Wyman, then head of the Illinois Toll Road Commission, liquidated 219 shares of Consumers Dunes stock at $18,615 (originally valued at $2,190), and that Thomas W. Moses, President of the Indianapolis Water Company liquidated 100 shares of this stock at $85,000 (originally valued at $15,000)?

(7) Are you aware of the fact that while Governor Craig was promoting the Burns Ditch harbor proposal, the registered address of Consumers Dunes Corporation was the office of Craig's former law firm from which he was listed as being on leave of absence as Governor?

(8) Are you against enlarging and improving Indiana's existing harbor facilities at Indiana Harbor and at Michigan City?

Until direct answers to these questions are forthcoming from you, Governor Handley, and Congressman Halleck, the people will be justified in tagging promoters of the Burns Ditch harbor project with attempting a multimillion dollar raid on the State and Federal treasuries for favored industrial interests.

Several months ago, I challenged you to a public debate on the question of "The Indiana Dunes - for the Public or for Industry" in order to bring the facts on this matter into the open so that the people could know and judge them. The challenge to you, unanswered to date, still stands.

Sincerely yours,
Edward W. Osann, Jr.

CROP Campaign Contributions Total $2246.00

The DeKalb County CROP Committee appears well-pleased with the results of the 1958 campaign. Pictured above are: Bruce Goodwin, Commodity Manager (front); Rev. John Dicken, Campaign Director; Rev. Carl Thompson, Treasurer; and Lewis Walter, Secretary.

Destitute people in foreign lands will receive help from the people of DeKalb County as a result of the 1958 CROP campaign. Approximately 100 people gave of their time as canvassers in this effort to help feed the hungry people in stricken land. Missionaries, ministers, priests of over 35 denominations in foreign lands will receive from DeKalb County vital foodstuffs. They will distribute these gifts to save lives.

The Rev. John Dicken, county CROP director, reports the total cash value received in commodities and cash was $2246.00. The commodities and cash came from canvasses in eleven of the fifteen townships in the county; $208.00 was received in cash offerings from churches. Rev. Dicken reports this amount received to be a notable achievement. The CROP program has been defunct in this county for several years but plans will soon be made for 100 per cent participation by townships next year.

Money and commodities have been sent to the national CROP office in Illinois. From there through the integrity and efficiency of the organization $1.00 will send 200 pounds of foodstuffs overseas.

The DeKalb County CROP Committee wishes to express appreciation to the canvassers, contributors and other helpers.

The breakdown on gifts by townships is as follows (the total is cash and commodities in each case):

Concord $264.78.
Fairfield $611.06.
Franklin $133.70.
Grant $15.62.
Jackson $243.04.
Keyser $309.47.
Newville $65.98.
Richland $7.10.
Troy $186.50.
Union $137.31.
Wilmington $64.00.

NEWVILLE TWP. HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

On Wednesday, January 14, the Newville Twp. Home Demonstration Club met at their club house for an all-day meeting with hostesses: Mrs. Mildred Welch, Mrs. Bernice Miller and Mrs. Leitha Stairhime. There were 27 members, 3 children and 3 guests present to enjoy a bounteous pot luck dinner at the noon hour. Guests were Mrs. Ruth Teutsch and Mrs. Kenneth Emenhiser of Butler. Mrs. Dorine Singer became a member of the club at this meeting.

The meeting opened with the members repeating the club collect. Installation of the 1959 officers then took place with Mrs. Ruth Teutsch, past county president, presiding at a very impressive ceremony.

Devotions were given by Elsie Meek, followed by chorister Irene Emenhiser leading the singing of "If Your Heart Keeps Right" and the song of the month, "Tomorrow."

After the roll call, business and correspondence were attended to. A social hour was in charge of Charlotte Kimmel, Grace Robertson and Blen Moore.

There were 10 members with perfect attendance the past year and they were given lovely personalized gifts, treated to their dinner and entertained with a very amusing play, "Incident On a Bus," with the following taking part: Dorothy Meek, Elva Hook, Charlotte Kimmel, Blen Moore, Irene Emenhiser, Lois Guiff and Grace Robertson. This proved to be most hilarious and everyone enjoyed it.

Ruth Webb and Josephine Beree contributed to the birthday box. The meeting was then adjourned to meet in February at the home of Mrs. Ruth Webb.

Valentine Origin In Shadow Of Doubt

St. Valentine's Day has long challenged historians to explain how a Christian saint became identified with a pagan custom of exchanging tokens of love.

The answer may be simply that somebody got his ABC's mixed up.

The research department of The World Book Encyclopedia points out that at one time the letters "v" and "g" frequently were interchangeable in popular speech.

Among the Normans, the word "galantin" referred to a lover of the fair sex -- probably a "wolf" according to present-day terminology. But the word often was written and pronounced "valentin."

By a natural confusion of names, the Christian martyr was established as the patron saint of sweethearts, and his name given to the Roman festival at which young men and women chose partners for the coming year.

Some historians argue, however, that there is another explanation for giving the name St. Valentine's Day to the Roman holiday. The early Christian fathers often had difficulty wiping out pagan festivals. Sometimes they simply appropriated the festivals and gave them a Christian meaning. The Church fathers may have taken over the Roman holiday, which was celebrated on February 15, and named it after three saints named Valentine whose feast day fell on February 14.

DEATH NOT THE END

Lesson for February 8, 1959

What is it like in the next world? Some people ask because they desperately want to know how it fares with a loved one over there. Other people ask the question out of idle curiosity. Others still ask the question merely to show (if they can) how ridiculous any answer must be. It was this last sort of people who asked Jesus the old question about the much married woman who got to heaven and found her seven husbands there already. (They didn't put it just that way, though we would.) Their question was, which of the seven ex-husbands would be the right one for the heavenly duration? it was an old chestnut, no one could possibly claim to know enough to answer it. So they tried it on Jesus.

Death and the Bible

As with so many of Jesus' answers to questions which in themselves were stupid, silly or malicious, in answering this question Jesus ignored the single case these hecklers brought up, and went right to the root of the matter. The fact was, the Saduccees who asked this question did not believe in life after death for anybody, at all, any where, any time. The Jews who did believe, and Jesus himself, did not speak of "heaven" and "hell" as a rule, but lumped all the future life together in the one expression, "the Resurrection." When they said "THE Resurrection" they did not mean Jesus' or Lazarus' or any one person's resurrection. They meant the life-beyond-this-life, the ultimate life God has in store for his human creatures. Where most Christians today would say "the immortal life" or something of that sort, they said "the Resurrection."

Jesus did not argue with the unbelieving Saduccees. Rather he gave them two plain reasons why they made the mistake of denying all life after death. One was that they did not know the Scriptures.

Another reason for the Saduccees' doubt, Jesus said, was their ignorance of the power of God. Many people think of immortality as a natural sort of thing, something on a par with springtime and butterflies. The Bible on the other hand always looks on life beyond death as a gift of God's grace. Immortality is not something of which God cannot rob us, so much as it is something which God in love bestows on us. Arguments about what "can" or "can't" be, beyond this life, are not only arguments out of pure ignorance, but they ignore especially the Power of the God who is Love. We do not know what God will provide, in any detail, we do know that he is able to provide whatever his love and wisdom choose.

"Beyond"

Jesus dropped a hint about the nature of the future life which many Christians have found helpful even though it does not by any means answer all the questions we can ask. This hint is in his rather shocking statement that in the Resurrection there is neither marrying nor giving in marriage but that human beings will be like the angels (he did not say we would BE angels!) in heaven. Now if there is any one element of human life which is universally important, it is sex. To be told that the life beyond is not constructed on the sex-centered plan of this one leaves us wondering. But this is not all. In every respect, or almost all, that we consider, the "Life Beyond" is in the strictest sense BEYOND. It is beyond our experience, beyond all our possible imaginings. Many religions imagine the next life in terms of this one, only with more of the same. There is imagery in the Bible of this sort, too. But the Bible also bears out this hint of Jesus, that the next life is not just like this one only more so. It is better, for the Christian; it is worse for those who persist in rejecting God. But it is not the same. The best thing we know about it is something Jesus himself said, and it is enough. "Where I am, you may be also." It is all we need to know—HE will be there. That we cannot make a blueprint of heaven is no proof that it does not exist.

'Phone Co. To Spend $13.5M'n

L. H. Meyer, president of General Telephone Company of Indiana, announced today that the company plans to spend $13.5 million in 1959 in its continued expansion and improvement program. According to D. F. Buesching, Northeastern Division manager, $2,798,200 of that amount has been allocated for the division, which includes the Saint Joe exchange.

This will mark the third straight year that General's construction plans have called for more than $12 million in expenditures.

General now serves more than 310,000 telephones in 91 exchanges over the northern two-thirds of Indiana. This year's estimated expenditures are part of the company's continuous efforts to provide its Hoosier customers with the most modern telephone service possible.

The 1959 construction figure boosts to more than $40 million the amount budgeted for improvement and expansion of General Telephone facilities over its 5,283 square miles of operating territory since January 1, 1957.

The companys 1959 program calls for seven major central office projects. New dial central offices are scheduled to be placed in operation at Valparaiso, Goshen, Lafayette, New Haven, Arlington and Lewis.

IU Preview Meet For Students

Local high school seniors interested in attending college have been invited to come with their parents to a "Preview of I.U." meeting sponsored by Indiana University alumni at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, February 12, in the Chamber of Commerce building in Fort Wayne.

Principal speaker at the meeting will be William S. Armstrong, director of the Indiana University Foundation.

K. William Rinne, alumni field secretary, will show colored slides of the Bloomington campus, and Clum Bucher, associate dean of the Junior (freshman) Division, will answer questions of the high school seniors and their parents.

Local alumni also have been urged to attend to visit with the prospective students.

AMERICAN HISTORY

BY WILLIAM BRODIE

WEBSTER - HAYNE DEBATE

The greatest recorded American oration was delivered before a crowded U. S. Senate chamber on January 26, 1830. The Speaker was Daniel Webster, senator from Massachusetts, and man of magnificent voice, replying to Senator Robert Young Hayne of South Carolina.

Now, during the first winter of Andrew Jackson's presidency, the terrifying issue of nullification was stirring up the nation. Could a state nullify the Federal laws within its territory? Sectional feeling between the North and South was rising dangerously. In South Carolina, particularly, the cotton planters stormed against the high protective tariff of 1828, the "Tariff of Abominations," as they called it, which they claimed favored Northern industries against their interests.

Before Hayne and Webster tangled in their great debate, the issue of limiting the sale of public lands in the rapidly growing West had been raised. Southern senators joined the Western senators in protest, with the Southerners gradually swinging the issue into a hot debate on the relationship between the national government and the states. Several weeks of the greatest debate on a constitutional question ever heard in the Senate came to a climax with the speech of Senator Hayne.

Robert Young Hayne, senator from South Carolina, and brilliant young lawyer, was only a figurehead fronting for the real leader of the nullifiers, namely, Vice-President John C. Calhoun, also from South Carolina. Hayne, in his own right, was a powerful speaker, and the speech he made at this time was outstanding. It lasted two days, condemned the North, particularly New England, and strongly advocated the right of any state to nullify any law of Congress which the state considered harmful to its interests, and hence unconstitutional. The Union, said Hayne, was a "compact" of states, and not a central government without limitations. At the end of his speech the Southerners gathered around Hayne, delighted at having a champion who, they believed, would be a match for Daniel Webster.

On the next day after Hayne's speech, on January 26, 1830, Daniel Webster rose in the crowded Senate chamber to reply. Webster had but one night of preparation and carried only a few rough notes to guide him. His appearance was especially impressive that day. Webster, 48 at the time, was in his prime. Wearing a dark blue swallow-tailed coat with brass buttons and a white neckpiece, he stood with his massive body thrust forward, one hand resting on his desk. His dark complexion, which had earned him the nickname of "Black Dan," his raven black hair, his shaggy brow and large head on broad shoulders, the piercing glance of his dark eyes, made an image never to be forgotten by the audience listening so intently to his deep, melodious voice.

With great eloquence Webster defended the North against the partisan charges of Hayne. Impassionately he argued that the Constitution was supreme and the Union indivisible. No state, he declared had the right to resist or to nullify a national law. He denied Hayne's argument that the Constitution was the creature of the states. "It is, sir, the people's Constitution," Webster declared, "the people's government, made for the people, made by the people, and answerable to the people!" Created by the people, the Constitution was therefore the supreme law of the land.

The closing part of his great speech, ending in the famous words, "Liberty and Union, now and forever, one and inseparable!" used to be memorized by generations of schoolboys, and is considered one of the most eloquent passages in the English language. And after this speech the American people knew that in Daniel Webster they had a new prophet of nationalism, a prophet who foretold the future of a strong and united nation.

It will take 103 days for Indiana's typical taxpayer to earn the equivalent of the tax money he will pay, directly and indirectly, to federal, state and local governments during 1959, the Indiana State Chamber of Commerce has revealed.

The average Hoosier will not start earning for himself until April 14, 1959, the State Chamber said as it issued its new Indiana Tax Calendar for 1959. The calendar lists 256 reminders of dates when some 59 types of federal, state and local taxes and fees fall due for businessmen and other citizens.

In explaining the fixing of the April 14 date, the chamber said: "Approximately 28.3 per cent of the total income payments to individuals' goes to meet the total federal, state and local tax bills in Indiana. On this basis, on the average, income for 103 days of the year is required to meet tax costs."

The chamber's figures showed that Hoosiers, on the average, will work 72 days to pay federal taxes, 16 days to pay state taxes and 15 days to pay local taxes.

He is not dead!
He only shed this house of clay
And lives within eternal day
Where pain and suffering and tears
Are known no more in countless years
Of bliss and rapture - oh, to know
That God has planned our going so!
He was a faithful man and true
And strove always God's will to do --
Although his spirit now has fled
He is with God - he is not dead.

AMERICAN HISTORY

BY WILLIAM BRODIE

MARSHALL APPOINTED CHIEF JUSTICE

On January 20, 1801, a few weeks before going out of office, John Adams, second President of the United States, appointed John Marshall to be Chief Justice of the U.S. Supreme Court. It was done hastily, and no one, not even John Marshall, had any prior knowledge of it. Yet years later, in his old age, John Adams happily said that "the proudest act of his life" was the appointing of John Marshall as Chief Justice.

Born in 1755 in Fauquier County, Virginia, of aristocratic ancestry, John Marshall grew up strong and agile on the log cabin frontier. His experience as a brave soldier of the Revolution broadened his views. "I entered the Continental army a Virginian and left it an American," he said.

The tall, loose-limbed, dignified-looking man from Virginia with the strong penetrating eyes, served in his state's legislature and practised law after the war. As a member of the Federal convention of 1788 to ratify the U.S. Constitution he backed a strong central government. In Congress, to which he was elected in 1798, he became the greatest debater on constitutional matters.

In May of 1800, President Adams, looking for a new Secretary of State, chose John Marshall. And the following January, Adams, in a sudden and last political move, named Marshall to be Chief Justice. President Adams was going out of office then, and with him went his Federalist party. Thomas Jefferson had been elected President, and his Republican party was moving into power. But the federal courts, much to their annoyance, were held by Federalist judges.

John Marshall acted as Chief Justice while continuing as Secretary of State for several weeks until the end of Adams' term. But he collected only one salary, that of Chief Justice, for $4,000. The salary of the Secretary of State was $3,500. On March 4, 1801 Marshall calmly swore in Jefferson as President, and then went back to his duties on the Supreme Court bench.

Jefferson and Marshall disagreed politically and disliked each other personally. Jefferson was for "strict construction" of the Constitution. Marshall held for "loose construction" by which Congress was permitted to do many things about which the Constitution was silent, subject to ruling by the Supreme Court. The new Chief Justice saw the courts as the defender both of property rights and a strong balanced government.

John Marshall's views prevailed. He was 45 years old when he became Chief Justice and he served for 34 years. During all this time his interpretation of the Constitution in case after case established the nature of our national government, and also laid down the rules by which our country was to grow. Among his most famous decisions, distinguished by their logical clarity, were those establishing the right of the Supreme Court to pass on the constitutionality of laws passed by Congress, the annullment of state law when it conflicted with federal law, the sanctity of private contract against state law, the power of Congress to regulate interstate commerce against monopolies.

The great court decisions of John Marshall during his long service of 34 years secured the power of the Supreme Court as the last word in interpreting the Constitution and the laws enacted under it. Thus the power and prestige of the highest court in the nation dates from John Marshall's time.

He died in Philadelphia on July 6, 1835. Almost to the last of his long life he carried on with his duties. He has been called "our greatest Chief Justice." And in praise of him it is said that "he made the Constitution live and imparted to it the breath of immortality."

Around the Town

With the Editor

Sometimes it looks like TV gives bad habits to the kids without inspiring them to the better things. But Friday night one of our youngest basketball fans (at the Harlan game) gave evidence that TV does have its good influence.

Between games when everybody was going out for a coke or for pop corn or just milling around and visiting, the Harlan band and baton twirlers escorted the flag bearers to the center of the floor for the usual presentation of the flag and the national anthem. This, of course, stopped everybody in his tracks in respectful silence. Some were standing at attention some held their right hands to their hearts. And there in the midst of them all, with no apparent inspiration from those about him, stood litle Craig Sechler with his chubby right hand to his forehead, proudly saluting the flag in silent respect.

—And I'll bet that's the longest period of inactivity for THAT little dickens in quite a spell.

I have to take my hat off to the Insurance Institute of Indiana; when they say a speaker is going to be someplace, he's there.

With the bad weather Tuesday, the high water, winds, etc., I expected that a cancellation of the P.T.A. would possibly be in order, since the speaker was coming clear from Indianapolis just for our meeting.

But like Mr. Hiatt said, it takes more than a little bad weather to stop an insurance man!

Notice For Saint Joe Volunteer Firemen

Frank Monroe, Chief of the Saint Joe Volunteer Fire Department, issued the following statement this week concerning membership in the department:

"At our January meeting the subject of attendance at fire runs and regular meetings was discussed.

"Our by-laws state clearly that if a member misses 3 successive meetings without presenting a legitimate excuse, his name is automatically dropped from the membership list.

"It is not our desire to hurt anyone's feelings. But if you are one of these inactive members, we must demand regular attendance. If you cannot conform with this rule, will you please hand in your resignation."

Luth'n Churches Observing Lent

The opening of the Lenten program of services for the Lutheran churches in Spencerville and Saint Joe was observed Wednesday of this week with communion for both congregations at services held at Spencerville. Wednesday, February 11, was observed as Ash Wednesday.

Services during the Lenten Season will be held as follows:

Thursday, February 19, at Saint Joe.

Wednesday, February 25, at Spencerville.

Thursday, March 5, at Saint Joe.

Wednesday, March 11, at Spencerville.

Thursday, March 19, at Saint Joe.

HOLY WEEK

Palm Sunday, March 22, Confirmation.

Wednesday, March 25, at Spencerville, Communion.

Thursday, March 26, at Saint Joe, Communion.

Friday, March 27, joint Good Friday Service, 12:30 to 2:00 p.m. at Spencerville.

Easter Day, 6:00 a.m. Sunrise Service at Saint Joe.

All evening services begin at 7:30 p.m.

In announcing the services, Pastor Ivan O. Miller stated, "There is nothing legal or legalistic about the observance of Lent. It is prompted by the free longings of the cultivated Christian spirit. Men have felt the need of a special season of heart-searching; of deeper meditation on the sufferings and death of our Lord that Spiritual life might be deepened and enriched. So that a higher level of personal consecration be attained.

"There is nothing that we have to do or not do. Dancing and drinking and smoking and going to shows; over-eating and overindulging in candy, etc. are no worse in Lent than any other time of the year. And abstaining from these or other bad habits gains us no special merit because it is done in Lent.

"But if such abstaining helps us to give more time and attention to the Word of God; if it makes it possible for one to better support the work of the Church of God with time and money; if it helps us take better care of the body God has given us and the mind that God has endowed us with; then certainly such abstaining is good. If it helps us to study more carefully what God's will is for us; helps us to see ourselves as He sees us, makes our sin clearer and our need of a Saviour more real, and helps bring us to fuller daily repentance, it is good."

Adair To Speak At Lincoln Banquet Feb. 17

E. Ross Adair, Fourth District Congressman, will be the principal speaker at the annual DeKalb County Republican Lincoln Day banquet to be held Tuesday, February 17, at the Presbyterian Church in Auburn. The banquet will begin at 6:30 p.m.

Congressman Adair will present a report on the activities of the present session of Congress.

Honored guests at the banquet will be the Republican precinct committeemen and vice committeemen.

Sheriff Dorsie Likens is serving as ticket chairman. Tickets may be obtained locally from Wilbur Yeiser of Saint Joe and Maurice Hollabaugh and Glen Akey of Spencerville.

Local News

The annual meeting of the DeKalb County Association for Retarded Children will be held on February 19 at 8 p. m. at Wee Haven School in Garrett. Election of three members to the nine member board of directors, will be held at the meeting. An invitation is extended to the people of this area to attend this meeting.

Cub Scout Day was observed at the Pennsylvania railroad terminal in Fort Wayne recently as the Spencerville pack, including 29 Cubs, 5 den mothers and Cubmaster, toured through a passenger train from the engine to the observation car.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hankey were local delegates among the 1344 who packed the Coldwater, Michigan, Roosevelt School auditorium and gymnasium to hear Mr. Angelo Manera, district minister of Jehovah's Witnesses, climax the week-end ministers' conference with his public talk, "The Watch Tower Society in God's Purpose." Attending were delegates from Indiana, Ohio and Michigan.

Please save your papers and magazines. The Cub Scouts will be around the first Saturday that its decent weather. Please have your papers tied and stacked on porches. If you have paper for the Cubs, in Saint Joe call 2563 or 2535; in Spencerville call 46F2.

The Cedar Creek Township Parent Teachers Association will sponsor a smorgabord Saturday night, February 21, at the Leo High School. Meals will be served from 5 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. Tickets may be purchased from PTA members and are on sale now. A large portion of the funds from this effort will be used to finance an investigation of the Cedar Creek School System in hopes of obtaining a higher accredited rating. Balance of the income will be used for a County Parent Teachers Association scholarship, bulletin boards for the new school and a reading machine.

Miss Roberta Carr, who is serving her internship in surgery at Parkview Methodist School of Nursing, was home over the week end.

Mrs. Roy Chapman is confined at her home again with a kidney infection. Anyone wishing to send a card to her may send it to 4444 Porter Drive, Fort Wayne.

The Blue and Gold Banquet of the Cub Scouts and parents only of Pack 3172 will be held February 27 at the Methodist Church in Spencerville at 6:30 p.m. This is the only pack meeting of the year that is strictly for Cubs and parents, no other children, please.

Janice Stockton of Saint Joe, formerly of Shirley and New Castle, has filed for divorce from Bobby Stockton on grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment. They married November 25, 1957, and separated July 30, 1958.

This Week In AMERICAN HISTORY

BY WILLIAM BRODIE

LINCOLN'S FAREWELL TO SPRINGFIELD

It was cold, and a drizzling rain was falling when Abraham Lincoln said farewell to his home town of Springfield, Illinois on Monday, February 11, 1861. Though the hour of departure was early — eight o'clock — and the weather was bad, a thousand of his friends and neighbors had gathered at the railroad station to see "Old Abe" off.

Since his election in November, 1860, Lincoln had remained in Springfield, going quietly about his affairs and thinking hard about the nation's troubled condition. In the meantime he also grew a beard, the first one ever seen on a President of the United States. Now he was no longer the clean-shaven politician from Illinois, but the solemn and bearded 52-year-old President of a country soon to be torn apart.

President-elect Abraham Lincoln's attitude seemed to be one of doubt and hesitation at this time. The whole North seemed uncertain in the face of the South's bold action towards secession. The hope of the Republican party, of which Lincoln was the leader, was to keep as many of the Southern states in the Union as possible, at least until Lincoln got to Washington and was inaugurated.

Patiently the newly-elected President waited in his Springfield home, a two-story frame house at the corner of Eighth and Jackson Streets. This was the only house he ever owned — a strongly built simple frame house of oak whose solid worth seemed to reflect the qualities of the man who made it his home.

Lincoln had bought the house for $1,500 in 1844, two years after his marriage to Mary Todd. In this house all but the eldest of his sons were born, and here their little four-year-old "Eddie" had died. Now, in this house, Abraham Lincoln brooded about the awful tasks ahead of him and bided his time until the moment of his departure to Washington.

It came on Monday, February 11, 1861. A special train made up of passenger and baggage cars and engine was ready to carry Lincoln away for a long, roundabout trip to the nation's capital. A tight mass of townspeople thronged the little station and crowded about the train. Lincoln had not meant to make a speech. But when he mounted the rear platform of the train and, standing by the rail, looked down on the multitude of his friends, men and women, gathered in the cold and rain for a last farewell, Lincoln was shaken with a strong emotion. Perhaps he sensed that he would never come back. He took off his hat and held up his hand. A hush fell over the crowd.

"My friends," he said simply, "no one, not in my situation, can appreciate my feeling of sadness at this parting. To this place, and to the kindness of these people, I owe everything. Here I have lived for a quarter of a century, and have passed from a young to an old man. Here my children have been born and one is buried. I now leave, not knowing when or whether ever I may return, with a task before me greater than that which rested upon Washington. Without the assistance of that Divine Being who ever attended him, I cannot succeed. With that assistance I cannot fail. Trusting in Him who can go with me, and remain with you, and be everywhere for good, let us confidently hope that all will yet be well. To His care commending you, as I hope in your prayers you will commend me, I bid you an affectionate farewell."

This simple little speech deeply moved the listeners. Their burst of applause could not hide the emotions of sad parting. There were tears in many eyes mingling with the raindrops on upturned faces. Then the train bell clanged, the engine chug-chugged and the train slowly pulled out in the morning mist, carrying Abraham Lincoln away from his home folks into crisis, martyrdom and a greatness forever enshrined in our memories.

Which Industry Now Betters the Living of 3 Out of 4 Indiana Families?

...Here Are Some Surprising Facts About The Trading Stamp Industry

So far, whenever our nation's economy has needed expansion, a new industry has sprung up to help the country go ahead.

The automobile industry, employing millions, was followed closely by the development of radio and radio broadcasting to make more millions of jobs. Then came the airplane industry, air conditioning, plastics, television, frozen foods, to change our lives some more.

The trading stamp industry, while not new, belongs to this expansion group and has been one of the fastest growing of all. Today it betters the living of more than 3 out of 4 Indiana families who save trading stamps.

Obviously, an industry affecting such a large proportion of Indiana's population must bring far-reaching benefits for Indiana's economy. And it does. In 1957 the trading stamp industry bought $25,538,000 worth of products from Indiana manufacturers. In one way or another, it provided employment for 2,392 Indiana people in many different industries.

The people in the trading stamp industry, its merchandise and redemption stores, its warehouses and transportation and all the activity that goes on within it are integrated economically everywhere within our state.

Thus it seems plain that the trading stamp industry along with the 1,029,000 Indiana women it serves has become, like other expansion industries, a living, vital segment of Indiana's economy.

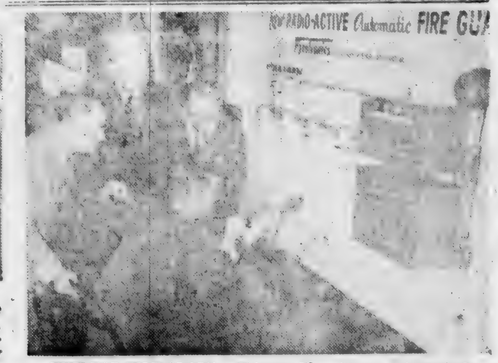
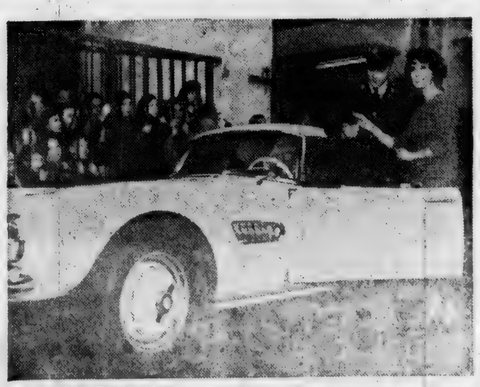
OUCH! THAT'S MY TOE — New York — Djago, a 225-pound East Indian Dragon Lizard, sticks out his long forked tongue here in the Bronx Zoo as he has his toenails clipped by the Zoo's Director and Curator Dr. James A. Oliver (Right). At the Left, soothing Djago during the manicure-pedicure proceedings, is Stephen Spencook, head keeper. A similar lizard named Ijantik also got a clip job. It was a ticklish undertaking because the big lizards don't take kindly to people.

PATIENT POOCH — Dallas — A frail pooch that seems to have as many lives as a cat, Chiqui, a nine-year-old Chihuahua, nestles quietly in the lap of Kathy Ligon, at the youngster's home in Dallas. Weighing a fragile four pounds, the tiny Chihuahua is deemed lucky to be alive. Since coming into the world, Chiqui has suffered two concussions, three heart attacks, a sprained leg, and has undergone several operations, the most recent one to correct a hernia. Offering sympathy, at right, is friend Smoky, a much healthier canine



NUCLEAR FIRE ALARM — Chicago, Ill. — Warren Ackerman, Jr., (seated) General Manager of the Pyrotechnics Division of Baker Industries, demonstrates a new nuclear fire detection system which picks up combustion gases created by fire in as little as 13 seconds via a unique method of ionization.



ELVIS BUYS AUTO — Frankfurt — Pfc. Elvis Presley of rock n' roll fame accepts the keys for his newly bought BMW 507 sports car from a pretty photographers' model as a crowd of teenage admirers look on. According to the dealer, Presley paid $3750. for the second-hand car.

UNDERCOVER SUNBATHER — Miami Beach, Fla. — Myrna Webber is all set for a few hours of sunbathing on the sands of Miami Beach. The straw hat and umbrella will protect her if the rays get too hot.

FOOTING THE BILL — New York — A shining example of human ingenuity, this worn-out bus has a new lease on life, catering to walkers. Resting at a bus stop on New York's Fifth Avenue, the vehicle has been converted into a shoe-shine parlor. The price of a shine, 15 cents, is just what patrons used to pay for a bus ride.

COMET WIN STREAK ENDS

After the reserves from Riverdale gave the Harlan reserves a sound trouncing, the Varsity Comets ran into difficulty against a taller Harlan Varsity and a hot-shot named Hall. The combination ended the Comets' win streak at six games as Harlan won, 72-64, Friday night.

The Comets face Wolcottville at Waterloo Friday night. After that, only two games remain on the schedule: Tuesday February 17, at Butler, and Friday, February 20, at Fremont. Then come the playoffs in the state tourney.

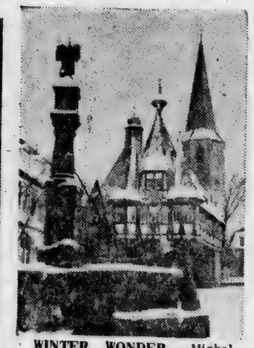
PICTURES OF THE WEEK

WHO'S WHO — London — Her Highness Princess Stomar H'Arriks regrets she is unable to attend any more parties thrown by members of London's high society. The fact is, Her Highness no longer exists. The lovely, dark-haired, dark-skinned "scion of Moroccan Royalty" is actually a blonde, ex-Follies Bergere girl named Pamela Marks, 24. Miss Marks used a black wig and some chocolate-brown makeup in the disguise. Miss Marks is at Left and the "Princess" is at Right.

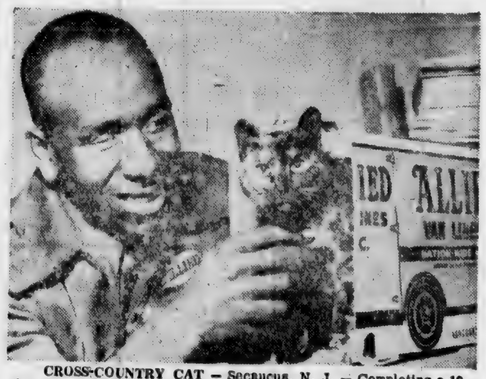
EASTER SEAL CHILD — New York — Philip Little, 6 (above), of York, Pa., has been named the National 1959 Easter Seal Child of the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults. The 1959 Easter Seal Campaign opens February 27th.

HOLLYWOOD — The late Cecil B. DeMille, pioneer movie maker and producer of many great film epics, is shown with his wife, Constance, in this 1957 file photo. The couple had been married 56 years. Mrs. DeMille is believed considerably older than her famous husband who was 77.

HER HONOR DOES THE DISHES — Gloucester, Mass. — Handling her household chores much the same as any other housewife, Mrs. Beatrice K. Corliss doesn't look the part of a top municipal official. She's just that, however, since she serves as the Mayor of Gloucester, Mass. Mrs. Corliss is shown in the kitchen of her home.



WINTER WONDER — Michelstadt, Germany — Snow adds a dash of romantic winter freshness to the picturesque beauty of the historic town of Michelstadt in Germany's Odenwald Forest.



CROSS-COUNTRY CAT — Secaucus, N. J. — Completing a 19-day trip from California, driver Edward H. Baskerville opened the rear door of his van on arrival here and out hopped, not a hound, but this pretty kitty. The van company is now sending telegrams to the West Coast in an attempt to locate the cat's owner.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Bible material: Mark 12:28-34.

Devotional reading: I John 3:1-11.

GOD AND NEIGHBOR

Lesson for February 15, 1959

Suppose the world had grown so wicked that you could not find any one who could be guaranteed to keep more than ONE of the Ten Commandments. And suppose you wanted to be married. Which commandment would you feel your future wife or husband simply MUST keep, regardless? If you can answer that question, you have answered another question: what, for you, is the most important commandment in the law of God? It is a very old question. Teachers of the Law used to debate it at length. Jesus himself was once asked the question directly: "Which commandment is the first of all?"

My God, My Neighbor, Myself

Jesus did not answer the question by quoting a single one of the "Ten Commandments." He quoted two verses from parts of the Old Testament which to us are less familiar. First from Deuteronomy 6:4,5; and second from Leviticus 19:18. (The reader might well look these up and mark them in his Bible; for if Jesus could be said ever to have boiled down the whole Old Testament into two sentences, these are the two.) One command unites the two: LOVE. Jesus did not, of course, mean to say anything so absurd as that a simple command can produce love. The sergeant can say, One, two, three, March! The music teacher can say, One, two, three, Play! The lion tamer can say, One, two, three, Jump! But not even God says, One, two, three, Love! Human beings are not made that way, and no one knows it better than the God who made us.

What Jesus did mean is that this is what God requires of us, nothing less. We cannot fulfill his other commands till we have made an honest effort at this one first.

Jesus' selection of these two commandments shows also the mistake of taking either of them separately. There are those who do not understand what loving God means, and so try to make up for it by loving PEOPLE. But how is it possible to love people, who are God's children, and at the same time ignore their heavenly Father? Also there are those who are so much impressed by the greatness of God and the littleness of man, the holiness of God and the sinful follies of man that they give up loving human beings and lavish all their affection on God above. These need Saint John's reminder: How can a man love God, whom he has not seen, if he does not love human beings, whom he has seen? Then there are the numerous people who love only themselves, period; and by contrast the people who believe we should never love ourselves. (This overlooks the point—love thy neighbor AS thyself. If love of oneself is sinful, so is love of neighbor!) The true ideal is not any one of these with the others left out; but all these three—love (which is to say, concern for the good and welfare) of God, our neighbors, ourselves.

How This Works

From the numberless applications of this central law of God, let us select one which is appropriate to Temperance Sunday. Here is a problem: What should be a Christian's attitude to alcoholic liquors? Suppose a man tries to answer that question on the basis of love to himself alone. Then his question will be simply: Is this going to do ME any harm? If the answer is No (IF—!) then he may proceed to drink like a fish. But suppose he tries to solve his problem on the basis of love to God alone; then he may ask, Is the alcoholic content of my blood, high or low, going to hurt GOD? Well, he thinks, of course, not (though he is mistaken); so he again may proceed to drink like a fish. But suppose he opens his eyes wide enough to take in his neighbor;—his children, his family, others who have weaker will-power than himself, those who will be affected by the clearness or fuzziness of his mind as he makes decisions . . . then he will look at his drinking habits in quite a different light. No man lives on an island alone; and Christian love keeps that fact always bright in the mind.

150 At PTA

150 to 175 persons braved the icy roads and streets and blustery winds Tuesday evening to hear Mr. R. N. Hiatt, vice-president of Indiana Lumbermens Mutual Insurance Company, speak on the topic, "Adult Delinquency," dealing with the haphazard efforts of the driving public, in particular driving parents, in turning the modern day automobile over to the younger generation. Mr. Hiatt pointed out that it takes eight adults to do as much damage as one youthful driver. He also pointed out that if all the traffic fatalities in the United States in one year were to be concentrated in DeKalb and Steuben counties, the entire population of those counties would be wiped out in that one year.

Speaking for the Insurance Institute of Indiana, a public service organization of the Indiana fire and casualty companies. Mr. Hiatt pointed out that adult delinquency is directly responsible for the driving attitudes of the youthful drivers and until this delinquency of attitude is changed, there can be little hope of changing a situation that annually costs thousands of lives and millions of dollars.

Mr. Hiatt suggested a teenage driver training law that would cover all students and all high schools in the state. He pointed out that while 80 per cent of Indiana's prep schools now offer such driver training, only 50 per cent of the students take such instruction.

Entertainment was provided by the third grade with a narrative on the life of Abraham Lincoln and a folk dance under the direction of Mrs. Robert Lowry. The class led the meeting in the pledge to the flag, also. The junior class presented a choral selection.

P.T.A. president Ted Haberkorn announced that his efforts to find chairmen and a public request for volunteers had failed to bring forth the leadership necessary for presenting the organization's carnival and ham supper, and that, therefore, the event will apparently be skipped this year.

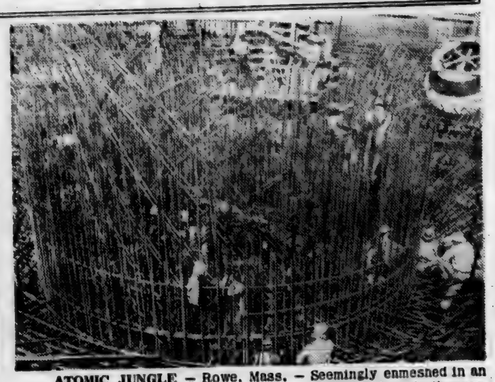
A Half Million Dollars, All In Shiny Sports Cars

Seldom is an assemblage of costly sports cars brought together in one place as shown above. The scene is the current "Sports Cars in Review" at the Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn, Mich. On display in the museum's main exhibition hall are more than 50 models, all high performance cars designed for competitive driving, with a value of more than half a million dollars. All present-day manufacturers in England, Italy, Germany and the United States are represented. The development of sports cars over the years is shown by several vintage vehicles, such as the American 1903 Locomobile in the center and the English Rolls Royce Speedster of 1912 at right foreground. The exhibit, which runs through February 22, is the only one of its kind in this country devoted entirely to this type of vehicle.

PICTURES OF THE WEEK

WASHINGTON — Howard S. Cullman, U.S. Commissioner General to the Brussels World's Fair (right) presented President Eisenhower with two gold medals awarded to the U.S. for its participation in the Brussels World's Fair. One medal was for the general excellence of the U.S. Pavilion and its exhibits; the other for the presentation of the outstanding musical programs at the Fair.

CARESSES HER TRESSES — Miami Beach, Fla. — Despite the fact that it's January, winter seems a long way off to lovely Pricilla Fisher as she ruffles her long hair in the warm ocean breeze at Miami Beach.



ATOMIC JUNGLE — Rowe, Mass. — Seemingly enmesned in an intricate web, these workmen assemble reinforcing bars in the construction of New England's first commercial nuclear electric-power station at Rowe, Mass. The maze of bars, filled and covered with concrete, forms the base for a giant steel sphere that will house the plant's nuclear reactor, scheduled to begin operation in early 1960.

Around the Town

With the Editor

Baxter Bowling drove up to the shop Monday morning and I wondered what he had in the dishpan he was carrying in from his pick-up. I found out.

Baxter and Elwood Savage were at Wawasee for some ice fishing and he had a few samples of their catch in the pan. The catch ran from 6 or 7-inch bluegills up to what looked like a whale to me—a big crappie, 15 inches long or thereabouts. Baxter figured it would weigh about 3 pounds.

The boys said the fishermen around the lake called that 3-pounder a "litle one, we throw those back."

To me it looked like the kind you jump in after.

We were discussing the frequent "boom" heard lately as jets high in the sky accomplish what is called "breaking the sound barrier." The boys and Mom and Dad came to the conclusion that there is a golden opportunity to get into business — manufacturing sound barriers. With the jets breaking through right and left, it looks as if there would be a steady market to feed.

Giving up horses and ponies, a little "lake" for summer swimming and winter skating, and other country-living plessures seemed like a big order to me for youngsters to swallow. But Eddie and Loreta Halt say that Kay, Linda and Larry have made the switch to town life without too much trouble and, in fact, have found new enjoyment in their daily social contacts with the Riverdale boys and girls. The Halts were particularly impressed by the way their children were accepted into the community—one day in school and they were one of the gang. It was good to hear of this friendly attitude by our youth in the surrounding area. So, a salute to Riverdale students for making newcomers feel "at home."

I asked Linda, a third grader, if school here was any different from where she came from. She said, "It's harder! The arithmetic books here have things in we never did before."

—Hmmmm, maybe that can explain some of those C's and D's our kids get, huh, Mom and Dad??

Comets Beat Wolcottville, Downed By Butler; Draw Waterloo In Tourney Opener Wednesday

Sectional pairings made Wednesday morning this week gave Riverdale the distinction of playing the first game at Auburn. Their opponents will be the Waterloo five, game time 7 p.m. Wednesday, February 25.

Riverdale swamped Wolcottvile Friday night at Waterloo and then appeared ready to upset Butler Tuesday night as they grabbed an early lead. But Butler began rolling in the late stages of the third quarter, then made it a rout in the last 8 minutes and overwhelmed the tired Comets by a score of 83-67.

The reserves won easily in their Wolcottville game, 42-27. They then pulled a come-from-behind rally against Butler to win a thriller, 35-32.

In the Butler reserve contest, the locals got off to a 5-0 lead, then led 13-10 at the first stop. Butler surged ahead 24-13 in the second quarter, which ended at 24-16. In the third period Riverdale outscored Butler 9-4 and it was 28-25. Then the Comets put on the presure, tied it at 28-all, went ahead 33-28, then 35-30. Butler scored a bucket and it was 35-32 with 2:05 to go and a time-out called by the Comets. When play resumed neither team cashed in on scoring opportunities. Noragon blocked a Butler pass and recovered it to give the locals possession at one point. Wallace went in for a lay-up but was going too hard and the ball rolled off. But it wasn't needed as the last 2:05 were played without benefit of scoring and the Comets had it 35-32.

The Wolcottvile five had little resistance to offer the Comet varsity which led 23-11 at the first quarter and 48-28 at the half. The third period ended at 72-44.

The Comets let up in scoring in the last period as Wolcottville trailed 79-60 with 3:10 to go. The Comets then resumed their scoring to get 13 points while Wolcottville ran up to a total of 77.

The varsity game with Butler opened with Riverdale going to 5-1 and 15-6 leads before the quarter ended with the locals in front 16-11.

Butler tied it up in the second quarter at 17-17 with 6:38 to go. The Comets then regained the lead at 24-20 and led at the half 32-26.

With Butler's scoring ace, Roger Walter, getting warmed up, the Windmills began chopping down Comet defenses. They tied it at 39-39 with 5:00 to go in the third quarter. It was 43-41 Butler, 43-all, 45-all, 49-46 Butler and 52-48 Butler before the end of the quarter with the Windmills ahead 54-50.

Butler opened the last period with a flurry to shoot out to a 58-50 lead and less than a minute gone in the quarter. They led 64-52 as Vinson fouled out with 5:47 to go in the game as Riverdale tried to stop the scoring avalanche.

The last three minutes appeared as a shooting match with both teams hitting back and forth and Butler coming out on the long end. It was 69-55 with 4:15 to go and 79-65 with 1:10 to go. The Comets managed to score only 2 points in the last minute and it was 83-67 Butler.

COMET CNIPTIONS — Wolcottville appeared uncertain and unsteady. Fans present witnessed the ill effects of a somewhat frustrated coach on his players. — Bob Clauser got his teeth rattled in the third period. He headed down the floor alone on a fast break, a step ahead of his defensive man. As he neared the bucket for a lay-up, the Wolcottville player "forgot" himself and shoved Clauser in no uncertain terms with one hand to the middle of the back. The Comet player recovered himself from the edge of the stage, looked puzzled about the whole thing, then went up for his two free throws. — There was a mad scramble, also in the third quarter, under the Comet basket. Then out from the mass came a left arm that flipped the ball over all the heads and arms, and Larry Friend had a basket. — Gerry Heyman got hot in the second quarter and dropped something like 13 points on 5 buckets and 3 free throws. — The Riverdale cheering section broke out in green derbies and waved pom-poms in a new Comet fad. — The Riverdale band appeared for its last appearance in the final home game. — In the Butler reserve contest, Ralph Noragon interecpted a pass in a crucial spot to help the local cause in the last couple of minutes. —That lay-up by Wallace boomed off the boards and he felt as bad as Comet fans looked. But we didn't need it, fortunately. — The varsity game was wild in spots with frequent floor-length passes by Butler that caught the Comets off-guard a couple of times. Just as many such passes went wild. — Butler's rebounding seemed evident as the game started, but the Comets responded quickly and had the advantage for a while. Windmills height became apparent in the third and fourth quarters again, and the Comets obviously were a tired bunch as the game closed, tired and disappointed. — After the bright prospects early in the game and the Comet fans whooping it up during the first half, the dejected crowd leaving the Riverdale section at the end of the game reminded one of those classic words from "Casey At the Bat": "There is no joy in Muddville- - ", — Comet cheerleaders were really dancing as they led the school song. The Butler band put some zip into it. During the half, the Butler Hi-Fi dance band, a 15-piece unit from the school band, made its appearance with some well-done popular music including a vocal. — Though Butler's Higley also scored 25 points, the difference in the two halves was due to the skill of Roger Walter. The boy is at home up in the air as well as on the floor and displayed remarkable shooting skill inside and out as well as deceptive maneuvering ability. The technical called on him in the closing minute was purely "technical" and he didn't let it bother him. He has remarkable jumping ability and though exerting great effort in his leaps to "outer space" yet retains complete control of the ball with a touch that could probably be most accurately called "delicate." — The Comets close the regular season Friday at Fremont.

Businessmen Spearhead Drive For New Industry; Pledges Reach $4,300

Several meetings have been held in recent weeks by the Indsutrial Development Committee of the Saint Joe Booster Club and officials of a local utility regarding the presentation of an offer of a building site for a Fort Wayne manufacturing firm which seeks a site for expansion of its operations. With only general terms to work with, the negotiations are nevertheless going on with a positive attitude of making provisions for attracting this industry, or any other possible industrial plant, to the Saint Joe area.

Part of the solictation of such expansion includes an indication of community desire to have new industry. Included in this category is the necessity of the community providing funds for investment purposes in addition to additional funds with which to purchase building sites, improve these sites by grading, etc., and other accompanying expenses.

A meeting held early this week, attended by a dozen Saint Joe businessmen and interested residents, brought forth oral pledges of $2,500 for investment purposes. Further solicitation this week raised the pledge total to $4,000 with many contacts not yet made.

Saint Joe residents and others living nearby who are interested in helping the community grow are asked to give some thought to the project and determine if they might be able to offer financial assistance, either by outright donations (which would probably be necessary to purchase land) or by investments in financing of building construction.

It is estimated that $10,000 in such donations and pledges is necessary in order to have necessary working capital in present negotiations. Pledges made by Saint Joe businessmen and other community-conscious individuals have made a substantial start in reaching the desired goal.

Members of the Industrial Development Committee are Ted Haberkorn, Maurice Kline and Warren Clauser, working in cooperation with the president of the Booster Club, Frank Sechler.

Tourney Ticket Sale Friday

Principal Joe Smith announced this week that Riverdale's ticket allowance for the sectional tournament will be picked up Friday.

Ticket distribution is on the following basis:

Season ticket holders first; then students; then first come first served.

Deadline for sale of tickets is 10 a.m. next Tuesday. Any unsold tickets (an unlikely situation) will be returned to sectional headquarters.

Price of tickets is $1.00, for the Wednesday and Thursday sessions (the $1.00 pays for both days). No single session tickets are available. The Saturday session tickets will also sell for $1.00.

Every person attending the games must have a ticket, regardless of age.

Letters to the Editor

7 Feb., 1959
USS PORTAGE PCE (902)

Dear Ted and people of St. Joe,

Well, I thought I'd drop you a few lines to let you know I'm alright. I sure appreciate the "NEWS" you send. It sure is great to get the news of the big metropolis and surrounding suburbs.

Acording to the paper the "COMETS" are sure doing O.K. Let's hope it keeps up, right through the tourney. It's about time Riverdale had a good basketball team. No offense to previous basketball teams, but I can't remember win streak as long as this one. Keep up the good work boys.

From the letters I get from home, I gather that you are having your share of "old man winter." The weather here isn't too bad, last night the temperature was -9 degrees and supposed to get colder. Most of our snow is gone, there's only 4 inches left on the ground. As you know I'm stationed in Milwaukee, Wisconsin on a ship (?). It's a patrol ship, it's used to train Naval Reserves on 2 week cruises. This is the Navy?? Oh well, I'm satisfied and that's all that matters.

Well, I'd better close off for now and get caught up on a little slumber time. Until the next time.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank all my friends for their visits and cards and remembrances. Also for the lovely plants from the O.E.S., Home Demonstration Club and others. For the wonderful nurses and doctors, Rev. Ivan O. Miller and the benediction of God.

Services For Rose Beebe, 73

Mrs. Rose M. Beebe, 73, of Saint Joe died unexpectedly Thursday at Sacred Heart Hospital in Garrett. She had suffered a broken hip in a fall at her home six days before her death. It appeared that she was recovering satisfactorily until her sudden death.

Funeral services were conducted Saturday at the D. O. McComb & Sons Funeral Home in Fort Wayne. Rev. Ivan O. Miller, pastor of the Spencerville and Saint Joe Lutheran churches, officiated at the burial.

Mrs. Beebe was born in Wells County, Indiana, August 31, 1885, the daughter of the late Ace and Clara Ward. She had lived most of her life in Allen County and DeKalb County and for the past 11 years resided in Saint Joe.

Survivors include the husband, Richard A. Beebe; four sons, William C. Beebe of Saint Joe, Arthur M. Beebe of Fort Wayne, Raymond C. Beebe of Saint Joe, and Kenneth Beebe of Detroit; two daughters, Mrs. Mary Schnurr of Fort Wayne and Mrs. Josephine Dressel of Dyer, Indiana; a sister, Mrs. Loretta First of Huntington; 21 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

CULTURE CLUB 50th AN'S'Y

The 50th anniversary of the founding of the Culture Club was celebrated at a special meeting on February 11, 1959. Former members and Literary Club members were honored guests.

Ruth White gave a cordial welcome to all present and expressed the club's appreciation for the lovely bouquet of golden colored carnations, which was sent by the Literary Club.

Mrs. Folk of Edgerton gave an interesting demonstration of ceramics.

As the history of the Culture Club was read by Marian Furnish, the members modeled hats dating from 1908-1958. Mrs. Huldah Reasoner and Mrs. Ethel Armstrong Murphy were present and recognized for their long period of continuous membership, both having joined in 1921.

TO MOTHERS AND GRANDMOTHERS

I, a mother with all the woes and wears; then along come my grandchildren who (now that I am old) do not seem to care.

Now I am old and wonder why, all by myself, they put me on the shelf.

Never come to call, so I ponder, very soon I may be called up yonder. They have their own, but I can't help but wonder, will they come home?

How many times I petted and pampered my grandchildren's hurts and cares. But you know today they all have forgotten Grandma's still there.

My fried potatoes, cookies and such, forgotten, but you know I wonder, are they getting so much?

Aside from all this, I still wonder, should I worry, if there is still a God and Heaven up yonder?

The Rockets, Bombs and all, maybe God got scared and left, so will we have a place to go up there, 'ere we fall?

—Author known.

Mr. and Mrs. Mack Richmond of Butler will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary February 22. There will be an open house February 22 at the Newville U.B. Church from 2 to 5 p.m. They are the parents of nine children: Mrs. Carl Barchfeld of Cleveland; Mrs. Starling Tenant of Mt. Gilead, Ohio; Mrs. Charles Agler of Hicksville; Argil of Saint Joe; Harold of Fort Wayne; Lavon of Saint Joe; Kenneth of Saint Joe; Delain of Saint Joe; and Jack of Hicksville. There are 18 grandchildren and 6 great-grandchildren. Mr. Richmand is a retired farmer.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

Devotional reading: I Peter 4:12-19.

TROUBLE AND FAITH
Lesson for February 22, 1959

It is a thousand pities, but it is a fact, that the Christian church, which ought to be united by the Bible, has become split over it. Not split BY it, but over it, in varying and discordant interpretations of what the Bible means. No passage in all Scripture has been the subject of more debates and differences than this 13th chapter of Mark, along with the parallel chapters, Matthew 24 and Luke 21. These are the chapters that report what Jesus said as he looked down the vista of time to the "end of the age." (That is a more literal translation of the Greek expression sometimes translated "end of the world.") Many Christians, despairing of getting any unanimous explanation of these difficult sayings, have just given up the whole business as a waste of time. Yet these chapters are not a mere puzzle.

Faith Expects Troubles

Let us stick to one general helpful truth which meets us here, namely the relation of TROUBLE and FAITH. First of all, as Jesus looks down the years, he does not see the light growing brighter and brighter. At least, he does not see the future with the eye of the unadulterated optimist. He uses some frightening language — wars, earthquakes, famines, "abomination of desolation," tribulation and darkness as at midnight. Jesus gave no backing to the idea that if you have faith enough "all your troubles will be bubbles" as the song says. Some troubles are very solid, they can smash a man and his hopes. No matter what goodness there may be in the world, no matter how good God is, there are going to be troubles ahead. People who give up their faith in God because they run into a squall-line of trouble-clouds, which they can neither fly over, under or around, cannot have read these sayings of Jesus very carefully.

If Jesus had seen only the times of darkness he would have been a pessimist. If we follow his lead we shall by faith see not only troubles as a certainty (though WHAT troubles, and when, only God knows), but also we shall see beyond all troubles. Most important, we shall see God on his throne. There is a famous story of Martin Luther, whose wife once appeared at the table in deep mourning. Martin was astonished. "Who's dead?" he asked, "God must be dead," she answered. "At any rate you have been going around for the last week looking and talking as if He were dead." Martin Luther got the point. God is not dead . . . yet how many Christians we see today who, looking ahead, see only the troubles and not the God of love and wisdom without whom not a sparrow falls. Beyond the troubles too we see Christ coming again. It is not true to Christian faith to think of the future as stretching out endlessly, a never-ceasing battle without victory, between God and evil. All that Christ lived and died for will come to pass. "Through many tribulations we must enter the Kingdom," Paul said (Acts 14:22.)

Faith Outlives Trouble

Jesus did not play down, discount or underestimate what the men and women who follow him may be called upon to undergo. There are many troubles before the End-time troubles, as he pointed out. He used expressions like "the beginning of the sufferings . . . the end is not yet. . ." Even in an ordinary Christian's ordinary life, the life of one who dies centuries before the "end of the age," there will come troubles which will be absolutely crushing apart from the help of God. But the point of these appalling chapters on the End is that even though heavens (the universe) and earth pass away, God's people—the men and women of faith—shall not pass away. Look around you, wherever you are. Are you afraid that these things you see may be swept away? So they will, so God's word assures us. Whether swiftly or by slow degrees as water wears the solid granite, all things visible are destined to decay and destruction. But not all things invisible! You, the real and invisible You, will outlive all destructions. But how? In terror, calling for the rocks to cover you, or in fearless faith?

Chevy panel steps lively in Florida...runs day and night, delivers 19.3 miles per gallon!

This '59 Chevy panel is on the go, morning, noon and night; it covers as much as 587 miles a day . . . runs so constantly that its engine never cools off completely. Yet Mr. Clark Farber, the Tampa Tribune's circulation manager, reports that the truck is delivering 19.3 miles per gallon!

This year, the light-, medium- and heavy-duty trucks of the 1959 Chevrolet Task-Force fleet are out to whip anything that comes their way—and they've got what it takes to do it!

Take the panel pictured above, for example. Powered by the '59 Thriftmaster 6 with new economy-contoured camshaft, it's building a sensational economy record, despite the sizzling pace of its work. That's typical of the way Chevies of all sizes are turning-to on the most challenging jobs in America. The way they're made, with tough-built truck components, they make the hardest hauls look easy!

Around the Town

With the Editor

It's wonderful what a warm day like last Sunday does to us human beans. During the afternoon I saw several persons strolling down the sidewalks, out enjoying the beautiful weather. And in the country the roads were full of cars as people were drawn outdoors like flies to sugar.

One of Bill Hurni's buddies at Salisbury gave him a copy of "The Beaufort Gazette," a weekly newspaper published in Beaufort, South Carolina. Bill's buddy evidently wants to move down there to live.

I looked through the paper, a big one for a weekly, full of news about a pretty live town it appears. One of the stories was about their basketball team, the Beaufort Tidal Wave. The team defeated the Wade Hampton Red Devils recently to win the Coastal Invitational Basketball Tourney in Ridgeland, S.C.

"10 Jailed For Cattle Rustling."

The cheerleaders were doing their usual good job at the tourney game Tuesday night and one of the cheers calls for them to take turns hollering "WHO?" and the cheering section answers with "Comets" or "Riverdale." Corky got her "who"out and a big response and Nila got her "who" out and a big response. But when Vickie took a big breath and attempted to climax the whole thing with a big "WHO", all we got was a big "WH----" . . . the "--O" didn't make it as her voice cracked, and Vickie nearly flipped, figuratively speaking.

—That was one of the few things we had to smile about Tuesday night.

With the larger schools in the Auburn half of the sectional tourney, tickets for Riverdale fans were at a premium, as they no doubt were for the other schools playing at Auburn.

Here's how they were divided (on enrollment basis):

Angola 458 tickets, Auburn 443, Butler 259, Garrett 457, Riverdale 175, Waterloo 206.

—And somehow it just doesn't seem right, with the scarcity of tickets, that some of our loyal Riverdale fans who were seen at most of the season games, if not all the games, couldn't get a ticket. But others who attended maybe three or four games got a sectional ticket.

That's the way it goes, I guess. Oh well, there's always this to go on—

"The meek shall inherit the earth."

Comet Tourney Hopes Smashed In Overtime Loss

A combination of costly mistakes, a big man on the other team and shots rolling off the basket late in the game meant defeat for the Riverdale Comets in their opening sectional tournament game against Waterloo. They had defeated Waterloo twice in earlier games this season.

Waterloo's big three, Tarney, Carroll and Myers caused a lot of trouble for the Comets in shooting and rebounding with Tarney able to cavort occasionally unmolested under the hoop though he didn't always make his shots count.

The Comets opened scoring with a basket by Butler and went to a 7-2 lead with 4:18 to go in the first period. Waterloo came on to tie it 11-all and went to a 15-11 first quarter lead.

Free throws kept the Comets in the game in the second quarter with Bry hitting two, Heyman two and Bry another pair before a field goal was scored by Heyman. The Comets played the first 5 minutes and 46 seconds of that period without a fielder, Heyman's coming at the 2:14 mark. Waterloo stole a Riverdale pass-in as the quarter ended to score a basket and lead 27-19.

The third period was uneventful with Waterlo maintaining a 5 and 6 point lead throughout.

Waterloo held their lead to the 4:57 mark of the final quarter as the Comets were guilty of mistakes in their offensive maneuvering. Then the locals made their move. Bry sank two more free throws to make it 40-38 with 4:00 to go. Waterloo scored a basket and Friend cashed in 2 charity tosses to make it 42-40. Riverdale called time out with 3:08 to go. Heyman scored a fielder to tie it at 42-42. Clauser intercepted a bad Waterloo pass-in and drove in for a lay-up and a 44-42 lead. On Waterloo's pass-in Riverdale fouled and Waterloo tied it again at 44-all. No scoring was done in the last 1:07 of play in regulation time, tho' a Waterloo shot begun a fraction of a moment after the horn began blowing sailed the length of the court and swished through the net; it didn't count and the game went into overtime.

Waterloo scored a basket, Friend got 2 more free throws. Waterloo scored two more points and Friend hit on a rebound and it was 48-48. Waterloo scored again to make it 50-48 and Dowden was fouled with 0:10 to go. After a Riverdale time-out, Dowden stepped to the line with the world on his shoulders and sank the first toss. The second rolled off and Waterloo got possession. Riverdale fouled as the game ended and two more points were marked up for Waterloo on free throws to make the final 52-49.

COMET CNIPTIONS and we do mean CNIPTIONS— Only stellar work at the free throw line kept the Comets within striking distance through the game. — Pressure of tourney play may have had its effect as the Comets lacked the aggressiveness displayed during their winning streak recently, holding back especially on their shooting. — Vinson made a beautiful pass-off early in the game as he was bottled up, but the Comets missed the bucket. — Butler turned in some valuable under-the-boards work before he picked up his third foul late in the first quarter and was taken out. — Bry and Heyman carried the load in the second quarter, their free throws weighing a ton. — It looked bright for Riverdale when Clauser retrieved a Waterloo pass and raced in for a 2-pointer. — No one wanted to be where Dowden had to be with 10 seconds to go, at the free throw line and his team behind by 2 points and 2 free throws coming up. — Comet ball handling was not its usual high caliber and cost them possession of the ball several times.

The Comets closed their regular schedule Friday with a 65-55 win over Fremont at Fremont. The reserves won, 46-32.

The Comets led throughout the game holding a 21-9 first quarter lead. It was 43-28 at the end of the half. It was 52-41 at the three-quarter mark.

The Comets had a chance to work on their play combinations and made several flashes of brilliance with excellent teamwork.

One of the attractions at the game was the entertainment by the Junior High Band and its corps of twirlers going through formations including George Washington's hatchet and the famous cherry tree. Then two groups of twirlers performed between games to show an active music department.

CARD OF THANKS

Words cannot express our gratitude for the work of the community and of the firemen in attempting to save the Flossie Rhoads home last Friday night and early Saturday morning. The efforts of all are greatly appreciated.

Passersby Give Fire Alert; House Destroyed

Fire destroyed the home of Mrs. Flossie Rhoads of north of Spencerville Friday night. Firemen from Spencerville, Saint Joe, Butler and Auburn battled the blaze for three and one-half hours but a brisk wind fanned the flames and cold temperatures created hazards and difficulties in handling of water.

The fire was seen by John Mason and Richard Strombeck as they drove from Spencerville to Saint Joe shortly after 11 p.m. Friday night. Mrs. Rhoads was sleeping, unaware of the flames in the upper portion of the house. The men finally wakened her and the fire departments were summoned.

As smoke began to fill the house and the flames licked away at the siding above, volunteer onlookers assisted firemen in removing most of the furnishings from the house.

Total loss in the fire was estimated at around $8,000.

After batling the blaze until shortly after 3 a.m. Saturday morning, several firemen from the various departments were refreshed and warmed up with coffee and cookies served at the Saint Joe fire hall by the auxiliary of the local fire department.

MODERN MRS. HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Modern Mrs. Home Demonstration Club met February 4 at the home of Helen Emenhiser, hostess, with Gloria Inlow co-hostess. 19 members were present with one visitor and two children.

The president opened the meeting with the club collect after which devotions were given by Mary Klepper. The history of the song of the month was very interesting and well given by the song leader, Pat Griffin.

During the business meeting project lessons for the year 1960 were discussed. Included were topics: cuts of meat and how to cook them, minute meals, how to restore and keep your energy.

After the business session was closed with the prayer song, a lesson on food nutrition was given by Pat Griffin and Helen Emenhiser.

The next meeting will be on March 4 at the home of Pat Griffin. A lesson on flexible smooth surface floors will be given. Materials to make Easter bonnets should be brought by the members.

Local Man Held For Robbery

John D. Butler, 20, of Spencerville appeared in city court at Fort Wayne Thursday on a preliminary charge of armed robbery in connection with a holdup of a Harlan dry goods store. The hearing was continued to March 5 in city court. Formal charges of armed robbery against the young man have not been filed.

Butler was arrested Wednesday. He signed a confession admitting the holdup in which he obtained $150. The Allen County sheriff, Custer A. Dunifon, said Butler admitted he entered the store owned and operated by Mrs. Mildred Metcalf on January 31 and pointed a sawed-off shotgun at her. Butler allegedly said, "This is a stickup. Give me the money."

The accused young man is married and the father of one child. DeKalb County authorities, who said they had received no information in the case, reported that Butler was employed at a factory in Butler and had been living there temporarily the past few weeks.

Bond for Butler was set at $5,000.

Mail Carrier Wins KP Award

Robert Johnson of R1, Saint Joe, has been announced as the winner of the local K. of P. Lodge Courteous Driver Award. Mr. Johnson received his 1959 license plate free of charge as a further reward, the fee paid for by the lodge.

Mr. Johnson is rural mail carrier for the Saint Joe Post Office.

The contest period for selecting the local driver who displayed courtesy and safe driving habits locally was scheduled from December 1-24, 1958. Mr. Johnson was chosen by a committee as deserving of public recognition for his driving efforts.

The award was made Saturday night at an anniversary pot-luck dinner of the Indiana Grand Lodge, Knights of Pythias, held at Auburn.

Attending the dinner from Saint Joe were Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Coburn, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kitchen, Mr. and Mrs. Lyle McMaken and Mr. Estil Taylor. Entertainment at the dinner included the Tokheim Men's Choir from Fort Wayne, Karen Woodard, baton twirler of Payne, Ohio, and music.

For the Good of All

Our community can accomplish the greatest good by the cooperative efforts of all citizens no matter what position they may hold in the community. This is no new revelation; it is a statement of fact. As efforts are being made to "sell" our community to a prospective new industry for Saint Joe, it behooves all citizens to look over the situation and give what they can of their time and their resources to help make the selling job a success.

Too often, when such an opportunity arises, there are those who begin analyzing the matter to determine who stands to "profit" most from the venture. Usually it falls on the businessman or businessmen to be picked as the most likely to profit; therefore, it is reasoned, he or they should give the most in the venture. This is a narrow way to look at the matter and leads to a better chance of failure than of success.

It is not to be denied that a new industry means more business for the merchants already established in the community (although this is not always the case). Such a result is not a drawback; it is a good thing. The more business Saint Joe is blessed with, the more investment the merchants and professional ranks will make in the community, the more investment homeowners will make in their property. From this comes greater community development, increased value of property, more total value of the community as a whole from which we receive the benefits, for instance, of new and improved schools, more civic improvements, and so on. Broad and sensible analyzing of the situation shows that we all stand to benefit by expansion of our business community. Not the least benefit is a primary result - more jobs created right here at home.

Though enthusiasm is high at the present moment, it must be understood that there are other communities who also wish to grow, expand and prosper. We may not be successful in the present and immediate effort; quite possibly this first real prospect in some time will not choose Saint Joe. This should not discourage us. The competition is all about us. We should be ready, as we hastily prepare now, to show industrial prospects that we want them, that we will do as much as we can to help them establish themselves in our community. This will take the cooperation of businessmen, professional people, homeowners, and the farm folk nearby who consider this community their home and who would like to help it prosper. In some cases, donations of cash will be needed. In other instances, there will be the need for money to invest with no definite promise of profit for the use of the money. In other instances there will be need for time given to complete many details that arise in such community-growth efforts. And a prime necessity in all these preparations is an understanding that "growing" means not only an increase in our community worth but an increase in physical dimensions, something which involves changes in what we have become accustomed to in the make-up of our town.

We must all be "good Scouts." We must all - "Be Prepared."

TEXTBOOKS THAT WEAKEN AMERICA

A prominent American educator has just published the results of a careful study of 11 widely used high school textbooks in American history. The study reveals some shocking facts of distorted teachings which are of concern not only to parents of school age children but to every American. Unless interested parents, teachers and other citizens get busy and halt teachings which undermine American institutions in the minds of our children, and replace them with teachings which create a wholesome respect for basic American principles, mankind's greatest blessing — individual freedom — cannot possibly survive. If we lose freedom in America, the world will be beset with another Dark Age.

There has never been a guarantee that our marvelous American governmental and economic system would be handed, intact and thriving, from one generation to another tomatically adopted and the great virtues toamtically adopted and the great virtues are not automatically instilled into each new generation. History proves over and over again that fundamental principles do not live on from one generation to the next unless they are clearly understood, cherished and constantly vitalized.

To properly prepare the youth of America for their custodianship of the freedom heritage requires a deliberate, well-planned educational effort in our homes, our churches and our schools. And the school is the vital center. For more than 20 years every personal resource at my command has been utilized to warn the American people that in a world being swallowed up by Socialism-Communism, the survival of our freedom structure depends upon our children obtaining an abiding appreciation of our great heritage.

Such an appreciation, based on knowledge of basic American political and economic principles, how they work and the advantages they produce, would constitute a vaccination against infection by the spreading virus of Socialism-Communism. It would prepare our children to recognize destructive propaganda and resist the phony appeals of Socialism- Communism. Without it they are unprepared, "sitting ducks" for clever propagandists whose basic strategy in America is to undermine appreciation of the American way of life.

Teachers and school administrators in every section of our nation have told me they couldn't readily find textbooks which would create in the hearts and minds of their high school pupils a vigorous pride in their nation's history, a respect for and loyalty to its ideals, principles and institutions. We have presented reviews of commendable textbooks when we could find them, and we are now directing the writing and publishing of a new high school textbook in American history to meet a great national need.

A careful reading of Dr. E. Merrill Root's new book, "Brain Washing in the High Schools," dramatically exposes this national need. It will leave the reader with a chilling fear spot deep inside him. For Dr. Root, professor of English at Earlham College, Richmond, Indiana, reveals that the textual core of American history, as taught in many leading American high schools today, has been penetrated or influenced directly or indirectly by some of the most notorious propagandists for collectivism—Communists, fellow-travelers and Left Wing dupes— on the American scene.

Dr. Root states that millions of our school children are getting misleading, distorted or prejudiced viewpoints on important facts of history which weaken their allegiance to American institutions and soften them up for the blandishments of the Socialist-Communist propaganda now flooding our country. Professor Root contends that 10 of the 11 widely used history textbooks which he examined would, unless counteracted by a more objective presentation of American history, perform a type of "brain washing" detrimental to America's future. The eleventh he considers to be not so detrimental but nevertheless defective in many ways.

The core of these textual teachings, Dr. Root says (and backs up with documentation) presents George Washington as a rich aristocrat who had no use for the so-called "common" people; the framers of the U. S. Constitution as a group of selfish wealthy men who wanted to keep the "common" people forever lowly and powerless; discounts patriotism as stuffy and old hat, and implies that business and industry under our private enterprise system are enemies of the people.

Next Week: More on these textbooks.

School Sup't Reviews Local Problems

Roger Hess, superintendent of DeKalb County schools, was guest speaker at the February 23 of the Saint Joe Lions Club. The meeting was held at Chaney's Restaurant in Spencerville.

Mr. Hess presented facts pertaining to the Riverdale School Corporation and its problems in obtaining funds for new buildings. He pointed out that the squeeze is being felt more and more, but that certain state funds go to those schools "having the greatest need." He pointed out that in one city alone 40 additional classrooms are needed. Thus, Rivordale's chances of obtaining these special funds are lessened by the greater needs of other Hoosier communities.

Mr. Hess pointed out specifically that the upper grades will be pressed next fall with the present sixth grade, numbering 69, due to enter the junior high. The graduating class of 1959 numbers only 27.

The superintendent pointed out a bill in the Indiana legislature which would set up county school units which might prove unsatisfactory as far as small school communities are concerned.

The benefits of the school nurse program were reviewed and a question and answer period concluded the meeting.

Andy Crow and Merle Wagner, students at Riverdale High School and members of the school band, won honors last Saturday in the state solo and ensemble contest in Indianapolis. Andy received an "excellent" rating on his cornet solo and Merle received a "superior" rating for his bell lyre solo.

Both young men had received superior ratings at the district contest in Fort Wayne, held February 7.

Welding Shop Changes Hands

Gerald Rediger has announced that he has purchased the Foltz Repair Shop in Spencerville and will take over the operation of the shop March 1. The name of the business will be changed to Rediger Welding Shop. Mr. Rediger purchased the business from Raymond Foltz of Spencerville.

Mr. Rediger plans to move the business to larger quarters having purchased the business and inventory only. He seeks a larger shop to be able to handle trucks and large equipment. He has been employed for some time by the Zimmerman Welding Shop at Grabill as a sheet metal fabricator and welder.

Jim Bailey, who has been employed by Mr. Foltz in the welding and repair shop, will stay on with the new owner.

Local News

The Auburn Lions Club has announced that preliminary work is underway to launch a Little League basketball program in the grade schools in Auburn at the start of the 1959-60 school year. School officials and the athletic department have endorsed the plan.

A recruitment drive for mental hospital volunteers has been announced by Mrs. June Sebert of near Waterloo, president of the DeKalb Association for Mental Health. The recruitment drive in DeKalb County is in conjunction with the Mental Hospital Volunteer Month program of the Indiana Association for Mental Health. Needed are volunteers "Gold Ladies" who assist hospital personnel in occupational, recreational and musical therapy programs, assisting, advising and encouraging patients in working with their hands, participating in games and singing and playing musical instruments. Volunteers are asked to call or see Mrs. Clarence Pugh of 1031 Van Buren, Auburn. DeKalb County residents are invited to attend a basic orientation course for volunteers by the staff at the Fort Wayne State School on March 2, 3 and 4.

The Saint Joe Volunteer Fire Department made a run Thursday to the Howard Haupert home east of Saint Joe for a small fire.

St. Mark Lutheran Church held its annual Father and Son Banquet Saturday evening in the church basement with ladies of the church serving a ham dinner. Pastor Ivan O. Miller was toastmaster and special music was presented by Linda and Kay Halt. Pastor Schuette of St. Mark Lutheran Church in Auburn was the guest speaker. Ralph Sechler gave a few remarks in behalf of the fathers and Frank Sechler spoke for the sons. Merle Holden, Allen Amstutz and Mike Haberkorn led community singing.

Uninsured motorist coverage is a much better answer to the problem of the uninsured driver than putting the state into private enterprise through compulsory insurance, Charles J. VanArsdel, director of education for Indiana Farmers Mutual Insurance Co., told the Garrett Lions Club on February 23. Uninsured motorist coverage and the financial responsibility law "are Indiana's answer to the eastern move for more government intervention in private business," he said. Unsatisfied judgment coverage is now available through practically all companies writing automobile casualty insurance in Indiana.

The DeKalb County Farm Bureau board of directors met Monday night at the Farm Bureau building in Auburn. $20 was voted for the Indiana State IFYE program for 1959. Mr. Charles Widner was introduced as the new insurance agency manager for DeKalb County. Next district meeting and achievement banquet will be at Columbia City in the 4-H building on March 17 at 6:45 p.m. March 14 at 6:30 p.m. will be a county Farm Bureau public relations banquet at the Auburn Chamber of Commerce basement, entertaining the 4-H adult leaders of the county. Amateur talent and family night will be April 3 at 8 p.m. at the court house assembly room.

Students in the Fort Wayne area who are interested in obtaining a scholarship to the Indiana University School of Music may audition for a scholarship Monday, March 9, at the I.U. Extension Center, 1120 S. Barr. Interested students should contact the Center for an appointment or write C. Allen Winold on the university campus at Bloomington.

Petitions opposing the proposed opening of a tavern in Corunna were circulated in that community Monday Feb. 16. Three Corunna ministers, from the United Brethren, Methodist and Church of Christ churches, lead the opposition and have retained legal counsel. Applicants for a beer and wine retailer permit are Orley O. Smith, his wife, Helen, and their son, Richard Smith, of two and one-half miles northwest of Corunna.

Closing date of Sacred Heart Hospital has been moved back from the previously announced date, March 1. The new closing date will be sometime in April.

Marine Sgt. Clayton B. Baker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton E. Baker of Saint Joe, is serving with the Second Battalion, Sixth Marine Regiment, which took part in an amphibious landing exercise January 26 at Zuara, Libya. Members of the battalion later enjoyed liberty February 6 at Barcelona, Spain, following a short visit to Tripoli.

CULTURE CLUB

The club collect was repeated, followed by pledge to the flag. The hostess read her devotional material from the Book of Genesis. The Lord's Prayer was given in unison.

Lois Fisher gave an interesting comparative lesson on Virginia, West Virginia, Pennsylvania and New York.

It was reported that the free-will offering for the March of Dimes amounted to $2.59.

Alice Reidenbach provided some entertaining contests. Tasty refreshments were then served.

This Week In AMERICAN HISTORY

CREDIT MOBILIER SCANDAL

One of the ugliest pieces of corruption in American history came to light during President Grant's administration. Known as the Credit Mobilier scandal, it brought disgrace to Congress and came to a climax on February 27, 1873 with the censure of two Congressmen and the recommended expulsion of a Senator.

Credit Mobilier of America was a construction company organized in March, 1864 to build the Union Pacific Railroad after the Civil War. It was reorganized from an old Pennsylvania company and renamed Credit Mobilier of America after a financial setup of similar name in France. Control was in the hands of Union Pacific directors. A leading official of Credit Molibier was Oakes Ames, Congressman from Massachusetts.

The stockholders of Union Pacific voted to themselves, as stockholders of Credit Mobilier, fancy contracts at fantastically profitable figures. While the Union Pacific was almost forced into bankruptcy the Credit Mobilier paid dividends of 348% in one year. In 1869 the Union Pacific Railroad was completed. The sale of first mortgage bonds and of government bonds had provided the railroad with $50 million, more than enough to pay the whole cost of construction. On top of that Credit Mobilier got the government's "endowment" of the railroad, about $23 million of stocks, income bonds and land-grant bonds, all of which went into the pockets of the Credit Mobilier officials.

Even before the railroad was completed it was evident that the Union Pacific-Credit Mobilier combination might come under Congressional fire. Congressman Oakes Ames distributed many shares of profitable Credit Mobilier stock among members of the House and Senate, where, in his own words, "it would do most good." He wanted, so he said, "more friends in Congress for the Credit Mobilier." Ames practically gave the stock away at slight, or no cost.

Charges of corrupt practices reached a peak during the election campaign of 1872 when President Grant ran for a second term. Democrat party leaders made an issue of it, supported by a sensational newspaper expose of the New York Sun. A full scale investigation was begun in the House by a committee headed by Representative Luke Poland of Vermont. The committee found Oakes Ames guilty of "selling to members of Congress shares in the Credit Mobilier at prices much below their true value with the intent to influence the votes and decisions of such members in matters to be brought before Congress for action."

Shown to have received the stock were Vice-President Schuyler Colfax, Senator Wilson of Massachusetts who was to become Vice-President after Colfax in Grant's second administration, Senator James Patterson of New Hampshire, Speaker James Blaine, Representative James Garfield of Ohio, who, in a few years, was to be President, and other Congressmen. In addition to Oakes Ames, the Poland Committee also found Representative James Brooks of New York, the minority Democratic leader, guilty of corruption as a member of the House and as a government director of the Union Pacific Railroad. The House recommended their expulsion, but the resolution in both cases was changed to one of censure.

The dramatic moment of censure came, after two days of debate, on February 27, 1873. The House was crowded. Ladies and gentlemen in the galleries focused opera glasses on Ames and Brooks who sat silently and deathly pale. Both felt themselves to be sacrificial scapegoats to an aroused public indignation. Ames and Brooks were elderly men and the humiliation and disgrace soon led to their death, of Brooks on April 30 and of Ames on May 8. For them the sad drama was over.

A Senate committee meanwhile recommended expulsion of Senator Patterson, but it was not carried out. A move to impeach Vice-President Colfax failed. Other Congressmen involved were "whitewashed" of any wrongdoing. But no amount of "whitewashing" could wipe out the blot of Congressional scandal from Credit Mobilier's sordid page in our country's history.

THE GREAT REFUSAL
Lesson for March 1, 1959

A double meaning can be found in some of Jesus' parables. A triple meaning, if you include the simple literal words of the stories. For instance, take the parable which in old-fashioned English is called the parable of the Wicked Husbandmen. In more modern English it would be the story of the Wicked Tenant Farmers. The first and simple meaning is just the story. Like so many that Jesus told, this one both sounds as if it might have actually happened, and as if it were too fantastic ever to happen. It is the story of a farm owner who tried to collect from his tenants. But they beat up all his agents, one after another. Finally the owner sent his son. But this only stirred the tenants to murder. If we kill the man's only son, they said to each other, then the vineyard will be ours. So they killed him.

Shadow of Calvary

Jesus ended his blunt, ugly tale with a question. What will the owner do next? His hearers knew. The least the tenants could expect would be to lose their places. But more likely the owner would destroy them. Their murder would come back on their own heads.

So much for the story itself. But it was more than a story; that is, there was a meaning under its surface. It is on record that the leading citizen to whom Jesus told this tale of brutality and madness immediately made plans to arrest him. They saw that Jesus was speaking about THEM. This was no simple rural Who-done-it. It was a sword-thrust, a stern prophecy, and they did not like it, nor him. These men, you might say, were parable-experts, parabolists (sic) themselves. They saw in a flash what the Man from Galilee was driving at. The owner of the vineyard was God; the tenant farmers were themselves. The vineyard was the Kingdom of God, with all its powers and privileges. God had entrusted the Jewish people, and especially their leaders and teachers, these chief priests and scribes among them, with his truth, his laws, the knowledge of his will. But instead of blessing the earth with these his gifts, they had tried selfishly to keep them for their very own. They had mistreated God's messengers, the prophets. Now God's son was in their presence . . . but murder was in their minds.

One of the most chilling things Jesus ever said was his last word to these men who were plotting his death. "The Kingdom of God will be taken away from you," he said. That was a shocker. Every Jew grew up believing that his people had the exclusive right to the Kingdom and to the favor of God. Gentiles were no better than dogs. But here Jesus pronounces sentence on their failure. Not "—may be taken away" but "—will be taken away." By rejecting him they proved themselves unworthy. But then what? Who would be the Bearers of the Kingdom? It will be given, Jesus said, "to a nation producing the fruits of it." What nation? Rome, the British Empire, the United States? One thing is clear: no race and no nation have any exclusive rights to the Kingdom; no exclusive right to be the Headquarters of God.

The Tragic Pattern

But with this last word of Jesus a third depth of meaning in this parable comes to light. Jesus was not only predicting his own death at the hands of those who should have made him most welcome; and not only predicting the passing of the Kingdom of God out into the world. He was suggesting a tragic pattern which has been repeated over and over again in history. Those wicked tenants are not merely certain priests in long-ago Jerusalem, they are the Refusers of God everywhere and at all times. God gives to man so much, and demands (comparatively) so little; like the owner in the parable. But man, confronted by God, makes over and over again the Great Refusal. Man wants the earth for himself, he does not want to share it even with the Creator. But men who refuse God are in reality not destroying him; they are destroying themselves.

THE 707 INTERCONTINENTAL – Seattle, Wash. – First of the very long range Boeing 707 Intercontinental Jet Transports undergoes a test flight over Washington State. Larger, heavier and with a much longer range than the 707s now flying regular trans-Atlantic schedules, the new 600-mile-an-hour Intercontinental will carry as many as 189 passengers.

SOUPER-MARKET – Cos Cob, Conn. – Reaping a hot profit on a cold day at Cos Cob, Conn., these young merchants sell warming soup to ice skaters. Using a jug of tomato soup and cups from Mom's pantry shelf, the kids gathered almost two dollars for the March of Dimes Campaign.

IN HIGH SPIRITS – Brownsville, Tex. – "Que Paso? Caramba! Woman, stop drinking my Tequila!" This could well be what Joel Zamarripa is saying to his date, Mary Lopez. The kids turned out for a pre-Charro Day Fiesta.

PARKING A PACHYDERM – London – Most people have cars to park, but not Peter Cadbury (Right) of London. He's putting money in a parking meter not for an auto but for this eight-months-old Indian elephant named Sunderi.

AT CANADIAN PARLIAMENT OPENING – Ottawa, Canada – Vincent Massey, Canada's Governor General, inspects a Guard of Honor of the Governor General's Foot Guard prior to the opening of the second session of the 24th Canadian Parliament here. The opening was marked with traditional pomp and ceremony.

Hospital Issue Spreads

Further developments in the county hospital movement include a protest presented to the county board of commissioners February 16 by a group of four landowners. The group expressed opposition to a tax-supported institution and a fifth member of the group asked the commissioners to study the question thoroughly before making a decision.

In the meantime the group which organized for the purpose of obtaining a new hospital for the county is continuing with its plans. A controversy has arisen in the matter with the announcement of an addition to be constructed on the Souder Hospital in Auburn by August of 1959. This announcement came after the county group organized and began promoting construction of a county hospital.

The whole issue arose with the disclosure recently that Sacred Heart Hospital in Garrett would close this spring, leaving the county apparently with a shortage of hospital facilities for its population.

There followed the organization of the DeKalb County Hospital Association, announcement of the Souder addition, request to the commissioners to consider construction of a county hospital and now a protest against such construction.

Lehr Wilder Now Official PM

Lehr Wilder was nominated to be postmaster at Saint Joe by President Eisenhower Monday. The nomination was sent to the U.S. Senate for confirmation.

Mr. Wilder has been serving as acting postmaster for the past year and one-half. He replaces Ed Storer who retired in the summer of 1957.

SPENCER TWP. HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Spencer Twp. Home Demonstration Club met February 11 at the home of Ida Reed.

The meeting was called to order by vice president Ida Reed. Club colletc was led by Nellie Allen. Devotions were given by Arminta Steward. Songs were led by Alice Kagey including Club Prayer, Leaning On the Everlasting Arms, Aunt Dinah's Quilting Party and Happy Birthday for Marvel Kessler. Project lesson, Eating For Good Health, was given by Garnet Furnish. Poultry leader report was given by Elva Hoover. Historian Alice Kagey gave a report. Roll call response was My Favorite Childhood Poem. Berniece Wilder gave the secretary's report and treasurer's report was given by Marie Ward.

The club creed and commandments were repeated.

Poultry and Egg Show is March 26.

Marie Ward took charge of the birthday auction. There were 14 members, two guests, Vera Reed and Mrs. Hollabaugh, and two children present. Refreshments were served by the hostess and co-hostess, Elva Hoover.

AMERICAN HISTORY

BY WILLIAM BRODIE

THE HOUSE CHOOSES A PRESIDENT

Never was there a more bitter Presidential election than that of 1800. And when the electoral votes were counted they showed the first and only tie for President in American history! Now the House of Representatives had to choose the President. During six days of balloting 35 times the House failed to make a selection. Finally, on February 17, 1801, with the 36th ballot, Thomas Jefferson came out the winner.

With Jefferson the new Republican party was swept into power. Gone now from political office, never to return, was the Federalist party of Washington, Adams and Hamilton. Basically the big issue between the two parties was whether the average people could govern themselves, as Jefferson thought they could, or whether the government should be in the hands of a privileged class of the rich and the well-born, as Hamilton believed. The Federalists became unpopular with their harsh laws, especially the Alien and Sedition Laws of 1798 during President John Adams' administration.

The Republicans derided the Federalists as monarchists, England-lovers, warmongers, and spendthrifts, and accused them of selling the country to the bankers. The Federalists replied that the Republicans were low radical scum believers in bloody class-war. The smear word used by the Federalists against the Republicans was "democrats." This was a horrid word to many Americans in 1800.

The Republicans won the election through a strong political combination of the small farmers, the frontier dwellers, most of the Southern planters, the "foreign" vote of the Irish and the Pennsylvania Dutch, and the growing numbers of city workmen. But at the very moment of victory the Republicans almost lost the election! Everyone knew that Thomas Jefferson, the tall, lean, red-headed Virginian was the Republican candidate for President, while the small, smooth, dark-eyed New Yorker, Aaron Burr, was their choice for Vice-President. But when the electoral votes were counted they showed, on the Republican side, 73 for Jefferson, 73 for Burr; on the Federalist side, 65 for Adams, 64 for C. C. Pinckney, and 1 for John Jay.

Under the original Constitution, before the 12th Amendment of 1804, each elector voted for two men. The man who got the most votes became President. The second highest man became Vice-President. The Republicans had planned to have a few electors split their ticket so that Jefferson would come first and Burr just behind him. The Virginia electors thought the New York delegation would attend to this. The New Yorkers left it up to Virginia. So nobody did it.

The tie vote threw the election into the House of Representatives, according to the Constitution. And here the "lame-duck" holdover Federalists were in the majority! Balloting was by single states. Sixteen states were represented, and it took nine to win. Jefferson had eight states, Burr six, and two were tied. The Federalists decided to elect Burr, in order to spite Jefferson. But now Alexander Hamilton, the great Federalist, protested. He hated Jefferson, but Burr was worse in his opinion. "The public good must be paramount to every private consideration," Hamilton advised his friends in Congress. "For heaven's sake, let not the Federalist party be responsible for the elevation of this man Burr!"

The House began balloting on February 11, 1801 amid great emotional feeling. One ill Republican was carried through a snowstorm on a stretcher to vote for Jefferson. Rumors and threats were widespread. There was talk of the Federalists electing one of their party as a temporary President, in which case the militia threatened to march and there would have been civil war.

Finally, on the seventh day and 36th ballot, the Federalist of the two tied states withheld their votes, swinging these states to Jefferson. Aaron Burr, moving into second place, hid his disappointment behind a polite smile as he became Vice-President. And Thomas Jefferson, "the common man's candidate," became President of the United States.

NEWVILLE TWP. HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Newville Twp. Home Demonstration Club met for an all-day meeting on Wednesday, February 11, at the home of Mrs. Ruth Webb with Mrs. Cynthia Sipe and Mrs. Dessie Osmun as co-hostesses.

A bountiful pot luck dinner was served at noon after which the president, Cynthia Sipe, called the meeting to order with members repeating the club creed. Mrs. Gladys Hart then gave devotions followed by Irene Emenhiser leading the singing of Blest Be the Tie and the song of the month. Seeing Nellie Home.

The new home demonstration agent, Carolyn Durkes, then presented a very interesting lesson on eating for good health.

Roll call was responded to by 28 members. Two guests were present, Mrs. Lois Strong and son and Mrs. Annabelle Culler, who was welcomed as a new member. There were also three other children present.

The club voted to give $5.00 each to the Heart Fund and the March of Dimes.

Members were presented with sunshine aprons as a means of adding to club finances.

Birthday contributions were made by Deloris Inlow, Anna Hursey, Leta Shafer, Bernice Miller and Cynthia Sipe.

The meeting was then adjourned with members repeating the collect.

The social hour was in charge of Edna Mickelson and Della McDonald.

Around the Town

With the Editor

At least we got the lights off the Christmas tree, even if we didn't get the tree down. Saturday was a good day for taking down decorations and Dave Ruch, Steve Monroe and our Mike did their good deeds by helping out. Of course, it was fun in the process, climbing up that big evergreen, then sliding down, back up again, etc., etc.

But we couldn't get the tree lose. It sways back and forth, but evidently it is still stuck in frost—or else we're too weak to lift it.

The same notion got into Dan Ransom and some of the boys at Spencerville. Down came the lights.

Scene of the week — Mr. Smith getting out of and getting into Mr. Buzzard's Volkswagen (it was a tight squeeze, Maw, but he made it).

Local News

The Angola Hornets won the Churubusco-Auburn sectional crown Saturday night defeating Bellefountain by a 62-50 score. Angola had defeated Butler 81-68 in one of the afternoon games while Bellefountain gained entry to the finale through a 46-45 win over Ashley. The two favored teams, Garrett and Butler, failed in their efforts, with Butler knocking Garrett out of the tourney before being eliminated by Angola.

The Rural Housewives Club met at the home of Mrs. Edna Jenkins on Tuesday afternoon, March3. Seven members responded to roll call. The usual program was carried out. The hostess served a delicious lunch and a good time was enjoyed by all.

Town Board OK's Efforts For Industry

Members of the industrial expansion committee of the Saint Joe Booster Club and the club's president attended the meeting of the Saint oJe Town Board Monday evening to discuss the matter of attracting new industry to this area. The club members received the assurance of the board that they could expect the board's cooperation in providing an attractive offer to interested industry.

Committee members Warren Clauser and Ted Haberkorn and Booster president Frank Sechler discussed with Town Board president Derwood Ridgway and board members Orville Coburn and Lester Pugsley the problems involved in preparing for contacts with outside industry. Suggestions were made by the board and by Town-Clerk Willard Hurni which were taken for consideration by the committee.

Suit Filed To Nullify Sp'ville Gym Sale

The sale of the Spencerville gym last June is yet contested by a group of Spencerville citizens who have filed a case in the DeKalb County Circiut Court to regain possession of the building. Nine Spencerville area residents, William Erick, Ernest Steward, Elmer Smith, Melvin Howey, Charles C. Fred High, Merwin Rhodes, Lynn B. Fisher, Vernon Cline and George B. Hart have filed the case "for themselves and others similarly situated as members of the Spencerville Town Hall Co." Argil Richmond of Saint Joe, who purchased the property for $675 last year, is named as defendant in the suit filed through William H. Husselman, Auburn attorney.

The property was sold by the Riverdale school board with the condition that it would not be able to guarantee or warrant title to the property. The Spencerville Community Club submitted a bid for $25, Von Tharp of Auburn bid $650, Earl Chamberlin of Saint Joe $600 and South Side Auto Parts, Fort Wayne, $502.50.

The plaintiffs in the case to quiet title and ejectment allege that the voluntary association was formed in 1919 to construct a community building. The association, it is alleged, purchased the proeprty from Emila V. Gloyd.

It has been reported that the building was turned over to the Spencer Township trustee years ago because of the inability of the organization which put up the building to pay upkeep costs. At the consolidation of Spencer Township schools with Concord Township and thereafter with Newville Township as a third member of the present consolidation as Riverdale School Corporation, the building was considered part of the school system. It was used as a practice gym for grade school students and high school students, and was also utilized sparingly by community groups such as the Spencerville Cub Scout Pack and the Community Club. It had come into some abuse also, with vandals making the building a frequent target for break-ins, smashing windows and otherwise defacing the building.

The Spencerville Community Club placed its bid with the purpose in mind of using it for club and community gatherings and as a recreational center for youth in the community.

The present situation developed because there is no record, apparently, of any transaction between the trustee of the past and the trustees of the community organization who built the building, giving title to the township. The building, nevertheless, became generally considered as part of the Spencer Township School system and was treated as such.

Community Club To Serve Chili Supper March 13

The Spencerville Community Club will sponsor a chili supper on Friday night, March 13. The supper will be served in the Riverdale Elementary School cafeteria in Spencerville.

The menu will inlucde the following:

An invitation is extended to all to attend.

Lions Club To Fete Team, Yell Leaders, Coach

The Saint Joe Lions Club will entertain, as their guests of honor, members of the varsity basketball team from Riverdale, Coach Price Brookfield and the varsity cheerleaders, Carol Loucks, Nila LaRowe and Vickie Crow, on Monday night, March 9, at 6:30 p.m.

The local service club annually honors the basketball team with a dinner and program, this year to be held at St. Mark Lutheran Church in Saint Joe. Members of the Friendly Circle Class will serve the dinner.

The program will include a thrilling film of the 1958 Indianapolis 500-Mile Race, presented through the courtesy of the Insurance Institute of Indiana.

SAINT JOE VALLEY HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The regular meeting of the Saint Joe Valley Home Demonstration Club was held at the home of Alice Reidenbach.

The president, Nancy Coburn, called the meeting to order with members repeating the club creed. Devotions were given by Myrtle Pugsley.

The history of the song of the month was by Elizabeth Shull and members joined in singing "I Was Seeing Nellie Home."

The special leaders all gave interesting talks. The secretary's report was read and 19 members answered roll call by giving a valentine verse. The members voted to give $5.00 to the I.F.Y.C. The meeting closed with all singing the club prayer.

Social hour was in charge of Eva Clauser. Refreshments were served by the hostess, Alice Reidnbach, and co-hostess, Doris Yeiser.

The next meeting will be held March 20 at the home of Emma Strombeck.

Brass Tacks - 13th In A Series

The time will come, who knows how soon, but the time will come when the folly of present-day attitudes will be shown by the downfall of this nation through collapse of its economic strength. It will come, that is, unless Americans pull their heads out of the sand and face the truth.

One would think that in comparison, for instance, with the 1930's, the next twenty or so years were a matter of a rising out of a "dark age" or an age of no progress economically and materially. The best way some can describe today's materialism is apparently by the use of the word "prosperity." We are beset by the inference, if not the direct claims, that today's "prosperity" is the result of man's organizing for his own benefit, of making a union of efforts that were scattered and ineffective previously. Some of our most active leaders in this organizing effort would have us believe that this good fortune would not be here if it were not for organized effort. This is somewhat distasteful, or it should be, because it implies that the principal of individual freedom (all the freedoms that we refer to today, of religion, of speech, of choice of occupation, etc., included) is not actual or workable principle. The thought is in the background, whether we have recognized it or not, that we would not be so well off today, we would not have all of the increase in personal wealth which we have seen in the past 15 to 20 years, if it had not been for organized efforts. So, the credit for our present "prosperity" is given to, or it is taken by, organized labor. This is shameful because it pushes aside the basic truth of just reward for just efforts. Listen, for another instance, to typical "Labor Day" speeches and you hear about the great contributions of organized labor, hear of this or that faction within organized labor and that particular group's "contribution" to the betterment of its members. Lost is the thought of individual labor and its reward, cast forward is glory for unionism. "Labor Day" in today's America isn't for editors of small town newspapers, it isn't for farmers, it isn't for the scholar, it isn't for the fellow pumping gas or clerking in a store or grinding feed, it isn't for everyone. It is for those who now consider themselves grossly responsible for the great "creation" of wealth for particular people who "belong."

The more divided we become in our thinking, the more we "segmentize" the working world and begin crediting a certain group as the greatest contributor to our good fortune, so the more we hasten that day when our economic system will collapse. We cannot help but become pitted against one another, in unhealthy "competition," whether we like it or not, whether we recognize it or not. When this happens, and that happening is well on its way today, you can mark the beginning of the end ..... the end of cooperation, the end of understanding, the end of overall progress. No amount of material gain can justify such an end.

It is saddening that a nation so young, so strong, so blessed with the good things that God has created for man, can become so lost in greed and self-satisfaction.

IS THIS TEXTBOOK SABOTAGE?

Dr. E. Merrill Root, nationaly-known educator, educational researcher and author, has published an examination of 11 high school textbooks in American history. He chose the 11 texts for study because all were in use in one of the nation's largest high schools, and because they are widely used in schools throughout the nation. He feels that they constitute the "core" of American history teachings. Certainly the 11 texts represent what is being taught in American history to most of the children of America.

Dr. Root's findings show that the textbooks repeatedly emphasize the negative in American history, give biased presentations in many important areas, omit vital historical information and otherwise give a distorted picture, in important instances, of the founding and growth of our Republic. This is a gravely important matter to every American, because our nation is being attacked today, subtly from within and boldly from without, by forces seeking its destruction.

The world-wide Socialist and Communist conspiracies to destroy Capitalism seek first to weaken, to undermine America's respect for its institutions. Our young people will not resist the first step in the Socialist-Communist program - the gradual development of collectivism under an all-powerful central government - if they do not appreciate our heritage and understand the institutions which make up the structure of our freedom system. The Socialists and other collectivists are as subversive in their activities against our Capitalist institutions as are the Communists. The plotters are spending billions of dollars and have enlisted the conscious or unwitting aid of influential dupes in every branch of American communications, particularly in textbook writing.

Here are the texts examined by Dr. Root in his important new book, "Brain Washing in the High Schools": "The United States - Experiment in Democracy," by Craven and Johnson (Ginn & Co.); "The Making of Modern America," Canfield and Wilder (Houghton Mifflin); "America's History," Todd and Curti (Harcourt, Brace); "The American Story," Gavin and Hamm (D. C. Heath); "Story of America," Harlow (Henry Holt); "A History of Our Country," Muzzey (Ginn & Co.); "History of the United States," Dumond, Dale and Wesley (D. C. Heath); "United States History," Wirth (American Book Co.); "History of the American Way," Faulkner, Kepner and Merrill (Harper & Bros.); "The United States and World Relations," Mowrer and Cummings (McGraw-Hill).

The teachings of these 10 texts on many basic points are almost identical, Dr. Root found. An eleventh text, "History of a Free People," by Bragdon and McCutcheon (MacMillan), presents a fuller, more favorable picture of America's history, but it too has vital defects, Dr. Root feels. Here are a few of his findings:

"From "The United States - Experiment in Democracy": "Bias against the 'upper classes' and favoritism toward the 'masses' pervade (the authors) account of the Constitutional Convention. They say that the Constitution was drafted by a 'minority group'; that this minority group sought only 'to defend private property'; and that the Constitution was designed to 'check popular rule.'" This is a distortion of history. It tends to create disrespect for for the principal of private ownership of property, backbone of our American economic system, and it undermines respect for the Constitution.

0063

Some of these textbooks make heroes of such radical muckrakers as Upton Sinclair, Ida Tarbell, Frank Norris and Lincoln Steffers whose literature and preachments denounced our American Capitalistic system. Steffens, Dr. Root notes, once sent the following proclamation to the American Communist Party: "Communism can solve our problem .... That is my muckraker's proclamation; that the American Communist Party program meets our American Capitalist situation precisely, and it is the only American party that meets it — head on." With "Big Business" personifying Evil, these textbooks tend to make private Capitalism the villain.

One textbook quotes approvingly the radical declaration of a Socialist agitator, Mary Lease: "Wall Street owns the country. It is no longer a government of the people, by the people, and for the people, but a government of Wall Street, by Wall Street, and for Wall Street ...." and so on. This is a typical Communist harangue! Why are our high school history textbooks contaminated with such propaganda? This is a question every citizen should ask himself and act upon — now!

Next Week: More on these textbooks.

—Dr. George S. Benson, Director, National Education Program, Searcy, Arkansas.

MOST CITIZENS KNOW NOTHING OF CONSTITUTION

Those who are enemies of constitutional republicanism are found among Communists, Fascists, fuzzy-minded philosophers who want our whole nation remade, and those so bent on materialistic matters that they cannot see the value of anything that can't be eaten, worn, drunk, or driven. This total group of real enemies is small, but powerful and dangerous.

A careful analysis of the most dangerous enemies to our republic, however, might include most of us, even though we all believe in the Constitution. Certainly in the issue over voting rights and segregation we seem unable to separate moral and social from legal issues. The right to vote, for example, is a legal right which can be limited and described by each state but must clearly be administered equally for all people.

Segregation, however, poses an issue which is moral and social and, as such, needs to be discussed from a moral and religious view.

Legally, however, segregation is a different matter, for the Constitution says nothing about education. In fact, no greater evidence of lack of undersanding of our government is needed than the example of those who do not (or did not) know that there is no Federal law which requires a state to have school.

Irrespective of one's individual position on such an explosive issue as segregation, all citizens should be able to see it as both a moral and a legal issue. Any informed citizen should recognize that an individual may express one view based on a moral and religious position and a different view on the legality of this, or any, Supreme Court decision which concerns an area that is not clearly spelled out in the Constitution.

It is in this whole area of democratic ideals and constitutional legality that we are most to blame, for confusion is readily apparent. The Constitution is a legal document which should be interpreted legally on a basis of what is legal or illegal and not on what is right or wrong. There is a legal way to correct legal wrongs and a religious way to correct moral and social wrongs. Separation of legality and morality may be difficult, but it is often essential if constitutional government is to prevail.

Most states require a written examination which demonstrates a knowledge of traffic laws before a license to drive is issued. Generally, however, one can vote even if he knows nothing about our government. It would be interesting to see how many of our voters could pass a basic knowledge test about government if this were required for voting.

Lynwood High School (California) in 1950 prepared an excellent booklet titled "We Hold These Truths." From this booklet, as a minimum, each graduate was required to memorize 32 highlights of American history, two stanzas of the Star Spangled Banner, The American's Creed, Preamble to the Constitution, the Gettysburg Address, and part of the Declaration of Independence. While the idea was excellent, memorization must not be confused with understanding.

To understand our Constitution, we must not only know its features but also discuss and apply them to life. We need also a wide discussion of differences between a democracy and a constitutional republic. (Boldtype emphasis by us. —Ed.) When one suggests this, teachers say citizens oppose such discussions.

Some teachers also ask: "How can we teach students that this nation is a republic when our whole society is demanding Federal action on such a wide series of fronts that we actually are becoming what everyone calls us .... a social democracy? A nation whose people do not understand its government cannot remain a republic."

Our teachers are loyal and generally, conservative. Schools today emphasize the democratic values of freedom. To emphasize the legal obligations of citizenship in a republic will require a devotion and effort from citizens which is not, today, sufficiently apparent.

STOP OUTER SPACE TALK; TOO MUCH TO DO DOWN HERE

I'll bet you a short beer, Mac. I'll bet you that next September the moon'll wane as a point of interest, that all this space talk will have made its exit, that the feverish preoccupaion with the recession will have joined the moon in its decline, and that somebody like Willie Mays will occupy the barroom conversation.

(Editor's Note—This article appeared Tuesday, April 15, 1958. Did the writer win his bet??)

Maybe I'm just plain stupid, but maybe I make a few friends by saying that I am sick unto death of all this outer space talk when we can't even run inner space in any sort of orderly manner. We talk about shooting people to the moon, at a cost of two billion dollars, and the airlines haven't yet been able to solve the problem of getting baggage on and off the non-jet ships which are still earth-bound.

Frankly, I don't understand nine-tenths of what the outer space boys are talking about, apogees, perigees, and a whole glossary of new snafu talk—that used to mean situation normal, all fouled up. But what I still don't dig is: Why don't the trains run on time? Why is New York and Washington brought to a standstill by a little rain or snow? Why do young turkeys tilt their beaks to heaven and drown when it rains, when you are depending on them for a Thanksgiving money crop?

Twety-five thousand miles an hour don't mean nothin' to your ignorant correspondent, when you can't get from the east side to the west side at theater time in less than a light year. Orbit me no orbits, dog-encumbered or not. Ask any quail shooter, such as Mr. Bernie Baruch, where you can get a good half-trained pointer these days.

Mac, we are living in an age when everybody is yakking it up learnedly about the day after tomorrow when we ain't even got yesterday beat to its knees.

We can't handle a bunch of young thugs who prevent decent people from walking the streets, and decent kids from being educated. We can't handle traffic or hoodlums or overseas aid or sick presidents or the common cold. All this space-cadet stuff is about to bore the drawers off me.

And, Mac, I ain't lonesome. There is at least one physicist, President Lee Dubridge of Cal Tech, who said the same thing a while back, including a very pertinent point: Why bother to fret about launching weapons from the moon—taking your stuff 240,000 miles away to drop an egg on the earth—when you can do it today with equal vehemence on a target that's only 5,000 miles away in the first place?

Dr. Dubridge mentioned that it would take five days to get your warhead back to earth from the moon and "in that space of time the war might well be over." Amen, Brother.

I mention weather as a pressing case in common. Before we give all our attention to being off with the birds, on a super-cloud X, can we not do something about unseasonable snow, continuous droughts, floods and the other little homely circumstances that prevent the great thinkers from getting from home to office?

One drop of rain kills movement in big cities, and snow immobilizes practically everyone. If you can't keep the cabs moving in Washington, what happens when outer space is so loaded with orbitting objects that you can't fight your way through the stratosphere? Where is the plumber when the celestial pipes bust? Off drunk on Mars, maybe?

A whole new language is being built around all this outer space stuff with which we occupy ourselves today, and, in the meantime, nobody speaks basic English. Whatever happened to the good five-cent cigar, or the balanced budget? The music goes round and round, oh ho ho ho, and it comes out nowhere.

Any congressional hearing these days will give you enough nonsense to bust your girdle without the problem of which jurisdiction outer space falls under, military or civil. How are we going to keep those runners out of the girls' stockings, very important since the new short dresses are here?

I say leave the poor damn moon alone until you get a TV set that doesn't snow and can teach the Virginia citizens who work in Washington how to drive without menacing the lives of men from Mars. Meanwhile, Mac, if it's an orbit you want, kindly step outside. Or shut up.

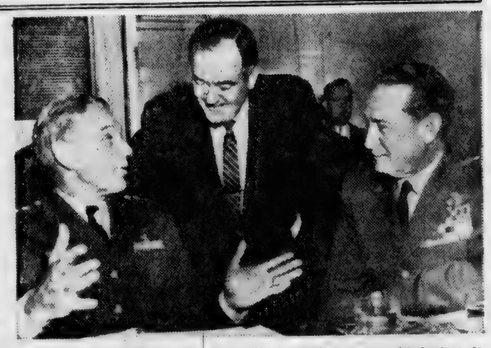
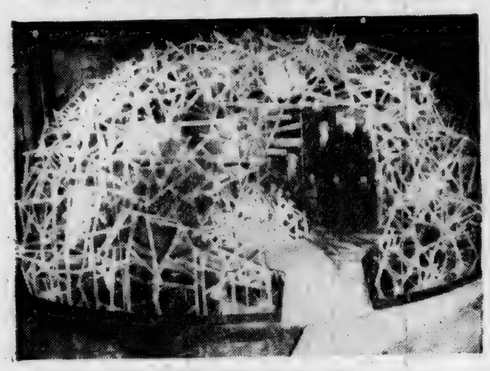
PICTURES OF THE WEEK

RECEIVES HEART-OF-THE-YEAR AWARD — Washington — Grinning broadly, President Eisenhower (left) presents Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D—Texas) with the American Heart Association's Annual Heart-Of-The-Year Award at the White House. The plaque reads, "Presented to Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, whose faith, courage and achievement in meeting the personal challenge of heart disease have inspired people everywhere with new hope and confidence."

HURT IN MISHAP — West Palm Beach, Fla. — Holding firmly onto her teddy bear, four-year-old Debrah Williams, of Lake Worth, Fla., awaits the verdict after undergoing surgery on her left eye. Doctors operated to save the sight of the youngster, injured when a seven-year-old playmate shot a missile from a peashooter into her eye.



WASHINGTON — Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, Army Chief of Staff (left) and Gen. Thomas D. White, Air Force Chief (right) shown with Chairman Hubert Humphrey (D.Minn.) of the Senate Disarmament Subcommittee before testifying before that group. Both urged that the U.S. go slow in banning nuclear tests and production of nuclear weapons.



MUSEUM GETS GIANT MODEL BLOOD CELL — Chicago — A tangle of tubes, globes and other bizarre shapes, this model of a human red blood cell, 1,000,000 times larger than a real blood cell, easily holds these three visitors at the Museum of Science and Industry here where the monster cell is on exhibit. Measuring 24 feet in diameter and 12 feet high, the igloo-shaped model is large enough to hold 40 people.

COOL COLLECTION — Yakima, Wash. — Fancy fans are nine-year-old Jane Korn's pride and joy, as she shows off her collection in Yakima, Wash. She started gathering fans from many different countries two years ago, and now has enough to insure that she can keep cool come summer.

SHOULDN'T HAPPEN TO A DOG! — New York — Despite his muffler, blanket and long ears, all of which should keep him warm, this Basset Hound seems to be utterly miserable because of the 20-degree temperatures here. To ward off the piercing chill he's probably thinking wistfully of summer dog days.

THY WILL BE DONE

Lesson for March 8, 1959

A stranger to the Christian religion would be struck by two things. One is that the church cherishes much that she does not understand; and the other is that the church loves to remember what the stranger would think we should wish to forget.

The story of Gethsemane is one that every Christian knows. The first three gospels all tell it in some detail. Every communion service begins with the words, "The Lord Jesus, the same night in which he was betrayed . . ." The Gethsemane story is one of anguish of mind and soul, a story of Jesus offering an unanswered prayer—"let this cup pass."

There is no doubt about Jesus' distress in Gethsemane. Matthew, Mark and Luke all testify to it. Mark says that Jesus "began to be greatly distressed and troubled." The word Mark uses which is translated "greatly distressed" in Mark 14:33 is the same word he uses in 9:15 to describe the crowd's astonishment when they saw him after the Transfiguration. It is the same word also in 16:5 and 6, speaking of the amazement of the women at the tomb when they saw the white-robed angel. It is the emphatic form of a word used in Acts 9:6 (King James version) to describe Saul's emotions when stricken to the ground on the Damascus Road. It is a word meaning more than surprise; it is shock. The whole story of Gethsemane holds right up to this word that begins it. Jesus prays in such intensity that sweat poured from his forehead like so much blood. He describes his own feelings as "very sorrowful, even to death." The church does not remember Jesus as a man always serene. One of the early Christian writers speaks of Christ as offering up "prayers and supplications with loud cries and tears." (Heb. 5:7.)

"Not What I Will -"

There is a darker shadow than this. You would think, if you were a stranger to the Christian faith, that if ever there had been a time when Jesus felt his own will and his Father's will were not the same, the church would prefer to forget that fact. Would it not be better, more edifying, more comforting—would it not make Christ a nobler figure, if we could think of him as at every point and in every moment desiring only what his heavenly Father desired, never anything different?

No—if the church had been inventing the story, they would probably have invented it just that way. But the church was dealing with facts, not fancies. And in this story of Gethsemane we are further mystified by hearing Jesus say, "Not what I will, but what Thou wilt." Any one who thinks he knows exactly what Jesus meant by that is guessing. What is plain, if we honestly and humbly listen,, is that there was enough difference between what Jesus desired, or would prefer, and what his Father in heaven preferred, so that he could say, Not this—but that!

Our Lord and Ourselves

Yet immediately, in the same breath, Jesus cries out "what thou wilt." Jesus was not at that moment giving a lesson in prayer. Nevertheless that is the most profound lesson in prayer which we can learn. We all know by heart the prayer which Jesus taught us, and we rattle it off easily enough. But every phase of it is hard to say honestly, and none harder than this: "Thy will be done." That is just fine when we think God wants what we want, and is sitting up there in the sky like a heavenly Fixer, arranging for all our sweet dreams to come true. That is fine too even when we can see God is not going to let our dreams come true, provided we can see that God has a better plan and we know what the plan is. But what about it, if we become sure that God is against our own plans, that God is not "fixing things" for us, and yet we cannot see why? What about it, if our knowing what God's will is, brings us also to cries and tears, to amazement and distress? Well . . . then we can find light in dark Gethsemane.

This Week In AMERICAN HISTORY

BY WILLIAM BRODIE

was trouble in the air on the evening of March 5, 1770 down on King Street by the Custom House. A crowd of men and boys began collecting there to taunt the red-coated British sentries on post. Trouble had been stirring between groups of Boston people and the soldiers all through the winter of 1770. Most of the people resented the presence of the redcoats who had been landed in Boston in 1768 to defend the king's officials and pro-British merchants, as well as to enforce the unpopular British Acts of Trade.

Paul Revere described the coming of the troops to Boston as follows: "At noon on Saturday, October the 1st, (1768) the 14th and 29th Regiments, a detachment from the 59th Regiment and train of artillery, with two pieces of cannon, landed on the Long Wharf; there formed and marched with insolent parade, drums beating, fifes playing, and colours flying up King Street."

The radical patriot politicians in Boston considered the presence of the soldiers as a great grievance and evidence of British tyranny. The more irresponsible townsmen lost no opportunity to taunt and hurl insults at the red-coated troops with shouts of "Lobsters!" and "Bloody Backs!" Tension kept mounting during the winter of 1770.

On this evening of March 5th a crowd began to throw snowballs at a sentry near the Custom House. Other British soldiers came up to support their comrade. The crowd in King Street grew as word of the fracas spread. Captain Thomas Preston, Officer of the Day, sent out a squad to protect his men. Snowballs, sticks, pieces of ice filled the air. One soldier, struck heavily with a stick, fired his musket.

The mob surged forward. It was a free-for-all, every man fighting for himself, with Captain Preston trying, unsuccessfully, to restore order. Other excited soldiers, without orders, fired, killing three and wounding eight of their tormentors. The mob fell back and slowly dispersed, carrying away their dead and dying as the entire 29th Regiment turned out. Five townsmen died, Crispus Attucks, a mulatto, Patrick Carr, an Irishman, and Samuel Gray, James Caldwell and Samuel Maverick.

The anger of the Boston people at this bloody riot placed the British on the defensive. A great meeting was held in Old South Church, and through their leader, Samuel Adams, the people demanded that the troops be withdrawn from the town. Governor Thomas Hutchinson sent the soldiers out to Castle Williams, an island fort in Boston harbor. Captain Preston and his squad were brought to trial for murder. John Adams and Josiah Quincy defended them, showing that at least two patriot leaders opposed to Britain did not approve of mob action. The captain and six of his men were acquitted. Two soldiers, found guilty of manslaughter, were branded on the hand and discharged from their service.

Meanwhile, highly colored stories of the "Boston Massacre" spread throughout the colonies. Public feeling, already aroused against the British, was fanned into flaming resentment by these reports, and further aroused by the wide distribution of Paul Revere's famous, but historically inaccurate picture of the "horrid massacre."

Throughout the American colonies many patriots took to cleaning their rifles as the "bloody work in King Street" stirred growing thought of American independence.

thanks to the Electronic Secretary Automatic Telephone Answering Unit

This television repairman has solved the problem of being in two places at once.

Now he can make his service calls and still answer the phone!

With the help of an Electronic Secretary® Automatic Telephone Answering Unit, all incoming calls are recorded while he's out. By playing back the recordings upon his return, he knows immediately where he's needed next.

The Electronic Secretary Answering Unit automatically answers the phone and takes messages 24 hours a day. It permits proprietors of one-man businesses to leave their offices and shops, yet "stay in touch." It keeps their establishments "open" when they're away.

HOUSE ORGAN — Dallas, Texas — The neighbors all know it when eighteen-year-old Robert Sipe sits down to practice his music lesson at his home in Dallas. The high school student has built a theatre-type pipe organ in the house, and when he plays it he serenades everybody in the block. Nobody has complained, however. Robert spent three years installing over 600 pipes in the family attic and wiring them to the console.

MILLERS' MODEL MILL — Harrisburg, Pa. — Smiling, Carol Miller, 14, of Palmyra, Pennsylvania, kneels beside a miniature working model of a flour mill on exhibit at Harrisburg. Her father, Glenn Miller, built the model. The water wheel is turned by a trickle from the same stream in which Carol is rinsing her fingers.

BY THE NUMBERS — Washington, D.C. — Workmen dismantling the East Front of the U.S. Capitol uncovered a group of arches which had been hidden since about 1822. After the arches were built, the architect decided to erect an outside stairway, which covered them up. Here, the blocks in the arches have been carefully numbered so that they can be put together again elsewhere as a historical monument. The hidden arches came to light during work to extend the East Front 32½ feet.

DONATED TO FLOOD VICTIMS — Fremont, Ohio — Standing amid a pile of shoes here, Yolanda Garcia, 4, seems to be wondering which ones to try on first. Nearly six tons of clothing and bedding were turned over to relief authorities for distribution to refugees from the flood.

FEDERATION CONVENTION MARCH 6

The 35th annual convention of the DeKalb County Federation of clubs will be held Friday, March 6, in Fellowship Hall of the Auburn Methodist Church. The Auburn federated clubs will be hostesses for the afternoon.

Registration will begin at 12:15 p.m. with the call to order by the president, Mrs. John Freeze, Sr. of Garrett, at 1:00 p.m.

Talks will be given by district officers, Mrs. Warren Hamilton of Waterloo, Mrs. Blaine Schang of Columbia City, Mrs. Eugene Hart of Fort Wayne and Mrs. D. A. Skelly of Fort Wayne.

The county officers are: president, Mrs. John Freeze, Sr., of Garrett; first vice president, Mrs. F. A. Shugart of Auburn; second vice president, Mrs. Wilbur Yeiser of Saint Joe; third vice president, Mrs. John Snyder of near Auburn; recording secretary, Mrs. Olis Stoy of Ashley; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Arthur Gallatin of Garrett; treasurer, Mrs. Clayton Crowl of Waterloo; and parliamentarian, Mrs. Warren Hamilton of Waterloo. Directors are Mrs. Marian Dreibelbis of Garrett, Mrs. Warren Hamilton and Mrs. John Brown of Auburn.

Around the Town

With the Editor

Now that's what I call service.

The Insurance Institute at Indianapolis was going to send a film on the 500-mile race for the Lions Club Monday night. I hadn't received a card or anything even by last week end, but the way they fulfilled the P.T.A. program last month, floods, rain, snow and all, I wasn't too worried.

But by Monday even the film hadn't come so I figured "they'll send somebody with it."

Virgil Gerig stopped in during the afternoon, about 2 p. m. As we talked about the meeting and program for that night, with the basketball team and cheer leaders to be present, I figured maybe I ought to call Indianapolis.

I did—and the film was still there. It had just come in Monday and our date here had been overlooked. Mr. Allen Dale of the Institute said he would send the film by bus or by plane and we could pick it up at Fort Wayne. It was getting pretty close by now.

He called back later to notify Cliff Billow that he couldn't make bus or plane connections. So how did the film get here? It was shuttled by State Police from car to car at county lines from Indianapolis to the basement of St. Mark Lutheran Church in Saint Joe. About 8 state police cars carried the film on its rush trip.

They sure were life-savers for the Lions Club—and me.

Mrs. Evelyn Walter of near Saint Joe didn't get fined in Auburn City Court last week. She was given a ticket because her car displayed 1958 license plates after the deadline for showing new ones had passed. She was released on her statement that she had advised a garage to put on the new plate and was unaware that the switch had not been made. Her story was supported by the arresting officer who said she "appeared surprised" when he advised her that her car still carried last year's plates.

—Then there are those b-i-g b-l-u-e eyes. . . .

—I was just wondering about those first aid certificates. Do you suppose Mose gave Doris a hard time because she went on to get an "Advanced" certificate instead of being satisfied with a "Standard"?

21 Complete First Aid; New Series Starts March 30

A course in first aid techniques was completed Tuesday, March 3, at the Saint Joe Fire Station. A total of 4 Junior Certificates, 7 Standard Certificates and 10 Advanced Certificates were awarded.

William Rosenberry conducted a class on first aid and awarded certificates as follows:

Junior—Michael A. Hudson, Donald Moore.

Standard—Steve Monroe.

Advanced—Pete Akey, Ila Coburn, Katy Crow, Max Markle, Frank Monroe, Hilda Monroe, Glenn Moore, Dorothy Simanton, Donald Yeiser and Doris Yeiser.

Mrs. Rosenberry conducted a class, also, with the following awards:

Standard — Thelma Baker, Fern Carr, Ruth Fetters, Helen Hoffer, Marcia Sible, Marcelle Storer.

Mrs. Doris Yeiser, in addition to obtaining an Advanced Certificate in the class held at Saint Joe, has qualified as an instructor following 15 additional hours of training. Mrs. Yeiser will begin instruction of a class at the Spencerville Fire Hall March 30. Classes are held one evening a week, two hour sessions. The course is open to the public. Those interested in taking the course are asked to attend the March 30 meeting.

BOYS COOK IN NEW 4-H CLUB

A new 4-H club has been organized in the community. It is called the Champion Chef's Club and has an all-boy membership!

Officers elected Wednesday, March 4, were:

President, Steve Myers.

Vice president, Bob Crowl.

Secretary - treasurer, Mike Hudson.

News reporter, Mike White.

Health leader, Larry Uehlein.

Song leaders, Mike Studebaker and Joe Crowl.

Recreation leaders, Terry Uehlein and Paul Myers.

There were 16 members, 5 mothers, one father and Mrs. Frances Huddleston, instructor-leader, present at the organizational meeting.

Grades Play Tourney Friday The 13th

Basketball isn't quite done even at Riverdale.

Coach Price Brookfield announced this week a grade school tournament, the lucky boys of the 4th, 5th and 6th grades to participate this Friday evening, March 13. The tourney will begin at 7 p.m. with the two 4th grade rooms opposing one another.

The schedule is:

7:00 p.m.—Mrs. Miller's 4th graders vs. Mrs. Middaugh's 4th graders.

7:30 (or thereabouts)—Mrs. Baker's 5th graders vs. Mr. Bevington's 5th graders.

8:00 (or thereabouts)—Mr. Hill's 6th graders vs. Mr. Rawlings' 6th graders.

Everyone will pay admission fee of 25 cents, parents, players, coaches, referees, etc. Proceeds from the tourney will be used to purchase playground and sports equipment for the elementary grade school at Spencerville.

A large crowd is anticipated and fans are reminded of the limited seating capacity at the high school gym at Saint Joe which will be filled first come, first served.

LADIES LITERARY CLUB

The Ladies Literary Club met March 4 at the home of Mrs. Weldon Shafer with 14 members present.

Mrs. Wilbur Yeiser, who has just completed the Red Cross First Aid Course and Course for Instructors, gave a very interesting and helpful lesson on First Aid. She described the First Aid measures to be carried out in various circumstances, demonstrating bandages, artificial respiration and moving of injured victims. Members of the club practiced carrying out various techniques.

Mrs. Robert Musser announced the County Federation Music Contest held at the Auburn Library March 6. Miss Priscilla Mayer represented the Ladies Literary Club with a vocal solo.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Wayne Storer.

Following adjournment the hostess served light refreshments.

Mrs. Flossie Rhoads is living with her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Rolla Genth, since her home burned two weeks ago.

Mrs. Betty Laux is visiting in the Ronald Emenhiser home for several days before returning to her home in Arizona.

Mr. and Mrs. William Voirol were Thursday evening supper guests of her aunt and uncle, the M. H. Hollabaughs.

Mrs. Frank B. Jones of Battle Creek, daughter of the J. S. Hollabaughs and sister of M. H. Hollabaugh, has been appointed by Probate Judge Lee Mallison as associate county agent in the juvenile division. Mrs. Jones began her new duties last Monday in the Battle Creek office where her appointment awaits confirmation by the Governor. She is a 1931 graduate of Battle Creek College from which she received a BS degree in education and taught in the Spencerville High School for two years before she became manager of the Postum Clubhouse and visitor service at Post Division of General Foods Corp. and was with the Post Division for twenty years.

The Spencerville Fire Department met at the Fire Hall last Wednesday night and elected as their new fire chief Jack N. Hollabaugh, son of the former Fire Chief, M. H. Hollabaugh, who served since the department's organization 13 years ago. Glenn Brendel is secretary-treasurer.

Mrs. James Dwyer and daughter, Janie, spent last Thursday in Indianapolis.

The Paul O. Vogts have their first grandchild, a daughter born to their son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Vogt, in Indianapolis on March 1.

Young Ladies To Show Fashions At PTA Tuesday

The March meeting of the Riverdale P.T.A. will be held Tuesday evening, March 17, starting at 7:30 p.m. at the Riverdale High School gym in Saint Joe.

Mrs. Frances Huddleston, instructor of home economics at Riverdale, is chairman of the program for the evening. She will direct the presentation of a dress review, "Shopping For School Clothes," to be given by girls in grades 7 through 12. Sixty young ladies will participate in the review, showing fashions made by the girls in home ec classes.

In addition entertainment will be furnished by the 5th and 11th grades.

Election of officers for the 1959-1960 school year will be held in April. Therefore, a nominating committee will be announced at next Tuesday's meeting.

Refreshments will be served by the Riverdale home ec young ladies at the conclusion of the program.

The public is invited to attend the meeting.

Coach Receives Honorary Award From Local Lions Club

Coach Price Brookfield was "surprised" Monday evening when he was presented with a testimonial plaque by the Saint Joe Lions Club. The award was presented by the president of the club, Ted Haberkorn, at a dinner meeting of the service club at which the coach, members of the Riverdale varsity basketball team and varsity cheer leaders were honored guests.

"Testimonial

"In recognition of the presence of Price Brookfield in the Riverdale School Community, serving as coach of athletics, be it known that The Saint Joe Lions Club of Saint Joe, Indiana, hereby recognizes his outstanding example of good sportsmanship and fair play, with the expectation and hope that those who come under his guidance will always be inspired to fulfill part of their responsibilities of good citizenship through their attitudes and actions while participating in the world of sport, and that their success in this endeavor will then serve to strengthen them throughout their lives in all things which they may seek to accomplish.

"Dated this 9th day of March, 1959."

What ARE We Going To Do??

No matter what your opinion may be about the merits or undesirable aspects of a bill which the Indiana Senate had before it in its 1959 session, the bill setting up the reorganization of schools on a county basis, one fact stands out. That is that the whole state of Indiana and the school corporation of Riverdale are in a situation which prompts such a bill partly because people have not shown enough active interest in schools and education to have accomplished anything to prevent the present crisis, if crisis is the proper word, and partly because of the growth in our population. The information and comments I have heard in this area tend to disfavor the proposed Senate bill, this because of fear of what "might" happen, this because of those who have backed the bill. It is not my purpose here to speak for or against the bill itself; but there are some things which should be pointed out in defense not of the bill but in defense of the efforts of those who have fostered the bill.

Some of the comments heard from Riverdale patrons run along this line, and it is presumed that the same comments are made in conversations held in local business establishments as people in the area "chew the fat" over many things: "I'd like to keep the school here at home"; "We would lose 'home rule' with a county planning unit"; "I don't want my kids going clear to Auburn to go to school"; "I'd sooner pay more taxes and keep the whole works here"; "Look at the names of the organizations that back the bill; they've got a reason for wanting it passed." There may be others to add to the list; perhaps you have heard them or have spoken them. Note that all oppose the bill; no indication is given that there is anything good in the bill.

What we are closing our eyes to is that progress brings changes. Again it is noted that this is not a defense of any bill or any particular part of a bill; it is not to be concluded that the Senate bill is a progressive bill only because it provides for possible change in our present local system. Let us think back only a few years and picture the "little red school house." If we cannot picture one, we can see one "in the flesh" for they yet stand in our community, having been used until, in some cases, only a few years ago. Was it not a change for us to think in terms of "consolidated" schools when those small units were combined and a larger school district formed? Today who can say that "giving up" the little red school house was a wrong move? It was a matter of growing population, of greater transportation ease, of overlapping of teachers' duties because of the size of the school, of unnecessary additional expense for teacher salaries because each small school had to have its own separate corps of teachers. Progress dictated that schools combine for greater efficiency, for more unified and expanded curricula, for economy in operation. Is it not possible that today our state and the nation face a similar situation in which the demands made by population growth and transportation improvements dictate reconstruction of our school system? Perhaps the not-so-little red school house of today must be given up, as was its smaller predecessor not so many years ago. Perhaps schools of the past twenty or thirty years or so have served their purpose, as did the little red school house, and must now be set aside in the movement we call progress.

As stated previously, we are in trouble principally because people have not been actively interested in education and in what progress means in a practical sense to have provided for the inevitable needs. In Riverdale's corporation area, people, parents, patrons have not been realistic enough, if they wanted to keep the school "here at home," to have supported a higher cumulative building fund levy from the very beginning. It has been my experience to have heard real opposition to a levy of $1.00 only from members of the school board. And the board is the unit that passes on the amount of the levy. I have heard, on the other hand, comments from parents themselves, during the past three years, to the effect that "we aren't going to have a school if we don't pay for it" in support of a higher building fund levy. What started as a 50-cent levy is now an 80-cent levy. What is the result? After three years of a cumulative building fund, our school corporation has collected roughly $60,000, hardly enough with which to begin construction of a new school. The 80-cent levy became effective in the present year and will bring in $31,000 in 1959. Suppose we had instituted a $1.00 levy from the start; the fund would now be around $120,000, actually collected, with another $40,000 to come in for 1959, still not enough to build a school but certainly a healthy fund which would cut down the cost of financing through a building corporation (which appears to be the only solution to the local problem). That is water under the dam, to be sure. Yet despite the presence of the continuing problem of building construction, we still have only an 80-cent levy, hardly a realistic approach to solving our problem when we are anxious to "keep our school at home."

How long has consolidation been in effect locally? Remember, Riverdale consolidation came after a previous consolidation of Concord and Spencer townships. Newville Township became the third member of the consolidation under the name Riverdale. Riverdale has three years, Concord-Spencer had one year. But before that there was a period of consideration of consolidation, which means that the benefits of consolidation were known and advanced at least five years ago. One of the selling points at that time was that, with consolidation, there would be a better opportunity to expand the curriculum, offering more courses including that of manual training. There would also be a more consistent academic program for those desiring and needing advanced education, whether or not they went on to college. But what has happened in the five years of "expansion"? Nothing. There is no course in manual training, there is no "shop" for woodwork or mechanical instruction, no opportunity to elect to learn the usage even of fundamental tools which nearly 100 per cent of the male populaion find it necessary to use from time to time. Thus one of the benefits has not been derived in the consolidation. Why? It could be because patrons of Riverdale remain silent and take little active interest in what transpires in school affairs. As a result our school, instead of giving boys a choice between shop work and agriculture, has only the "ag" course. A boy in town who has little interest in the farm (which is nothing to be ashamed of) gets a course in agriculture. The odd part is that today more and more of our total population are leaving the farm. Greater efficiency in the use of the soil has brought greater productivity, and we do not need 100 acres of land to grow a certain amount of corn or wheat or what have you; we need only, say, 60 or 70 acres; and we need fewer workers because of improved farm machinery. How many young men who have graduated from our local high school in the past few years are now engaged in agriculture? Not very many. Yet there is no choice of an "elective" course; our boys get agriculture.

The logical reason for no shop at the present time is - no room. The press for classrooms has shut off the possibility of having a shop now, it seems. But there was the possibility of having one three or four years ago when we were sold (and sold ourselves) with the consolidation. That was before we faced the prospect of graduating classes numbering 60 to 70 students; the average up to this year has been around 30 graduating students. Next fall there will be 69 students in the seventh grade; this spring 27 students graduate (these figures from the county superintendent). We didn't get a shop in the past because we did nothing to get it. And it is probable that because there was no public "push" on the matter, the school boards have coasted on what was available.

The matter of "expanded curriculum" sounds good and it is good. But what does it mean? Just a manual training shop would not complete such an expansion movement. Other subjects such as continuous year to year courses in foreign languages would also be included; a chemistry lab is needed. Riverdale patrons seem inclined to like the phrase "expanded curriculum"; but when it comes down to specific courses to be named, there is a tendency to pooh-pooh such an item as more foreign language. It is considered by some of our citizenry to be sort of a "fancy" idea, to have four-year courses in Latin or Spanish or French or, yes, Russian, a frill that we can get along without. Yet today's world of expanding technical knowledge, though it does not appear to be accompanied by "social" advancement (we still do not live together peaceably) makes it inevitable that, in order to keep up with the world, we change in our idea of what constitutes education. The three R's are yet fundamental, as they have always been. But we cannot stop there nowadays. The desire to better one's self demands more and higher education. Even pre-teenagers of today, without any advanced technical education, have some smattering of knowledge about jets and outer space and so on that at times leaves parents with mouths hanging open in bewilderment. It isn't that they are any smarter at their age than their parents were at the same age. It is the condition of the world, a world that gets smaller and smaller and draws nations nearer and nearer. Courses which admittedly may have seemed on the "intellectual" side only a few years ago are now becoming the stepping stone to greater world understanding. And there is the practical matter which is unchanged (isn't it?): a student who wishes to enter college and who seeks academic advancement needs foreign language study in order to enter college.

There is the need for a course in art. We are not operating high schools, or grade schools for that matter, only for the technical knowledge that can be gained. Getting along with one another hinges a great deal upon appreciation of the cultural world, appreciation of what it means to be an artist, or a musician, or an interpreter, or a teacher of these and any other subjects, appreciation of what goes on in the lives of other people, other nations. With the need for higher education in the business world, with more and more demand that men who seek better jobs have more education, it becomes a matter of responsibility to the younger generation that adults think in terms of changing times and circumstances, and not let adult ignorance of something serve as the means of determining that that something is unnecessary, frilly or fancy.

What conclusion can be arrived at? We of Riverdale have been asleep at the switch. While times change and our sons and daughters live in a world that sees fewer and fewer numbers needed in the agricultural world (the knowledge is still necessary but the numbers are decreasing), we still do nothing about changing the general complexion of our school and "ag" becomes a required course, whether we need it or not. There is no opportunity to use the hands in shop work, to become acquainted with the proper use of the most elemenary of tools. There is no course in mechanics where a future repairman can get a start in a profession. There is no challenge for the academic student. We have coasted, sitting back to wait for something to happen.

Now it has happened. And we are unprepared to face the situation. Some one has proposed a state-wide legislative program that would call for re-arranging, perhaps, our schools county-wise, including further or altered consolidations. We are aroused at Riverdale because we do not like the idea of "going to Auburn" to high school (whether or not we know that a consolidated high school would be located at that place, it is just the idea of going farther away, actually, that is distasteful). We forget that in the days when the "school bus" was a horse, or horses, and wagon, the trip to Saint Joe and Spencerville to the schools, after a round in the country in winter, by comparison was just as much a hardship, if not more so, as is a trip by the modern-day school bus to a possible school building ten miles or less away from our present Riverdale school buildings. Transportation would not appear to be any more unsolvable today than it was years ago with horse and wagon.

Why do we need a bigger school (in numbers) to get the few needed courses and changes in curriculum that would bring a great improvement? The answer is that we don't necessarily need a numerically bigger school, though that theory is advanced by some educators and it is probably true to a certain degree. The point is that despite five years of consolidation "thinking", we HAVEN'T made those changes, we HAVEN'T pressed our school boards to action, we HAVEN'T provided those things which are now the center of concern. As a result, we rise up in indignation and protest something that might happen without considering that it might happen for our good and that it's all a result of not facing facts. The cry of losing "home rule" becomes empty when little is done to justify retaining it. And what does home rule mean? How much influence does the Riverdale school patron have on the local school, other than that he might sometime serve on the school board (only extreme instances have any immediate and visible effect)? Does he select the courses to be offered? Does he set the salary schedule? Does he really "rule"? As long as we have state-prescribed requirements for operation of schools, determining the return of state taxes to the schools, as long as we depend upon teachers and principals as well as the state to take care of those things, "home rule" appears to be a meaningless phrase. We are afraid of losing something which we don't have, or don't use if we have it.

Before criticizing an individual or an organization for supporting legislation which seems unappetizing to us, we should consider all these things. If someone has made a proposal, there must be a reason for it. There are so many groups, for instance, backing the likes of Senate bill 6 (the Indiana League of Women Voters, AFL-CIO, Indiana State Chamber of Commerce, Indiana State Teachers Association, etc., etc.) who have uncommon goals and are not exactly in sympathy with one another, that I cannot find reason to be suspicious of an ulterior motive behind their support. Yet there is an air of suspicion in this area. It must be remembered that just as we feel and have felt the need for action, so apaprently have others felt. Only their concern covers more than one community; it is state-wide. And they have done something about the state-wide need by making a proposal. Here at Riverdale we have done nothing, and we criticize the ideas of others while still doing nothing. We are waiting for a handout from someplace, looking for help from special state funds, wanting to keep "home rule," wanting to stay on our own, yet looking for a handout that can come only from the state. A paradox. We want to keep our school at home even at the cost of higher taxes, but we don't raise taxes. We want to improve our educational system but oppose possible further consolidation because we want "our own school," belittle in a sense those things that mean advanceemnt in the curriculum because, well, "we get along without them."

There will be a shotgun wedding one of these days. You and I of Riverdale will be forced to pay the limit on our cumulative building fund, $1.25 instead of the $1.00 which we should have been paying for the past three years (unless something unforeseen happens). Not only that, but we will pay that $1.25 for quite a while; with a holding corporation under several hundred thousand dollars worth of indebtedness, the interest becomes monstrous by the time the indebtedness has been paid off. If there is another solution, it is a secret. Nothing has come from the school board, nothing has come from the superintendent of schools except statistics. We are shown by statistics how many students are coming into the upper grades. It is pointed out that a classroom in the grades is too small. We are told how much we will need to spend as a minimum for a new building, something like $500,000. We are frightened by it all. But I don't need to be told what I can see. Three statistics walk in my shop each afternoon, and other parents add their "statistics" to mine. I know it will cost a lot of money to build a school, but I know, too, that it must come from my pocket; I know a dollar in the building fund now is worth two dollars after a school is built and I want to put more in the fund now (I have wanted to for three years). These things others know, too. Statistics are dead; action itself or proposed action is necessary now. The question is: what does the school board plan to do ..... anything ..... nothing?

Again, without speaking in support of such proposals as contained in Senate bill 6, but only for the matter of consideration, I ask: what would be the disadvantage of county reorganization of schools; would it overshadow any advantage? Would we "lose" anything? Would tranpsortation really be a problem?

The little red school house, bless it, served its purpose. It is gone, but I respect it. Is the time at hand when today's "little red school house" (not so little anymore) must pass from the picture? Is this, perhaps, the price of progress, the result of an increasing population?

Others say . . . .

SHOCKING REVELATIONS

When the Chinese Communist instructors conducted their classes for American GI prisoners of war in North Korea—brain washing most of them into a degree of cooperation—they used books by American authors who had overemphasized our defects, the unattractive things in America—vice, political corruption, racial conflict, the greediness of some employers, the failure of some people to prosper. The brain washers played up these things, distorting the full icture until in the minds of the GI's, who were educationally unprepared for such an experience, the good things about America faded from the consciousness and our American system became something bad.

In his examination of today's high school textbooks in American history, as reported in his new book, "Brain Washing in the High Schools," Dr. E. Merrill Root found that some of the most widely used texts similarly overemphasize unattractive conditions and incidents and give a distorted picture of important events in the founding and growth of our American system. Onesided or distorted presentation of history tends to make children disrespectful of their heritage. In such a misinformed state of mind they are ripe targets for the sly propaganda beckoning toward various forms of Socialism—"the wave of the future."

"Cartoons in several of these texts," Dr. Root reports, "splash the ills of American life across the pages. The craze for gambling in stocks in the late 1920's is made graphic . . . One cartoon stresses child labor, another, revels in an industrial slump, other pictures gloat over 'a typical tenement,' the corruption of the Republican Party, the Senate of the United States as subservient to 'the trusts.' One picture reiterates an industrial slump, another plays up the Homestead Strike luridly (beset with violence and bloodshed), another the Pullman Strike . .

"The point is not," observes Dr. Root,

0072

"that the dark areas of American history should be hidden, but that the undoubted excellences of America are hidden (in 10 textbooks studied); the authors make vivid much of the real or fancied evil of the American story, but one wonders why the story is not balanced with its glory, as historical proportions require."

The authors cite as their authorities a number of Left Wing writers and propagandists, for instance: Howard Fast, Communist propagandist who just recently announced he had broken with the Party; Gunnar Myrdal, Swedish Socialist, who has shown a warmth toward Soviet Russia; Carey McWilliams, who has one of the longest Communist-front records in U.S. government files; Gene Weltfish, vigorous Communist- fronter who publicly asserted that the United States engaged in germ warfare in Korea, and who was dismissed from Columbia University because she refused to testify as to her membership in the Communist Party.

These and others of their ilk are among the "authorities" cited in book after book among the 11 examined by Dr. Root. Books by Albert E. Kahn, cited commendably as an "authority" by some of these textbook authors, actually were used by the Reds in Korea to "brain wash" American GI's. Kahn took the Fifth Amendment before a Senate committee on the question of his Communist Party membership. The Senate Internal Securities Committee reported: "American boys were forced by their captors to read and report favorably on these works of Albert E. Kahn (degrading America and praising Soviet Russia) or face starvation, torture and probable death."

These high school history textbooks show an easily discernible (to the mature mind) bias against conservative politicians and for "liberals." They discount Communist Fifth Column activities within our government and in defense industries as the "Red Scare." They do not bring forth the historical details of the Alger Hiss case or the Harry Dexter White case in which Communist agents were found to be entrenched and wielding influential power in the most sensitive areas of our national government. The impression given is that our Congressional and Justice Department anti-Communist activities largely constitute "witch hunting."

Every citizen should read Dr. Root's book and then, in cooperation with local school authorities, see that contaminated teachings are replaced with books by authors who clearly show an objective fairness toward American institutions and our American system.

SISTERS OF THE SKILLET HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Sisters of the Skillet Home Demonstration Club meeting was held February 26 at the home of Edith Arnett.

The president, Jean Moore, opened the meeting with the members repeating the club collect.

A poem entitled "Answered Prayer" was given by Leila Moore for devotions.

History of the song of the month, "Aunt Dinah's Quilting Party," was given by Connie Hollabaugh who then led the members in singing.

Roll call was answered by 15 members.

A literary report was given by Arden Dwyer. A very interesting report was given on the project lesson, "Eating For Good Health," by Effiebelle McCann and Leila Moore.

The meeting was closed with the prayer song. Refreshments were then served by the hostess and co-hostess, Effiebelle McCann.

CONCORD JR. HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Concord Jr. Home Demonstration Club met Monday, March 2, at the home of Marcia Sible.

The meeting opened with repeating of the club collect and the Lord's Prayer. Edna Perkins gave the history of the song of the month. All joined in singing it.

An informative lesson was given by Harriet Baker and Hazel Schrader on flexible smooth floors. Roll call was answered by 13 members, each reciting a poem.

The club was urged to attend the Egg Show on March 26. A cake will be baked by the new member, Marcelle Storer, for the show.

The meeting closed with the club prayer.

Delicious and pretty refreshments were served by the hostess, Marcia Sible, and co-hostess, Marvella Dilley.

JESUS' TRIAL

Lesson for March 15, 1959

The court tries the prisoner, or so it is intended. Sometimes his story reverses the court's verdict. In such cases, those who look back at the trial can see that the prisoner was really trying the court. That is to say, in the eyes of posterity and (we may well believe) often of God himself, every one connected with the trial will be judged by his attitude to the prisoner; not the other way around.

Joan of Arc, for example, had a spectacular trial. She was condemned and cruelly executed, apparently to everyone's approval. But today she is called a Saint. Students of her life and times feel that if anyone in that grim courtroom where her death was decreed deserved to die, it was not she, but some who betrayed her, some who judged her.

The Judge's Question

Jesus' trial before Pilate is the supreme example of such an upside-down trial. If any one had asked the governor that evening how he thought history would rank him and his young prisoner of that morning, he would have smiled his grim Roman smile and perhaps said, "Hmph! History wil not be interested. But if history wants to know, it's on the record, I had the man executed. That settles it, doesn't it?" Pilate could not have known that his own sole claim to fame would be the fact that every seven days, all over the world, in hundreds of languages, men and women would repeat the words almost like a curse . . . . "and in Jesus Christ his only Son our Lord, who . . . suffered under Pontius Pilate."

In the course of that wicked farce of a trial, Pilate asked a question which has more echoes than he guessed: "Then what shall I do with Jesus?" That is the question by which the participants in that trial were judged; it is the question that judges us today. What WILL you do with Jesus?

The Mob's Answer

Pilate asked the wrong people what to do with Jesus. He was the judge, he had the responsibility. He never would have thought of asking a Jewish mob for advice on statesmanship or anything else. Yet he goes through the bitter farce of asking a mob, a brainless bloodthirsty mob, what to do with this innocent prisoner. The crowd thought they were passing sentence; but they were only passing sentence on themselves. The voice of the people is not the verdict of history, it is not the voice of truth nor the voice of God. Sometimes it is; but not there and then, not in Jerusalem. Mobs have voices, they have wills, they may have weapons; the one thing they do not have is brains, judgment, wisdom. The verdict of history, verdict of God, is seldom in favor of the mob.

The Fact-Finders

Of course, even a mob's voice has some brains behind it. In this case it was that dignified combination of chief priests and elders and scribes. These were Pilate's fact-finders. Pilate was a typical Roman; he cared less than nothing for local customs, superstitions, notions. He did not pretend to understand why this Jesus should be the object of so much hate. When Pilate said, "What evil has he done?" it is very possible that he was not "stalling for time" but really was puzzled to know. The scribes and the elders and the chief priests were his fact-finders, his research team when cases came up out of their courts — and such occasions were rare. If some inquiring reporter had asked some of those chief priests, the afternoon of Good Friday, what part they had in the trial, they would perhaps have said with pride, "We were there. We influenced the result. We were consulted. We gave the advice that changed the governor's mind. That Jesus might have been at large this minute, if it had not been for us."

But it was murder all the same. For these fact-finders had no facts. All they had was prejudice, emotion, name calling. They influenced the result; but not with truth. Can we say we are never guilty of their crime?

Jr. High Wins Tournament

The Riverdale Junior High basketball team completed a successful season with a 14-13 win over Waterloo to win the Junior High Tourney last week end. The locals had defeated Ashley 44-9 to enter tourney finals. The championship win gave the Junior High varsity a season record of 18 wins and 4 losses. The reserves' record was 6 wins and 4 losses.

Riverdale got off to an 8-0 lead in the final game, according to a report from Coach Gene Buzzard. They then held on to the lead in a slow-moving game.

Ross scored 9 points and had 15 rebounds in the finale.

Season totals show Frank Ross with 331 points in 21 games for an average of 16 points per game. He also had 301 rebounds. Norman Lothamer scored 161 points and had 103 rebounds. John Sechler netted 95 points with 149 rebounds.

This is the fourth straight season that Riverdale's Junior High teams have finished with a better than .500 mark for the season, and it is the second year in four in taking the county championship.

Local News

The DeKalb County Alcoholic Beverage Board continued its March 5 hearing to 1 p.m. March 19 on the application for a tavern in Corunna. 50 persons were present at Thursday's meeting to present petitions bearing the names of nearly 400 persons objecting to the tavern. The application of Orely O. Smith, his wife, Helen, and their son, Richard, will be considered at the March 19 hearing. Preliminary survey of the remonstrances showed that two petitions which purportedly contained the signatures of 102 residents of Corunna carried the signatures of 95 residents with 7 names from outside the town limits. Two other petiions circulated in Fairfield and Richland townships carried 270 signatures. Protest letters were filed from the W.S.C.S. of the Corunna Methodist Church and the Model Home Demonstration Club which sponsors the Corunna kindergarten. Approval of the tavern would bring Corunna its first tavern since pre-prohibition days.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Curle and two children, Mr. Robert E. Evans and son and Miss Janet Jarrett were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Jarrett and son, Robert.

FLU NOT SERIOUS - YET

So far the Riverdale schools have not been as hard hit by "the flu" as schools in other communities, although absences in the upper grades began to creep upward early this week.

Principal Joe Smith said Wednesday morning that 37 were absent Monday, 45 Tuesday and 44 Wednesday, approximately 20 percent of the upper grade enrollment.

Elementary principal Howard Hill revealed attendance records for the same days showing an average of only 2 absences per room, normal for this time of year.

Riverdale stands in one of two positions as far as the flu bug is concerned—either it's immunity or we're last on the list.

Around the Town

With the Editor

The past week just hasn't been my week. I goofed Bill Vinson's ad last week and had his sugar going for two-bits when it should have been 39 cents. And Tuesday night I announced Good Friday services for this week and - - - oh my.

That fashion show that Mrs. Huddleston presented at P. T. A. proved to be popular. You just never know how to figure the younger generation. A lot of the Riverdale students were there, in addition to those in the show. A good sized bunch of boys were even there, showing a surprising interest in the lastest of fashions.

—Surprising? - -ho, ho, ho!

Don't be too optimistic. We may need those snow shovels again.

SENATE REJECTS LEAGUE OF NATIONS

One of the most fateful votes affecting not only the United States but the future of the world as well was taken in the U. S. Senate on March 19, 1920. On that day, for the second and final time, the Senate rejected the League of Nations.

The Covenant of the League of Nations was President Woodrow Wilson's great dream and big hope for insuring a peaceful world. It had first been announced in 1918 as one of his famous Fourteen Points for ending the war. He had sailed to Europe twice, on December 4, 1918 and again in March of 1919 to help draft the Treaty of Versailles. And he had worked hard to include the League of Nations in the treaty. Feeling as strongly about the League as he did, Wilson was dismayed when he came back from Europe in June, 1919, to find that the Senate might not approve.

Both the Treaty and the League Covenant of which it was part, had to be approved by two-thirds of the Senate. On July 10, 1919 President Wilson presented the Treaty of Versailles to the Senate for its ratification. Opposition was mostly along partisan lines. Wilson, a Democrat, was opposed by the Republican party leaders, Senators Johnson, Borah, and Henry Cabot Lodge. Lodge, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee hated Wilson and Wilson hated him. And both were stubborn men.

Senator Lodge wanted to "Americanize" the Treaty by inserting many amendments and reservations. His most important reservation had to do with Article 10 of the League Covenant concerning the use of military force by League members against future aggressors. Wilson opposed such a reservation which he felt stabbed at the heart of the League. In vain he pleaded with his political opponents against crippling the League with amendments.

When the Senate refused to ratify without amendments, President Wilson set out to carry his case to the people. On September 3, 1919 he left Washington on a speaking tour across the country to win public support. The tension and pressures on him were tremendous as he put his whole body and spirit in the campaign. On September 25th he delivered his 40th speech at Pueblo, Colorado. That night on his train he collapsed and suffered a stroke. He was gaining public support at the time, and if radio had been available he might have won his fight. As it was, he fought grimly to the end, but in vain.

From his sickbed in the White House the President ordered his loyal Democrats in the Senate not to support a single one of the Republican amendments. It must be the League of Nations as he had planned it, or nothing. And nothing it was. The Senate vote on November 19, 1919 rejected the Treaty.

The rejection of the Treaty of Versailles and the League of Nations amazed the world. Demand from many sources grew for reconsideration. But an ill and incapacitated Wilson still refused to permit amendments which he considered would "cut at the very heart and life of the Covenant itself." His stand split his own party's vote, but enough stood by him to the end.

On March 19, 1920 the Senate voted for the second time on the Treaty. Fifty seven votes favored ratification with amendments. Thirty nine were against it. Thus by seven votes did the Senate fall short of the required two-thirds majority. In the United States the League of Nations was dead.

"I can predict with absolute certainty," Woodrow Wilson said, "that within another generation there will be another world war. What the Germans used in this war were as toys compared with what would be used in the next war." How right he was! And how few there were to heed him.

Kenneth Coburn To Preside At KP Convention

Kenneth Coburn of Saint Joe, Grand Chancellor of the Grand Lodge Knights of Pythias of Indiana, will preside over the convention of that organization Friday and Saturday, March 27 and 28. The convention will be held in Indianapolis.

The annual memorial service will be held Friday afternoon with the annual banquet to be held Friday evening. Election of officers will be held Saturday morning.

The convention will close Saturday night with a ceremonial of the Dramatic Order Knights of Khorassan, an Auxiliary of the Knights of Pythias, to be held in the Castle Hall of Indianapolis Lodge 56. Other activities of the convention will be held at the Severin Hotel.

Community Good Friday Service Arranged

Community-wide worship services will be conducted Good Friday, March 27, at St. Peter's Lutheran Church in Spencerville. Ministers of four churches in the area will conduct the services which begin at 12:30 p.m. and conclude at 2:00 p.m.

The worship for the day will be as follows:

12:00 Noon—church bell.

12:15—organ meditations.

12:30—call to worship - vocal trio.

Hymn 61, "Sweet the Moments, Rich In Blessing.

Scripture and prayer - Rev. Ivan O. Miller.

Meditation - the Rev. Carl Thompson, "The Prophet and the Cross."

Silent prayer.

Hymn 52 - "My Dear Redeemer and My Lord."

Intermission - silent prayer - quiet music.

1:00 p.m. —

Hymn 360, "My Faith Looks Up To Thee."

Scripture and prayer.

Vocal trio, "When I See the Saviour," Lois Strong, Lora Hart and Alice Kagey, accompanist Mrs. Hill.

Meditation - the Rev. Mr. Paul Hill, "The Priest and the Cross."

Silent prayer.

Hymn 101 - "Alas and Did My Saviour Bleed."

Intermission - time for silent prayer and meditation.

(It is suggested that those who must leave before the end of the complete service try to leave during one of the intermissions. The offering plates at the door are for those who may desire to leave an offering to complete their act of worship. The offerings will be used for Lutheran World Relief, worldwide relief to needy in the Name of Christ.)

1:30 p.m.—

Hymn 99, "O Sacred Head Now Wounded."

Scripture and prayer.

Selected vocal music.

Meditation - the Rev. Mr. Henry Weber, "The King and the Cross."

Silent prayer.

Hymn 103 - "O Perfect Life of Love."

Closing prayers.

Vocal trio - "Alone."

Benediction - silent prayer - the congregation will quietly leave the church.

School Hit By Illness

Many absences in the Riverdale elementary school in the past week turned the rosy picture of one week ago to one of darkness. Meanwhile attendance at the upper grade buildings in Saint Joe showed a steady increase.

After a report of no unusual sickness problems in the grades last week, with absences running at an average of 24 or 25, there came a sudden upsurge at the end of the week. Absences this week then skyrocketed to the 110 to 115 mark for the grades alone. Junior high and high school absences ran in the 40's last week, then dropped to 37 Monday, 34 Tuesday and 30 Wednesday.

Strokes Take Life Of Barber

Leslie B. Meek, 69, a Saint Joe barber for many years and a lifelong resident of the community, died at 9 a. m. Saturday at the Hicksville Community Hospital. Death same as the result of a series of paralytic strokes.

In February of 1956 he was stricken with a cerebral hemorrhage and partly paralyzed. Less than two weeks before his death his suffered a second stroke and was hospitalized.

Funeral services were conducted at 2 p.m. Monday at the Baidinger-Walter Funeral Home in Spencerville with Donald Foust, pastor of the Cedar Creek Church of Christ and former pastor of the Saint Joe Church of Christ, officiating. Burial was in Alton Park Cemetery.

Mr. Meek was born July 2, 1889, the son of the late Harrison and Mary E. Bryan Meek. He married Lena J. Coburn July 25, 1912.

Survivors include the widow and a sister, Mrs. William Keeler of Saint Joe.

Mr. Meek was a member of the Saint Joe Church of Christ.

That Home-Trade Dollar

An oddity of contemporary America is the repulsion at the thought of bigness and the popular pressure which creates that very same bigness. It is an oddity because the thought and the pressure work for opposite ends. This puts Americans in the position of getting what they ask for though they aren't necessarily asking for what they get.

The prime example of this opposition between thought and desire is the growth of the "supermarket" and the decline of the small independent grocery. It is a puzzling example since the core of American business enterprise is the small businessman, at least the growth of industry came after a beginning which was of comparative smallness. Ideally, American breadwinners would be in business each for himself, an independent segment of the business world. Since it is not a practical and workable ideal, not in a world of materialism at any rate, we find that men combine their efforts and work as a unit with a "boss" who provides the capital with which to erect a building and buy equipment to put in that building. The result has been that a more efficient and certainly less costly product can be marketed, a pleasant and desired result as far as the buying public is concerned. The trouble is, or seems to be, that the then following desire of the established corporations to get their raw materials at a lower cost by providing their own source of these materials, by buying out an established source or by creating a new source for themselves, becomes a bad thing. The motivating force behind man's desire to get things for less money turns out to be his enemy, or so he would seem to think. Today the average person wants business to get only so big, then stop, while at the same time the same average person demands products for less money. Competition for the buyers' dollar also adds to the complexity of the situation. As a result we have the public demanding such things as "anti-trust" legislation to keep "big business" from controlling marketed products. At the same time the public demands bigness by its desire to have more material wealth (which means that each item must cost less to some extent) and to be able to obtain this increased materialism at one place. Despite the great amount of leisure time which Americans now have, they still for some reason like to have everything in one place to a great extent. Despite the convenience of the automobile whereby they can get to more places in less time than before, they seek to buy groceries, appliances, novelties, etc., etc., under one roof. Supermarket buying is somewhat of a novelty itself, today. It's somewhat like a trip to a strange land. Unfortunately, these trips have destroyed something that is more valuable than a few moments of pleasure. That something is the small businessman.

Competition from larger cities from larger businesses is particularly noticed in such small communities as ours. It is not encouraging for local businessmen, who have invested in their home community, to see many of their "neighbors" traveling to other towns and cities to trade. It is a matter of dollars and cents to most of those "neighbors." They say they can save by buying at the supermarkets and elsewhere in the larger cities. This is something which is subject to doubt. There are admittedly many "specials" offered from week to week which save the buyer a sizeable percentage on that particular purchase. But even the larger stores must make a profit somewhere in order to stay in business. They don't survive on the "specials" they offer; somewhere there must be an item to make up for the money-saver or the bargain. And their overhead is considerably higher than that of the small operator. Thus it appears that anyone who buys all their needs in a "supermarket" will pay for the "specials" he or she may have bought through the regular mark-up on other items. And it is not unusual to find that some of the items purchased in the big store away from home are priced higher than they are in the home community.

Not to be forgotten in the matter of economy in buying is the fact that it requires a certain amount of gasoline to drive to an outside business. Does a saving on one item or several make up for the cost of, say, two gallons of gasoline at thirty cents a gallon, cost of wear on tires which comes to just under a cent a mile and other wear and tear on the family car? By the time the consumer drives twenty or twenty-five miles (at the least) to "save," it would seem to require a good many "specials" to make up for the driving expense. Then there is the matter of the value of time. No one likes to think of his time as worth less than a dollar and a half or two dollars an hour (and overtime on Saturday). At least it seems that valuable (and scarce) when it comes to answering a request to serve the community in some way.

Perhaps the most destructive thing about the whole matter is that away-from-home buying deprives the smaller community of much-needed circulation of money. Too soon forgotten is the fact that greater business income means expansion, more jobs at the local level, more businesses established in a thriving community. This increases the value of the community which increases the return of taxes to the community. It is even as far-reaching as his: every dollar spent away from our community makes a new school that much more difficult to obtain. Every dollar spent away from our community makes it more difficult to improve the community as a whole. One of the most disappointing aspects of the picture is that many who depend on this community for their livelihood trade elsewhere.

There is something else, too; it is a matter of unappreciativeness, and it really happens. While the times are "good" and employment is high and things are rolling along satisfactorily, the cash is also rolling out, as it probably should be. The buyer who goes elsewhere to "save" is happy to "economize" with the help of the big fellow doing business elsewhere - "economize" with cash business. But now let us see what happens when adversity sets in, perhaps employment drops off or something else happens to make the pocketbook thinner for a while. Where does the business go then, the business which is no longer cash but credit? It comes home. While the money is rolling in, the small town merchant isn't good enough. But let the money stop and he becomes a pretty nice guy. And let there be a need for fund-raising by a church group or a school organization or a community group of some sort; he again is a pretty nice guy who will support the drive with a donation or support of some kind. However, those solicitors are inclined to forget that the businessman's ability to contribute depends directly upon the amount of patronage that comes from the solicitor himself. The business community wants to help - and it wants to be able to help.

We are certain that no businessman in Saint Joe or Spencerville is asking for public sympathy. They know that sympathy doesn't do anything for them or the community. What they ask is a bit more understanding of what local business means to a community. Today's big cities started as small towns and villages; because they are big today doesn't mean that they are any better than today's small towns, but public taste today would make it appear so. Thus, smaller communities which are in as great need for progress as the larger communities suffer because of apathy on the part of their own citizenry. Public desire to save or economize is, in plain words, destroying the very heart of America, the small businessman.

GOOD EVENING

The greatest service that some honest and brilliant intellectual could perform for the people of the United States at this time would be to write a sort of analytical critique, if such it could be called, setting forth what is conservatism and what is liberalism.

What, for instance, does a conservative believe? Likewise, what does a liberal believe? Who qualifies for each of the two designations. What beliefs do conservatives and liberals have in common, if they do have beliefs in common?

The most important concept that Man can have, from the viewpoint of those who have that concept, is the one that deals with God. Is holding such a concept necessary to a conservative, or is it necessary to a liberal? I think it might be found that believing in God is a general characteristic of conservatism, but not by any means a general characteristic of what many think of, even though possibly mistakenly, as liberalism. If conservatism precludes any disbelief in God and liberalism does not preclude it, then some vague start might be made toward marking off boundary lines between the two philisophies.

Is a conservative likely to mean a God, endowed with personality in the philosophical sense, and is a liberal likely to use the word God as vaguely descriptive of any first principle, whether it be intelligent, or just a non-intelligent primary force?

In my understanding, I tend to think of anyone as a conservative who believes that what we have learned in the past should guide us in the future, unless it has been proved that what we learned in the past was false. I tend to think of someone as a liberal who places no particular value on things learned in the past and who believes that each generation is capable of learning what it needs to know independent of the past. Of course, under my definitions, a lot of persons who call themselves conservatives might find themselves in the liberal camp, and many who call themselves liberals might find themselves in the conservative camp.

Joe Doaks, down the street, calls himself a liberal because he does not believe in any controls on labor, although he does favor controls on business. I think he regards liberalism as the right to move in whatever direction he wants to move without any prior restraints on him by reason of having definite beliefs about anything in the form of a personal creed. He thinks of liberalism as a sort of something-for-nothing idea in the market place, or more generally a thumbing of his nose at all generally-agreed-upon truths. I think he is quite sure that anyone is a conservative who is sure about anything, which puts him in a slightly ridiculous position, but one which he doesn't note.

I doubt if anyone will dispute me when I say that possibly never before in the history of our country have so many people been confused about so many things as they are today. The confusion about the things in which they believe would seem to trace back to the educational processes, but this is a sort of vicious circle, because the confusion in our educational processes has been in answer to the demands of confused people. The people who cherish certitude have asked certitude, and those who cherish a lack of it have encouraged a lack of it. About many things our educational processes, responding to public demands, have left things to be learned by adults on a do-it-yourself basis, but these adults except in exceptional cases would have preferred that someone would have taught them with certainty in their youth.

Who's a conservative? Who's a liberal? It would make an excellent subject for an intellectual seminary to kick around.

IS YOUR P.T.A. A WASTE OF TIME?

Monday night, somewhere in the U.S., a number of mothers and fathers—mostly mothers—will assemble at the local school, wedge themselves behind child-sized desks, listen patiently for several hours, and then go home feeling satisfied that they have done their duty by an imporant American ritual.

Repeat his scene 44,000 times a month and you have a picture of the sweep of the Parent-Teacher Associations—or PTAs, as they generally are known. In recent years, PTA, with nearly 12 million members, has become one of the largest organizations in U.S. community life.

They have vast resources in membership, money ($25 million a year, by one estimate) and mentality. Yet many educators feel that all these resources are being squandered. All too many PTAs, it is contended, are a waste of time. They spend most of their time fighting the wrong battles on the wrong ground at the wrong time.

Take what has happened in West Haven, Conn., as an example. West Haven, a city of 32,000 almost within sight of Yale University, has a record virtually unparalled in U. S. education. The crowded high school there has been on double sessions for 27 years.

Lately, West Haven's dubious distinction —and the causes behind it—have been under investigation by the Defense Commission of the National Education Association. And now, at last, a citizens' movement is picking up steam to approve a bond issue to build a new high school.

An overflowing high school would seem to be the No. 1 issue for a PTA, but West Haven's PTA met regularly, according to one investigator, and "just didn't talk much about the high school."

This is not the only example of a PTA gone wrong. In Darien, Conn., one PTA plastered the town with literature vigorously supporting a construction bond issue. Right behind came another PTA, just as actively opposing it.

In Hawthorne, N.J., town voters repeatedly refused teachers salary increases they were legally entitled to. The teachers threatened to resign in a body—and half of them did. The PTAs—partly in fear of political reprisal—sat by and did nothing.

Obviously, an organization as far-flung as the PTA cannot all be tarred with the West Haven-Darien-Hawthorne brush. There are also excellent, livewire PTAs.

If you have children, you probably belong to a PTA yourself. Each of the 44,000 PTAs across the U.S. is organized around a local school and is, in theory, completely independent of any other PTA. In practice, however, all work together through town, county, regional and state councils. Arching over the whole system, and speaking nationally for the membership, is the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Thus PTA has the dimensions of a giant. But to many responsible educators and thoughtful "friends of the schools," it is a flabby giant. Many PTAs are characterized as neither harmful nor helpful, but merely inert.

"Here you have the PTAs," one prominent educator told Parade recently, "with more strength than ever. Yet there probably is more confusion about what schools are doing or not doing. No one may say the PTA could eliminate all this confusion. But if PTAs had been on their toes, they could clear it up a little."

Adds another educator: "Look at the big questions about schools today—science teaching, math teaching, foreign languages, gifted children. These are questions that deserved to be raised, whether you think the schools have done well or not. But who raised them? Not the PTA."

A certain amount of PTA helplessness, educators concede, is built into the organization. Although some PTAs strive to do otherwise, most virtually disband at the end of the school year and pick up from scratch the following September.

Recently, as part of a study of school and community relations, Dr. Norton L. Beach, of Teachers College, Columbia University, inspected a number of PTAs in an eastern state. Against most of them, Dr. Beach found, eight charges could be leveled:

1. PTAs don't represent the community.

Nothing in PTA bylaws prevents non-parents, or parents of children attending private or parochial schools, from joining. But almost none ever do. Thus the most a PTA can hope for is 55 per cent of the community. Also although male membership is growing, PTAs still are three-quarters female. This top-heavy ratio drives away many men who might be PTA leaders.

2. Most PTAs don't know where they're going.

A typical PTA year, Dr. Beach found, consists of an Open House, at which parents follow their children's schedule and listen briefly to a teacher outline the year's work; a program on art, on music, on physical education, a "Christmas show," a fund-raising activity and a dinner. Little attempt to find out what parents really want to know.

3. Most PTAs talk, but don't listen.

At a typical meeting, parents sit and listen to speech-making. There is seldom opportunity for questions. Only rarely does a PTA break up into small groups where parents might have opportunity—and courage—to raise fundamental issues.

4. Many PTAs are lacking in leaders.

One reason PTAs so seldom break into smaller, more conversational groups is that there aren't enough leaders to go around. Lately, at the urging of the National Congress, some PTAs have begun quickie leadership training courses. But the number of PTAs with such courses still is negligible.

5. Too much time is spent on trivia.

For a do-good organization, the PTA often sets its sights too low. A typical organization will spend more time discussing the physical details of a classroom than what goes on in the class.

Not until this year, for instance, did the National Congress suggest that local PTAs might wish to size up the academic job their schools were doing.

6. PTAs have failed at the high school level.

Most of today's criticism centers around high-school teaching, yet PTAs never have had more than a foothold there. Many parents lose interest in PTA by the time their children reach high school. The children themselves are teenagers who often resent having parents and teachers get together.

Some PTAs, with mild success, have brought high school students themselves into the organization in order to infuse it with more life.

7. PTAs often are too much teacher, too little parent.

Often teacher control of PTA is pushed onto the teachers by parents themselves.

Dr. Beach believes one reason for this is that the principal is often the only male in what still is predominantly a woman's organization. Women members naturally look to him for leadership. With more male membership, the situation might change.

L 920 0080

8. PTAs engage in too much "business" and fund-raising.

Most PTA meetings which Dr. Beach attended began with a long series of committee reports, which quickly bored the audience and could have been handled otherwise.

One item of business unendingly reported in PTAs is the annual fund-raising card party, bazaar or dinner. And in too many PTAs fund-raising becomes the goal of the year's work.

All of Dr. Beach's charges can be met by an aggressive, vigorous PTA. Indeed, some PTAs already are meeting them. Such on-their-toes groups, the National Congress agrees, could be more common.

But many—perhaps most—PTAs fall short of this distinction. They amble along, muddled, aimless and time-wasting. They do no actual harm, and they may do small, simple amounts of good. But while hunting for little good deeds, they allow opportunities for big good deeds to slide by.

Which PTA is yours?

EVANSTON, Ill. — Mrs. Marie Harvey, 40, who became a mother for the 13th time on Friday the 13th, is shown at left in St. Francis hospital here. At right is nurse Louise Young holding the Harvey's latest arrival, a 9-pound boy. Mrs. Harvey feels that Friday the 13th was a lucky day.

OUT FOR A STROLL — Vatican City — Pope John XXIII (right) chats with his Secretary of State, Domenico Cardinal Tardini, as they go for a stroll in the Vatican gardens. A helicopter is slated to land in the courtyard of the Papal Palace in a special demonstration for the Pope. Vatican sources said the unpredictable Pontiff may well express a desire to take a short flight over his tiny Papal State, but his aides probably would advise against it.

WATERVILLE, Maine — Twin sisters, Mrs. Ellura Chamberlain (left) and Mrs. Eldora Brackett (right) observe their 95th birthday. They were born on Abraham Lincoln's birthday in 1864, and they claim to be the oldest twin sisters east of the Mississippi.

ULTRA-MODERN POST OFFICE — Providence, R.I. — Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield has ordered the construction of this "Post Office of Tomorrow" here. The nation's first fully mechanized mail processing plant and post office will be built by Intelex Systems, Inc., of New York City, at an estimated cost of $20,000,000. It will be leased to the Post Office Department for 20 years.

COMEDIAN'S WIDOW WED — New York — Portland Hoffa, widow of comedian Fred Allen, poses with her husband, Advertising Executive Joseph Rines. They were married in the Actors' Chapel of St. Malachy's Roman Catholic Church.

FIND PROCESS TO FIGHT FALL-OUT EFFECTS — London — The British Atomic Energy Authority said that three British Scientists, R. Watts, E. Gluckauf and P. Cosslett, have made a discovery that may save the world from the effects of nuclear fall-out. The atom scientists were reported to have developed a process that m save a country's milk and water supplies even though they m have been highly contaminated by radioactive fall-out.

THE CROSS

Lesson for March 22, 1959

In a popular novel of some years ago, dealing with the time of Jesus and afterwards, the Roman officer who had to crucify Jesus is represented as being quite shocked by the whole idea, having seldom if ever seen a crucifixion. This is a historical slip on the author's part; for in the Roman world, a far more brutal one than ours, fatal floggings and crucifixions were pretty common, in fact, that although we have four gospels each telling about the crucifixion of Jesus, not one gives any details at all about the actual crucifixion itself. Such details were not necessary; most readers of the gospels in those days had seen such things and did not need to be reminded.

On the Cross

What was extraordinary there on Calvary was not the cross itself. There were three in use that one morning; the one on which Jesus died had very likely been used before and would be used again. They do not nowadays make the electric chair over for every new criminal.

No, the extraordinary thing was not the cross, as ugly an instrument of torture as ever seared the eye of man. What the gospels take more pains in describing was what happened ON the cross. No two of the gospels tell precisely the same story, though they do not contradict one another. Luke's story has been selected for this week's study. Consider a few facts that Luke's story highlights. First is that an innocent man hung on that central cross. That he died between two bandits only brings out more strongly his own innocence.

Furthermore, it is extraordinary that this Jesus made no complaints about having been "framed" as many an innocent man in his place would have done. Jesus' mind was filled with the thoughts of others rather than himself. The reader will find it revealing to read these stories of Christ's death carefully.

Through the Cross

If you did not already know otherwise, you might think that as time went on, people who adored Jesus would prefer to forget that bitter ending of his life on the cross. Quite the contrary; Christians have always gone to some trouble to remember it. Every time we observe Communion we are proclaiming the Lord's death. The communion table in many a church has carved around it the words "In Remembrance of Me." But what holds the church's mind and heart is not merely the historical fact, that a certain teacher named Jesus was unjustly executed on criminal charges. The church church believes that THROUGH the cross we have God's forgiveness. We believe that this was not merely a human tragedy. We believe that this was actually the suffering of God on our behalf and in our place; that the self-giving, dedicated, forgiving spirit of Christ is a revelation of God's own heart. Browning put it very simply: "Thou must love Me, who have died for thee."

At the Cross

But there are two ways of believing this. One is the belief of admiration. What wonderful love this is, that the godly should die for the ungodly, the innocent for the guilty; that God should offer up his own son "for us all!" We can stand at a distance and admire the sacrifice ..... and get no good from it at all. We have to stand AT the cross, we have to believe in a more personal way than the way of admiration. The same Saint Paul who wrote that God gave up his own Son for us all, put it much more personally when he wrote: "I live by faith in the Son of God, who loved ME and gave himself for ME." (Gal. 2:20). Standing at the Cross, as no one can do for another but each one for himself, and you for yourself—standing there we see ourselves in a new way, we are forced to see that we are the same kind of people as put Jesus on that cross, we are sinners. We see God in a new way—we see him dealing with sin in a new way, taking the effects of it upon himself. And looking from the Cross, we see other men too, as brothers for whom Christ died.

Tough-built Chevy truck bulls its way deep into the woods for mammoth loads

This big Series 60 Chevy bulls its way as far as 8 miles into the Louisiana woods, fights over ruts and jagged stumps . . . then grinds back out with towering loads of logs! The Sabine Lumber Company attests to the truck's ability to take it: "Chevrolet makes the best truck for our type of operation."

Out where a truck is known for the beating it can take, Chevy's making friends fast. Truckers like the way these toughies hold up; the way they wade right in, take their lumps, yet stay in shape.

Today, it's grit that Chevy's showing the trucking industry. Real toughness that pays off in job-after-job dependability . . . in ability to get work done at least expense. You can match Chevy muscle against any tough light-, medium- or heavy-duty job and know you've got it beat!

Your Chevrolet dealer's ready right now to meet your special work requirements. Stop by and see him soon.

This "secretary" works overtime and loves it

Nighttime, daytime, all around the clock — this Electronic Secretary sees that you never miss a phone call when you're away from your office.

Automatically, it promptly answers every call with a courteous recorded voice — advises the callers that you're not available at present—asks them to speak the message which will be recorded. It's as simple as that!

All you do is play back the messages when you return. In fact, with a remote call-back attachment you can phone your own office and hear the playback of messages wherever you are.

Wonderful, isn't it? And most wonderful of all, you can have this dependable service, free of human errors, at a surprisingly low cost. For full details, phone our Business Office.

FAN FARE — Brussels — The center of attraction, Maria Schell (Right), Brigitte Bardot (Second from Right) and Sacha Diestel (Center) are beset by autograph-seeking fans in their box at the Cirque Royal here. The two movie-actresses and the popular French Guitarist were among the show-business luminaries attending the gala "La Nuit Electrique," one of the highlights of the Brussels winter season.

SAN FRANCISCO — Sporting a string tie, seagull suspiciously eyes photographer here as he carries meal around in his beak which consists of a starfish. String tie is believed to be a piece of cloth which is attached to hook embedded in it's throat. Seagulls are often hooked in mid-air by fishermen when the birds go after the bait while a cast is being made.

DOUBLE CROSSING — Goose-stepping along, these Flamingos parade with their reflections alongside their pool at the Rome Zoo. The long-legged birds are the latest addition to the Zoo, which is located in the Borghese Gardens.

SLIGHT OF HAND — Lake City, Fla. — Only a drop in the bucket himself, this sleepy Chihuahua puppy is just too tired to take his bottle. Though he weighed only two ounces at birth, the two-week old pup has a mighty name that would fit a giant — Pablo Romando Chihuahua VanZile Peacock. Pablo's mom refused to feed him, but his owners, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Peacock, treat him like a king.

ROAD SIGNS — Prague, Czechoslovakia — Auto history of the past 143 years is depicted in this new series of six stamps issued by Czechoslovakia. Two ancient and Two modern vehicles are shown in the stamps.

Over 200 At PTA

A large gathering of parents, teachers and students, numbering 200 to 225, attended the March meeting of the Riverdale P.T.A. held Tuesday night at the high school gym in Saint Joe.

Announcements made by the president included the plans of Mr. Robert Lowry, band director, to acquire 17 more uniforms for the band, and plans to have the band itself sponsor fund-raising projects. The aid of the P.T.A. was asked in obtaining the uniforms. President Ted Haberkorn suggested that perhaps the organization's carnival and supper could be held in November as it had been until a few years ago.

Possession and use of some dishes, sought by the Spencerville Community Club, is to be referred to the school board, since there was some uncertainty as to the P.T.A.'s ownership of the dishes.

Good Friday joint church services were incorrectly announced for Friday of this week. The correct date is Friday, March 27.

With illness on the rampage in the elementary grades, the fifth grade was unable to present entertainment. The Junior Class was represented by Andy Crow who played a cornet solo, accompanied by Vickie Crow.

A fashion show was then presented by girls of Mrs. Frances Huddleston's home ec classes. Vocal solos were presented by Nancy Brown and Priscilla Mayer, accompanied by Mrs. Otis Brown and Vickie Crow.

Following the program, refreshments were served by the young ladies.

Election of officers will be held next month. The nominating committee is as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hudson, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Shockley and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Impton.

"WE'VE HAD FOUR KINDS OF HEAT, BUT ELECTRIC HEAT IS THE BEST,"

SAYS MR. ERNEST PARREN.

"Thirty-four years we've lived in this house. We've had three other kinds of heat . . . but none compare with electric heat. It's clean, comfortable and noiseless. It was easy and economical to install, too!"

Next 8 prizes, $10 in groceries to each winner, won by Roy Maxwell, Bill Barnes, R. H. Goble, Alberta Collins, Myrtle Pugsley, Mrs. M. Curie, Tillie Monroe and Carroll Loucks.

Postmaster Lehr Wilder has been ill for the past several days and has not been able to work. Mrs. Harvey Carr is assisting in the post office during the postmaster's absence.

Indiana & Michigan Electric Company extended service to its 5,000th electrically heated home last week. In addition to the above homes heated by electricity, the utility serves 210 homes equipped with heat pumps, an electrically operated unit that automatically heats the home in the winter and cools it in the summer.

In response to many complaints from Auburn citizens recently about stray dogs, Auburn Police Chief C. H. West announced last week that stray dogs caught running in packs or singly will be picked up and exterminated. The complaints concerned molesting of children and damaging of property.

School administrations in the county will show a change next fall. Auburn Junior High and Harrison grade school principal Fred S. Zeigler announced last week that he will retire at the end of the current school year after 50 years of school work. Mrs. Zeigler, a teacher in the Butler school system, will also retire having served in the teaching profession for 35 years. Charles A. Overmeyer has resigned as superintendent of the Waterloo-Grant school. He has served in that position for 22 years.

Myers Elevator will hold a feeder meeting Tuesday evening, March 31, at 7:30 p.m. at the Riverdale High School. Door prizes will be awarded and refreshments will be served. All interested feeders are invited to attend.

Walter Whitehurst Post 283 observed the 40th birthday of the American Legion last Friday evening, March 20, with a pot luck supper at 6:30 p. m. followed by colored slides and an explanation by Miss Mary Wilder of her living with numerous French families during her stay in Europe last summer. Forty were present for the party.

The minimum basic price support rate on 1959-crop wheat in DeKalb County has been set at $1.84 per bushel, according to Chairman Ray W. Miller of the County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee. The basic county rate is for No. 1 wheat. It is further adjusted up or down for grade and quality to determine the support price for the individual farmer. Most premiums and discounts for 1959-crop wheat support are the same as those in the 1958 program. As in previous years, the farmer will be able to obtain price support on his 1959-crop wheat either by getting a loan on farm-stored or warehouse-stored grain, or by entering into a purchase agreement with the government. Supports will be available from harvest time through January 31, 1960. A farmer who wishes to store his loan wheat in a terminal can get information on terminal rates at the county office.

Mrs. Chalmer Beaty and 4 children and Judy Coddington of Spencerville and Mr. Roy Koch were Sunday dinner guests of Mrs. Viena Rude, honoring the tenth birthday of Danny Lee Beaty.

DeKalb County musicians are invited to enroll for the 14th annual music clinic July 4-12 at Indiana University. During the week 500 band, orchestra and voice students will receive intensive training under outstanding directors. The clinic is open to students who have completed the 9th grade. Enrollment will be limited according to instrumentation needs of the bands and orchestra and voice requirements of the choral group. All applications must be received by May 27. While on the campus, clinic students and teachers will be housed in the men's quardrangle.

The application of Mr. and Mrs. Orley Smith and son, Richard, for a beer and wine retailer's permit in Corunna was rejected last Thursday by the DeKalb County Alcoholic Beverage Board, Gerald Russell, Newell Donaldson and Guy Orwig, supported by the rejection of the ABC investigator for northern Indiana, James McLeod of Peru. Reasons for the rejection were: heavy opposition by residents of the community, no police protection in the community and the proposed tavern site is in an unfit state of repair. It was the opinion of the board that the immediate area within a 500-foot radius of the proposed tavern would fall within the category of a residential area despite conflicting evidence presented by the petitioners and remonstrators. The applicants announced that they would appeal to the State Alcoholic Beverage Commission at Indianapolis.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Hull and family were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Hull.

Mrs. Esther Campbell has announced her resignation as teacher at the Wee Haven School for Retarded Children at Garrett, effective at the end of the present term. She has served as instructor at the school since 1955. Mrs. Campbell has accepted a position as teacher in the school of nursing at St. Joseph Hospital in Fort Wayne. No replacement has been secured for the Garrett school.

The DeKalb County Cancer Society is setting up a Cancer Control Center with Mrs. Frances McCammon of Auburn as executive secretary. Headquarters will be in Auburn city hall. An educational crusade is planned to get the facts about cancer into the minds of county residents. A library of films is available from the county society. Organizations wishing to show a film on cancer may contact Mrs. William Boden, phone Auburn 546.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Reasoner were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Reasoner.

The family-size farm and its contribution to business will be discussed at a meeting of business men and agricultural leaders in the assembly room of the Auburn court house at 3:30 p.m. April 9. The meeting will begin at 4:00 p.m. with refreshments to be served from 3:30 to 4:00 p.m. Adjournment will be at 5:00 to 5:30 p.m. The meeting is sponsored by the Pet Milk Co.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Church and family have moved back to their former home at Fort Wayne.

Miss Mary Wilder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lehr Wilder, has accepted a position as home demonstration agent in Noble County.

Nine young people were confirmed at St. Mark Lutheran Church Sunday morning during the worship service. Confirmed were Cheryll Collins, Penny Beebe, Glenda Sible, Susan Coburn, Betty Dilley, Merle Holden, Allen Amstutz, David Ruch and Michael Haberkorn.

Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Haberkorn were Rev. and Mrs. Ivan O. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hauke, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Haberkorn, Sr., and Miss Augusta Haberkorn.

The fire department was busy Sunday afternoon, answering a call for a brush fire at the junction of 101 and 8, then answering another shortly thereafter to the Keating farm to fight a blaze which destroyed a large barn and another building and contents to the extent of $15,000.

The fire department extinguished a grass fire Tuesday at the Hansen farm as a live electrical wire threw sparks as workmen were engaged in repairing a break.

The Sisters of the Skillet Home Demonstration Club will hold an Easter Bake Sale this coming Saturday, March 28, at the News Office in Saint Joe. The sale will begin at 9:30 a.m.

Homemakers are invited to prepare for Easter Sunday dinner by selecting from the items at the sale, including sweet rolls, homemade bread, coffee cakes, fancy cakes, pies, cookies. Also available will be noodles, baked beans, potato salad, etc.

Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Ransom were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith and family of New Haven; Mrs. Marie Lehman of Fort Wayne; Mrs. Bertha Bartell and sons, Martin and Jerry, and Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Ransom and daughter of Grabill; and Mr. and Mrs. Roger Ransom of Auburn. Supper guests were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cook and family of Grabill and Mr. and Mrs. Rome Springer of Harlan.

Mr. Richard Shook returned to Washington D.C., last week after spending several days with his mother, Mrs. Winifred Shook.

The J. W. Hoovers spent the week end at Bryant, visiting the M. E. Renbargers.

"Convenience and comfort have doubled in our 65-year-old home, now that it's ALL-ELECTRIC!"

Says Mr. Charles M. Smith

The Smiths recently converted their 65-year-old home to electric heat and added some new electric appliances. Mr. Smith says, "Our comfort has doubled! Now we can adjust each room in the house to any degree of heat we want. And the other electric appliances ease my wife's work load and help her work more efficiently."

Reddy says: "I&M electric rates have never been increased. If your electric bill is higher, it's because you're using electricity to take over so many more of your household tasks. Actually, the more you use each month, the less you pay per kilowatthour. Living better electrically costs so little, yet means so much."

CHRIST LIVES

Lesson for March 29, 1959

"What happened on Easter morning is out on the fringe," says a modern writer on the life of Christ. On the other hand, there are some who make a great point of the empty tomb and the physical resurrection of Christ. This brings out an argument that goes on and on: which is more important the fact of the Resurrection, or the meaning of the Resurrection?

Fact Without Meaning

Consider what the effect is if we concentrate entirely on the fact that the tomb into which Jesus' body was put on Friday evening was empty on Sunday morning, and that it was empty because the body of Jesus had miraculously come alive again and walked out. Now the evidence for this as a fact is strong. More than one person who set out to show that the evidence is unconvincing has wound up by believing it. A few years ago some one wrote a very learned article intending to prove that the body of Jesus could not possibly have been put into a separate tomb, and that the women were quite mistaken when they found an empty tomb—mistaken, because the body had never been there in the first place. But how did that writer arrive at such a conclusion? Only by the skeptical writing-off, as worthless, all the testimony there is in the Gospels that the women did know, very well, where the body was supposed to be, and that a mistake under the circumstances was impossible.

Nevertheless, if we never get our minds off the empty tomb and the physicial resurrection, we shall miss too much. Nowadays especially, with all the medical miracles that are reported about people who have been brought back to life after being officially dead, a return to life does not in itself arouse the wonder it once did. Furthermore, is emphasis on the PHYSICAL resurrection an emphasis in the right place? Visitors to certain hospitals can see things in the shape of human beings which nevertheless never act like human beings; they are more like vegetables. That a body is alive may be a tragedy, if the spirit and mind are not alive too. So the really important thing about Jesus is that HE was and is alive, not that his mere body lived again.

Meaning Without Facts

On the other hand, suppose we emphasize the meaning of the Resurrection, that Christ lives—more than that indeed—that because he lives we shall live also. Then we shall be striking the center of the message of Easter. But what happens if we say, at the same time, "We believe in the Easter Faith (meaning some sort of belief in immortality, perhaps), but we are not interested in the Easter facts?" Strange as it may seem, there are people who have just that point of view. When we get rid of all the fancy language they use, what they are saying comes down to this: We don't know what HAPPENED on the first Easter, and we don't care. We are concerned with the MEANING of what never HAPPENED.

To put all one's faith in the facts and disregard the meaning of Easter is to build a solid foundation and leave it, a useless curiosity.

The Meaning of the Facts

A study of the New Testament will show any reader that the first Christians prized both facts and meaning. They never did say much, if anything, about the empty tomb, in sermons or letters; only in the Gospel stories. Christ is risen! was the cry. But that joyful cry pointed to something loftier and more precious than a plain living-again. The New Testament writers dwelt lovingly on the meaning of the Resurrection: it was God's stamp of approval on his Son; it was the triumph of Christ over sin and death, a triumph in which all his people will one day share; it was a sure token of a future beyond death; it was the meaning of heaven; it was a pledge of God's love and power.

Chevy's the car that's

Brookwood 4-Door, one of 5 Chevy Wagons

wanted for all its worth

Bel Air 4-Door Sport Sedan

It's easy to see why the '59 Chevrolet is going over so big. It's priced right down where the lowest car prices begin. Yet it's got all the important advances the top-priced cars are proud of.

Things like Fisher Body roominess, which includes more luggage space as well as wider, more comfortable seating. More visibility area—all Safety Plate Glass, too—with the windshield alone up to 61% bigger. A gleaming new finish that keeps its gleam for years without wax or polish.

There's Full Coil suspension for a smooth, steady ride. Bigger, better cooled brakes that add an extra measure of safety. And in the power department Chevrolet offers spirited V8's plus a new Hi-Thrift 6 that saves as much as 10% on your gas costs.

No wonder, is it, Chevy's the most wanted one of all? Here's everything you're most likely to want in a car wrapped up in one sweet-looking, low-priced package. Your Chevrolet dealer will be happy to arrange a demonstration.

Around the Town

With the Editor

We saw the roller skating show at the Coliseum the other night. So did 7,500 other people. It's an interesting entertainment feature. It gives you a chance to pick your hero and villain, your heroine and villainess. It compares a lot with today's wrestling entertainment. The men do the serious skating, though they sometimes indulge in heroics, too. The ladies are plenty serious, too, but you kind of look for fireworks when they start making the rounds.

The other night the red heads were hot at it, with assistance. One gal got her arms pinned down by an opponent while still another opponent smacked her a good one. The pair tried the same trick later but got fooled. As the one took a big swing, the gal being held ducked and the arm-pinner got it.

Then one of the gals got mad at the refs and was telling them off. She talked so hard and gestured so wildly that her feet went out from under her and she landed - - - she sure did. One of the men got thrown into the penalty box, a chair at the end of the rink. He was plenty mad and the crowd was on him. Seconds after he sat down and attention was turned elsewhere, there was a crash, and there he was flat on his back. He had leaned back too far on the chair. When it started to go over, his skates were useless and the chair collapsed.

Coincidence has made a double occasion for April 10. The elevator is going to put on a special that day for feed buyers, giving away premiums. Besides, it will be the birthday of Cliff Billow as manager of the elevator. He started here April 10, 1939, and has been at it ever since.

—The grass is getting green, by golly.

Spellers Prepare For County, J-G Contests April 9

The DeKalb County Spelling Contest and eliminations for the Journal-Gazette spelling contest will be held on Thursday, April 9, at Waterloo. Riverdale's entry in the Journal-Gazette contest will be Michael Haberkorn, who also represented his school in 1958 competition.

4th grade — Kathryn Schmucker; alternate Claudia Strombeck.

5th grade—Cynthia Friend; alternate, Nicholas Carr.

6th grade—Sharon Boylan; alternate Lee Impton.

7th grade—James Furnish.

8th grade—Allen Holman; alternate, Lenare Jolly.

The contest will be held on but one date. It has previously been held on two nights. This year the contests for grades 3, 4 and 7 will be in the assembly room with the contest for grades 5, 6 and 8 and the Journal-Gazette in the gymnasium.

All schools in DeKalb County, with the exception of the Butler Metropolitan schools and the school at Moore will participate. Included are Riverdale, Auburn city schools, Troy Tamarack, Waterloo, Ashley, Fairfield Center, Corunna, East Richland, Garrett, West Richland and Zion Lutheran.

Ashley teachers will prepare the words for contests in grades 3 and 4. Charles Rawlings of Riverdale and Rev. Willard Sanders of Corunna will serve as judges with Bruce Gurtner of the Waterloo school as pronouncer.

Words for grades 5 and 6 will be prepared by Auburn teachers. Judges are Ralph Manrow of Garrett and Clarence Dirrim of Troy Township. Harry Reinoehl of Fairfield Center will serve as pronouncer.

Teachers in the Riverdale schools will prepare words for grades 7 and 8 with Rhonda Starkey of Waterloo and Laurel Carper of East Richland serving as judges. Dave Gemmer of Zion Lutheran school will serve as pronouncer.

Virgil Haggerty, county attendance officer, and Roger Hess, county superintendent of schools, will prepare the words for the Journal-Gazette contest. Mr. Gemmer wil be the pronouncer.

MATTHEW E. WELSH TO BE JEFFERSON-JACKSON SPEAKER

DeKalb County Democrats will have the privilege of hearing one of the leading party speakers at the annual Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner meeting to be held Tuesday, April 7, in the Chamber of Commerce Building in Auburn at 6:30 p.m.

Mrs. Monica Dunn of Waterloo, Fourth District Vice-Chairman, is in charge of the dinner and tickets have been distributed. A large crowd is anticipated. Cost of the dinner is $2 per plate.

Mr. Welsh, a practicing attorney of Vincennes, will be the principal speaker. He entered the general practice of law in Vincennes in 1930. He has served as a member of the House in the General Assembly in the 1941 and 1943 sessions, resigning after the 1943 session to enter the Navy. In 1948-49 he was elected District Chairman and resigned in 1950 to accept the appointment as U.S. Attorney for the Southern District of Indiana, serving in this office until 1953 when he resigned to re-enter private practice in Vincennes.

At present Mr. Welsh is serving as Senator from Knox and Davies counties and served as the Democratic floor leader in the Senate in the 1957 and 1959 sessions.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank the Saint Joe, Spencerville and Hicksville fire departments and everyone who helped in any way at our fire. Words cannot express our thanks.

This Week In AMERICAN HISTORY

BY WILLIAM BRODIE

WILSON CALLS FOR WAR

It was Monday, April 2, 1917. Over the city of Washington, D. C. a soft spring rain was falling. It did not dampen the air of tense expectation that lay over the capital city. The country at large reflected the same tense feeling. For President Woodrow Wilson had issued a call for a special session of Congress on this day, "to receive a communication concerning grave matters." Most Americans knew what that meant.

At eight o'clock in the evening President Wilson left the White House, and preceeded by a clattering escort of cavalry, he rode down Pennsylvania Avenue to the Capitol. The white dome of the Capitol was glowing in the dark, illuminated by the indirect lighting system which has made Capitol Hill and its white dome a traditional part of Washington's night scene.

Awaiting the President in the crowded House chamber were Senators and Representatives, members of the Cabinet, the Supreme Court, and other high government officials. The gallery was jammed with diplomats, newspapermen and such visitors as were lucky enough to gain entrance. The scene was dramatic as the President moved to the rostrum. In solemn, clear tones he delivered his message. Master of the English language, a splendid orator at his best, Mr. Wilson's address was magnificent this evening. "It was his distressing and oppresive duty," to advise "that the Congress declare the recent course of the Imperial German government to be in fact nothing less than war against the government and people of the United States; that it formally accept the status of belligerent which has thus been thrust upon it . . ."

American merchant ships had been sunk by German submarines despite warnings of grave consequences by our government. A German plot to entice Mexico into war against the United States had been exposed, and President Wilson had dismissed the German ambassador. We seemed to be fast heading for war. Now, at the President's order, Congress was convened to hear his special message, which could have had only one demand.

"There is one choice we cannot make, we are incapable of making," Wilson gravely declared as he read his war message to the tensely quiet audience. "We will not choose the path of submission and suffer the most sacred rights of our nation and our people to be ignored or violated . . ."

At this point the entire gathering, including the staid Supreme Court justices, sprang enthusiastically to its feet.

Grand and eloquent phrases marked the President's speech. Solemnly and courageously they spelled out our country's war aims. "We have no quarrel with the German people . . . We are glad now that we see the facts with no veil of false pretense upon them, to fight thus for the ultimate peace of the world and for the liberation of its peoples, the German peoples included . . . The world must be made safe for democracy . . . We desire no conquest, no dominion. We seek no indemnity for ourselves, no material compensation for the sacrifices we shall freely make."

There were tears in the eyes of many of his listeners, and others trembled with emotion as the President closed his message. "To such a task we can dedicate our lives and our fortunes, everything that we are and everything that we have, with the pride of those who know that the time has come when America is privileged to spend her blood and her might for the principles that gave her birth and happiness, and the peace which she has treasured. God helping her, she can do no other."

President Wilson's jaw was set, his face was gray but grim as he concluded. He had wrestled with his conscience and he had done what he thought was right. Four days later, on Friday, April 6, 1917 — Good Friday — the President signed the joint resolution for a declaration of war. The United States had entered World War I.

Need For A Hospital?

After reading the pros and cons of the proposed DeKalb County hospital, I don't know what side of the fence to be on. Unfortunately, this matter is resolving itself into a fight that may not serve our best interests because, regardless of the outcome, there will be those who will not support ANY hospital or hospital plan simply because they are displeased with what happened.

The DeKalb County Non-Profit Hospital Association has prepared and distributed a pamphlet giving facts about the proposed hospital indicating that the cost of the hospital is estimated at 1½ million dollars. They would expect to get one-third of that amount from the federal givernment through the Hill-Burton Act of Congress. The other million would be raised by formation of a holding corporation which would lease the hospital to the county; however, it is pointed out that, if a better way of financing the hospital is found, that way would be used. Under the holding corporation, it would take 30 years to pay for construction of the hospital. The association anticipates that the hospital would be self-supporting (at least after the first year or two) and there would be no further need for tax assistance in the future. Among other things, the pamphlet indicates that there is great need for modern hospital facilities in the county, more state-approved beds, room, etc.

The above-mentioned pamphlet received an "answer" recently from the Citizens Group of DeKalb County, Garrett, in an advertising sheet distributed throughout the county. (Incidentally, this is apparently the only means taken to "publicize" their opposition; the hospital group has done little more to inform the public on this matter of public interest.) The answer took the association to task, paragraph by paragraph, and pointed out its reasons for opposing the construction of a county hospital. As I say, I don't know which side of the fence to be on; perhaps it is better not to be on a side or take sides, not until some of the confusion is eliminated. The difficulty is that arguments from both sides in places seem to contradict one another and pointedly indicate that "misinformation" is being disseminated.

I don't know what you're thinking, but here's what I wonder about. First of all, when Sarced Heart Hospital announced its closing date, it was pointed out that the hospital was operating at a loss with only something like 55 or 60 per cent occupancy (or am I wrong?). If this is so, where is the great need for a county hospital? How could it operate without cost to the taxpayer, unless the privately-operated hospitals were closed? If people in the county are willing to "donate" time and possibly money for the construction and operation of a county institution (as is suggested by the hospital association), what is the reason that such donations are not forthcoming for the private institutions to help them become better equipped with modern and up-to-date facilities? Is the group which opposes the county hospital a representative group, that is, does it have "members" who come from all parts of the county? Or is the strentgh of the opposition group predominantly from the Garrett community, perhaps inclined to be more personally interested from the standpoint of community loss than from county benefit? (Does this make any difference???) Why was the announcement of an addition to one of the private hospitals made AFTER the county hospital association began active and public solicitation for a new hospital?

One thing that bothers me is that the DeKalb County Medical Society has endorsed the county hospital project. It seems strange that the profession which is so concerned with "socialized medicine" and has a powerful lobby in the nation's capital fighting public health and welfare plans which make inroads into private medicine gives local sanction to something that takes medicine out of the realm of private enterprise and makes it a governmental concern. For me, I'd rather believe in the ability of a private institution to serve my interests than I would a government institution, just on the principle of the thing. In addition, once a governmental unit is established, supported by public taxation, it takes a tremendous circumstance to eliminate it, even after it becomes burdensome and useless.

Before any decision is made to construct a county hospital, I want to hear more discussion from those who favor it and those who oppose it. And I would like to hear factual evidence, constructively given, not rebuttals and contradictions which only serve to confuse.

It might be a good idea to tell our county commissioners what we think about the whole thing. Grassroots opinion, in this particular case, is an absolute necessity. We are able to get in touch with one of the commissioners rather easily, as he lives in this community. Whatever the decision in the future, it is certain that you and I will help our commissioners make the decision by our voluntary comments and opinions.

As of now, I am not in favor of the county hospital plan, mostly just on the apparent principle of the thing and because of the present confusion.

College Prep

In an interview with Dr. Harlan Hatcher, president of the University of Michigan, feature writer Dell Ford was told the following, after a conference in Fort Wayne:

"High school students who are planning to further their education by attending college should make certain they have had the subjects necessary for gaining entrance to a college. These necessary subjects are English, mathematics, science, and, if possible, foreign language. How much foreign language? All you can get. Four years if that is possible."

Dr. Hatcher offered more advice to college-minded youth: "Serious self-discipline. Form good study habits and demand a high performance of yourself."

He pointed out that the present enrollment at the University of Michigan is 23,486, a record year. The previous high was in 1949 when the enrollment stood near the 23,000 mark as a result of the number of war veterans taking advantage of the G. I. Bill. Prior to World War II, Michigan enrollment was about 13,000.

Of the present record high enrollment 38 per cent are graduate students, a trend indicating the importance today of obtaining a degree beyond the bachelor degree. The freshman class numbers 3,00, but there were applications from more than 8,000.

Rec'n Club To Meet Wednesday

With warmer weather now present, thoughts of young (and not so young) men turn to baseball.

Therefore, a meeting of the Saint Joe Valley Recreation Club will be held next Wednesday evening, April 8, at 7:30 p.m. at the Riverdale High School in Saint Joe.

Team managers and sponsors and league officers are urged to be present.

If a representative attendance is present, election of officers will be held.

In addition to the above mentioned persons, any others interested in assisting the ball diamond program are invited to attend.

AMERICAN HISTORY

BY WILLIAM BRODIE

DEATH OF "JOHNNY APPLESEED"

Near Fort Wayne in Indiana, on March 11, 1847, there died a little man in his seventies who was one of the strangest and most lovable characters in the story of the early American frontier. John Chapman was his name, but as "Johnny Appleseed" he was best known, and wondered at, and loved.

He was born in Massachusetts about 1775. Little was known of him until he appeared in western Pennsylvania in 1800. There he began his life work of planting and raising apple trees for the benefit of others. He was a deeply religious Swedenborgian with a "call" to serve his fellowmen. He wanted little for himself, cared not for his own comfort, and believed that all living creatures, animals, as well as men, were his brothers.

Near Pittsburgh he planted and cultivated a large apple orchard from which he sold or gave away saplings and seeds to settlers going west. Then, later, he took a canoe load of apple seeds with him down the Ohio River. And for the next forty years he roamed the states of the Ohio Valley, traveling at one time as far west as Iowa with bags of apple seeds. Up and down Ohio, Indiana and Illinois he roamed, mostly on foot, setting out apple orchards for the people moving in.

He would clear a place in the forest, plant his seeds, fence in the patch, and return from time to time to prune and care for the trees. When the settlers arrived he would sell his seedling trees for a "fip-penny bit," or for food or bits of old clothes. More often than not he gave away his little orchards.

And so Johnny Appleseed, as he came to be called, consecrated himself to the mission of planting orchards and bringing fruits and flowers to the forests for the free use of the settlers. Johnny was a small man, wiry, having great endurance. He went about barefoot, his coat an old coffee sack with holes for his arms and head, and for a hat he wore an old tin pan, part of his slender stock of equipment.

Though he went about unarmed he was never harmed by the Indians or by wild beasts. He ate no meat, he killed no game. To the Indians Johnny Appleseed was a medicine man who scattered the seeds of medicinal plants, like catnip and pennyroyal, through the woods.

Every settler's cabin had a welcome for Johnny Appleseed. He was kind and unselfish. Children and animals he especially loved. When he spent an evening in a settler's house he would often expound from the Bible which he carried with him. He helped in every way he could. When Indians threatened a raid on Mansfield, Ohio, during the War of 1812, he ran 30 miles during the night to the town of Mt. Vernon to bring troops.

Until 1838 he worked out from Ashland County, Ohio; then he moved to the vicinity of Fort Wayne, Indiana, to carry on his work. The end came in March, 1847. Cattle broke into one of his nurseries 20 miles away. He went to repair the damage, and became ill. It was pneumonia. A friend took him into his home near Fort Wayne. Johnny asked to have his bed made beneath the orchard trees. He lay down and went to sleep and died on the morning of March 11, 1847.

There is an epitaph of Johnny Appleseed in Ashland, Ohio, which describes him as the patron saint of American orchards and a soldier of peace who went about doing good. But the best summation of his life can be had from his own words. "I feed the hungry," said Johnny Appleseed. "I clothe the naked. I wear cast-off garments. I have walked 10,000 miles through the wilderness. I gave the people deeds, not words."

Out in the Ohio Valley country the orchards that sprang from his plantings shake out their blossom fragrance in the spring. In the fall the rich fruit is harvested. In fragrance and sweet ripeness the memory of Johnny Appleseed lingers on.

State Delegates Announced

Vickie Crow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Crow of Saint Joe, and Andy Crow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Crow of Saint Joe, have been selected as respective delegates to Girls State and Boys State for the 1959 session. Selection of the two Riverdale High School juniors was made recently by Riverdale faculty members.

The two young people will be sent to State through the sponsorship of the Walter Whitehurst American Legion Post of Saint Joe and the Saint Joe Lions Club. Held on the Indiana University campus at Bloomington, the sessions give high school students an insight into the mechanics of government, including holding an election of candidates selected during the stay on the campus.

Boys State will be held June 13-20 with Girls State to follow the next week.

Candidates are selected on the following points:

1. Leadership; 2. ability to get along with others; 3. mental alertness and cleanliness; 4. honesty; 5. personality; 6. enthusiasm; 7. sportsmanship.

The purpose of Boys and Girls State is threefold: to develop the responsibility of leadership; to prove the advantages of leadership; to promote the art of clean living.

Girls State alternate is Jean Zimmerman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Zimmerman of Spencerville. Boys State alternate is Gary Sible, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis B. Sible of Saint Joe.

ONE PLUS GOD
Lesson for April 5, 1959

"One Plus God" is a slogan that might fit many a strong life. It is not only the secret of such men as were the prophets of old, not only for Saint Paul and Saint Augustine and Martin Luther, and other famous persons admired by Christians. The reader should realize that this can be true of every one who puts his trust in God. The price of admission to the goodly company of the saints is not cheap, but it is in every one's reach: Faith.

Loyalty

This was true of the famous Old Testament hero named Samuel. He was what in football language is called a triple-threat man. He was a priest, prophet, judge, military advisor; and tradition even says he was a writer, though of course he did not live long enough to have written the books that bear his name in the Old Testament. (They do not claim to have been written by him.) Before his time there had been no kings, and indeed not very much unity among the tribes of Israel. Under his leadership the tribes were better united, and it would not be much exaggeration to say that Samuel "licked" the tribes into shape"—the shape of a kingdom which he turned over to the first king-by-title, Saul. It is true that King Saul did not pay attention to Samuel's wisdom; but all the same, after the old prophet was dead, Saul thought so much of his advice that he actually tried to conjure him out of his grave just to hear him again.

What was the secret of Samuel's power over Israel? First of all it was a contagious loyalty to the one true God. It was a time when most men worshipped many gods. Even the Israelites did this. Samuel ran the risk of being looked at as a crank or a fanatic, but such was his known loyalty to God that when he challenged Israel to throw away their idols, they did. There must have been something in his life that made even those primitive men sure that one-plus-God means greatness.

Prayer

Another marked feature of Samuel's life was his prayers. We have on record the story of his very first prayer. It was not a begging request, not a "Gimme" prayer at all. It was "Speak, Lord; for thy servant heareth." Even as a boy he would rather hear what God has to say than to pour out words before God. How seldom it is that people in praying give God any chance to speak! The Lord seldom has much to say to a man who insists on talking every minute.

Another feature of Samuel's prayer life was that he prayed for others, even when those others had turned their backs on him. Samuel did his best to persuade the Israelites not to have a king. He knew that "power corrupts" and he predicted accurately the injustice and tyranny which their future kings would show. But they wanted a king all the same; yet in taking leave of them Samuel was not bitter. "Far be it from me that I should sin against the Lord by ceasing to pray for you," he said.

Wisdom

Samuel was an example of what we nowadays call a circuit judge. He held court in three cities, including his home town. (This alone is remarkable.) He was not (on the one hand) the kind of religious person who retires to a cell and there spends his life in prayer. He was a man of affairs, trusted by high and low. He was not (on the other hand) the kind of religious person who keeps his religion with his hymn-book—in church, where he takes it out and gets loud and happy over it once a week—only once. Samuel on the contrary was a man whose religious faith was the foundation of his wisdom. Religion did not lift him "out of this world"; it gave him insight into the problems of this world. His one-plus-God life was not for himself alone; God in life helped him to be a help to others. Perhaps one strong reason why there are not more persons who deserve that "One-plus-God" description is that too many of us want to have God by the hand to serve ourselves rather than others.

COUNTRY STYLE — Newbury, N.H. — Unimpressed by the new-fangled means of transportation — like automobiles, for instance — the Rollins Brothers are content to get around with horse and buggy in Newbury. The bachelor brothers are both veterans of World War 1. They live alone in the hills, coming to town to buy food with their monthly war pension checks.

MARILYN LAUDED BY FRENCH — New York — Actress Marilyn Monroe holds the "Best Actress of the Year" award she received at the French Consulate. The award, presented on behalf of the French Society of Authors, Composers and Publishers of Music, is the French equivalent of the American "Oscar."

GIVE IT A WHIRL — Whitestone, Queens, N.Y. — Spinning away in the sunshine, youngsters try to get the hang of a new toy called the "Whirley Whirler" at P.S. 193 in Whitestone, Queens. The toy consists of a plastic dish and a stick, and the object is to keep the dish spinning atop the stick for as long as possible. The manufacturer hopes the new toy will become a popular fad like the hula hoop.

SKUNKED! — Memphis, Tenn. — Topping off his career as a salesman, Paul Bishop is now the only man in Memphis with a skunk toupee. Once able to double for Yul Brynner, Bishop now looks more like Davy Crockett. The unusual toupee is a gift from a bookkeeper in the office, whom Bishop had kidded about her skunk jacket.

COMMAND APPEARANCE — Washington, D.C. — America's top lady leatherneck, Col. Margaret Monroe Henderson has the look of authority as she assumes command as Director of Women Marines. A native of Cameron, Texas, Col. Henderson joined the Marine Corps in 1943.

EXPERIENCED A CURRENT EVENT — San Diego, Calif. — Lucky to be alive is Marvin Wasserman, 8, of San Diego, who flew his kite, which had a tinsel string attached, into a 1200-volt circuit wire. Marvin shows holes in his socks where the current passed through his body. Standing on dry ground apparently saved the boy's life.

SAINT JOE VALLEY HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The regular meeting of the Saint Joe Valley Home Demonstration Club was held on March 20 at the home of Mrs. Emma Strombeck.

The president, Nancy Coburn, called the meeting to order with members repeating the club creed. Devotions were given by Ethel Wineland.

The history of the song of the month was by Elizabeth Shull and members joined in singing "Flow Gently, Sweet Afton."

The lesson was given by Elizabeth Shull and Cora Funk on flexible smooth surface floor coverings. Part 2 of the lesson on fabrics was given by MaDonna Wade.

Secretary's report was read and 19 members answered roll call. The meeting closed with all singing the club prayer.

Refreshments were served by the hotesss, Emma Strombeck, and co-hostesses, Edith Saylor and Lula Murphy.

The next meeting will be held April 17 at the home of Hazel Leonhart.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC

Due to the difficulty encountered by the Saint Joe Volunteer Fire Department units in reaching the recent fire at the Keating farm, the department finds it necessary to issue a warning that blocking of roadways is unlawful and drastic action can be taken (such as pushing cars into ditches, moving from the vicinity of fires) to open traffic lanes. The department requests the cooperation of the public so that such measures will not become necessary.

PICTURES OF THE WEEK

THREE RIVERS, CALIF. – Sculptor Carroll Barnes applies finishing touches to his fifth giant Sequoia Redwood creation, a Bengal Tiger that was formally unveiled at the Reedley (Calif.) College campus. The tiger is 15 feet long, five feet high and will stand on a four foot high base. Barnes began his carvings from Redwood logs prior to World War II, receiving world-wide recognition when his first creation of Paul Bunyan from a 25-ton log was unveiled.

SHE SAVORS SABRES – New York – With a confident grin, Estelline Pike, a sword swallower at Hubert's Museum in New York City, eyes four blades she plans to have as a midafternoon snack. This savorer of sabres is also a mother and grandmother. Her relish for cold steel is apparently hereditary – her son, U.S. Army Pvt. James (Lucky) Bell, was a sword swallower, too, in civilian life.

PRECOCIOUS PACHYDERM – Paris – Making beautiful music together, Berolina, an 11-month-old Indian Elephant, plays an oversized harmonica as her trainer, Hans Kossmayer, points out the pipes. Kossmayer claims that the precocious Pachyderm, now in Paris, can also dance with a hula hoop.

CLAWED BY LION – Detroit – Famed lion tamer Clyde Beatty seems not the least bit disturbed as he gets treatment for his injured right arm. Beatty was clawed by one of the lions in his act at the Shrine Circus. Twelve stitches were taken in the arm, but Beatty described the injury as "a scratch."

NEFF SAID – Cedar Rapids, Iowa – Having trouble top and bottom, little Linda Neff doesn't quite know where to turn for help. The tot is losing her diapers at the lower end and suffering from a toothache up top.

Around the Town

With the Editor

I had a rare treat this week. I stopped in at the high school and enjoyed a different menu for a change. They served chocolate covered ants and fried grasshoppers for lunch.

Naw, they didn't really. I was just kidding. But Virginia Laux had 'em and let me sample the delicacies. They came to her through the Grahams at Spencerville who got them from Jack Haas, now working in a food store in Florida.

When I had finished partaking of the two rare food items, Mr. Smith walked in and, when he was told that I ate them, looked at me as if —well, as if I had eaten chocolate covered ants and fried grasshoppers.

How were they? Well, the chocolate covered ants weren't bad; the chocolate flavor covered up whatever other taste there might be. But the grasshoppers, I don't know. I think you have to develop a taste for them. They taste sorta like something left over —and it got burned.

Dick Crow sends out an S.O.S. from the school board. Will whoever borrowed the school's sewer cable please return it.

According to an item in the Avilla News of July 10, 1912, all section men on the B&O railroad system received a voluntary raise in pay from $1.59 4-10 per day to $1.70. At the same date the following prices were paid: wheat $1.10, oats 50c, butter 20c, eggs 10c, lard 9c, potatoes $1.00, fowl 10c, timothy seed $7.00.

Chicken-Pie Supper

St. Peter's Lutheran Church in Spencerville will be the sponsor of a chicken pie supper to be served Saturday, April 18, starting at 5 p.m. Serving will continue until 8 p.m.

The menu is as follows:

Chicken pie, mashed potatoes and gravy, green beans or corn, tossed salad, bread, butter and coffee. Prices are adults $1.00, children 65c. Pie and cake, 10c and 15c each.

This Week In AMERICAN HISTORY

BY WILLIAM BRODIE

LEE SURRENDERS AT APPOMATOX

It was Sunday, April 9, 1865 and the white flag of surrender fluttered over the exhausted ranks of General Robert E. Lee's army trapped at the Appomatox in western Virginia. The end had come for the great fighting army of the Confederacy.

A week before that General Grant's Union army had stormed and captured Petersburg, key point to Richmond, the Confederate capital. Lee was then forced to quit Richmond in a hurry and try to escape with what was left of his army westward to the Blue Ridge hills.

But Grant was determined to capture Lee's army quickly. Moving his larger, fresher forces fast he chased after Lee's crumbling columns of troops in their desperate retreat. In a few days he was able to overtake and surround them as they fought to get across the Appomatox River. Now there was nothing left but surrender for Lee's tired, starving veterans of four years of gallant fighting.

Grant was on his horse in the field when Lee's note, asking for a talk about terms of surrender, reached him. Joyfully, Grant hurried to meet Lee. The two commanders met in the house of a Mr. McLean in the village of Appomatox Court House. The two men stood out in sharp contrast to each other as they gravely shook hands. Grant, short and stubby, wore a private's blouse with only shoulder straps to show his rank of Lieutenant General. Lee, tall and graceful, looking every inch the dignified aristocrat, was dressed in a new uniform with a beautiful sword. Lee's calm face masked whatever feelings he may have had. Grant's first joyful feelings were now, at this meeting, sad and depressed. He could not rejoice at the downfall of a foe who had fought so long and bravely, however wrong his cause.

The two sat down at a table and talked for a while of the old days when they had served in the Mexican War. Then Grant took out his manifold order book and wrote out the terms of surrender in the form of a letter to Lee. All officers and men were to be released on parole not to take up arms against the United States. All weapons and equipment were to be given up, except the officers' side-arms, baggage and horses. All were to return to their homes, not to be disturbed as long as they observed their paroles and the laws in force where they lived.

As a further generous measure Grant allowed the privates to keep their horses, as they would need them for spring plowing and putting in a crop for their families. Lee agreed to all this and wrote a letter in turn accepting the terms. He then asked for food for his starving men and Grant ordered that they should be fed from his army's stores.

When news of the surrender reached the Union lines the soldiers began firing their guns in salute to the great victory. But General Grant at once ordered it stopped. The Confederates were now their prisoners and there was no need to exult over the defeat of brave men.

With the surrender of Lee's army the war was practically over. Within a few weeks the rest of the Confederate armies in the field throughout the South also surrendered. The bitter and bloody Civil War had lasted four years. Now the terrible tragedy was ended.

Water Rate To Increase To 2.50

The Town Board of Saint Joe met Monday evening at the Town Hall with all members present and two visitors.

The board is proceeding with necessary steps to raise the base rate for waterworks customers to $2.50. Expenses in the past year exceeded revenue. With the new rate, it will be possible to set up a sinking fund for emergency situations. Even with the increase, the Saint Joe water rate is lower than those in communities nearby.

Other business included discussion of a misunderstanding in which a water customer paid privately for service available from the waterworks.

Consultation with legal counsel appeared to establish that gas tax money can not be used for constructing curbing. Further investigation of the matter is being made.

An increase in the number of stray dogs was noted. It is possible that strays may be picked up and disposed of by authorization of the board. No action was taken.

Apparent Prank Not Too Funny

Burmell Walter, instructor at Riverdale High School, was the victim of as yet undetermined circumstance Tuesday when a spindle, used for keeping school attendance slips, was placed on his chair. He failed to notice its presence and sat down, receiving a painful injury to his hip requiring medical attention.

It has not been determined whether or not the spindle was placed on the chair purposely to achieve the ultimate result. At any rate, it caused near-serious injury.

WINNERS 4-H CLUB

The Winners 4-H Club met at 7:30 on March 24 at the home of Priscilla and Diann Mayer. Dues were set at one dollar for the year.

Wally Graham led the club in several songs, after which the members gave safety hints for the Health and Safety report.

Discussion on a community project was held, but it was decided to wait until the next meeting to vote.

A motion to adjourn was put on the floor by Carol Graham and was passed.

The next meeting will be held at the Graham home.

There were 13 members present at the meeting.

Boosters Plan Dinner, Election April 17

The board of directors of the Saint Joe Booster Club met Tuesday evening at Sechler's pickle processing plant.

Committee reports were heard and discussion held on various club projects, including industrial expansion, public park, membership, curbing and drainage, etc.

Plans were tentatively made for a dinner meeting of the club next Friday evening, April 17. Club members and prospects will be notified of the time and place in the next few days. A program is planned for the evening with election of officers to be held. Nominating committee is as follows: Merl Guilford, Roy Bowser and Orville Coburn, the last named being chairman of the committee.

Leon Kees is chairman of the reservations committee. Anyone interested in attending the meeting is asked to contact Mr. Kees. Present members of the club and prospective members, anyone interested in promoting community betterment, are invited.

Elevator Marks 20th Year

Myers Elevator and Coal Co. of Saint Joe will observe its 20th anniversary in the Saint Joe community on Friday, April 20. The company has a second branch in Edgerton, Ohio.

Clifford Billow began operating the firm on April 10, 1939, and has served as manager for the past twenty years. He noted a comment of pessimism back in 1939 as he instituted a policy at that time of cash transactions only. He commented recently that one opinion had it that the elevator wouldn't last under such terms.

Mrs. Billow assists in the office of the elevator doing bookkeeping. Employees include Harold Hose, who has been with the firm for 17 years, and Richard Woodring who joined the firm last September.

Lutheran Men To Hear Planner April 15, LaOtto

Church planning will be the subject of Milferd H. Eggerding, community planning consultant, at the spring quarterly meeting of the Lutheran Men of Northeastern Indiana on Wednesday, April 15, at Emmanuel Lutheran Church in LaOtto.

Mr. Eggerding is one of the pioneer community planning consultants in Indiana and has been instrumental in setting up the zoning and planning programs of several DeKalb and Noble County communities, in particular Butler and Auburn. He will speak on selection of sites, church zoning problems and proper planning precedure.

Mr. Eggerding is an active layman in the Lutheran Church Missouri Synod and is on their board of church site planning both at the district and national level. His home is in Valparaiso.

The Lutheran Men of Northeastern Indiana is an organization of men from nine United Lutheran churches in DeKalb and Noble counties. Represented in the organization are Saint Joe, Spencerville, Albion, Auburn, Butler, Corunna and LaOtto.

The meeting will start at 8 p.m. with devotions by the host pastor, the Rev. O. B. Noren. Refreshments and fellowship will follow the meeting in the church basement.

Senior Work Day This Friday

The Riverdale Senior Class will hold its annual Work Day Friday of this week.

Anyone wishing to obtain the services of a hard-working Senior, call 2345 or contact any Senior.

Seniors are available for all types of work: housecleaning, window washing, garden plowing, raking of leaves, etc.

The Work Day proceeds will be used to finance in part the Senior trip this spring.

Notes To Curb Your Thoughts

When people get themselves involved in what seems to be a clearly-defined task, they often find themselves confronted with questions that were not considered previously, questions which, left unanswered, become stumbling blocks in the path to the desired goal. Such is the case in considering one of the Booster Club's goals, installation of curbs and proper drainage of surface water along the main street.

Though no great amount of publicity has been given to the project, it has been under investigation for some time. The town board has also been doing some of its own investigating on the matter. There is a disturbing element which has come up and is proving to be a stumbling block. That is the question of derivation of benefits from such a project. Who benefits from curbs along our main street, who should pay for them?

The first answer is, I fear, the people living along the main street. I think that answer is wrong. When you get right down to it, how much more privately convenient is it to have a curb in front of a house? Does that homeowner have exclusive "rights" and benefits in its use? The many cars which pull up to what curbs we do have or pull up to the edge of the sidewalk far outnumber the people who live in the houses where curbing exists. The benefits are of a public nature rather than a private one.

In many instances, the decision on who should pay for something is often approached from the standpoint of "who benefits." With the wrong answer, there is the possibility that the wrong ones are expected to pay, or at least a limited number of people are expected to foot the bill; or, nothing will be done and no one will have to pay anything. It would be a complicated mess if civil government had to levy taxes on a strict basis of "who benefits most?" What a job of bookkeeping there would be. We would get involved in disputes, too, because "I paid for this, you didn't; so get off!"

What I am getting at is that we pool our resources in our civil government for the common good. That doesn't necessarily mean that every citizen is going to directly benefit from whatever civic progress is made, but that the general welfare of all people, of the entire community, will be improved. If we enhance the appearance of our town by installing curbing along the main street, every homeowner in Saint Joe will benefit. Civic improvement means more valuable property. Who can say that we do not need more value in our property today? If putting in a street where none exists now will bring someone to build a new house, then others will follow suit and our town will grow and increase in value. Everyone has a stake in every civic improvement and it is a mistake to separate, or try to separate, the beneficiaries.

Saint Joe can't posibly curb all its streets in one year. It possibly can't curb the main street alone in one year. Such a project takes time. What we can do is make a start, and the start seems to me to be at the place where most people see our town. That is along the main street. Maybe it isn't practical to think in terms of curbing the whole town. Maybe we should just get a start and go from there. It is a certainty that if curbing is a benefit, and I don't see how it can be anything else, the money that every citizen has invested in it, by taxes or donations or what have you, will be returned to him through a growing and prospering town.

Don't get me wrong, success doesn't hinge on curbs. It hinges on getting started; and since we all are pleased when our eyes fall on attractive things, the best start for the town appears to be improvement of its main street.

For What It's Worth

I want to pass something along to you which you will take with a grain of salt or take into serious consideration, depending.

The following excerpt comes from a letter received from my sister and brother-in-law, both of whom may be prejudiced, you may think, because they are teachers, or perhaps I should say teacher and professor - and they're my relatives!

At any rate, read on --

"We both liked very much your last long editorial about high school reorganization and building funds. It's encouraging, especially for us teachers, to see someone 'on the outside' take a responsible, although no doubt unpopular, attitude.

"I just got back a batch of themes from my freshman composition students as to whether or not their high schools provided them with adequate intellectual training. The greatest part of the criticism came from the students who had graduated from relatively small high schools, which, as they said, (1) did not offer an adequate number of courses in the basic academic subjects—mathematics, English, history, science, and foreign languages—(and particularly not enough advanced courses in these subjects), and (2) did not have enough teachers who were adequately prepared to teach these courses. They seemed to think that both of these major faults were due to the smallness of the schools and the consequent lack of enough funds to pay for a larger number of courses and to attract more competent teachers."

Three things are significant: (1) these criticisms came not from advanced scholars or teachers but from freshman students; (2) the criticisms came from graduates of smaller high schools; (3) the criticisms came from students at our own state university.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Bible material: I Samuel 8-11.

Devotional reading: I Samuel 12:19-24.

OFFICER MATERIAL

Lesson for April 12, 1959

The Navy has a word for a school where men from the ranks are studying to be commissioned officers: the "Officers' Material School." Not every enlisted man can be admitted; only those who seem to have what it is going to take to be an officer, and that is a good deal.

The Bible tells a story of a man from the ranks who was good "officer material" but who (like some Navy candidates) flunked out. He did not fail, however, for lack of the stuff of which success can be made. Next week's study concerns his failure; this week's thought is given to what could have been his success. He held a good hand, we may say, but he played it badly.

Head and Shoulders

Look over the cards he held. First, he had what everyone noticed the first moment they looked at him; he stood out in any crowd, head and shoulders above the rest. He would have sat tall in the saddle (only no one around there rode horseback); he stood tall on the ground. He was strong enough to butcher and cut up a yoke of oxen by himself, and in a fight he had proved himself a lion. Men have been successes in life without extraordinary strength; but for a leader of men, a store of extra power and energy is important. Some investigator found that executives in business are on an average taller and heavier than the men lower down the ladder. The executive needs the extra power for the extra drive. But of course a giant can be a fool. You cannot predict how much of a leader a man will be merely by mesuring the distance from his crew-cut to his heels.

"When they molded him, the molder broke the mold," it is said of some people. It could have been said of Saul. He was not only head and shoulders taller than most, he was a head smarter than most. Good brains, originality—always high cards in the game of life. Some people with original minds are quiet, mousy—and un-noticed. If to originality there are added force of character, a quick habit of decision, a forthright approach to all problems—then you have the makings of a great leader. Now Saul started out as such a man. We read of him that a foreign army was besieging the city of Jabesh and threatened to make a "treaty" by putting out the right eye of every man in the town. All Israel heard about it, and there was loud wailing in the land. But when the news came to Saul he did not weep a tear. He took a yoke of oxen, cut them up with his own hands, sent pieces around to every tribe with the message: Be at Jabesh, ready to fight, or have YOUR oxen made into soup meat like this!" It may have been rough, but it got results.

A Modest Patriot

Above all, the Israelites were looking fo a man who loved his country, the whole land and people of Israel. Saul by his action at Gilead had proved himself such a person. He not only would make a sacrifice for his country's sake, he had the ability to inspire others also. He had shown there too that he placed the interests of the tribes as a whole above the interests of any one tribe or city; and that conversely the fate of any one city was the concern of all. Our country could use more patriots of this stripe today, men who like George Washington can see beyond the liimts of their own state and live as citizens of the American Union. We need men who will not be indifferent to the troubles of other parts of our land, who realize that the tragedy or glory of one city is the tragedy or glory of all.

We don't need men who shout and brag about how much they love their country. Senators Snort and Phogbound are always with us; but politics with them is a way of making money without too much work. Patriotism is nothing to be shouted about; it is a quality that shines best in a modest life. Saul at the beginning was almost too self-effacing. The office had to seek him, and that was good. He was king only because the people demanded him and God thru the prophet destined him.

Mud and massive loads stop other trucks—but not this Chevy!

Chevrolet tandem slogs through deep mud to deliver huge load.

F. F. Kirchner, cement block manufacturer of St. Ann, Mo., has this to say about his Chevy 10703 tandem: "Fully loaded we're up over 40,000 lbs. GVW and at most excavation sites we have to move through soft sand and mud . . . My driver tells me he always gets through, too, even where other, bigger trucks can't make it!"

Statements like this are typical of Chevrolet truck owners across the country. Their enthusiasm for Chevrolet's "git-up-and-go" is well founded in fact—they've seen how Chevy tames their toughest jobs in record time.

For your own tough trucking jobs, you'll find Chevrolet has all that it takes, and then some, to get the work done quickly and economically. With stamina to spare, Chevrolet trucks keep on the go day after day. Powerful engines haul maximum loads—hold fuel and maintenance expenses to a minimum. And Chevy's solid build keeps cabs and bodies tight through years of work.

For the right truck and components to handle your tough job, contact your local Chevrolet dealer. He'll prescribe the correct cost-cutting Chevy combination that'll make your toughest job look easy.

LADIES LITERARY CLUB

The Ladies Literary Club met on Wednesday, April 1, at the home of Mrs. William Staman with 11 members and one guest, Mrs. Franklin Sechler, present.

The lesson for the evening was Libraries, Ancient and Modern, presented by Mrs. Carl Sipe. Mrs. Sipe gave some of the history of libraries and described some of the famous modern libraries. The lesson was quite timely since National Library Week is to be observed April 12-18.

Mrs. Harvey Carr conducted the entertainment.

A short business meeting was held and following adjournment, the hostess served light refreshments.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Carl Perkins on April 15.

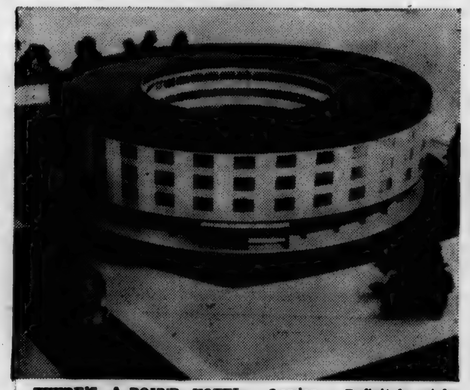
PICTURES OF THE WEEK

GAME ROOM — Washington, D.C. — There's space aplenty for cars and customers in this architect's drawing of the proposed National Stadium for Washington, D.C. With a site at the west end of the East Capitol Street Bridge, the stadium will seat 50,000, cost ten million dollars, and have parking arrangements for 12,500 cars. The Anacostia River is in foreground.

WASHINGTON — This portrait of the late Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, by artist Deane Keller of Hamden, Conn., was unveiled, together with portraits of four other outstanding Senators, in the reception room at the U.S. Capitol. Other portraits to be unveiled are Henry Clay, Kentucky; Daniel Webster, Mass.; John C. Calhoun, S.C.; and Robert M. LaFollette, Sr., Wis.

MERRY-GO-STRAIGHT — Rome — Like a carrousel tired of going around in circles, this wagon train heads straight for greener pastures in Rome. The pedal-powered ponies and their carts are being led by their owner to the Borghese Gardens, where children will be able to take a ride for a small fee.



THERE'S A ROUND HOTEL — London — Definitely not for "squares," this modern, round-shaped hotel is to be built on the Bath Road, a mile from London Airport. It will be Europe's first circular hotel — the ideal place to buy a round of drinks. The unusual hotel will feature 185 bedrooms, each with a bath and shower.

A LIVING DOLL — New York — It's tough to be a toymaker and try to make anything as wonderful as a baby, like this charmer who's helping to publicize a new doll. The plaything is "Baby Bannister," Horsman Dolls' new toy named for famed baby photographer Constance Bannister. The baby is a Bannister model.

Here are four reasons why the Leonard Browns installed ELECTRIC heat in their 50-year-old home!

1 "WE WANTED MORE COMFORT! And we got it," says Mr. Brown. "Now we have an even heat with no more drafts or cold floors. And with electric heat, we have a thermostat in every room. We all feel more comfortable."

2 "WE WANTED MORE LIVING AREA!" According to Mrs. Brown, "Our new electric baseboard heaters are attractive and out of the way. The old stoves took up too much room and were an eyesore."

3 "WE WANTED A CLEANER SYSTEM!" Mrs. Brown finds, "Electric heat does not create any soot or greasy scum."

4 "WE WANTED MORE CONVENIENCE!" Mr. Brown explains, "It was convenient (and economical, too) that we did not have to rebuild our chimney, buy a bulky heating unit, install hot water pipes or hot air ducts, or have yearly inspections."

Do any of these four reasons apply to your home? See your electric heating dealer or call I&M today!

Around the Town

With the Editor

Evidently some people thought we were sorta reckless last week because we were running around as if our Dave didn't have scarlet fever. We were supposed to be practically quarantined, according to some thinking. Well, if it had been 10 or 20 or thirty years ago we would have been. With the drugs we have now, scarlet fever isn't (or shouldn't be) the dreaded thing it once was. The information I have says that pennicillin and sulpha work wonders with the scarlet fever germ knocking it off quite effectively.

Quarantines are a thing of the past, generally speaking. They are not necessary with the advancements in and discoveries made by medical science. Of course, when an epidemic of a sort breaks out, some sort of isolating is resorted to. But for all practical purposes, we weren't doing anything "wrong" last week. Public opinion might say so but only because of the past seriousness of scarlet fever.

Have your kids had "scarletina" lately? If they did, I don't think you worried too much about it. And you didn't stay out of circulation yourself.

What's that got to do with it? Well, scarletina and scarlet fever are the same thing!

There's more reason to worry over measles than there is to be concerned over scarlet fever, presuming that treatment has begun in a reasonable period of time.

Those spelling bees are rough on you. I believe it's almost as nerve-wracking for the parents as it is for the kids. The frustrating part is that when they hesitate, you can think the right letter for them as hard as you can, but they don't hear your silent shouting.

One young lady was practically a nervous wreck during her contest. And the winner of the J-G contest after a real cool and calm display of spelling ability completely broke down when she won, the tension was so great.

Nail biting is a popular pastime at spelling contests.

Friday night Russell and Dean Kruse started off the Ruch auction. After a few sales, Russell handed the next item to the highest bidder. They asked for her name; it was Goodson. Russell repeated the name and looked puzzled. Then his face lit up and he said, "Oh sure, Goodson; I sold her a house! . . . I shouldn't forget those things."

There were a couple of other names that rang a bell for him after a moment of thought, as if he hadn't been here for a while.

Come to think of it, I haven't seen him in town for a while.

Booster Banquet Friday; To Elect

The Booster Club will hold its first annual dinner meeting Friday night, in the basement of St. Mark Lutheran Church in Saint Joe. Dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m. by ladies from the church.

Principal business will be presentation of reports on club activities from the officers and committee members. Election of officers will be held following a report from the nominating committee.

Leon Kees is in charge of reservations. Anyone who has not been contacted for a reservation and who would like to attend the meeting is asked to contact Mr. Kees.

Chicken-Pie Supper

St. Peter's Lutheran Church in Spencerville will be the sponsor of a chicken pie supper to be served Saturday, April 18, starting at 5 p.m. Serving will continue until 8 p.m.

The menu is as follows:

Chicken pie, mashed potatoes and gravy, green beans or corn, tossed salad, bread, butter and coffee. Prices are adults $1.00, children 65c. Pie and cake, 10c and 15c each.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC

Due to the difficulty encountered by the Saint Joe Volunteer Fire Department units in reaching the recent fire at the Keating farm, the department finds it necessary to issue a warning that blocking of roadways is unlawful and drastic action can be taken (such as pushing cars into ditches, moving from the vicinity of fires) to open traffic lanes. The department requests the cooperation of the public so that such measures will not become necessary.

PTA To Elect, Hear Nurse Report Tuesday

The Riverdale P.T.A. will meet Tuesday evening, April 21, at 7:30 p.m. at the high school gym in Saint Joe.

Of interest to Riverdale patrons will be a report from Mrs. Esther Nessel, school nurse for DeKalb County. Mrs. Nessel began her duties in county schools last August and has made examinations and several visits to Riverdale as she has also to other county schools. Her findings and comments on general school health are of concern to all patrons, in particular the parents of Riverdale students.

Election of officers will be held. Recommendations from the nominating committee will be presented and further nominations may be made from the floor.

Entertainment will be provided by the first grade with songs, dances and choral reading, and by the seventh grade with Randy Reinhart and Glenda Sible presenting piano solos, Betty Dilley and Jeannie Stark baton twirling, and Karen Witt and Margaret Keith a vocal duet. Vickie Crow will be the accompanist.

Local News

Clarence Bowers has tendered his resignation as principal of the Waterloo-Grant Twp. School system after 26 years of service in the Waterloo schools. The resignation is effective at the close of the current school year.

Army Sgt. LRoy A. Schendel, whose wife, Mary, and mother, Mrs. Laura Schendel, live in Saint Joe, recently arrived in Germany and is now a member of the 34th Artillery. Sgt. Schendel is a section chief in the artillery's Battery B in Nurnberg. He entered the Army in 1939 and was last stationed at Fort Carson, Colo.

County Attorney Winslow VanHorn has recommended that $2,800 be appropriated to supplement the 1959 salary of the judge of the DeKalb Circuit Court. The recommendation has been adopted by the county board of commissioners. A 1959 Act of the Indiana General Assembly raises the pay of judge in this county to $12,400. The state currently pays the entire $8,400 salary of the DeKalb County judge.

Mrs. Marguerite Hercules, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Milliman of Saint Joe, has received top honors in the field of journalism in the state of Texas. Mrs. Hercules, women's editor of the Tyler Courier-Times-Telegraph, recently won first awards on women's department Sunday section, daily women's pages, editorial and promotion articles. Her winning entries will be entered in national competition next August. She also won second place awards on critical reviews, fashion writing, Sunday women's section and daily women's pages.

The annual Y.M.C.A. and American Red Cross Water Safety and Life Saving Course is now being organized with registrations being recorded at the Auburn Y.M.C.A. All interested applicants are urged to register before April 20, preferably by April 18. This is a strenuous course; each applicant should be an able swimmer. Qualification tests will be conducted on April 20 for women and girls in junior and senior courses. All applicants should be prepared to purchase the Life Saving and Water Safety manual which costs 75c. This is the only expense required to participate in the classes. Instructors are: Harold Snyder for boys, assisted by Jerry Houlton; Mrs. Phyllis Ritenour for women and girls, assisted by Mrs. Harold Snyder.

The Auburn Kiwanis Club will sponsor a championship wrestling show Friday evening, May 15. The show will be held at McIntosh High School gym at 8:30 p.m. The main event will feature Hans Schmidt and Verne Gagne.

Mrs. Stella Doering of Ypsilanti, Mich., was a guest of the Herbert Millers last week. Mrs. Doering is a twin sister of Mrs. Miller's mother, Mrs. Ella Hart, who resides with the Millers.

The best in dancing, singing and comedy are promised to those attending the Butler Business and Professional Women's Club Talent Show at the Butler High School auditorium on April 22 at 8 p.m. Tickets may be obtained at the door for a small donation. Almost all of Butler's civic organizations have entered variety acts to compete for prizes. Proceeds will be used for a civic cause.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Scheele of Fort Wayne were Monday callers in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Merle Coburn and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Wineland and Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Hull visited Fred High at Souder Hospital and Ray Bowman at the county farm Sunday.

On display in the News Office window is a plaque loaned to the local American Legion Post for having obtained 100 per cent of their 1959 membership quota by November 11, 1958.

Gov. Harold Handley has proclaimed May as Indiana's official Vehicle Safety-Check Month. Last year's check revealed one out of every nine vehicles had one or more defects.

Riverdale J-G Speller 4th; Two Get 3rds

Michael Haberkorn didn't reach the pinnacle of success as Riverdale's representative in the DeKalb County eliminations for the Journal-Gazette spelling contest. But he did reach a plateau, then stumbled on it. "Plateau" without an "a" didn't suit the judges, but the local contestant did manage to gain fourth place in a group of nine spellers from the county.

Winner of the J-G contest was Connie Roop of West Richland who correctly spelled "limousine" and followed with "cylinder."

Ashley school dominated the winners' circle with four of the six grade contests going to Ashley students. Two third places also went to Ashley students.

Riverdale received recognition in the grade contests thru the efforts of Keith Kreischer who won third place in the third grade contest and Jimmy Furnish who won third place in the seventh grade contest. Respective parents of the grade placers are Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Kreischer and Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Furnish.

Roger Hess Leaves Sup't Post

Auburn City School Board announced this week the appointment of Roger Hess as principal of McKenney Junior High School in Auburn.

Mr. Hess is currently county superintendent of schools of DeKalb County. He will assume his new duties in the fall of this year with the opening of the new school year.

Mr. Hess has served as superintendent of DeKalb County Schools for the past seven years. Previously he taught at Clear Creek High School in Huntington County and was principal of the Spencer Township school.

His resignation will be formally announced at the May meeting of the DeKalb County Board of Education.

Straying Sheep

Actions may or may not speak louder than words, though there is a saying which indicates that they do. The infuence of words and actions depends a good deal on the person upon whom the words fall or for or against whom the actions are taken. However, there is no arguing the point that what is said and what is done may be two entirely different things.

Americans have the admirable quality of speaking inspiring words for the causes which have been instrumental in fostering what we call the American way. Let anyone undertake a course of action which is obviously a violation of basic freedoms and we have words of indignation and occasionally a show of force to back up the words. We are all champions of freedom, ideally, and I think we are all willing to place ourselves in the elite class which may be called upholders of freedom. And our home base is the United States. However, what is happening to us in this country is a far cry from an appropriate example for others, if we are endeavoring to keep our title of upholders of freedom. The general and basic trend of our country today is away from individual freedom and responsibility and toward group promotion. We don't care particularly how we get what we have nowadays as long as we get it; but once we have it, let no one tell us what to do with it. It isn't as plain as the nose on your face to a lot of people, but it is there: we are too lazy and complacent to assume the job (and it is just that, a job) of freedom. "Let George do it" is the trend.

The state of Michigan is in terrible financial shape. It is a strongly organized state unionwise, and the unions have had a big say-so in state affairs. Michigan reportedly has been pointed to as an example of progressive welfare programs; progressive welfare programs are a prime goal of and a strong selling point for unionism. But now the state is broke and the reason seems to be unsound policies. Following the demands of the people or the power of the people wielded by a few has brought bankruptcy. The distubring thing is that the whole nation is going the same way. Despite the fact that individually we agree that there is no such thing as something for nothing, that you can't keep asking for and receiving more and more without something going wrong, despite the example in a neighboring state, we are rather undisturbed. As long as somebody puts that buck in our pocket, we are satisfied. As long as we are taken care of, whether it is through our own efforts or those of someone to whom we give the responsibility, we are satisfied.

The purpose of unionism is good, protection for the worker. Unionism has gone beyond that stage. It is no longer a matter of job protection; it is now a matter of guaranteed security. The rank and file are not always instigators of perpetual union demands, but they are the force behind the demands no matter where those demands may originate. Leadership is only a small segment of any organization. That small segment can use the force of numbers, however, to make its wishes appear to be the wishes of the majority. Just north of us is an example of what happens under such leadership. The result of constant pushing for greater benefits is shown to be ruin. The nation is headed the same way.

Someday perhaps I'll be eating crow. Maybe things will work out and what appears to be imminent will not come at all. But this is an optimistic thought with little cause for justification. I'm no expert. But it doesn't take an expert to see that what people are saying and what they are doing are two entirely different things, what our state legislators are saying and what they are doing are two entirely different things, what our Congressmen are saying and what they are doing are two entirely different things. What is right has taken a back seat to what is popular.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

Devotional reading: II Samuel 1:17-27.

TRAGIC FAILURE
Lesson for April 19, 1959

King Saul had the makings of success; but he failed. We must not exaggerate his failure, for there were some who remembered him with pride, and even named sons after him. The great Christian apostle Paul had been named Saul by his family, for example. Nevertheless, as kings went, and especially when compared with the great King David, Saul missed the mark. As we were saying last week, he was like a man with a good hand who plays badly and loses the game after all. What went wrong with him?

Voice of God

At a time in his life when a throne would have seemed a fanciful dream, the prophet Samuel had taken Saul secretly, and solemnly poured oil on his head, thus anointing him to be the future king of Israel. This was before the great battle of Jabesh that gave Saul his national reputation. Saul himself may not have taken Samuel's prediction seriously, because he went back to his farming. But after the people voted him in as the first king, Saul would of course remember Samuel and the secret anointing and prophecy. There was no doubt that Saul was convinced that Samuel was a true prophet, that he spoke with the authority of God himself.

Samuel was the one link with God that Saul had. He had no Bible to study, no church to help him, and he himself was anything but a religious genius. David and others seem to have been able to understand God's will by direct revelation; but for Saul, God's voice and will had to come to him through the prophet.

The most serious element in Saul's failure was right here; he stopped caring what the voice of God said. He figured, perhaps, that since God had given him his start, he would be bound to approve whatever he did. He was never more mistaken. God wants his servants to succeed, but if they aim at the wrong kind of success, or if they adopt wicked ways of attaining good goals, he withdraws his support. God is not going to work for and against himself at the same time, and he will not encourage men to do so either.

Voice of Self

Saul made another mistake often made by strong men. It is worse than an ordinary mistake, it is a calamitous error, a sin that tears a man to pieces quickly. It is the sin of listening to his own desires and ambitions first of all. "If I want it, it must be all right' is a silly remark. You would not believe people could be so foolish as to make it. You would not think that any one would set up his own judgment above that of God; but many do. The way their mind works is familiar to all of us because we have all some time or other argued to ourselves just the same way. "Look," we say to ourselves, "of course I listen to the voice of God, and I used to hear him speaking in the Bible or in the Church. But lately I have come to believe that the Bible and the Church don't exactly strike my needs. I believe God will speak to me in my own thoughts." (and more of the same.) You see what this does: it either sets up one's own thoughts as better than God's, or else it identifies one's own thoughts with God's will.

Voice of the Crowd

The third mistake which Saul made was perhaps one of the most common, in our day or any time. It was letting the voice of the crowd speak for God. Pilate made that mistake, and so have countless others. But you can't get right and wrong figured out by arithmetic. What is right to do can never be found out by counting votes. And yet people keep on making that foolish blunder. They read in the Kinsey Report that certain sex sins are widely practiced among the people interviewed by the author; and leap to the conclusion that what so many people do must be right. And so they conclude that what so many people do can't be wrong. They never do ask the question: What does God have to say?

The Annual Mission Study Party sponsored by the Senior von Bora and Katherine von Bora Missionary Societies of St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Auburn will be held Sunday evening, April 19, at 6 p. m. beginning with a typical American carry-in dinner in the basement of the church. At 7 p.m. the congregation and freinds will assemble in the nave of the church for the presentation "A Church Is Born" to be presented by Rev. George W. Schuette, pastor of the church, and former mission developer for the United Lutheran Church, having organized a mission in South Bend before coming to Auburn. The program will follow the step by step process involved in establishing a mission congregation and show the requirements to be met in order for a group of people to become an organized Lutheran Church.

Driver license suspensions include that of Anna Geisinger of Auburn.

The cost per day in Indiana hospitals increased 5.9 per cent from a $23.13 average in 1957 to $24.49 in 1958. Figures released by Blue Cross-Blue Shield showed that the length of stay continues to increase, but at a slower rate.

Around the Town

With the Editor

It always happens that way.

Last week as Mike and I folded papers, we had the radio tuned in to WOWO. An announcement was made of the Juniors' class play that Friday night. The thought went through my head - "radio - - class play - - publicity - - CLASS PLAY! Oh no!"

But it was "oh yeah." Because there lay the type for the Junior Class play, supposed to be in the paper last week, but forgotten.

I KNEW I forgot something but couldn't think of what it was until too late. Does that ever happen to you?

—And I hear the play was a real good one.

Ben and Sandra McCann had their offspring all dolled up for church a couple of weeks ago. Some of the young set who went up to the Kraffts after church to have a look at the baby came away with the description: "A real wild child."

Tommy Bishop has an unusual haircut these days. He has a strip a little off center where he is shaved. The remainder of the hair cut is a "butch."

Mother Barbara was giving Tommy his butch recently and was preparing to use the clippers with the attachment to control the height of the cut. As she proceeded she didn't notice that the attachment fell off. She took a swipe and - - eek! Poor Mother Barbara was beside herself. There was son Tommy with a butch haircut—and a smooth swipe down the middle a little to starboard.

There was nothing to do but let it go at that. And Tommy knows what it means when someone says something about a close shave.

Bob tried to be helpful with a suggestion that didn't get a very warm reception. He said, "Shave it all off and tell everybody he had lice!"

Freshman Bake Sale

The Freshman Class of Riverdale High School will hold a dual bake sale Saturday morning, April 25. The sale will be held at the News Office in Saint Joe and at the Spencerville Shell Station starting at 9:00 a.m.

Maurice Kline Heads Boosters

Maurice Kline was elected president of the Booster Club at a board of directors meeting Monday evening, following a dinner meeting last Friday evening at the Lutheran Church in Saint Joe. Other officers elected are: Ted Haberkorn, secretary- treasurer, and Frank Sechler, publicity. The remainder of the board is composed of Warren Clauser, Eddie Halt and Donald Kinsey.

Twenty-five were present for the dinner meeting Friday. Outgoing president Frank Sechler called upon committees for reports and expressed his appreciation for the cooperation given him during his term as president.

Mr. William Nimmo, district manager for Indiana & Michigan Electric Co., spoke about the importance of community planning and showed a color film on that subject. The film came through the cooperation of the community expansion department of I&M's Fort Wayne office.

Reports from the various committees indicated that progress is being made in the projects undertaken by the club. Work on the public park has begun and will continue as warmer and dryer weather prevails. Included in the plans for the park are provisions for a parking area, one or two foot bridges across the creek running through the park site, recreational facilities for young people, picnic tables, etc.

The work for securing industrial expansion is continuing though no visible results can be seen. The committee has been negotiating with property owners for building sites and is continuing its talks with a Fort Wayne firm which plans expansion. Three towns are under consideration for the expansion and Saint Joe is one of them.

The project for installing curbs and drainage facilities along the main street received a boost with the information from the Indiana Municipal League that Indiana law provides that gas tax money "shall be used" for installation and repair of curbing, along with construction and maintenance of streets.

Present membership in the Booster Club numbers 29. Dues are $12 per year, payable semi-anually or anually. Anyone interested in community progress may join. Membership committee is Eddie Halt, Jack Bowser, Warren Clauser, Bill Vinson and Leon Kees.

Lions To Sell BroomsForBlind; Urge Clean-Up

The week of April 25 thru May 2 has been designated as Clean-Up Fix-Up Week by the Saint Joe Lions Club which seeks the cooperation of area residents in improving the appearance of local properties and the towns of Saint Joe and Spencerville in particular. The week will be climaxed with a broom sale by club members in which brooms, made by the Indiana Association for the Blind will be sold.

Homeowners and homemakers in the area are asked to take particular efforts in gathering and disposing of the usual accumulation of litter that comes with every winter season. For those larger items, such as some of the tree limbs which fell during the heavy winter icing several weeks ago, there will be a pick-up detail at work hauling such larger orders to the dump. Homemakers may set out their accumulation at the street for pick-up by the work detail, if there is no other means of disposing of it.

A similar pick-up will be taken the closing Saturday of the clean-up week.

As a climax the Lions Club will sell brooms on the closing Saturday, May 2. Blind workers make the brooms as a means of earning a living. Service clubs make frequent use of the handiwork of the blind, holding broom sales in many cities and towns. A double purpose will be served by the sale of the brooms. One is that the blind workers will benefit through the sale of their handiwork, helping them to sustain themselves. The other is that the local Lions Club can continue in its sight conservation activities. The club has purchased glasses for several Riverdale students and will continue working in this project. Crossed eyes are another project which the club helps to carry out, helping those who would otherwise not be albe to benefit from corrective surgery.

Residents of Saint Joe and Spencerville are asked to cooperate during the week of April 25 to May 2, sprucing up their property and also being ready to purchase a broom from the blind on Saturday, May 2. Door-to-door canvassing will be done in the broom sale, both in town and in the country.

2 Hurt In Crash

Richard Conley, 21, of Fort Wayne and Donald Butler, 18, of Spencerville were injured, one seriously, Tuesday evening when the car in which they were riding failed to negotiate an s-curve at Orangeville southwest of Newville. Conley, driver of the car, received a broken right arm, broken left ankle, possible fractured ribs, probable internal injuries, shock, bruises and cuts. Butler sustained lacerations on his forehead and right cheek when his head was thrown against the windshield of the car. He also suffered multiple bruises and shock.

State police said the young men were traveling southwest at an excessive speed in a 1955 Mercury owned by Wilbur Conley of Fort Wayne. After making the first half of the s-curve, the car left the pavement on the left side. It traveled 66 feet before bowling over a county highway warning sign. The car then skidded 13 feet, sideswiped a tree, traveled for 74 more feet and plowed headon into a big tree beside the road.

The car was demolished.

State trooper V.E. Osborn said charges would be filed against Conley following further investigation. It was indicated that there was evidence that both young men had been drinking.

Emergency treatment was given at the scene of the accident by a Butler physician. The two young men were taken to Souder Hospital in Auburn.

This Week In AMERICAN HISTORY

BY WILLIAM BRODIE

THE FIRST MOVIES

The moving picture industry was practically born in America on Thursday, April 23 1896. On the evening of that day the first real moving pictures were shown in New York City at Koster & Bial's famous music hall. This was the leading vaudeville theatre in New York, located at 34th Street and Broadway, on the spot where Macy's department store now stands.

From a peep-show cabinet called a "Vitascope" tiny, flickering movies were projected life size upon a screen before the eyes of the delighted audience. Crude though the moving pictures were, they got enthusiastic reception with cries of "Tremendous!" "Sensational!" "Enormous!" from the special top hat, silk tie metropolitan audience that had assembled at Koster & Bial's that evening.

Many men had labored for many years to project pictures upon a screen. The idea, in fact, was centuries old. During the latter part of the 1800's several experiments began to show possibilities of successfully producing "living pictures." About 1890 Thomas A. Edison, the great inventor, developed a peep-show cabinet called a "kinetoscope," for showing moving pictures. In this cabinet about 50 feet of celluloid film revolved on spools. When a coin was dropped in a slot in the cabinet, an electric light was flashed on the film, a tiny motor moved the spools, and the observer peeking through a peep-hole was delighted to see little pictures in motion.

The kinetoscope became very popular. Penny arcade "peep shows" sprang up and the machine was placed in billiard rooms, cigar stores, railway stations, and other places where people gathered. The public, its delight sharpened by these peep shows, was eager for life-size moving pictures, and not only Edison, but other men, were trying their inventive skills at producing the necessary projection machine. Foremost among them was Thomas Armat.

Thomas Armat was a well-to-do young man from Virginia. He worked in a real estate office in Washington, D. C., but he was largely interested in scientific invention. For several years he experimented to invent a projection machine that would be an improvement over the kinetoscope and be able to throw life-size moving pictures on a screen. In 1895 he got such a machine built and gave exhibitions with it. He called it the "Vitascope" (living pictures). It was crude, but it worked.

Armat, the inventor, was brought into the Edison organization, and the Vitascope was manufactured and sold under the Edison trade name. And it was Thomas Armat who supervised the projection of those first screen motion pictures shown on Broadway with his Vitascope on April 23, 1896 at Koster & Bial's Music Hall.

It proved to be an historic occasion. The great Edison sat in a box in the Music Hall that evening and he, too, was delighted with the moving pictures shown. The short films, none over 50 feet long, were crude, they flickered, and ran only a few minutes each under such titles as: "Sea Waves," "Umbrella Dance," "Burlesque Boxing," "The Bar Room," etc. But the sophisticated viewers were delighted with the reality of life-size living pictures flashed before their eyes. So realistic did the pictures appear at that time that when the sea waves came rolling in on the screen there was a flurry of panic in the front seats.

The moving pictures became an immediate favorite with the public. Orders poured in for "living pictures" Vitascopes from vaudeville and variety theatres. And in this manner the "Magic Shadows" of the past years became moving pictures with all their amazing power and universal appeal. The wonderful invention to bring entertainment and romance into the lives of the common people had arrived.

Brass Tacks - 14th In A Series

The price of living in our country today brings frequent thoughts that there is a need for a revamped tax system. Certainly that sounds good to everyone, but there is no getting around the necessity for raising the same enormous amounts of money to carry on the programs we have instituted in our system of government. Somehow, reorganizing the tax system sounds as if all of us would benefit in some way, meaning we wouldn't have to pay as much in taxes as we now do. How can this come about if we still need the same amount of money? Actually what would be accomplished, or would be intended as the accomplishment in a tax reform as we think of it today, would be a more equitable system of taxation.

There are some things that would have to be overcome and the primary thing is the idea that ability to pay is a prime consideration in establishing a tax system. I read the parable of the talents the other night and three significant ideas seemed to be given to mankind in that parable. The first was that here is divine justification for the capitalistic system. The lesson given in the parable points out that the person who increased twofold that which was originally given to him was richly rewarded for having made good use of his talents, whether "talents" is taken in its meaning as a unit of monetary value or in another meaning refering to individual abilities. Either way the increase made through using these talents was rewarded. Second, the number of talents alone did not determine how well the person used them, the number given to one person in relation to the number given to another. The determining factor was the resultant number compared to the original number held by the same person. The person with five talents, acording to Scripture, increased his to ten; the person with two increased his to four. Both were given even greater reward. The third significant revelation was that an unused talent is taken away. In the Scripture text the one talent given the third person, the talent which he buried and did not use, returning it to his lord with neither increase nor decrease, was given to the person who had increased his talents. This seems significant to me. The person who had made more with what had been given to him was not penalized for his ambition; indeed, he got what had originally been given to another.

Ours is a Christian nation. We would like to be headed in the right direction. It doesn't seem to me that we are headed rightly when we tax more heavily the man who has made greater gain than his neighbor. Yet today's income tax pattern in this country shows a rising percentage paid by the individual when he has a rising income. Perhaps there is practical justification for asking a higher percentage from the talent-users, but not to the extent to which we ask them today. As long as we think in terms of greater taxation for the greater income, there will be little headway made in setting up a more equitable tax system; "soak the rich" is not an attribue of equity. Men must first think in terms of equality and of just rewards. If we would be a nation of divine purpose, we must seek divine inspiration.

It may seem strange to be mixing Christianity with income tax, but then, what is meant by "a Living Faith"?

PTA Elects Pres For 3rd Term

150 to 175 parents, teachers and students attend the Riverdale P.T.A. meeting in the high school gym Tuesday evening. Mrs. Esther Nessel, county school nurse, was the guest speaker.

Election of officers was held with the organization re-electing Ted Haberkorn to his third term as president. Mrs. April Davis was elected vice-president. Secretary for the coming year will be Mrs. Loretta Musser with the treasury to be handled by Mrs. Virginia Laux.

Entertainment was provided by the first and seventh grades.

Mrs. Nessel reviewed the work of the past school year telling of the problems that are faced by the teachers and the students as far as student health is concerned. She remarked about the happy results obtained in the eye tests telling of the students' favorable reactions at being able to see better.

Mrs. Nessel told of a few cases in the county where a physical or mental handcap was uncovered and of the assistance that was being given and yet to be given to the children to help them be better students and happier students.

Achievement Night will be held in May, the exact date yet to be announced. On this night students will receive recognition for outstanding accomplishments in the various departments of learning and in extra-curricular activities.

BY A WATERFALL — Washington, D.C. — The quaint houses and the lovely waterfall lend enchantment to this old-world scene in modern Washington, D.C. Riders on horseback jog through the quiet streets of the picturesque Georgetown section of the city to view the falls created at the locks.

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — 2 yr. old Jimmy Dowling, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Dowling of Providence, wears an ecstatic expression as he puffs his daily cigarette at the home of his parents. His mother says she doesn't know how he started smoking but believes he is trying to imitate his parents.

ROAD HOGS? — Nashville, Tenn. — Living nicely in the trunk of a car, these youngsters make happy little pigs of themselves at a reasonable facsimile of mother in Nashville. They're helped by Fred Scott, a caretaker at Cumberland School, who decided to raise the porkers when their mother died.

Ray Miller, ASC chairman, has reminded farmers to "check your storage." He points out that the price-support program means nothing to the farmer who has no adequate place in which to store his crop. Crops under loan must be stored in approved facilities - either commercial or on the farm, and good storage is also essential for a crop covered by a purchase agreement if the crop is to meet eligibility requirements for later purchase by the government under the price-support program.

The second biennial Scout Circus will be held April 25 at the Coliseum in Fort Wayne. Two performances will be presented, a matinee at 2:30 p.m. and an evening show at 7:30 p.m. Over 5,000 Boy Scouts, Cubs, Explorers and adult leaders from nine northeastern Indiana counties will participate.

"We invested in solid comfort when we bought our new ALL-ELECTRIC home,"

Says Mr. Joseph Mesalam

"The cost? Only $46.52 each month, and we heat 2,200 square feet of living area!" The Mesalam family pays on the convenient I&M budget plan.

"To me, solid comfort means the ability to do what is profitable and fun and let electricity do the rest of the work. My family receives a lot of enjoyment operating our roller skating rink. But we wouldn't have much time for the rink if it weren't for our electric helpers. Clean electric heat, the automatic washer and electric dryer, the wonderful electric surface units and wall oven, and countless other electric appliances help us quickly accomplish most household tasks."

Reddy says: "I&M electric rates have never been increased. If your electric bill is higher, it's because you're using electricity to take over so many more of your household tasks. Actually, the more you use each month, the less you pay per kilowatthour. Living better electrically costs so little, yet means so much."

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Bible material : I Samuel 16; 1 through 18-16.

Devotional reading: Psalm 3.

A MAN RISES

Lesson for April 26, 1959

(Note to the reader: if you attend Sunday school, you may use a "quarterly" or other book which prints a certain passage of Scripture as the lesson. These printed passages are always taken from the larger amount of Bible material which is referred to at the head of this page. This column is not confined to the printed verses, but is based in general on the whole material, or some part of it which may not be in the printed section. The reader is always invited to read the entire Bible material and not the necessarily small amount which may be printed in the quarterly or used here.)

Success Begins Within

Among the successful men of history, David the king of Israel takes a high rank. There are always reasons outside a man who succeeds, helping his success. Would Abraham Lincoln have achieved his peak of greatness had he lived in 17th-century England or in 20th century America? Would John Calvin have the same world-wide influence as pastor of any modern Presbyterian church as he had in the Geneva, of the sixteenth century? Would David have made a good President of the United States? The answer in each case is No.

Nevertheless, circumstances only help on what is already there. A man without the seeds of success in him is not going to be pushed to a high pinnacle of glory merely because the times are calling for a great man. Thus, to find the secret of David's success, as with all other great persons, we must look within.

"Such Popularity Must Be Deserved"

I Samuel 18 brings out the fact of David's tremendous popularity when it was at its peak. Everybody loved David excepting King Saul, who was mad with jealousy. And no wonedr. It would have taken a better man than Saul not to be jealous. The king's own son Jonathan loved David "as his own soul." He gave David his crown prince's robe, his armor, even his sword and his bow and arrows. The soldiers loved David, because with him for a leader they always won their battles. The people loved him; he was a popular hero, nothing was too good for him. The women loved him and sang songs about him, what a killer he was. Furthermore, God was with him; and so he succeeded in everything he did.

We have the record (I Sam. 16:18) of how the young man David looked to another young man, perhaps about his age. The king was looking for a lyre-player, a lyre being a small harp held in the hand. The young man who gave David the recommendation that got him the job saw a great deal more in him than simply a country musician. He mentions David's family first of all; and from what we know of it (see the book of Ruth) it was a very solid country family from generations back. Then he speaks of his high musical ability, but goes right on to other good points.

A Good Personality Has Many Sides

The young man recommending David proceeds to say that he is a "man of war." This may have been an exaggeration, in the light of all the rest of the story. Or maybe the young man meant to say, "If you ever need a fighting man, just call on David." David was the rugged character we associate with the good soldier. We have his own word for it that he had killed lions and bears with his own hands ("caught him by the beard," he said). But David was smooth as well as rugged. His friends call him "prudent in speech" —which is more than can be said of all young people. But the climax of the recommendation was: "the Lord is with him." God is always invisible; yet this young man was impressed by a fact which he could not "see" at all; the fact that David was never alone, God was always with him. A person who makes that kind of impression, and is really that kind of person, has a greater certainty of success than if he were endorsed by a President.

THE CAR (Chevy, of course) THAT'S WANTED (like no other car around)
FOR ALL ITS WORTH (you couldn't want a car worth more)

Now—thanks to what Chevy wraps into one sweet low-priced package—there's no reason to compromise between the car you've always wanted and the one you can afford.

Even as it sits in your dealer's showroom this new Chevrolet shows its worth in wonderful new ways—the fresh cut of its silhouette, the clean sweep of its new areas of visibility, the luster of its longer lasting finish. And a look inside reveals the roominess of its new Body by Fisher, the tasteful way its upholstery extends snug to the windows, even the convenience of crank-operated ventipanes. But the real clincher will come out on the road when you feel Chevy's cream-smooth ride, its sure-gripping Safety-Master brakes, its cocked-pistol reflexes.

The plain truth is, a visit with your Chevrolet dealer has never been so worth your while.

MORE DOCTORS, DENTISTS AND NURSES FOR HOOSIERS — The new Medical Sciences Building at the Indiana University Medical Center in Indianapolis, dedicated April 22, is designed to provide expansion in the training of medical, dental and nursing students. Heretofore, the University has been limited by space in increasing the number of students admitted to the three fields of training. Recommended by a State Legislative commission in 1952, the new building has been under construction for three and a half years and is described as the most modern structure of its type in the United States.

Lions Attend State Convention

Four members of the Saint Joe Lions Club and their wives attended the state convention of Lionism April 3, 4 & 5 at South Bend. Attending were Mr. and Mrs. Blaine Kimes, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Kimes, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Billow and Mr and Mrs. Ted Haberkorn.

The local club members attended the convention as delegates and participated in the elections held during the convention. Two candidates were from the Auburn Lions Club. George Sockrider was successful in his campaign to gain the office of state comptroller. Lawrence Wible was defeated in the race for district governor for District 25-B.

Mr. Haberkorn conducted a forum discussion for club secretary's and bulletin editors during the convention.

NEWVILLE FUTURE JETS 4-H CLUB

The third meeting of the Future Jets was held March 23 at 7:30 p.m. "Home On the Range" and "Caissons Go Rolling Along" were sung by the group. Sharon Boylan gave a religious thought.

Roll call was taken by answering with the member's address. Old and new business were discussed. Health and Safety was given by Beth Fields.

The fourth meeting was held April 6. Pledges were given to the flags. "Jacobs Ladder" and "Battle Hymn of the Republic" were sung by the group. Religious thought was given by Judy Inlow.

Roll call was taken with member's favorite bird. Karen and Sharon Boylan gave demonstrations.

Around the Town

With the Editor

The Lions Club got a helping hand, or I should say several helping hands, from the younger generation in the community Saturday. An even dozen boys and girls eventually accumulated on Sechler's truck as we went around the streets of Saint Joe Saturday. The kids had a world of enthusiasm which had to be channeled in the right direction occasionally. For instance, it was more fun just standing in the truck bed or on the running board than it was to stoop over all the time picking up paper and broken glass and scrap metal and tin cans, etc., etc. But they managed to do a pretty good job of it. One block that looked a mess when we started was the one in front of the school. With the paper tossed away thoughtlessly, gum wrappers, ice cream wrappers, candy wrappers, and just pieces of paper, the school block looked as if a snow storm had hit it. And there were a couple of piles of plaster laying along the road, all of which we didn't get. But at least for a few hours, you could see that the grass IS green across from the school.

And the inhabitants of the cemetery certainly have bad habits. Not only do they apparently enjoy such things as tomato juice and home canned goods, but they also have mortal habits, like tossing the empty cans over the little hill along the road. I don't know where they buy those canned goods. The cans are on the fancy side, having tin foil wrapped around them. I haven't seen the likes of them on Clauser's or Vinson's shelves.

We must have worked 20 minutes in that one little corner at the cemetery picking up the tin cans and glass jars.

Typical comments heard from the kids were:

"Man, here's a whole bunch of lady bugs!"

"I cut my finger!"

"Can I ride on the running board?"

"YEAAAYYYY!" - this comment coming when I said, "When we finish this street, we'll get a malt at the dairy."

That bunch of good citizens who helped Saturday included all the Stiver kids, Becky, Bob, John, Ricky and Denny; Larry Kinsey; Debbie Myers; Eddie Myers; Denny Miller; and the Haberkorn kids, Mike, Dave and Phil.

Say, it'st pretty nice the way things work out, isn't it? With spring at hand and all the promoting of cleaning up and community improving, in come the state trucks and grader to level off the sides of the highway through town. Everything kinda fits together. Now if we can just get that curb in - - -.

Broom Sale Saturday Aids Sight Programs

Clean-up fix-up paint-up week will come to a climax locally this week end with the Saint Joe Lions Club scheduled to make a final pick-up of debris from yards and streets in Saint Joe and Spencerville Saturday.

The clean-up week began last Saturday with a truck making the rounds of Saint Joe with assistance given by a dozen of the younger set who enthusiastically showed the older generation that they are good for something. The group worked from about 10:30 Saturday morning until approximately 3:30 p.m. Saturday afternoon picking up limbs, tin cans and other debris from yards and streets.

Cooperation of local residents was noted as the truck made the rounds, with a few homeowners seen doing yard work and hauling their own clean-up collection to the dump.

As a climax to the week of cleaning up the community, the Lions Club will sponsor the sale of brooms. The sale will be held Saturday with Lions Club members making a house to house canvass. The sale will extend also into the countryside with cars or trucks to make solicitations from farm folk. The club asks the community to purchase the brooms which are made by workers in the blind rehabilitation service in Indianapolis. The brooms are just one of the items made by blind people in their effort to help themselves. The purchase of one of these brooms helps a blind person earn a living.

Price of the household brooms is $1.60. There will also be available a warehouse type broom suitable for farm use. This broom will sell for $1.98.

The sale of the brooms will serve a double purpose. While the purchase of the brooms helps the blind to earn a living, the profits from the sale also help the local Lions Club continue in its program of sight conservation assistance. With several pair of glasses already purchased for school children whose families were at present unable to provide for their own, and further sight conservation work being done through the straightening of crossed eyes, the cooperation of town and country folk will help continue this worthy work in the community.

Purchase of a broom provides a useful item for the home, a source of income for the blind and funds for continuing a program of sight conservation assistance in this community.

Brooms also will be available at Fisher's Market in Spencerville and Halt Furniture and Hardware, Vinson's Market and Clauser's Trading Post in Saint Joe.

Club Says: Everyone Can Be A 'Booster'

Though the Booster Club of Saint Joe has a set fee as its membership dues, club officers are hasty point point out that anyone can be a "booster" in the community. Official business of the club is carried on through the efforts of the dues-paying members, but the cooperation of all citizens is needed to bring quicker and greater improvements to Saint Joe.

To carry on a program of community betterment involving projects which such a club may undertake, it is necessary to have money in the club treasury. While the dues of $12 per year may not seem too high to some, they may yet work a hardship on others who support the ideas of the club but who feel that they just cannot afford the club's dues. These persons are just as necessary to the club's success as are the members themselves; in some instances they become more important. Thus, there should be little reluctance to submit suggestions and ideas to the club regarding projects which it has or has not undertaken.

As weather permits, and with one day of sunshine followed by six of rain and clouds lately it doesn't seem as if weather will permit much, work on the public park will increase in tempo. Men and boys in the community are asked to keep in mind that they can be "Boosters" whether or not they carry a little white Booster membership card by helping in park work when the call for help is forthcoming.

The aims of the Booster Club are the aims of the citizens of the community. The club exists through community needs as expressed by the people in the community. It should receive the support of those people. The more help forthcoming, the quicker and easier are community improvements achieved.

Excess Street Surface Removed

Rain slowed work being done on State Highway 1 thru Saint Joe Tuesday morning. Trucks and grader had begun scraping and hauling excess road surfacing from the apron along the main street at the beginning of the week. But sunny weather Wednesday brought a full work schedule and the layers of gravel and hard surfacing once again were broken up and removed. The build-up had become a hindrance to good drainage of surface water in some places.

The work will include the highway apron from one end of town to another, according to an unofficial report.

Rec'n Club Meets Thursday

The Saint Joe Valley Recreation Club will hold a meeting next Thursday evening, May 7, at 8:00 p.m. The meeting will be held at the Riverdale High School in Saint Joe.

Plans will be inaugurated for the summer season of activity at the local ball diamond. All team sponsors and managers should be present from all leagues to assist in planning for the summer.

Refreshments will be served.

This Week In AMERICAN HISTORY

BY WILLIAM BRODIE

CAPTURE OF NEW ORLEANS

On the morning of April 29, 1862 a detachment of U.S. Marines marched into the Custom House at New Orleans while a sullen crowd looked on. Down came the Confederate flag and up fluttered the Stars and Stripes. Soon the Confederate flag at the City Hall was also replaced. New Orleans, "Queen City of the South," its biggest port, naval base and cotton center, was now a captured city, fallen to the Union fleet of Admiral David Glasgow Farragut.

Farragut, then in his 61st year, had been in the naval service since childhood. Himself a Southerner, a native of Tennessee, he had refused to join the Confederate forces, preferring to remain loyal to the Union. "Mind what I tell you," he said to those who had tried to induce him to join the rebels, "you follows will catch the devil before you get through with this business." And they were to catch it in a big way from Farragut at New Orleans.

On the 16th of April, 1862 Admiral Farragut's fleet of 46 ships, composed of frigates, sloops, gunboats and mortar ships, crossed the sand bar at the mouth of the Mississippi. Ahead, at the big bend of the river 70 miles below New Orleans were two forts, Jackson and St. Philip, one on either side of the river. Between these forts stretched a heavy chain cable supported upon rafts. And above that were fire rafts and a Confederate flotilla of rams and gunboats commanded by Captain John K. Mitchell.

The heavier armament and better equipment was on the Union side. Farragut's mortar ships were commanded by Captain David Dixon Porter, son of the famous naval commander, David Porter, under whom Farragut had served his naval apprenticeship. Each mortar ship carried a huge 11-inch mortar that threw a 200 pound shell more than two miles.

The bombardment of the forts began on April 18, with their batteries replying furiously. For five days and nights the artillery thundered. On the night of April 20 a Union ship snapped the cable blocking the river and left the channel free. Early in the morning of the 24th, in the darkness before dawn, the Union fleet forced the river passage against the forts. The fleet moved forward in two columns, Farragut leading one column in his flagship, the Hartford.

The burning fire rafts sent down on the Union ships lit up the darkness with a lurid glare. The shells from the thundering cannon of the ships and forts, bursting in mid air as they crossed paths, made it seem like a battle in the sky. The fleet had a rough time. One ship was sunk, another badly crushed by a ram, and the Hartford was set on fire by a raft steaming a blaze a hundred feet high. But the fire was put out, the ship got by safely, and by daylight the fleet had passed the forts whose guns had been silenced. The Confederate boats above the forts were all sunk or captured after a brave but hopeless fight, and the way was now clear for the capture of New Orleans. The proudest city and chief port of the South lay at the mercy of Farragut's fleet.

The small garrison fled the city, leaving the population panic-stricken. Women and children ran sobbing and screaming through the streets. Disorder and panic, overriding a sullen defiance, took over the city. Thousands of cotton bales and stores of goods along the wharves were set on fire, lighting up river and shore in a huge blaze shattered with terrific explosions. On April 29, 1862, under cover of the Union fleet's guns, the Confederate flags over the city's main buildings were hauled down and the Union flag hoisted. Next day the Union army commanded by General B. F. Butler arrived and took possession.

Farragut's victory was a cruel blow to the South. The gateway to the Mississippi had fallen and, as the Confederate ambassador in London, James B. Mason, correctly said, "It has struck our cause a fatal blow."

Signs of the Times

Current events seem to follow a pattern of a rash of this followed by a rash of that. Right now there seems to be a rash of publicity given to the plight of the medical professional with regard to the suits that are filed against its members. A nationally distributed magazine just completed publication of a series of three articles on the high cost of malpractice suits, the cost to the profession and eventually to the public.

Frequent articles are seen elsewhere in newspapers and magazines about the same subject, the number and cost of suits filed against physicians and surgeons and the costs also of out-of-court settlements. Quite a bit of analyzing has been done in these articles to try to determine what caused the breakdown in the doctor-patient relationship leading to the "sue him" attitude prevalent today. A complete analysis comes to one conclusion: people infect people, figuratively speaking.

Gone are the days, or so it seems, when "the family doctor" was the rule rather than the exception. Today's pattern in medicine seems to be following the line of specialization. Some of this is due to changing patterns of treatment and improvements in the drugs that are used and greater effectiveness from the procedures that are followed. Some of it might be due to the doctor's desire to gain a degree of protection from specialization, narrowing his field of endeavor to narrow the chance for error to some extent, while yet serving the health needs of people. This then leads to a set pattern of procedure, office appointments, definite time commitments, a business day similar to that of other professions or businesses. Unfortunately, something gets lost in the process, breaking down the doctor-patient relationship. That something is confidence.

Whose fault is it? Some will say, "The doctor ought to be satisfied with his duty to be on call 24 hours a day. That's his job. Specializing has made him less a personal consultant and more just an office to go to." This would be the patient's side. The doctor's side could be this: "People everywhere are themselves becoming specialists. They want definite duties placed before them, they want definite hours, definite pay, plenty of leisure time, little to deter them from partaking of enjoyment as it pleases them, everything set and secure. I would like a little of the same. I am expected to be perfect in all that I do. There is no reason for my making a mistake, in the eyes of the patient. I have less chance for mistakes in my office. The patient wants to be made good as new when he sees me so that he won't miss out on anything. I am human enough to see that this is a nice way to have; I'd like a little of it, too. So my office is open from 9 to 4; see my secretary for an appointment. If I seem impersonal, please excuse me; when my patient sues me, or is of the attitude that means a lawsuit over the least little thing, I am afraid that the 'personal' relationship has already been destroyed."

I am one who weeps at the scarcity of the general practitioner, the G.P. who brings our sons and daughters into the world and who knows them until they have children of their own. The ratio of people to doctors is overwhelming; G.P.'s are to few and specialists too many (or so it seems). I wish we all could call more of them "our family doctor."

But if they seek to specialize and consequently gain an apparent aloofness, can we blame them? The layman CAN infect the doctor.

Pre-School Day

Children in the Riverdale School Corporation who will enter the first grade next fall will attend school at the elementary grades on Friday, May 1. The visitation day is held annualy so that the new school students will have an opportunity to get acquainted with school routine.

All children of the Riverdale School District who will be six years old on or before October 10, 1959, are invited to the Pre-School Day visit to the first grade. School begins at 8 a.m. (CST). Children may ride on the school bus passing nearest their home. Lunch will be served in the cafeteria free of charge. Parents may then call for children at 1:00 p.m. (CST) or arrange to have a neighbor or friend bring them home.

Each child should bring his or her birth certificate and the following information:

Name, address, age, date of birth, parent's name, occupation, telephone number, resident of what township, birthplace of child and bus driver's name.

PICTURES OF THE WEEK

ENOUGH TO GO "ROUND" — Rogers Mesa, Colo. — The problem of feeding these 17 Springer Spaniel pups, all born in the same litter, is solved in ingenious fashion by farmer Melvin White here. White sliced an old automobile tire in half to provide this clever circular "trough" for the pups. The 17 hungry pooches feed on the mixture of milk and dog food with plenty of "elbow room" for all.

WEST LEBANON, N.H. — "Who's getting lunch in my bath tub?" say the sad eyes of Dixie, a Boston bull terrier belonging to Mrs. Arthur Tisdale. The 'who' in the sink is a horned grebe which Mrs. Tisdale's son found. Mrs. Tisdale feeds the visitor tasty minnows for breakfast, lunch and dinner...and as soon as the weather warms up, the visitor will receive an eviction notice.

FLAG BUSINESS FLAGGING — Miami, Fla. — As Congress voted admission of Hawaii to the Union as the 50th state, the market for 49-star flags slumped to zero. Surrounded by worthless "49ers," man in rear of this room watches Mrs. Ray Drexler look [illegible] Star flag

LIFE TIME — Chicago, Ill. — Fashioned from a wrist watch, this tiny, three-ounce mechanism counts the number of human heart-beats over a 24-hour period. Demonstrated in Chicago, the counter was developed by engineers belonging to an organization called SAVE (Service Activities of Voluntary Engineers) as an important research tool for doctors.

Luth'n World Action Is Far-Reaching

When members of the Saint Joe and Spencerville Lutheran congregations join with 11,000 other Lutheran congregations across the nation on May 10 in celebrating Lutheran World Action Sunday, their gifts will start chain reactions of love around the globe.

In East Germany a Lutheran pastor will be better able to reach his scattered parishioners by riding on motor bicycle provided through Lutheran World Action funds. In Austria a Hungarian refugee couple will be interviewed for emigration to a new land of opportunity.

In Poland a hungry, tired pastor's family will receive financial support.

In Jordan an Arab refugee child will be proud of her first new dress on her first day of school. In Tanganyika, East Africa, a small boy will be enabled to learn the magic of reading and writing. In Northern Africa a radio station will be planned to broadcast the Gospel. In Hong Kong, refugees from Communist China will wait patiently in line, knowing that they will receive something substantial to eat.

In Japan as in other spots around the world, American servicemen will be welcomed and wholesomely entertained by one of the many Lutheran Service Centers.

In Australia, where half the Lutheran population is newly immigrated, vitally needed church buildings will be financed. In Brazil new avenues for the distribution of relief materials to drought stricken areas will be explored and developed.

All of these activities and many more, reaching into 80 countries and territories, will be made possible through this year's Lutheran World Action funds. National goal for this year's appeal totals $3,900,000 with the local congregations aiming for $300.00

Since 1939 Lutherans in America have raised more than $53 million through LWA. The local churches' contributions have reached $2,000.00 in the past 10 years.

Of the 1959 LWA goal, about two-thirds of the budget will go towards the activities of the Lutheran World Federation. Of this $986,720 will support World Service projects which aid churches behind the iron curtain with such activities as supplying Bibles, repairing worship centers, and providing scholarships to Christian young people. In addition LWF-WS grants inter-church aid thru revolving loan funds which enable churches to help themselves.

World missions in Tanganyika, Indonesia, New Guinea, India, Jordan, Hong Kong, South Africa and Ethiopia are also supported thru $1,200,000 of LWF allocated funds. Programs of evangelism and education in these areas are aimed at the formtion of eventually autonomous churches.

Luthern churches and missions of Latin America will be given $150,000, and the Federation's program of theological cooperation, $30,000. In addition, $134,700 of the LWA total will go to the Nation Lutheran Council's Division of LWF Affairs.

Lutheran World Relief, the material aid agency of the NLC and the Lutheran Church - Missouri Synod, will receive $350,000 for its work in processing and distributing used clothing. In the past year LWR has gathered more than 4½ million pounds of relief clothing, contributed by Lutherans in America for needy people in a dozen countries.

Members of the Saint Joe and Spencerville congregations have contributed over 500 pounds of used clothing during the past twelve months, including such items as clothes, shoes and bedding.

LWR will also expend $240,000 for the distribution of government-donated surplus foods in areas of need. More than 170 million pounds of such commodities were shipped through LWR during 1958. A total of $365,000 has been allocated to the NLC's ministry to the armed forces through its Bureau of Service to Military Personnel and the Lutheran Service Commission, which is an agency of the Council and the Missouri Synod. In addition $27,800 will go toward the NLC's work in ministering to temporary communities in the U. S., $62,800 will go for NLC services, and $179,600 will be designated for educational and promotional expenses.

One LWA dollar will provide 300 pounds of food in an area of need.

Lutheran World Action is the annual appeal of the National Lutheran Council. Included are the American Lutheran Church, the Augustana Lutheran Church, the Evangelical Lutheran Church, the United Lutheran Church in America; the American Evangelical Lutheran Church, the Lutheran Free Church, the Suomi Synod and the United Evangelical Lutheran Church.

BIG EXECUTIVE

Lesson for May 3, 1959

David, as King of Israel, would not make nearly so large a splash in the modern world as he did in his time. For one thing, his kingdom was a large one, for him, but in our times it would seem to be pretty small. At its greatest extent it measured only about 350 miles north to south, and an average of about 120 east to west. Lay that down alongside the map of your own state, and it will not look enormous. Furthermore, kings are very unpopular nowadays. We cherish the few that are left, but more as curiosities than as vital necessities.

Nevertheless, this ancient freebooter who rose to a throne, who hacked a kingdom out of the wrecks of other kingdoms, was a man of such strength of character personally that he has remained a figure of romance and religion combined, for centuries. It would not do us much good to think of him as king. Still, most Americans do cherish the ambition of some day becoming an executive, the bigger the better; and we can do ourselves some good by thinking of David as a good example of a big executive.

For the People

The executive will always be with us. Whether you are operating a lifeboat or an orchestra or a college or a steel plant, there has to be a boss of some kind. People may not like particular bosses, but a man who thinks we'd better abolish all bosses doesn't know what he's talking about. The ancient king, like the modern business executive, is the policy-maker, he makes the decisions that affect his whole business. If he is any good, he is worth his extra salary. But what makes a boss a good one? Of course he should know the business well, from the inside; and David surely did. He knew the land and the people. He was an experienced guerilla fighter. He had been trained in the leadership of smaller units before he took high command. He knew what the people needed, having come up from the ranks, he knew what they thought and what they wanted and how they lived. It is said of him that he "administered justice and equity to all his people." Some kings have used their power for themselves; David used his for his people.

Public Relations

David was no Hitler, perpetually unsatisfied so long as another country was left unconquered. He dreamed no dreams of world-empire. His territory for those days was ample, and larger than most. We read of his friendly relations with other kingdoms on various borders. Now that is another mark of the good executive; he not only uses his position for the public good, but he maintains good "public relations" in every direction. Nowadays every business of any size, including educational institutions, will have a public-relations director. This is not mere advertising. Whatever good your outfit may be able to do, it can do its job better if its aims are understood.

Under God

David was first and last a religious man. He learned some hard lessons the hard way; one of these was that not even a king can be above the law of God. His kingdom, strictly speaking, was not his own; it was God's kingdom which he was expected to manage as God's representative. The people he ruled were God's people before they were his. Like all kings he came and went; only God remains forever. God is King of Kings, Lord of Lords. When J. B. Phillips came to translate Ephesians 6:9, he had a happy thought. Turning what Paul writes into the forms of the 20th century, he remembers that "master" and "slave" are no longer realistic words. So he has Paul warn employers: Remember that you are responsible to a Heavenly Employer! High office, whether it is in a business firm, a manufacturing plant, a university or in a political position, is not only a public trust but it is a responsibility under God.

AMERICAN HISTORY

BY WILLIAM BRODIE

WALT WHITMAN ANNIVERSARY

America lost her great poet of democracy on March 26, 1892 when Walt Whitman died in his seventy-third year. The "Good Gray Poet" passed away in illness and poverty in his humble home in Mickle Street, Camden, New Jersey. Now the house is a museum to his memory.

Walt Whitman composed poetry, "singing the songs democratic," about America and her people much as the prophets of the Old Testament sang about the Hebrew people. In vigorous stanzas he told of the joys and sorrows, the work, play, loves and hates of the "average man." He dedicated his poetic messages to the "powerful uneducated persons" whose company he preferred.

Walt Whitman was born on Long Island, New York, in May of 1819 to a poor family of English, Welsh and Dutch ancestry. He grew up in Brooklyn where he went to school until his twelfth year. In his youth he learned carpentry and printing. Working as a printer's apprentice in a newspaper office developed his urge to write.

He grew up big and strong, full of muscular vigor and the love of life and people. He was a country school teacher, a typesetter, a newspaper reporter and editor. In between times he worked as a carpenter, when he wasn't wandering over Long Island, talking to farmers, boatmen, fishermen. He read a lot. But largely he rounded out his search for education, his longing for the deeper knowledge of life, by talking to common men in the streets and cafes, street cars and ferries. In this way he soaked up the color and vigor of life.

After quitting the job of editor of the Brooklyn Daily Eagle because his liberal views and strong stand against slavery angered the owners, he went to New Orleans to work on a newspaper but did not stay there long. He wandered through the South and Middle West before returning to Brooklyn where again he worked at newspaper writing and did odd jobs to earn a living. He wore a beard now and looked older than his years.

His collected poems, which he published under the title of Leaves of Grass came out on July 4, 1855. It was to be his major work, and he planned it as a book of poetry that would be a picture of the flesh and blood of life. For that he gave frank treatment of nature and the human body and wove bold pictures and ringing melodies in words. His message was to love life, not to be afraid; to believe in the individual, in democracy, in the future of America.

Leaves of Grass was denounced by many as vulgar and immoral. John Greenleaf Whittier threw his copy in the fire. But a few, Emerson and Thoreau among them, recognized Whitman's genius. Their encouragement helped him to revise Leaves of Grass in several later editions.

During the Civil War Walt Whitman served as a volunteer nurse comforting the wounded in the army hospitals in Washington. He was now a gray, middle-aged man, with a dignity and serenity of bearing that made him an outstanding figure. President Lincoln, when he saw Walt Whitman pass by, said, "There is a Man!"

The war had a deep effect on him and he expressed his feelings in "Drum Taps" (1865). On Lincoln's death, Whitman's "O Captain! My Captain!" and his great poetic song of sorrow, "When Lilacs Last in the Dooryard Bloom'd," were among his most famous and noble poems. He stayed in Washington ten years, working as a government clerk, and revising his Leaves of Grass. In February of 1873 he suffered his first paralytic stroke caused by an infection gotten from his hospital service. He went to Camden, New Jersey, to live in poverty that was lightened occasionally by donations from his admirers. He wrote other pieces but Leaves of Grass remained his greatest work.

To the "Good Gray Poet" with the flowing white beard, "lovely and soothing death" came to relieve him of his suffering on March 26, 1892. He died serenely, knowing that at last his genius had been recognized, his poems translated into many languages, and that his vision of a great democratic America, strong, noble and clean, would continue to live after him in his impressive poetry.

Door to door solicitation
Town and country
Saint Joe and Spencerville

These brooms are made by blind workers who are trying to serve as useful citizens in the state of Indiana. Prices of the brooms are $1.60 for the household broom and $1.98 for the warehouse-type broom suitable for farm use.

Profits gained from the sale of the brooms will be used by the Lions Club to continue its sight conservation activities. Many pairs of glasses have been given to young people in the community who would otherwise not be able to obtain them. In addition crossed eyes have been straightened, with this work still being done.

Your purchase of a broom does three things: gives you a useful household item, permits the blind of Indiana to earn a livelihood and extends the sight work of the local Lions Club.

PICTURES OF THE WEEK

FIT AS A FIDDLE — San Bruno, Calif. — Keith Chapman, 13, not only plays the violin, he built the instrument himself. A lad with a talent for tinkering, Keith came across plans for building a violin in a magazine. He assembled the materials and presto — a brand new fiddle resulted. Keith, who lives in San Bruno, Calif., also built his own ham radio set. Although he only "fiddles around" with his homemade instrument, the lad has displayed a real talent for playing the piano.

NEW JERSEY MOTHER OF THE YEAR — Nutley, N.J. — Mrs. Frank Jannuzi, mother of two and former school teacher, was designated the 1959 American Mother of New Jersey, by the New Jersey American Mothers' Committee, Inc.

GETTING A BIG LIFT — Big Pine, Calif. — Riding high, an engineer ascends skyward on a special lift to make an adjustment on the "Big Ear" radio telescope standing in the desert near Big Pine. One of two giant steel mesh dishes — 90 feet in diameter — recently put into operation by the California Institute of Technology, the "Big Ear" listens for signals from stars millions of miles from the earth. The lift, built by the Colson Corp., is the highest maintenance lift ever built in the U.S., capable of extending to 54 feet in less than a minute. The engineer operates the lift via foot pedals on the platform.

SMEAR TECHNIQUE — Rome — He may not be attempting a self-portrait, but this youthful artist has certainly succeeded in "painting himself" in Rome. Working with oil paints, the lad has managed to get more of the stuff on his face than on the canvas. Of course, it's only a few steps from the art room to the shower room.

Around the Town

With the Editor

It always fascinates me, the way those big hunks of machinery become almost human in their manipulations. I'm talking about the grader and scoop used in Saint Joe the past couple of weeks by the state highway department.

That scoop which loaded the trucks with excess dirt and gravel from the main street. It looked almost like a human hand dipping down and out, as the man behind the controls governed its actions.

And those graders. When they start out with a swipe, you wonder what's going to happen. A few swipes later and the complexion of the street is changed, there is a level spot where bumps were before, there is a gutter where there was only level ground.

Those boys know what they're doing.

The fogger got broken in Wednesday night, tuning up for the summer.

Youth Bake Sale Funds For Park

The public park at Saint Joe, still in the making, will receive a financial boost this coming Saturday, May 9, from some of the younger generation in the community. On that day the Workers Not Shirkers 4-H Club will hold a bake sale at the News Office in Saint Joe. The sale will start at 9:30 a.m.

To help the Booster Club in its park project, the Workers Not Shirkers have announced that they will donate all proceeds from the bake sale to the park fund. The public is urged to patronize the bake sale in support of the local park fund.

Achievement Night May 15

Annual recognition of outstanding achievements in curricular and extra-curricular activities in the Riverdale schools will be continued this spring with the Riverdale P. T.A. holding its Achievement Night on Friday, May 15. The organization dispenses with its usual business meeting in the month of May to honor those students who have shown particular capabilities in various school activities.

Principal Joe Smith is chairman of the program which will start at 7:30 p.m.

The public is invited to attend Achievement Night to recognize the efforts of Riverdale students.

Band-Chorus Concert Monday

The Riverdale High School Band and Chorus, under the direction of Mr. Robert Lowry, will present a spring concert Monday evening, May 11, at 8:00 p.m. The concert will be given in the High School gym at Saint Joe.

Tickets are available from band and chorus members at 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for students. Reserved seats are available in advance if desired. Proceeds from the concert will be used to purchase additional uniforms for the band. Mr. Lowry recently noted that approximately 20 more uniforms are needed for the band, what with its growth in the past two years.

The program includes:

CHORUS

Gypsy Winds, Will H. Ruebush.

Deep River, spiritual.

I Whistle a Happy Tune, Rodgers & Hammerstein.

Daybreak, Ira B. Wilson.

Oh, My Soul In Patience, Cesar Malan.

I Ain't Gonna Grieve My Lord No More, spiritual.

BAND

Warming Up March, M. H. Ribble.

Trumpet Voluntary, Henry Purcell.

2 Madrigals, Thomas Morley.

This Old Man, children's song.

Starlight Overture, Charles O'Neill.

Hasty Hoedown, C. Paul Herfuth.

Vanguard March, M. W. Hollingsworth.

CULTURE CLUB

The Saint Joe Culture Club met at the home of Ruth White for a pot luck supper at the last meeting of the club year. Members repeated the club collect and pledge to the flag.

Leanna Friend gave devotions and the lesson was given by Ruth White on Kentucky, Tennessee, South Carolina and North Carolina.

Roll call and secretary's report were given. A new member, Mrs. Barbara Wagner, was welcomed into the club.

The club is adopting the members of the Barkley Nursing Home in Butler as Sunshine Pals. They will be remembered with cards on their birthdays and other special occasions. Little May baskets will be delivered to the patients on May 10.

Mr. Dowden majored in English, mathematics, science, business and social studies and maintained an average of 3.500. He also was active in sports at Riverdale.

Dale plans to attend Hanover College.

SISTERS OF THE SKILLET HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Sisters of the Skillet Home Demonstration Club met April 23 at the home of Mrs. Wilbur Waiter with Sue Richmond as hostess. The president, Jean Moore, called the meeting to order with all repeating the club collect.

Devotions were given by Sue Richmond with a verse from the Psalms.

Paula Roberts gave the history of the song of the month, "Drink To Me Only With Thine Eyes," and led the club singing the song.

Roll call was answered by 10 members. It was reported that there will be a rummage sale at Auburn on May 15.

The project lesson on child care, growth and development was given by Paula Roberts and Beverley Mansfield. They brought out the fact that parents should set a good example for their children and love and understand them.

Sharon Bowser gave the last part of the lesson on flexible smooth surface floors.

The meeting was closed with the club prayer song.

Free Chest X-Ray May 15

The TB X-ray unit will visit DeKalb County May 11 thru 15. The mobil X-ray unit which offers free chest X-rays to adults will start in Waterloo Monday, May 11, and end its stay in the county Friday, May 15, at Spencerville.

Citizens of the county are urged to make use of the free chest X-ray which is given to adults 18 years of age and over, except expectant mothers.

In this area residents may get their free X-ray at Spencerville on Friday, May 15, from 9:00 to 11:30 a.m.

BY WILLIAM BRODIE

Battle Of The Wilderness

"More desperate fighting has not been witnessed on this continent . . ." So wrote General Ulysses S. Grant, commander of the Union Army of the Potomac, in describing the terrible battle of the Wilderness on May 5 and 6, 1864.

Grant was the new commander-in-chief of the Union armies. He had been raised to the rank in March, 1864 when he was brought east after his great record of victories in the Mississippi region. In appearance Grant wasn't much of a military figure. He was a short, round-shouldered man with rough brown whiskers, who usually wore a slouch hat and a private's sloppy blouse. He was tobacco-stained, and sometimes drunk. But he had an air of determination about him and, as President Lincoln said, "He fights!"

General Grant began his campaign by sending the Army of the Potomac, which hadn't done much since the battle of Gettysburg the summer before, across the Rapidan River in northern Virginia during the dark hours before dawn on May 4, 1864. He hoped that by marching his army by night he might get through the area known as Wilderness without having to fight in that tangled mass of woods. But General Lee moved fast and brought his army into battle in the Wilderness where the Union superiority in numbers would be at a lesser advantage.

The two great armies locked together in terrible battle that raged for two days in dense woods and underbrush. Attack and counter-attack followed, with men grappling blindly and savagely in hand-to-hand fighting through the smoke and flame on their own firing and the burning trees and brush. On the second day, May 6, Grant's attack began to drive back the Confederates. Lee himself rode forward to take personal charge and was met by shouts of "Lee to the rear!" and forced to retire to a more sheltered position.

By nightfall of the second day of battle with flame and smoke casting a ghastly glare over the wilderness, 17,000 Union soldiers and 12,000 Confederates had fallen. Dense smoke filled the air and in the flaming brush many wounded were burned to death. Both sides paused for rest in their blackened log entrenchments. Neither side could claim a victory after all this desperate fighting.

By morning Grant was on the march again, slipping around Lee's flank. When the Union troops found they were continuing forward to Richmond, instead of retiring, they cheered loudly. As for stubborn, determined Grant, he said, "I propose to fight it out on this line if it takes all summer." And fight he did, all summer and the following winter. He had the men and the supplies and he spent both unsparingly in wearing down Lee's fighting forces.

From the editor's desk . . . .

What Is a Life Worth?

"Sick"—is that the word to be used when "civilization" misbehaves? A man dragged from a jail where he awaits trial for a crime, shot or killed by some "projectile," then dumped into a river. How cruel can "civilization" be? Are we in America much removed from the barbarism that brings an occasional "tsk, tsk" from us when we read of primitive tribal customs in some foreign land? It doesn't look like it.

The human race, or maybe it is more correct to say the white race, has a long way to go in the matter of eliminating racial prejudice. In the news during the past week have been a number of instances of crime involving white and negro and the prejudices that arise. But the matter of racial prejudice is not confined to criminal acts. Not too long ago our newspapers gave front-page coverage for several days to the story of a tragic fire in a big city in which many school children were burned to death. Not too many weeks later, a story was made when a school bus which carried 80 or more children ran off the road into a river or creek bringing death to several children. This story, however, did not receive the prominence of the fire halocaust. The impression was given that the bus crash was not as important. What was the difference? The difference was, and is, that the children in the school bus were negroes.

I think it is a reflection of general public opinion in the white race that a bunch of negro children dying is not nearly so great a tragedy as a bunch of white children meeting death. It isn't nearly so tragic that a negro is put to death by a mob who snatch him from jail, perhaps put him to torture, then toss his body in a river, as it is that he raped a white woman. It isn't nearly so terrible that four white boys face trial for mass rape of a negro coed as it would be if the colors were reversed.

We are worried today about such things as communism and Russia and atom bombs and armed might and inflation and unemployment and so on and so on. There is a lot more to be feared from moral decadence or complacency which condons such uncivilized and inhuman acts which appear occasionally (or frequently???) in American domestic affairs today. Measuring the success of our country will not be made in the book of humanity by any physical or material strength. For all the espousing of the Golden Rule that goes on in the public mind, there isn't much to draw encouragement from when that Golden Rule is subject to one restriction—what color are you?

This is America?

If Confucious didn't say it, he should have . . . . Man who lose head—also lose face.

The preference of today's male population as far as womanhood is concerned appears to be reflected in a current cigarette commercial—"It's what's up front that counts."

Others say . . . .

NO TIME FOR COMPLACENCY

With the so-called "polio season" rapidly approaching, state health officials are expressing concern over the fact that only one of every three Hoosiers has been immunized against this disease. If the people of Indiana are to be free from fear of an epidemic, at least 70 percent of the population must be immunized.

Since children under five years of age are more susceptible to this disease, and its consequences are usually more serious in this age group, it is particularly important for these youngsters to receive the protective vaccine. All children, however, should be immunized, and this holds true as well for pregnant women and adults up to and including those 40 years of age.

Figures made available by the U.S. Public Health Service reveal the tragic fact that last summer more than 3,000 people in the United States were crippled by polio, and nearly 200 of these lost their lives. Here in Indiana, 139 people were stricken with the disease, and there were seven deaths attributed to polio. (Since final tabulation of 1958 deaths in Indiana has not yet been completed, this figure is a tentative one, subject to upward revision.)

Fortunately, at press time, Indiana had not yet had a case of polio reported for 1959. But those who have not been immunized should bear in mind that the greatest number of cases of polio usually occur during the latter part of July and during the month of August.

Immunization reports coming to the official health agency from the various school systems of the state show that in 58 of the counties, something less than 69 percent of the first grade children have been immunized against polio. In one county, only 39 percent of these children had received polio immunization.

Public apathy about the injections may be an unfortunate result of scientific progress, according to some experts. Recent advances against polio, they say, have been so striking that many people may look upon it as a disease of the past. We have only to look at the cases which occurred in our state last year to know that polio is not a disease of the past, and that constant vigilance is necessary if we expect to eliminate it from the scene.

—The Monthly Bulletin, Indiana State Board of Health, May, 1959.

HOW THE FARMERS FEEL

What do the individual farmers in our nation think of our present farm program of crop quotas and price supports?

We know what our Noble County neighbor, Ethan Stangland, thinks of it—he has battled the farm program on constitutional principles for more than five years and now has been instrumental in getting a bill introduced in the House of Representatives to repeal the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938.

We know, too, what Michigan chicken farmer Stanley Yankus thinks of it. At great family inconvenience and financial loss, he has sold his farm and plans to leave the United States rather than compromise his principles by accepting government crop quotas and support payments.

Major farm organizations have aired their views and promoted a variety of changes in the farm program. But we don't know how accurately these proposals represent the opinions of their individual members or whether they just go along because it seems to be the best thing to do under the circumstances.

We know the results of the so-called vote that each year puts the crop control system into effect. But we also know that this represents only a small fraction of those eligible to vote and, in addition, thousands of affected farmers do not even have the right to vote on the plan.

So the problem remains. What do the individual farmers think of the farm program?

The best answer to this came in the April issue of the Farm Journal, a magazine with nation-wide circulation among the farm population. And the answer it gives is amazing.

A majority of farmers do not want any controls or price supports at all!

"No controls, no supports, no floors, free market prices, get the government clear out"—that's the choice of 55 per cent of farmers who voted in the Farm Journal's recent poll.

Another 15 per cent wanted emergency supports; eight per cent voted for adjustment supports; 14 per cent for high price supports and strict production controls; and eight per cent for production payments.

Wheat farmers fell below the majority mark in the total vote for no supports, with 43 per cent marking this choice. But this choice still far outweiged any other single choice. And in the state-by-state breakdown of the vote, it was clearly evident that the

0129

Indiana farmers voted 57 per cent for no supports; 13 per cent for emergency supports; 8 per cent for adjustment supports; 12 per cent for high supports; and 10 per cent for production payments.

The Farm Journal article rates the results of the poll as "sound." The first 10,000 ballots were computed and the ballots returned from each state were in close proportion to the Journal's circulation in each state. The article also states that results were close to other surveys made.

From this poll, plus the TRUTH'S experiences in letters received and personal contacts, the indications are that the individual farmers would prefer to return to the laws of supply and demand and to run their farms as they themselves see fit.

It remains for these farmers to become vocal and show their support of the AAA repeal measure to their Congressmen and to the public.

—Tri-County Truth, Churubusco, Indiana, April 23, 1959.

MATTER OF MEDIC FEE

I have received a rather large mail in response to an article I wrote about doctors' fees. Those who complain have several arguments which ought to be aired.

On the subject that doctors' fees are exorbitant, I can hardly agree with the critics. A man is entitled to charge what he thinks his services are worth. If an hourly-wage worker wants more money for his work, he might go on strike to get it. School teachers and other city employes threaten to go on strike for more money. But if a doctor charges what he thinks his services are worth, he is called a scalper. A reader writes:

"Too many doctors today are absolutely commercial. They are thinking more of the almighty dollar than of the patient ...."

A doctor can think about his patients all day long, but he still has to pay for taxes, rent, food and clothing, books, publications and instruments. He has no way of earning a living except by charging for his time, skill and services. Some physicians and surgeons may charge more than their patients want to pay. That is a private transaction involving two individuals who can usually reach an understanding in advance of the services being rendered.

The complaint is made that doctors are hard to find on Wednesday afternoons and Sundays. This is one of the most difficult problems to solve. Folks get sick every day and at all hours of the day, but it is inhuman to expect that a doctor or anyone else will be around 24 hours a day, 365 days of the year. He might like to go fishing, too. He might like to visit his mother or attend a convention. He might even want to go to a show with his wife or to go courting so he can get a wife.

In the larger cities, arrangements are usually made by doctors to cover for their colleagues through a telephone answering service. It does not always work out satisfactorily, particularly in a real emergency. Local medical associations ought to work out these problems satisfactorily. It would be both an opportunity and anexperience for young interns to service such an emergency committee directly under a medical association so that doctors could be free on Sundays and on the Wednesday afternoon which some take off as a break.

The doctor who refuses under any circumstances to go on a house visit is wrong. I have never encountered such a physician, not even a specialist, but if there are such, they should be pilloried. There can be no reason for an absolute refusal to make a house call.

The criticism that doctors insist that patients go to a hospital for treatment is stupid. That is the best place to go to. It is impossible to give a patient as competent a treatment as in a hospital. When a doctor instructs a patient to go to a hospital, that is where the patient should go. It is unfortunate that there is shortage of hospitals in this country and it is a crime that some of the hospital workers in our large cities are being organized by professional union operators. Of course, everybody who works in a hospital is underpaid but it is also true that practically no hospital is in the black.

The suggestion that comes from one reader that "doctors use all of the facilities of hospitals as places of business, putting it bluntly, without paying a cent for the privilege" strikes me as particularly nonsensical. Any hospital-connected physician, having a private practice, works for that hospital for free. If hospitals had to pay doctors for all the work they do in the hospital, such institutions would have to close down after the first year's budget.

After reading quite a large number of letters, I have reached the conclusion that many persons expect to get medical services for nothing; that they do not appreciate that a physician is a human being with the usual habits, ailments, and requirements of other human beings; that many Americans have lost the habit of paying-as-you-go but have, because of the Depression and the wars, taken on a habit of having things done for them; that they do not appreciate top value but will accept what comes along so long as it costs nothing.

WHAT IS RAIN?

Somewhere into someone's life a little rain is falling. A splatter of drops across a dusty farmyard answers a prayer and brings fresh hope that the grain will ripen. Distant storm clouds announce themselves as "blips" on a radar screen. Minutes later a weather reconnaissance plane takes off. Its mission: Bring back the secret of the raindrop.

Thanks to weather planes, rockets, balloons, and ground stations we now see a misty outline of the circulatory system which keeps the rains falling. Today's rainmakers have advanced far beyond ritual dances, drums, incantations and artillery fire. Meteorologists forecast that, if weather planes keep chasing clouds, they may bring a day when we can turn off droughts, make clouds burst, and perhaps guarantee sunny weekends.

Rainfall, or the lack of it, profoundly affects mankind, often determining his very pattern of life. No one appreciates the benefits of rain more than people who inhabit an arid land like Saudi Arabia. For centuries, the Bedouins have been compelled to migrate from season to season, searching out grazing lands turned green by the work of rain. Rainfall in the Eastern Province of the Kingdom, where the Arabian American Oil Company operates, ranges from zero to five inches a year. (Arizona and New Mexico, America's driest states, collect about eight inches annually.)

Where does rain come from? Over lakes and seas the sun appears to draw great columns of vaporous haze into the sky. This flow of water vapor skywards resembles a shaft of light—referred to in parts of the United States as the "sundog drawing water." The vapor is then circulated by air currents to near and distant points where it falls as rain.

The heat of the tropical sun makes equatorial seas the main source of evaporated water vapor. The daily volume of evaporation is torrential. Hoover Dam's Lake Mead with its 10,148 billion-gallon capacity is one of the world's largest reservoirs. A dipper its size would have to be filled 65 times a day to keep the atmosphere from running dry.

Distilled by the sun, water vapor rises from the ocean surface as a purified invisible gas, lighter than ordinary air. If nature changed her ways and water vapor remained always pure, there could be no rain. The air would then become saturated and our world would become uniformly damp, clammy and cloudy. Next time you get caught without an umbrella take comfort in the thought that a drenching rain de-humidifies and clears the air for tomorrow's sunshine.

You have seen water vapor condense on a glass of iced tea. In the same way, when water vapor meets chilled particles of airborne pollen, ocean salt, dust, soot, or volcanic ash, around such nuclei condensation may occur. Given just the right conditions of humidity and temperature, tiny droplets may form—the stuff that haze, fog, and clouds are made of.

Even where the winds and the lay of the land produce clouds, another set of conditions stands between us and rain. There is still room for argument about some of these conditions. But weather-plane observations and cloud-seeding experiments point to a few small facts of large significance.

The half million or so cloud droplets that go into each raindrop apparently can't get together until they find a new and common nucleus, an ice crystal, a speck of star dust from outer space, or another and colder droplet. At this critical point, just when the rain begins to fall, the weather man is still looking for answers. Nevertheless it rains.

The falling rain, no longer pure, brings with it nitrogen, ammonia, oxygen, and carbonic acid, chemicals to fertilize the soil, and over smoggy cities a dash of nitric and sulphuric acid. The world average is 33 inches a year. At Chile's Arica weather station it almost never rains, the yearly average being a record low of .02 inches. In the Rub'al-Khali, a vast desert of deserts in southeastern Saudi Arabia, it is not uncommon for rain to occur no oftener than once in three years. The record for liquidity is held by Mt. Waialeale, Kauai Island, Hawaii, with 450 inches yearly. The Island of Luzon once had a fall of 46 inches in 24 hours, equal to 4,645 tons of rain per acre. Rain and stream erosion help to cut about a quarter of an inch off the face of the earth each century. The ran-fed Mississippi yearly dumps 600,000,000 tons of mud and silt into the Gulf of Mexico. This is the work of rain. This is the power of the raindrop.

Park Committee Sets Work Schedule

The park committee of the Booster Club met last week to discuss plans for improvement of the park grounds and ways of raising money to pay for necessary expenditures.

The committee has established a work schedule with Tuesday and Thursday nights and all day Saturday designated as park work days. Those in the community who can help in park improvement are asked to keep these work nights and days in mind and give of their time as they can. To facilitate work planning, volunteers should contact the chairman of the committee, Orville Ciburn, or one of the other members of the committee, Roy Bowser, Donald Kinsey, Merl Guilford and Walter Reinhart.

FACING MY SIN

Lesson for May 10, 1959

Last week something was said about David learning a hard lesson the hard way: namely that not even a king, an absolute monarch, is so highly placed that the law of God no longer concerns him. David lived in a time when in most kingdoms the king's will was law. Even if what he did was wrong for most people, if HE did it he couldn't be wrong, for he was king. The brave prophet Nathan brought David to his senses; he made him face his own sin. The whole story is there in II Samuel, and has often been told. We can learn much from it; for it shows one way in which we can do what we all hate to do and some people never can do: face our own sins and admit that they ARE sins and that WE committed them.

To Know

"You can't carve rotten wood," says an old Chinese proverb. And no prophet or preacher is going to get far making any one face his sins if the person involved has no notion of any difference between right and wrong. A conscience can be educated; but who can educate what isn't there? Now David had a conscience; that is, he knew that some things are right and some are wrong. When Nathan told him that made-up story about the rich man and the poor man and the lamb, David was hot. The rich man was wrong, David saw; very wrong, wrong enough to be executed on the spot. If David had reacted calmly to Nathan's story—if his response had been something like, "Well, that's a rich man for you," or "After all, that poor man was relieved of an expensive luxury," Nathan would have got nowhere with him. The first thing I need in order to face my sin, when that time comes, is to know, down in my bones, that sin is real, that some things are right and others are wrong. If I think "right" and "wrong" are just emotional words, meaning no more than "I like it" and "I don't like it," then I shall never face my own sin, I shall never even know what is eating away my soul.

To Imagine

Another thing is needed before I can face my sin. I must be able to imagine what it is like to be sinned-against. When David got so angry about that story, Nathan told him, he wasn't angry about what happened to the rich man, though that would be a tragedy, too. He was angry about the incident because in his mind's eye he could see exactly how the poor man felt. (Was this because David's own father had been a sheep-herder?) Now no one up to that time had ever stolen a wife from David. He had done some wife-stealing even before the time of Bathsheba, but he never had seen the wrong in it. Wife-stealing was a recognized privilege of kings in those days. By a brilliant, inspired single thrust when David's guard was down, that prophet made David see as it were in one flash what he had done to Uriah and to Bathsheba.

To Confess

There is a step beyond seeing that I have sinned. This is admitting that I see it. But there are two ways of admitting one's sin, whatever it may be. One is the "so what" approach. "Yes, I did it, but it isn't very bad . . .Yes, I admit it, but I couldn't help it . . . I did it, but am I so much worse than a hundred other people? . . . Yes, I did it, but why not forget the whole thing, shall we?" This is not facing my SIN at all. It is only admitting an act without seeing what a sin it is. The other way of admitting sin is to feel a deep sense of shame before God and man, too. It is to stop excusing and defending myself, it is to take sides (so to speak) with the prosecution, it is to see myself no longer fit to be a companion for God or men. If what I can feel about my sin can be expressed in the language of the 51st Psalm, then there can be some hope for me. If I do not despise my sin, if I do not somehow share God's feeling about it, then I shall go on down and down. It is only when I see the pit into which I am falling, and see that it is a bottomless pit, that I am ready to be rescued.

HERE'S WHAT OTHER LOW-PRICED CARS HOPE YOU'LL DO WITHOUT!

(BUT HOW THEY WISH THEY HAD 'EM)

NO WONDER MORE PEOPLE ARE BUYING CHEVROLETS THAN ANY OTHER CAR!

Impala Sport Coupe—unmistakably modern.

CHEVY'S ROOMINESS
You'll find Chevrolet seats are up to a full 5.7 inches wider than those of the other leading low-priced sedans. And Chevy gives you even more head room than most of the highest priced sedans.

CHEVY'S BIGGER BRAKES
Chevrolet's new Safety-Master brakes are built for up to two-thirds longer life, with more lining area than any other low-priced car.

CHEVY'S FULL COIL RIDE
No other leading low-priced car cushions you with coil springs at every wheel.

CHEVY'S FRESH STYLING
You don't have to look twice at Chevy's clean-swept silhouette to know it's a new car. And that's bound to mean a higher allowance at trade-in time.

CHEVY'S BIGGER SAVINGS
A pair of Chevrolet 6's proved this emphatically—coming in first and second in their class in this year's Mobilgas Economy Run. And the winning mileage was a whopping 22.38 m.p.g.

CHEVY'S HIGHER TRADE-IN VALUE
The National Automobile Dealers Association Official Used Car Guide Book shows that Chevy consistently brings a higher trade-in allowance than any other low-priced car.

CHEVY'S ADVANCED-DESIGN ENGINES
Chevy's the only car in its field that gives you oil-hushed hydraulic valve lifters on all standard engines for smoother, quieter performance. It's the only American car at any price with a high-performance V8 that packs more than one horsepower into every cubic inch of displacement. And you get nine engines in all to choose from . . . every one of them with the convenience of automatic choke.

Make sure you get the most for your money—see your local authorized Chevrolet dealer!

Take Biter With Better

No that isn't a misprint. In Saint Joe it's "biter."

Either a feast or a famine seems to be the menu as far as the weather is concerned. Spring was a long time coming, in the eyes of the people. But when it came, it came with a bang.

Temperatures which had not risen too high except for an occasional 70-degree day suddenly jumped into the 80's last week and the transition from a cool spring atmosphere to one of strictly summer has been perhaps a little difficult to absorb, though probably more welcome than not. And who knows how long it will last?

Along with the near-hot if not hot weather has come the annual problem of the mosquito. The insects are now out en masse. Heavy rainfall this spring plus the torrid temperatures have caused the biters to blossom.

So, Saint Joe'ers find themselves facing the biter with the better.

Around the Town

With the Editor

That was a close call the Omer Hansens had Tuesday evening. Their huge barn got some sparks from a fire across the road and a hole burned through the roof in a couple of spots. The fire department put out the fire. But probably the life-saver in this instance was the wet weather during the day. If we had had a dry day Tuesday, the barn might have gone all the way.

Have you ever been in that barn? Man, it's BIG!

We were down in Bloomington over the week end visiting my sister and the perfesser. We took in the I.U. Little 500, the big event on the campus which raises money to assist students who are working as they study at I.U. Friday night the girls have their own Little 500, using tricycles on the race course in the fieldhouse. Then on Saturday the boys take over at the stadium, running a 200-lap 50-mile race on bicycles. There are other things going on, too, like free ice cream social at one of the sorority or frat houses, a free dance somewhere else, a program of entertainment on Saturday night, etc.

The attendance at Saturday's race was announced as 16,001.

Just to show how small the world is, we were in a drug store at I.U. geting sunglasses and film, and whom do we see but Mabel Tustison and Wally Sherritt.

Achievement Night May 15

Annual recognition of outstanding achievements in curricular and extra-curricular activities in the Riverdale schools will be continued this spring with the Riverdale P. T.A. holding its Achievement Night on Friday, May 15. The organization dispenses with its usual business meeting in the month of May to honor those students who have shown particular capabilities in various school activities.

Principal Joe Smith is chairman of the program which will start at 7:30 p.m.

The public is invited to attend Achievement Night to recognize the efforts of Riverdale students.

School Unrest Shown At Club Meeting

Unrest in the Riverdale School Corporation was reflected in the meeting of the Saint Joe Lions Club held Monday evening at Chaney's Restaurant in Spencerville. The unrest is caused by the passage of SB6 by the Indiana State Legislature at its recent session.

Frank Sechler was program chairman for the meeting of the service club and he led an informal discussion of local school problems in relation to the new state law. Primary concern was expressed by various members of the club over the reasons why such an apparent radical piece of legislation was passed and who is promoting its inception. Present as guests for the meeting were Riverdale School Board President Richard Crow and board secretary John Mason. Frank Laub, treasurer of the school board, and board member Walter Morr were present for the meeting and gave information about Riverdale's situation. Mr. Laub and Mr. Morr are members of the Lions Club.

Opinions expressed by the members showed an general dislike of the state legislature's approach to the school problem through HB6. Questions arise by its passage as to what can be done or should be done on a local level since the Indiana law establishes a county reorganizational set-up for all schools.

During the meeting Mr. Laub revealed that the school board had been anticipating construction of a high school unit of buildings, including a gymnasium. Cost was estimated at $500,000. To ease the crowded condition in the elementary grades, the sixth grade would then be moved to the new unit. However, new school construction anywhere in the state is now a matter of doubt and of question with the reorganization plan yet to be put to work.

Local News

Baccalaureate services for Indiana Technical College at Fort Wayne will be held on Sunday, May 24, at 10:00 a.m. in the chapel of Shick Hall. Commencement exercises will be held that afternoon at 2:00 p.m. in the gymnasium.

The B&O Railroad sent its check for $45,824.20 to the DeKalb County treasurer last week in payment of its spring installment of property taxes for 1958. The total tax bill for the year for the entire system was more than $23 million.

The raucous comedy "Light Up the Sky" will be the final production of the Fort Wayne Civic Theatre's 1958-59 season. The show will open Friday, May 15, and play Fridays and Saturdays for three week ends.

Some of the outstanding preachers of American Protestantism will be featured at the 116th session of the Methodist North Indiana Conference at Fort Wayne May 20-24. The conference is the annual legislative and business session for 435 Methodist churches in northeast Indiana and the 800 participants will represent about 120,000 Methodists in the area.

Topping the list of speakers are Dr. John Redhead, pastor of the 3,000-member First Presbyterian Church in Greensboro, N.C., Dr. Chester Pennington, pastor of the 4,500-member Hennepin Avenue Methodist Church in Minneapolis, and Charles C. Parlin, noted New York attorney and vice-president of the National Council of Churches.

Donald E. Baker, yeoman seaman, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton E. Baker of Saint Joe, graduated April 17 from the Yeoman School at the Naval Training Center at Bainbridge, Md. Students are taught to perform clerical and secretarial duties of all kinds at ships and stations. These duties include typing, filing and general office work. Yeomen also handle correspondence, prepare reports and maintain necessary records and official publications.

Driver license suspensions include that of Richard Frost of Garrett.

Richard Hankey, presiding minister of Jehovah's Witnesses in Auburn, announced this week the appointment by the Watchtower Society of Mr. Lester Bradley as circuit minister in this vicinity. Mr. Bradley will visit the local congregation twice a year to take general oversight of the ministerial work of the Witnesses.

Members of Trinity Lutheran Church and their pastor will hold open house at their new church Sunday, May 24, from 2:00 p.m. to 6:00 p.m. The church is located on US27 north of Auburn. Dedication services will be held Sunday,

Free Chest X-Ray May 15

The TB X-ray unit will visit DeKalb County May 11 thru 15. The mobil X-ray unit which offers free chest X-rays to adults will start in Waterloo Monday, May 11, and end its stay in the county Friday, May 15, at Spencerville.

Citizens of the county are urged to make use of the free chest X-ray which is given to adults 18 years of age and over, except expectant mothers.

In this area residents may get their free X-ray at Spencerville on Friday, May 15, from 9:00 to 11:30 a.m.

May 17.

DeKalb County councilmen approved an additional appropriation for $10,000 from the county's cumulative bridge building fund for construction of a bridge on County Road 15 northeast of Garrett. The action was taken Monday afternoon. The new structure will replace a bridge which collapsed April 19.

Bruce Baker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton E. Baker of Saint Joe, recently returned from service in the United States Marine Corps.

James Shultz, Jr., 18, of Spencerville was sentenced to serve a 10-day confinement in the DeKalb County jail upon conviction on a charge of malicious trespass. The youth admitted he used a hand jack to cause extensive damage to a car owned by James Hicks of Spencerville. Shultz further admitted he drove his car into the side of Hicks-parked car Tuesday night of last week. Reason for the damage was that Shultz didn't like the Hicks 1949 Mercury and had stated he would wreck the car. Hicks reportedly bet he wouldn't do it. But, according to Shultz, "I showed him."

Virgil Landry has resigned as head basketball and football coach at Auburn to take a similar position at the new Oak Hill High School near Marion. Landry has been at Auburn as coach for three years.

Farmers with corn, soybeans or both under 1958 price support loans should watch market prices closely in the next few weeks for opportunities to redeem their crops above the loan level, according to Ray Miller, of the DeKalb Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Office. Prospects for redemption are particularly good in the case of corn which is under non-compliance or non-commercial area loans. Loans on soybeans mature May 31 and on corn July 31.

Brass Tacks - 15th In A Series

A fundamental part of the development of man's respect for freedom of all men is a primary respect for God. Despite differences in teachings and practices in the God-fearing world, that world yet has a Common Denominator from whence has come not only the universe itself but the rewards that have been made a part of that universe. America is a result of a process of periodic advancement then retreat then advancement in man's respect for individual freedom. It isn't just an accident that Americans have it so good as a free nation. In the beginning God made man free; when man respects that fundamental freedom in thought, word and deed, there cannot help but be a significant reward or happy result. That's just the way it is with God.

As good as we may have it today, we could yet be further advanced and be in a happier world if there were more active and positive respect for individual freedom. What "peace" we may have at the moment is not really considered permanent in any sense of the word by any thinking person. While Americans, and the other peoples of the world, are happy for the "peace" of the moment, they still know there is a lot to be done before real peace will be the law of the world. While efforts by men to keep their neighbors from taking up arms in combat are admired, the efforts will be for naught unless they have as their foundation thoughts of God and of His Truth. We don't like to admit it, actually, but we Americans still do insist, in some ways, that man can take care of himself, in spite of the religious doctrines we confess. Christian men, therefore, say one thing and think another, leading to difficulties immeasurable.

The desire of Americans to bring peace into the world would become more a reality if there were greater activity by Americans as believers in God. This necessarily means that they should be more active in the church of their choice, not just for the sake of religious activity alone but because it is in the reverent atmosphere of God's House that strength and assurance are found. Though there are differences in doctrinal teachings among the various denominations, there is still but one God to whom all lives are dedicated. It is important that a person knows about his church and its practices in order to be a better contributor to life in this mortal world. Despite the differences in denominations, there is one thing that none can get away from, neither can their members. That is that faith in God is reflected and manifested not by a few moments of meditation on a Sunday morning or at some devotional meeting but by development of an awareness of God's presence in every living moment of every individual life. A believer, therefore, must be conscious of his thoughts, words and deeds every possible moment. One hundred per cent awareness is an impossibility. But everyone is capable of increasing that awareness day by day throughout his life.

What success this nation has in its presence among other nations will be the result of the success of its individual citizens in making their spiritual life and their mortal life a working combination rather than separate and distinctly different worlds.

CAN'T SPELL OR 'FIGGER'

How hard an arithmetic problem is too hard for today's high school graduates? Some limited but definite information on this subject was reported in a recent education magazine, and added to, here in Chicago. In England, 80 secondary school graduates faced these problems in arithmetic: Divide 234 by 13; divide 2.1 by 0.7; state what percentage of 60 makes 12; and state what fraction of a week is constituted by 42 hours. Only two-thirds of the answers were correct.

In Chicago, 55 midyear graduates of public high schools took the same problems. On the whole the Chicagoans did better than the Britons. Only one made a mistake on the first two questions, which should bother no child as old as 10. But only one in four could handle the other two. Just to make the results more shocking, the youngsters involved, in both countries, look forward to becoming teachers. In the United States, at least, there is no certainty that they will have to enroll in any course in mathematics during their college years.

Some educators say that, with almost everybody's child going to high school, the idea of mastery of a subject must be given up. One result of putting the academic hurdles so low that a caterpillar can jump over them is that increasing numbers of high school graduates cannot figure out that 12 is 20 per cent of 60, and 42 hours is 25 per cent of a week. Easy going colleges guarantee no increase in arithmetical competence. The finished product, complete with degree and teacher's certificate, then undertakes to teach without first having learned.

Educational organizations should not give their primary attention to getting more money for buildings and salaries, important as these may be, so long as gross incompetence prevails in many schools on both sides of teacher's desk.

It is no answer to say that many children are ineducable. Some are, but they should not be allowed to set the pace for normally endowed children. We have confidence in the native intelligence of the American child to believe that he could have learned far more than he has.

Part of the schools' rationalization for giving up mastery of anything at all as an objective is that making distinctions between pupils is somehow undemocratic and immoral. The result has been, of course, that young people's desire to excel has been shifted from academic, intellectual activity to sports and clothes and popularity.

It is human nature to pursue honor. If a school does not enable a boy to distinguish himself for knowledge and mental skills, then he will devote himself to making an athletic team, getting elected to class office, or dating the most generally admired girl in the school. Or he may distinguish himself by wild driving, precocious dissipation, or daring assaults on persons or property.

Only the displacement of youth's inherent ambitions from intellectual mastery to other objects can account for a wide-spread inability of high school graduates to divide 12 by 60. School administrators, even more than teachers, owe a duty to direct the abundant energy of young people to goals useful to adults and to society. Only as this is done can our schools discharge their responsibilities and earn their way.

Strike Still 'On' At Sp'ville

Teamster members striking against the Rhinehart Manufacturing Company at Spencerville have filed unfair labor practice charges against the firm.

The strike began April 22 after three of seven production workers were fired allegedly for union organizing activities, according to Erv Swygart, business representative at Fort Wayne for Teamsters Local 414.

The charges filed with the National Labor Relations Board pertain to the firings, Swygart said. A hearing date has not been announced.

Swygart said the three workers fired April 21 and the four still nominally employes of the company are all card-carrying members of the Teamsters Union. The strike was touched off by the firings, he said.

The firm, which Swygart said also is known as Calf-Teria Co., manufactures stock feeders and other stock handling equipment.

MODERN MRS. HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The May meeting of the Modern Mrs. Home Demonstration Club was a pot luck supper given in honor of club members' mothers. The hostesses, Lois Ann Hook and Virginia Carr, had the meeting in the EUB church basement. There were 18 members and their mothers present, one visitor and her mother and 1 child.

After an enjoyable supper, the president opened the short business meeting with the club collect. Devotions were given by Betty Miller. Gay Varner gave the history and song of the month and led the group in singing some old favorites. A most enjoyable fashion report was given by Phyllis Amaden. In addition to the fashions, Phyllis told how to obtain a "bathing suit figure."

The business discussed concerned the National Home Demonstration Club Week with the program at Auburn. The Purdue Conference was discussed and it was decided to send the president, Phyllis Sipe, to the meeting June 9, 10 and 11.

CONCORD JR. HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Concord Jr. Home Demonstration Club met at the I& M Social Room for their May 4 meeting.

Mothers were guests for the evening. All present received candy corsages made by the committee.

The meeting was opened by the president, Rose Means, and all repeated the club collect. Harriett Baker read a Mother's Day prayer for devotions. The history and song of the month, "Love's Old Sweet Song," was given by Edna Perkins. Roll call was answered by a Mothers Day poem.

The lesson, Modern Laundry Methods, was given by Norma Diederich and Ellen Fetters. A comic pantomime was given by Eunice Rennecker, Marcia Sible, Lois Strombeck, Marvella Dilley and Betty Rediger.

A proverbs game was enjoyed by everyone.

Lunch was served and plants awarded to Mrs. Lloyd Yeiser, the oldest mother, Norma Diederich, the youngest mother, and Garnet Wasson, the mother with the most children.

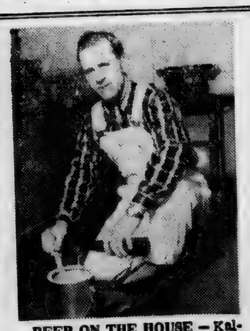
WHERE ROMANS STEAMED — Pozzuoli, Italy — Lovelies Ingrid Maskoff (Left) and Maria Piazzai enjoy a volcanic steam bath — Roman style. More than two thousand years ago Julius Caesar and his men came to this zone about Mt. Vesuvius which is riddled with volcanic steam fissures, to sweat themselves into shape. The girls' "thermometer" is improvised and so is the "bath".



BEER ON THE HOUSE — Kalamazoo, Mich. — Many people drink beer, some women use it to wash their hair, but Kirt Ostertag finds the sudsy brew eminently suited for painting walls. Mixing the sudsy solution with a coloring material, Ostertag applied an artificial walnut "Grain" to the plasterboard paneling. The process, he explained, is one he used in his native Germany.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT — Canfield, O. — With Leonardo Da Vinci's painting of "The Last Supper" as a meaningful wall decoration, youthful seminarians eat in the refectory of their residence at Canfield, O. They are members of The Society of St. Paul, a religious order devoted to spreading the Gospel with the aid of all modern media of communications.

Letters to the Editor

April 10, 1959

Ted Haberkorn
St. Joe News
St. Joe, Ind.

Dear Ted:

I thought that it was about time that I got down to business and thanked you for sending me the St. Joe News every week. I want you to know that I really appreciate the fact that you go to all of the trouble to send a copy of the paper clear down here in Norfolk, Virginia. When I was home for Easter I was going to stop in and thank you personally, but it seemed that after I got home I didn't even have much time to see my own Mother and Father, let alone anyone else.

The weather down here in the south is really something for a person to witness. I never would have believed it if I wouldn't have been here myself, it is really beautiful. It is about like middle summer here in Norfolk right now, compared to what the weather is "Back Home In Indiana".

I suppose that you already have figured out that I live in a boarding house insead of a barracks. Yes, the Coast Guard have been pretty good to me so far, I guess I can't complain much about how I have been treated down here in the South, although I can't say that I have witnessed much of what you would call "Southern Hospitality" as of yet. Summer is just coming on though, it's supposed to get better all of the time, and compared to what I have already seen the people are really looking forward to it.

I was glad to hear that the basketball team finished up the regular season play in such high style. According to what I have heard and read in the paper, they must have really been on the ball the last part of the season. Mr. Brookfield must really have raked them over the coals to get them to play so good. Heck they might have even given last years team a good battle. Ha-Ha.

Well I guess that I will have to sign off and get ready to go home from a hard days work here at the office. Untill the next time that I remember to write, I'll say tell everyone for me that I said "hello" and that I'll be home again sometime this summer.

Thanks again for sending the paper.

Sincerely,

Dear Ted: April 10, 1959

Thank you for "The News" which you have faithfully sent to us over these years.— We have genuinely appreciated the touch of home which comes within that long envelope with the pretty stamps and the St. Joe post mark.

With the news from home it has always seemed closer here in Tokyo. It really is a small world, however. Even here we have managed to see quite a number of folks from the old home town. Mrs. Harriett Oberlin, Bruce Baker and Lynn Lake to mention a few.— Glen Romines daughter Betty and husband Harold Galloway were here for some time.

This note is to let you know that we will be leaving for home on June 3.— We are going to fly BOAC jet prop (if Northwest Orient Airline's gripe about trans-Pacific service by B.O.A.C. is surmounted) to San Francisco and then fly on to Chicago via American Airlines Boeing 707. — We plan a few days rest in Honolulu and San Francisco on the way.

These have been exciting, discouraging and yet challenging years. The Church of Jesus Christ is growing - slowly, ever so slowly. There are moments of joy and despair. Hours and hours of work that often come to naught. It is a comfort to know that Jesus' victory is sure otherwise we should surely come away very unhappy. Japan has changed in these years but not much towards becoming a Christian country.

See you in June. Hold our paper until we can send you our Chicago address.

Sincerely,
Bill and Doris Billow

Gospel Services At KP Hall

Undenominational Gospel Services will be held in Saint Joe beginning Friday evening, May 15. Services will be held each evening thereafter except Wednesday and Saturdays, meetings beginning at 8 p.m.

The Knights of Pythias Hall in Saint Joe is being used for the services which are conducted by Herbert Holmes and Luther Nussbaum.

SAINT JOE VALLEY HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The April meeting of the Saint Joe Valley Home Demonstration Club was held at the home of Hazel Leonhart.

The meeting opened with members repeating the club creed. Devotions were given by Huldah Reasoner. The history of the song of the month was given by Elizabeth Shull and all joined in singing "Drink To Me Only With Thine Eyes."

The lesson on laundry methods and supplies was given by Myrtle Pugsley and Elizabeth Shull. Happy Birthday was sung for ladies with birthdays in April. Birthday auction was held.

The meeting closed with all singing the club prayer.

Fifteen members were present. Refreshments were served by hostess Hazel Leonhart and co-hostess Edna Kaufman.

The next meeting will be held May 15 at the home of Helen Hoffer.

Mabel Lyons New Deputy

Mrs. Mabel Lyons of Auburn has been appointed third deputy sheriff for DeKalb County. The appointment, announced by Sheriff Dorsie Likens, is effective June 1. A third deputy sheriff was authorized for the county by the 1959 Indiana legislature.

Mrs. Lyons will serve as office clerk, maintain and file office records and operate the police radio which is to be installed in the office. In addition, she will assist in investigations involving women.

Mrs. Lyons, clerk of the Indiana Supreme and Appellate courts from January 1, 1955, to December 31, 1959, has had wide business experience. She was formerly employed as as an assistant cashier at the City National Bank in Auburn and served in the claims and compensation division of the Indiana State Highway Department for a year preceding her election to the state office.

She is a former state vice chairman of the Indiana Republican Central Committee and for many years has served as DeKalb County GOP vice chairman.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

Devotional reading: I Kings 8:54-61.

POWER IS PERIL
Lesson for May 17, 1959

Some people have everything. Not all people begin with everything; but King Solomon did. Talk of being born with a gold spoon in the mouth! Little Solomon would have choked with all the sets of gold spoons that belonged to him. He was the king who had everything done for him, everything all arranged. He did not have to carve out a kingdom; his father David had done that. He did not have to develop an army; his father had done that too. He did not have to try to be rich; he was born wealthy. He was the favorite son of his father's favorite wife; the strongest forces in harem politics (always a power in barbaric countries) were on his side.

Strength Has Its Dangers

Solomon had better than a scheming mother on his side; God was with him. The beautiful story of Solomon's dream, in I Kings 3, shows the young king at his best. Yet the story of his reign, in spite of all its magnificent display, in spite of all the peace and prosperity, is in the long run a story of decay and degeneration. He was like a great rocket leaving its launching pad in a blaze of light, yet going off-course and bringing down in its crash many a hope and expectation of success.

Why was this? The story of Solomon tells us something about power and its perils. Most people think of power as a sort of insurance, and so we seize every chance to increase our power. Few powerful men are content with the power they have. They are always grasping for more.

The Power of Bad Influence

One danger is that if a man is specially powerful, everything he does will be copied by lesser men. (Lesser men may be just as powerful as greater men, only not so successful.) As is well known, Solomon built not only the famous Temple of Jehovah; he built shrines for other gods, also in and around the city of Jerusalem. It is a fact that all that the prophets of the true God could do or say, for hundreds of years, did not succeed in winning the masses of people to the Lord. Worship of idols went on, generation after generation. And why not, with Solomon's temples to other gods still standing? Why not? they would say—if it was all right for Solomon it is good enough for us. If Solomon had been as loyal to God as God's generous goodness to him deserved, the whole sad history of Israel might have been different. But because Solomon was no obscure working man but a powerful monarch, his very sins would be imitated—and indeed they were.

Peril To Personality

There is a more intimate danger in great power, and that is to the inner self, the soul, of the one who has it. We must not think this is true only of prominent people like judges and presidents and generals. It is true of kings and cowhands, true of parents, whose power over their children is greater than they realize, true of employers, managers, everyone who has the right to give someone else orders. The danger is that the strong man comes to think that whatever he can do is right.

Shall We Shirk Power?

Solomon became a tyrant, as even his son admitted. If we had room, we could name still other perils of power, but the reader is invited to make his own list. Let us just ask a question. Since the possession of power is a danger not only to the soul of the powerful but also to those over whom he stands, ought not a conscientious person to refuse to accept power, small or great? Not by any means. The dangers are always there; but they are made less for the person who is aware of them. And power there must be. You cannot run a fish market or a church or a nation if nobody takes orders from anybody. Order and authority there must be; and without power this is impossible. Bishops and presidents and managers and bosses are necessities; nevertheless, they will (if they are Christian) hold office in true humility, not in pride.

OTHER LOW-PRICED CARS WOULDN'T BE LOW PRICED IF THEY HAD WHAT CHEVY HAS!

Model for model the leading low-priced three are pretty close together on cost. But—when you start figuring what you get for your money—Chevy parts company from the other two in a hurry. Look over the list of Chevrolet exclusives below, then estimate how much they're worth to you. We'll leave it to your own arithmetic. How long would the other two be in the low-price field if they gave you what Chevy does?

CHEVROLET

SAFETY PLATE GLASS IN EVERY WINDOW

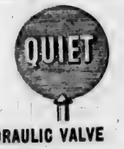
This extra's a real eye-saver. Chevy's the only low-priced car that gives you Safety Plate Glass—not just Safety Glass—all around.

$_____

CRANK-OPERATED VENTIPANES

Ever try to open a ventipane without this little convenience? Then you know what fingernail-savers those cranks can be.

$_____



HYDRAULIC VALVE LIFTERS

You won't find another low-priced car that gives you this oil-hushed assurance of smooth, quiet performance on all standard engines.

$_____

OVERHEAD CURVING WINDSHIELD

And here's a neck-saver, especially for looking at overhead traffic lights. Chevy's got greatest overall visibility area in its field, too.

$_____

GREATER ROOMINESS

More seating room than any other low-priced car. And more front seat head room than any other low- or medium-priced sedan.

$_____

BIGGEST BRAKES IN THE FIELD

Chevy's new brakes are built for up to two-thirds longer life. There's more lining area than on many heavier, higher priced cars.

$_____

FULL COIL SUSPENSION

Take a trial ride before you put a price tag on this. No other leading low-priced car cushions you with coil springs at all four wheels.

$_____

HIGHER RESALE VALUE

Consistently highest of the leading low-priced three. Right now '57 Chevies are averaging up to $128 more in the used car market.

$_____

NO WONDER MORE PEOPLE ARE BUYING CHEVROLETS THAN ANY OTHER CAR!

FUTURE JETS

The 6th meeting of the Future Jets was held May 4 at 7:30 p.m.

The meeting began with pledges to the flags. Six Little Ducks and How D'ye Do were sung by the group. The songs were taught to the song leaders by the song leaders from the officers at Waterloo. Religious thought was given by Susan Fields. Old and new business were discussed.

The officers training classes were discussed by all the members on what they learned. A health talk was given by Beth Fields on personality. Imogene Nussbaum gave a demonstration on how to set a table.

The meeting was then adjourned by Sharon Boylan, seconded by Claudia Strombeck. Recreation was enjoyed and refreshments were served furnished by Ruth Nussbaum.

The next meeting will be held May 18 at 7:30 p.m.

"Here's why I can wholeheartedly recommend ALL-ELECTRIC living,"

Says Mr. R. J. Wolf, Interior Decorator

"Our average monthly electric bill, including electric heat, is only $31.28.

"I'm an interior decorator and also have studied architecture. My job, planning homes, is to make them as comfortable as possible, yet cater to individual tastes. I personally selected an all-electric home for my family because I firmly believe electric heat and electric appliances offer the very best in savings, comfort and convenience."

Reddy says: "I&M electric rates have never been increased. If your electric bill is higher, it's because you're using electricity to take over so many more of your household tasks. Actually, the more you use each month, the less you pay per kilowatthour. Living better electrically costs so little, yet means so much."

Mail Box Need Paint?

The Annual Rural Mail Box Improvement Week will be observed this year May 18-23.

The Post Office Department and the local post office employees at Saint Joe and Spencerville encourage patrons of rural delivery service to provide suitable boxes, erected and maintained for easy and safe accessibility, presenting a neat appearance and affording protection for the mail.

The Department prefers that rural mail boxes and posts or supports be painted white, but they may be painted other colors if desired. It is not necessary that posts or supports and boxes be painted the same color.

The name of the owner of each box must be inscribed in neat letters not less than 1 inch high on the side of the box that is visible to the carrier as he approaches, or on the door if boxes are grouped. The letters should be of contrasting color.

Posts and supports must be of neat design and may be of wood, metal or concrete of suitable strength and dimensions.

Boxes should be grouped where neighbors live close together, preferably on a shelf-like board attached atop two or more strong posts 3½ to 4 feet above the ground.

Rural boxes should be placed so that they may be conveniently served by the carriers without their leaving their conveyance. They must be located on the right-hand side of the road in the direction of travel.

Jacob Hoover is the rural carrier at Spencerville and Robert Jonson is Saint Joe's rural mail carrier. Postmaster at Spencerville is Josephine Crowl. At Saint Joe Lehr Wilder is postmaster.

New Definition Of Farm

A new definition of a farm, which is uniform throughout the country for purposes of the acreage allotment and Soil Bank programs, takes effect this year, according to Mr. Ray W. Miller of the DeKalb County Agricultrual Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

The new definition, Mr. Miller said, places emphasis on farm operation. In general, a farm is defined as:

(1) All adjoining or nearby and easily accessible farm, wood or range land under the same ownership which is operated by the same person; and (2) All additional farm, wood or range land under different ownership which is operated by that same person provided it is nearby and easily accessible, is approximately equally productive and has been operated as part of the farm for the past two years or will be so operated for two years in the future.

Under this definition, the operator of a farm means the person who is in charge of the supervision and conduct of the farming operations.

To be considered easily accessible and nearby, tracts of land should be close enough together so that farm labor is or could be freely interchanged and machinery could be moved between them under its own power during farming operations.

Tracts under different ownerships will not be combined, Mr. Miller said, where one is primarily irrigated land and the other is primarily non-irrigated or where the tracts differ so widely in productivity that crop allotments likely would be shifted from one tract to the other.

Any land which was properly identified as a "farm" under previous definitions will continue to be classed as a farm until a change in operation arrangements occurs. If a change is necessary, the new definition will be used in all cases.

Farmers or others interested in farm real estate who have questions about application of the new farm definition may get detailed information at the county ASC office.

Akron, Ohio—These little tots could do a lot of "wheeling" on this tire, but even with a child's imagination, it wouldn't quite fit their tricycles. It is the world's largest tire, built in Akron, Ohio, by the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company. The mammoth tire, which stands 10 feet high and is four feet wide, is a research model for a planned line of earthmover and special purpose tires for huge construction machines. With the price of this tire—$14,000—you could buy a three-bedroom home, and with the nylon fabric used in its construction, more than 7,000 pairs of ladies' hose could have been made. Enough rubber was used to produce 3,200 passenger car tires. Size designation for the tire is 44.5x45, which means the distance across the sidewall is 44.5 inches and the bead diameter is 45 inches. It weighs two tons by itself and three tons when equipped with its rim.

Around the Town

With the Editor

If more subscribers were "stubborn" (as he calls it) as Earl Lohse, I'd know more people. Mr. Lohse came in last week and paid up. He said his son-in-law suggested a check through the mail, but Mr. Lohse was going to see what I looked like and waited until he caught me in.

You printers can appreciate this. Last Friday morning I was in the shop at 5:45 to get the presses rolling and the paper out. I made a correction and started the press. Something sounded funny (not funny ha-ha but funny hmnnnn) and I stepped back. As I did so I saw - omigosh - one of the forms was loose. But before I could throw the switch, the form eased off the press bed, dropped to the floor, then flopped over on the floor, type face down. Everything eventually turned out all right; not too much type was damaged. But oh-h-h-, what a sick feeling that was.

Friday afternoon a Volkswagen station wagon pulled up in front of the post office. It was hard to see who was driving it until they got out. Here it was Mr. and Mrs. Ira Moore back from Phoenix for a week's visit. They said it was 100 when they left Phoenix.

Their son, Richard, is a victim of multiple sclerosis. He gets around in a wheel chair and they get him around with the aid of a ramp and the Volkswagen.

He doesn't let his handicap hold him back. He's an "A" student.

As the Achievement Night program progressed and finished, with students getting recognized for their work, it occurred to me that there ought to be some sort of recognition for the principal. I don't know how many times in a school year he has his time taken for providing service of some sort for the school or someone else of an evening, but it's quite a few. In the past few weeks it has been a hectic pace. Besides the expected hustle and bustle that comes with graduation, there was the Senior trip. And when the Juniors gave their play who was the one in charge of make-up? The principal. In fact, who was the director? The principal. Besides there were disciplinary problems arising and this and that and boy, I think I'd go nuts.

To top it off, the mosquitoes are out in full force for graduation and it was hot and - oh my.

Yeah.

Cal Coburn and Jerry McMaken did a nice job of changing the sign on Vinson's Market from "Dunten's" to "Vinson's." They had a good start though because they could leave the "---N'S" and just change the first few letters. The space came out just right.

—Wonder what they would have done it the new name was "Vinsonapopoulis"?

Car Slides In Ditch

Damage estimated at $250 was caused to a 1956 Buick driven by Mrs. Walter Reinhart Saturday evening as the right wheels dropped off a gravel road one mile east and one and a half miles south of the Coburntown Church. An aunt riding in the car with Mrs. Reinhart was thrown forcibly against the right front door and received a bruise. Mrs. Reinhart was shaken but uninjured.

The mishap occurred when the Reinhart car and one driven by Ted Haberkorn approached one another just north of the Virgil Mathes residence. Mrs. Reinhart pulled a little to far to the right as she passed the other car and the right wheels dropped off the road. There is no berm right at that spot, the road dropping off to a drain pipe. Mrs. Reinhart attempted the pull on the road but the ditch was deep enough to prevent this. The car skidded into a tree and continued several feet further down the road before finally emerging from the ditch.

Hitting the tree smashed the right rear fender panel and damaged the door and trunk. Twisting action of the car caused the windshied to crack at the right and left corners.

No Picture Here, But It's For Sure

There is no photograph accompanying this story, but there are verifications from a number who have seen it.

What? Well, Ned and Marsha Keller found an 11½-inch 8-oz. mushroom Sunday as they participated in the mushroom hunting season activities. The giant find was a yellow sponge. The stem was 3 inches in diameter and the sponge itself was 10½ inches in circumference.

400 Attend Graduation

400 persons were present at commencement exercises for the Riverdale High School Class of 1959, held Tuesday evening at the high school in Saint Joe.

The main speaker of the evening was Rev. P. B. Smith of Waynedale. Rev. Smith reminisced about the "little red schoolhouse," noting several of its familiar characteristics. He pointed out that the old schools possibly did not give out as much formal education as is given in today's schools, but from it came a more fundamental teaching of respect and discipline. Rev. Smith deplored the fact that teachers of today must be so careful in their discipline lest they incur the wrath of parents and possible calling into court.

Rev. Smith pointed out that other occupations successfully compete with teaching and lure teachers from the profession due to low pay. He mentioned a case known to him wherein a teacher made more in a new profession as a waitress receiving tips than she received as a teacher in public schools.

The speaker commented briefly on consolidation of schools, offering his opinion that such steps were a good thing for smaller schools.

By popular request the valedictory and salutatory addresses were repeated by Larry Friend and Dale Dowden. They had previously given their addresses at the Achievement Night program last Friday.

Another 4-H Bake Sale For Park Saturday

The Saint Joe Booster Club will get another boost Saturday morning, once again from the youth in the community.

The Champion Chef's 4-H Club, all boys, by the way, will hold a bake sale Saturday morning, May 23, starting at 9:30 a.m. and lasting until 11:00 a.m. The sale will be held at the News Office in Saint Joe.

Pies, cakes, cookies and other popular items will be sold. And proceeds from the sale will be given to the Booster Club to help pay expenses for the public park.

BY WILLIAM BRODIE

Lindbergh's Flight

Early in the morning on Friday, May 20, 1927, a tall, handsome young American prepared to take off on a flight from Roosevelt Field, Long Island, that was to make aviation history. His name was Charles Augustus Lindbergh, and he was a 25-year-old aviator who had been an airmail pilot with the U.S. Army Airmail Service and held a captain's rank in the air reserve corps.

Young Lindbergh was out to win the $25,000 Orteig prize offered for the first non-stop flight from New York to Paris. The prize had been put up by Raymond Orteig, a French-American hotel owner. In preparation for his flight to win the prize, Charles Lindbergh got the financial backing of a group of St. Louis businessmen, and out in San Diego, California, he had a special Ryan monoplane built according to his own ideas. This plane had a wing spread of 46 feet, carried 450 gallons of gasoline, and was propelled by a 225 horsepower Wright Whirlwind motor. The plane was named Spirit of St. Louis.

A few days after his arrival in New York the final preparations were made at Roosevelt Field for the flight to Paris, and at 7:52 on the morning of May 20, 1927, Charles Lindbergh took off in his plane, and calmly, without least ceremony, headed for Paris, France. He carried five sandwiches and a canteen of water for provisions. Among those who saw him take off there was much shaking of heads.

The Spirit of St. Louis flew perfectly at an average speed of 108 miles and hour. Hour after hour the monoplane droned on across the ocean waters. And at 10:21 in the evening of the next day, Paris time, the Spirit of St. Louis was circling over Le Bourget Field in Paris, precisely at its goal. The first solo transatlantic flight had been completed, and Charles Lindbergh had flown the 3610 miles from New York to Paris in 33½ hours.

Tremendous enthusiasm and acclaim greeted the daring young aviator. The whole civilized world applauded him. Many honors from foreign nations as well as his own country were bestowed on him. He was promoted to colonel in the air reserve corps. Charles A. Lindbergh, the quiet, assured young American, became a hero overnight and a symbol of daring, courage and international good will. Happily the hero's role set well with the modest young man who by his perfect flight secured public confidence in the future of aviation.

Unemployment - Want and Need

Of major concern in this country today is the matter of unemployment. There are those who may exaggerate the problem somewhat and promote such things as the recent "march" on Washington in which a group sought to bring the unemployment problem to the fore by pressuring official Washington, including the president, into immediate action. It certainly isn't a happy situation to have 4 or 5 million unemployed, but at the same time it seems that common sense will show that 100 per cent employment is an impossibility. While a few million is a few million too many, unemployment is, to some extent, a necessary evil in a free economy. Also to be considered is the fact that our population has increased quite rapidly in the past several years; the unemployed will necessarily increase with a population increase.

One of the greatest contributors to the problem of unemployment is the changing pattern of living as time passes. This change involves both human desires and human necessities. Today we find women holding more jobs percentagewise than they did twenty and thirty years ago. There is a tendency to be dissatisfied with the job of keeper of the home, to want to "get out" and find work that is both lucrative and "interesting." In some instances, when "the kids" leave home to make their own homes, it is understandable that Mom gets a job; because she is able to find employment indicates that someone needs her services. Circumstances vary and conditions vary from one home to another; so we have a lot of reasons why women seek employment in the business and professional world, or at least there appear to be a lot of reasons. Another of these today is that Mom MUST find a job; the income of her husband doesn't allow them the bits of pleasure in everyday life which they feel entitled to and which they are reasonably entitled to. It is a strange situation that with the high standard of living which Americans have today and the prosperity we have generally speaking, there still are a great many homes which cannot get along on the income from one job. Either the father must find part time work for extra income - or the mother finds full or part time employment. So, not only do we have the desire for a change in scenery and the desire for more material possessions and greater independence pushing women into the working world, we have economic necessity also doing its part to add to the number of those who want or already have jobs.

When attempting to "solve" the unemployment problem, it is necessary to consider more than just how many jobs there are and how many want those jobs.

Club Sponsors Clean-up, Hop

Spenerville Community Club activities include two important dates in the next several days. The first item is a clean-up day at White City Cemetery Saturday, May 23. The clean-up is in preparation for the observance of Memorial Day. All who can help are asked to do so.

Then on Thursday, May 28, a record hop will be held at the Spencerville gym. Master of ceremonies for the evening will be Bill Wilder.

The hop will be held from 8:00 to 11:00 p.m. Admission will be couples 40c and single 25c.

At a meeting held May 9, a new board of directors was elected for the Community Club. Selected were the following:

3 year term—Max Ward, Lehr Wilder, William Hudson.

2 year term—Max Markle, Glenn Moore, Mike Beaty.

1 year term—Lois Fisher, Howard Alwood, Bernice Hollabaugh.

Church League Meets Monday

A meeting of the Saint Joe Church League has been called for Monday, May 25. All teams which will participate in the softball league this summer should be represented at this meeting. A schedule will be drawn up at that time.

Burmell Walter, president of the league, announced that the meeting will be held at the home of Lewis Walter, 2½ miles north of Saint Joe. He added that activity in the league should begin in the next two weeks.

SPENCER TWP. HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Spencer Twp. Home Demonstration Club met Monday evening, May 11, at the Methodist Church basement. The hostesses were Marjorie Howey, Elva Hoover, Grace Laub, Hazel Washler, Arminta Steward, Jennie Walter, Winifred Hart, Nellie Allen, Ethel Webb and Winifred Shook.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Ida Reed, who welcomed guests from the Auburn Home Demonstration Club. Club collect was led by Valda Brown. Devotions were given by Eleanor Crothers. History of the song of the month, "Love's Old Sweet Song," was given by Alice Kagey. She also led singing with Valda Brown at the piano.

Roll call response was, mother's maiden name. Awards for Quarter Century Members were awarded to Gladys Hart, Winifred Hart, Winifred Shook, Berniece Wilder, Metta Furnish, Marjie Dwyer, Grace Laub, Ellen Hart and Hazel Washler. The club donated $3.00 to the cancer society.

The Bestyette Club of Auburn will entertain June 3 at 7:30 at the court house.

Club prayer song was led by Berniece Wilder.

Social hour chairman was Marjorie Howey. Community singing was led by Alice Kagey. Nancy Brown sang several songs accompanied by her mother.

15 members of the Auburn club were present and 24 members of the Spencer Twp. club. A delicious lunch was served by the committee.

AMERICAN HISTORY

BY WILLIAM BRODIE

DEATH OF ABRAHAM LINCOLN

The most tragic death in American history occurred in Washington on the cold, rainy Saturday of April 15, 1865. Early in the morning of that dismal day President Abraham Lincoln died, where he had lain unconscious all night, on a plain wooden bed in the little brick boarding house of William Peterson. The house was across the street from Ford's Theatre where the President had been struck down by an assassin's bullet the night before.

The assassin was John Wilkes Booth, an idle actor. Booth was a young man of 27, handsome with a sallow face and a black mustache. He was a fiery Confederate sympathizer and ringleader at that time of a plot to murder the chief officials of the government. Booth had been hanging around Washington for months and his evil plotting came to a climax of murder at the downfall of the Confederacy.

Five days after General Lee's surrender on April 9, Washington was still in a holiday mood on Good Friday, April 14, 1865, while throughout the land the people rejoiced at the coming of peace after four terrible years of civil war. It was also, incidentally, the fourth anniversary of the fall of Fort Sumter which had opened the war. In the morning Lincoln held a long session with his Cabinet during which he emphasized his lenient attitude toward the Southern states. "Even the worst of the rebels will not be hanged," he said. "Enough lives have been lost."

That evening a diversion for the tired President was planned with a theatre party at Ford's Theatre. The play, "Our American Cousin," was trifling and the President didn't particularly care to go. But Mrs. Lincoln had invited guests, a Major Henry Rathbone and his fiancee, Miss Clara Harris. So Lincoln went to the theatre, where he was enthusiastically greeted. In his private box he sat back to relax.

Lincoln's only bodyguard was a Washington policeman who, later in the evening, went out into the alley for a drink of whiskey. A few minutes after ten o'clock the unguarded door of the President's box was silently opened and in stepped Booth, with a pistol in one hand and a dagger in the other. He took careful aim and fired a shot into the back of Lincoln's head. The President made no sound as his head fell forward. Horror froze the others in the box. Major Rathbone leaped at Booth and was cut deeply in the arm.

As Booth jumped from the box to the stage the spur of his left boot caught in the flag draped over the box and he fell, fracturing his left leg. He staggered to his feet, waved his bloody dagger, and shouted at the audience, "Sic Semper Tyrannis! Virginia is avenged!" Then despite his fractured leg he scampered down the back stairway, as piercing screams came from the President's box, leaped upon a waiting horse, and galloped away before the dazed audience realized he had just killed the President.

The first persons who ran into the President's box saw at once that his wound was fatal. Tenderly he was carried across the street to Peterson's boarding house. While wild rumors spread through Washington and crowds gathered, sorrowing officials, doctors, soldiers and members of the family stood by knowing that the end was near. Nothing could be done for the dying President. Slowly his life ebbed away. At dawn his pulse began to fail. Finally, his moaning, which had continued all night, ceased. The great heart had stopped beating. Abraham Lincoln was at dead, at 7:22 in the morning of April 15, 1865.

John Hay, his secretary, standing by, noted that "over his worn features had come a look of unspeakable peace." Edwin M. Stanton, Secretary of War in Lincoln's Cabinet, was the first to break the silence around Lincoln's bedside. "Now he belongs to the ages," he quietly said.

DATE OF BIG "500" RACE APPROACHES

Drivers entered in the 43rd annual 500-mile race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, who failed to earn starting positions during time trials last week-end, will have another opportunity to clinch a place in the lineup when official qualification attempts are resumed Saturday morning (May 23) at 11 o'clock.

Trials also will be held Sunday, beginning at noon, and the fastest 33 cars among the 61 entries this year will be eligible to start the race behind the Buick pace car on May 30 at 11 A.M. (CDT).

Rookies, who were content to watch their more experienced rivals from the sidelines last Saturday and Sunday, have had additional time to practice and probably will be among the first in line this week-end.

The Saturday and Sunday sessions also will offer all entrants a final chance for practice and experimental work, assuring spectators of almost continuous track action until closing time at 6 o'clock each day.

Special prize money posted by Speedway Owner President Hulman includes a cash award of $1,000 each day for the driver turning in the fastest official time trial and smaller cash prizes will be given to other qualifiers on the basis of their respective speeds. At the completion of the trials, an additional $1,000 will be awarded to the fastest qualifier in the starting lineup.

One car certain to receive special attention this week-end is the Eldorado Special from Italy, powered with a non-supercharged Maserati V-8 engine. It's the same car Sterling Moss kept in a contending position most of the way in the Monza "500" last summer.

Admission to the time trials is $1.50, with free parking privileges in the infield and all grandstand seats available on a first-come-first-served basis.

Ticket order forms, showing the price and location of all reserved seats still available on race day, may be obtained by writing to the Indianapolis Motor Speedway ticket director, Speedway, Ind.

Johnnie Parsons (left) and Jimmy Bryan, two former "500" winners, clock the speed of their principal rivals during practice for the final week-end of time trials.

A NATION SPLITS

Lesson for May 24, 1959

Few men have made so little out of so much, as the feckless kinglet named Rehoboam. He had everything to begin with: he came from the greatest family in his nation, he had wealth and power, he was the logical man for the throne. But he booted his own kingdom away with one single speech. It was one of the most foolish speeches on record anywhere. It would seem almost like a work of genius to make so many bloopers in a one-sentence address.

But so it was. There stands Rehoboam, the leader who did not know how to lead; the leader deluded, the leader forsaken. And there went the kingdom which David had shed so much blood to build, the kingdom over which Solomon had reigned in all his glory—gone, gone for good. It was split once for all. It never grew together again. It is a perfect example of how bad leadership can split what should have been united. Wherever you find a split church, a split nation, you can count on it, some bad leadership is at the bottom of it.

Why the Prince Learned Nothing

One reason for Reheboam's dismal failure was that he asked the right questions of the wrong people. Jeroboam, who had a right to ask questions, had asked one that stumped poor Rehoboam the very first thing. He does not seem to have thought about it before: what about taxes? The burden of taxation had been heavy in Solomon's time. What was to be his son's policy? Rehoboam asked the men of experience, and he didn't like their answer. So he tried the men of no experience, and he got just the kind of twaddle he liked to hear. How can a man be so wrong? And yet, isn't it true today that there are would-be leaders, sometimes with considerable following, who learn nothing from experience? A man who learns nothing from history, who scorns to take advice from wiser men, who listens to the poorest advice rather than the best, who hears only what he wants to hear—such men are not unknown in the life of church and nation.

Government for Whom?

Another mistake Rehoboam made was to forget why government exists. He thought of it as an arrangement for his own benefit. This is not a notion that got buried with Rehoboam. The notion outlived him by many centuries and is still with us. There are politicians in our country who may belong to one party or another, what the party stands for makes little difference with them, what they are interested in is winning elections so as to get political jobs. Government, in their eyes, is for the benefit of the politican, the man in the government job. The truth is, that when government really is only for the officeholder's benefit, it is time for a revolution. The real aim of good government is the benefit of the people. If the people are benefited, then the government is good; otherwise not. The people of Israel had had it hard in Solomon's time. "My father (Solomon) chastised you with whips," said Rehoboam. In other words, you took a beating. Rehoboam thought that was a good thing. But the people didn't.

Where Does Power Come From?

It did not occur to Rehoboam (who was about 40 years old at this time and had had time to learn, but never did) that if he was to be king at all he would have to be elected. Saul and David and Solomon had all been elected by the people. Our American idea of government with the consent of the governed isn't the whole idea. Government BY the people, by their will and choice, is not merely an American idea. It goes back to the ancient Hebrews. You can find it in Deuteronomy 17 already. But poor stupid Rehoboam didn't discover this till too late. He thought if he showed his sword and shouted it would be enough. It would have been, if power comes from the top down. It is not, in a country where the power is in the people. Power comes first of all from God. But he knows (and we find out soon enough) how dangerous power is when one man tries to steal it all.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stiver attended the funeral of Mr. Stiver's father at Fort Wayne Monday.

Farmers of DeKalb County have only until June 1, 1959, to dispose of wheat planted in excess of their acreage allotments, according to Ray Miller, ASC chairman.

Funeral services were held Saturday for Mrs. Ruth Florence Haver, 63, widow of Gerald Haver of near Saint Joe who died last December. Mrs. Haver's body was found Thursday after Thomas Brunson had noted no activity at the Haver farm since the previous week-end. Coroner R. Perry Reynolds said Mrs. Haver died the Monday before her body was found. Rev. Ivan O. Miller officiated at the services and burial was in Leo Cemetery. Survivors include the father, Jacob Ladd, of Fort Wayne; a daughter, Mrs. Paul Zimmerlee of Fort Wayne; two brothers, Glenn Ladd of Payne, O., and Paul Ladd of Grabill; and four sisters, Mrs. Aaron Ehresman and Mrs. Garrett Bowers of Payne, and Mrs. Lucille Carter and Mrs. Barbara Schramm of Fort Wayne. Death was attributed to coronary occlusion.

The last date to obtain price support in 1958 crop corn in non-moth area of Indiana will be June 1, according to Ray Miller of the ASC office.

Word has been received by Elizabeth Hart of the death of Etta Pervine Barron, age 75. Death came April 18 at the Castle Nursing Home in Millersburg, Ohio, after a long illness. Burial was April 21 at Londonville Cemetery. Survivors are the husband, two stepdaughters, 3 sisters and 4 brothers.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Walters have as their new address: 1512 South Corona, Colorado Springs, Colo. Apt. 6.

A zone social will be held Saturday, June 6, for members of Lions clubs in Auburn, Waterloo, Saint Joe, Garrett, Corunna, Kendallville, Avilla and Butler. The social will be held at the Auburn Rubber Co. union hall.

Initiated into the Order of DeMolay at the Concord Masonic Temple in Spencerville Saturday were the following: Wallace Burton Graham, Terry Lee Brattain, Larry Wayne Beaty, James William Hablawetz, Martin Walter and Michael Havert.

One of the most fabulous doll collections in this part of the country will be on display Saturday and Sunday, May 23 and 24, at the home of Mrs. J. Roland Muhn on East Seventh Street in Auburn. The public is invited to see the display from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. each day.

Funeral services were conducted for Ralph Edwin Baughman, 54, Wednesday at the Dilgard & Cline Funeral Home with Harry Farrer, pastor of the Newville Church of Christ, officiating. Mr. Baughman died Sunday from a heart condition. He had resided in Newville for the past 22 years and was employed by Sechlers. Survivors include the widow, Janie; five sons, Robert and Floyd of Butler, LeRoy of Auburn, Ralph, Jr., in the Air Force and Estel of Garrett; three daughters, Mrs. Delmar Mickelson and Mrs. William DeLaughter of Fort Wayne and Mrs. B. L. Dickman of Auburn; 18 grandchildren; a brother Paul, of Auburn; and two sisters, Mrs. Edna Lautenhiser of Lansing, Mich., and Mrs. Dessie Beener of Grand Rapids, Mich.

The Wee Haven Parent Group met May 14 and elected the following officers: Mrs. Waldo Long of Auburn, president; Mrs. Dean Norman of Hudson, vice president and program director; Mrs. Effie Humbarger of Auburn, secretary; and Harry Beard of Garrett, treasurer. Due to the tremendous response last year plans were made for two ice cream socials during the summer months, the first June 20 and the second the middle of August.

A total of 592 DeKalb County wool growers have applied for incentive payments under the national wool program for the 1958 marketing year, according to Ray Miller, ASC chairman. Payments are expected to be made some time after July 1.

Sunday guests of the Herbert Millers, celebrating Herb's birthday, were Mrs. D. W. Girardot of Fort Wayne, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Bradtmueller and sons, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Yarrington and son and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fry of Antwerp, O.

Around the Town

With the Editor

The 4-H'ers are a busy bunch of people. And a couple of them are anxious to have cooperation from you and me. Kenneth Mathes and Larry Mason are looking for swarms of bees. No, they didn't lose any; they just would like to take a swarm off your hands if one happens to settle in your territory.

So, if you have some bees you want to get rid of, call either Kenneth at Spencerville 80F2, or Larry at Saint Joe 2275.

Now the midget hot-rod has hit Saint Joe. The boys are busy hunting up wheels and boards, etc., to build the putt-putts.

June 1 Deadline For Corn Contest

The deadline for enrollment in the Junior and Senior 5-Acre Corn Club is June 15 according to Ernest Lesiuk, county agricultural agent.

Farmers who enroll in the 5-Acre Corn Contest have an opportunity to compare their methods of fertilization, kind of hybrid corn raised, rate of planting and finally yield per acre.

These contests are sponsored jointly by the Purdue University Extension Service and the Indiana Crop Improvement Association, and are open to both juniors and adults interested in evaluating their own production methods.

Farmers interested in joining the 5-Acre Corn Club may do so by enrolling at the county extension office in Auburn.

Bugs Have It Good This Year

This spring has been part of a banner year for mosquitoes, as Hoosiers are well aware. And the Saint Joe and Spencerville communities are proving to be no exceptions.

Despite several outings with the fogging machine by the Saint Joe Volunteer Fire Department, only slight relief has been felt against the nuisance biting of the mosquitoes. High winds hamper the fogging one time, the next it's rain following the fogging. And so it has been in this wet spring. The Fire Department had hopes of having it halfway comfortable for the Memorial Day week end. But there is a possibility that that hope is going to be only a hope.

Church League Starts June 8

Lavon Hart, secretary-treasurer of the Saint Joe Church Softball League, has issued a schedule of games for the summer months along with a list of rules which will govern play in the 1959 league.

A total of six teams will participate in the league. They are Saint Joe Lutheran, Saint Joe Church of Christ, Spencerville Lutheran, Coburntown Church of Christ, Mt. Pleasant E.U.B. and a combined team of Methodist churches listed as Meese-Rehobeth-Concord-Norris.

The 1959 rules are as follows:

1. Church League games will be played on Monday, Tuesday and Friday nights of seven innings duration. The games will start at 8:15 p.m. with a five minute forfeit period. Infield practice will begin at 8:00 p.m. No inning may be started after 11 p.m. except in case of a tie game which shall continue until the winner has been determined.

If at the end of five innings a team leads an opponent by twelve or more runs, the game will be called and the leading team will be declared the winner.

The plate umpire is the official time-keeper.

2. Each team must have at least eight players to start a game. In case of forfeit, a practice game may be played. A ninth player may be added upon arrival but must be added at the end of the batting order.

3. Anyone who pitches on another organized team other than high school will be ineligible to pitch in this league.

4. Players may not change teams after the start of the season.

5. Each player must attend church services or Sunday School of the church sponsoring his team on at least two Sundays of the month preceding a scheduled game.

Each player must be in at least two games to be eligible for the play-off.

Service men are eligible at all times if they are members of the sponsoring church with which they play.

6. Any player using profane language on the playing field shall leave the game. A second offense shall mean dismissal from any further participation in Church League activity.

There shall be no smoking on the playing field.

Each umpire shall enforce this rule.

7. Any team playing with any ineligible player is liable to forfeiture of the game.

8. Responsibility for having the diamond ready for games shall fall on the manager of the home team of the game for each night of Church League activity. This includes dragging of the field when necessary, placing of bases and liming of foul lines. This should be completed by 8:00 p.m.

9. Each manager shall be responsible for furnishing umpires for games according to the schedule.

10. One new ball will be furnished by the league for each game, with the better of the two balls from the previous game as the second ball. The other ball from the previous game will be given to the home team of that game.

11. A trophy shall be awarded to the winner of the play-off with a second trophy to be awarded to the team showing the best sportsmanship. The latter trophy winner will be determined by vote of the team players through their managers at the conclusion of the regular schedule.

12. The Church League does not assume any responsibility for accident occurring or injuries incurred on Church League nights.

13. Entry fee for participation in the Church League is $25.00. Should a team find it necessary to drop out of the league during the season, a refund of $2.00 per unplayed game will be made.

14. All rules will be enforced by the Board of the Church League, consisting of the officers of the league and ministers of participating churches.

Bike Ride Brings Death To Miss

Nine-year-old Kathy Kay Hart begged her mother to borrow a bicycle so she could go riding and was killed as she rode the bicycle Sunday afternoon near Hicksville. The victim unexpectedly turned into the path of a car driven by Lewis H. Mowrey, 42, of York, Pa. The accident occurred about 400 feet south of the Hickyille town limits on State Road 49.

The girl was the daughter of Mrs. Kathleen Hart of Newville, with whom she resided, and James Hart of Hicksville.

Mowrey told police that as he overtook the girl on the bicycle she turned unexpectedly into his path from the berm of the road. Both automobile and bicycle were headed north.

The child and her mother had been visiting Sunday in Hicksville and the girl had begged her mother to borrow a bicycle for her so that she could ride.

Survivors include the mother and father; a half-brother, John Hart, of Hicksville; maternal grandfather, Ivan Smith of Newville; maternal grandmother Mrs. Rhea Chester of Hicksville; and paternal grandmother Mrs. Bessie Hart of Saint Joe.

Summer Rec'n Program Starts Next Week

Coach Price Brookfield has asked that boys who plan to play baseball this summer meet with him on Monday and Tuesday of next week.

On Monday night the coach will confer with Little Leaguers at 5:00 p.m. at the ball diamond. On Tuesday at 5:00 p.m., he asks that Pony League and high school players meet at the ball diamond.

The summer schedule of recreation activities will be published in next week's paper.

Brass Tacks - 16th In A Series

Great contempt is held in many minds for the differences that exist within the Christian world. Oftentimes a comment is heard from a church member reflecting chagrin that "they (the churches) can't get together." With a lot of people denominationalism is a distasteful condition in the Christian world, establishing doctrines and teachings and making them a part of a religious body's routine of worship. What is overlooked by those who dislike the split in the churches is that the split is caused to a great extent by the wishes and dictates of the critics themselves. Generally speaking, ministers of the various denominations are more tolerant of one another than are the peoples in their congregations of one another. This would seem to bring a hopeless situation if it were not for the One Common Denominator, God. Despite the differences in the many churches, their constant seeking of The Truth brings mankind closer and closer to real Godly living, something that can be accomplished no other way.

It is a long process, but six men starting through a forest to find a cabin in the center of the forest can all eventually get to their goal, even though each has a different idea as to the right direction, the right way. It would be a quicker process to have all go in a group with one accord. But man as he is made wants to set out for himself. Such a comparison may be made with Christianity. A good many are seeking the same goal but striking out in different directions. Persistence in finding the goal will bring all together. It is important that each man (and each church in the illustration) be concerned for how well he is doing in his search, rather than look to see how unsuccessful the other fellow is. Otherwise he finds himself not only lagging behind but perhaps even losing his way. That is what makes it so important that church members be loyal to their church, regardless of its denomination, and know why it does what it does this way or that way. Joining a church is a very important matter, but it is treated only as a matter of social importance to a great extent, or it is just the idea that "you ought to belong to a church" that prompts joining any church that is handy. Knowing why a doctrine is preached is as important as receiving the Sacraments; not knowing "why" removes the full effect of worship. And just as important is an attitude that compels a person to find out "why" if he does not understand. Churches are shunned oftentimes by Christians, even their own members, because occasionally a dispute arises within a church or a congregation. The feeling that there shouldn't be any bickering in a church takes precedence over seeking information to learn the "why's" and "wherefore's", and churches suffer. If we wonder why there is conflict in the world today and in times past, we need only to look to the conflict within Christianity itself, brought on by ignorance and a refusal to correct that ignorance.

If Americans would correct some of the wrongness in the world, they would make more of what is a seemingly completely unrelated matter. They would know about their church and what it teaches and why, they would listen to it rather than dictate to it (presuming that the leaders of the churches are themselves seeking to find the true revelation of God's Truth in Scripture). They would learn more about a church's or a denomination's background and teaching before joining that church.

Christians correcting their mistaken conceptions and tolerating one another could not help but bring a truer peace in America and in the world, a gift from their Common Denominator.

A DAY TO REMEMBER

What was so unusual about Mississippi women strewing flowers on the graves of Civil War dead? Why did the news account of it in a New Yorn paper cause such a stir just after the war?

Certainly it was not the first such ceremony. There had been others in various communities of the United States. At least one took place even before the war was over, in October 1864, when three ladies of Boalsburg, Pennsylvania, placed flowers on the graves of their fallen relatives and even more on the graves of the two other Union graves in their local burial ground.

Then why were the North and South alike thrilled by the New York news report? What made it remarkable and significant was the fact that in Columbus, Mississippi, southern women had also spread flowers on the graves of the Union soldiers who until recently had been their enemies.

It was probably this gesture that started the idea of an American Memorial Day, devoted to the memory of the nation's war dead. Possibly as a result of this ceremony, an Ohio private in the Union Army, in May 1868, wrote to the Grand Army of the Republic suggesting that such a celebration be made an annual nationwide occasion. He recalled that Germans had an old custom of scattering spring flowers over war graves.

The Grand Army of the Republic, an organization of Union veterans, approved the idea and chose a late spring date—May 30—when spring flowers would be in bloom even in New England and the colder northern states.

In southern states, where flowers bloom earlier, the celebration is not uniformly observed on May 30, however. Memorial Day falls on April 26 in Alabama, Florida, Georgia and Mississippi, and on May 10 in North and South Carolina. In Louisiana, it is actually observed on a later date: June 3.

America is not the only nation so to honor its fallen dead, although not many nations have a similar occasion. The early Greeks used to have memorial ceremonies for their war dead, but these were held after each war or major campaign and did not recur annually. Other nations, while honoring all their dead annually, did not often set days aside to honor only their fallen soldiers.

Today in Japan there are two memorial days, one in Spring and one in Fall, when the dead of all wars are honored. This is not a holiday, as Memorial Day is, but families go to the graves of their war dead or to Yasukuni Shrine in Tokyo and leave flowers. China's only similar memorial occasion is Revolutionary Martyrs' Day, March 29 each year. On that day the President of China leads a procession to the Martyrs' Shrine of Taipei, on the island of Taiwan. There ceremonies are held honoring 72 martyrs who lost their lives in the revolution in Canton in 1911.

Britain has Remembrance Sunday in November, for its war dead. In France on November 2, ("the Day of the Dead") families decorate the graves of their war dead or visit the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, in Paris, where the eternal light flickers beneath the Arc de Triomphe. Australia and New Zealand have dawn services and visit the graves of their war dead on Anzac Day which falls on April 25—not a spring day, but an autumn day there.

When Memorial Day was first suggested in America, many people objected. "Why, it will merely keep alive the memory of war and foster antagonism," some said. But today in the North, graves of southern Confederates are decorated, and in the South, the graves of northern soldiers still are decorated. Possibly no idea born of grief has ever done so much to heal the wounds of war as this one in which the fallen on both sides are honored equally in death.

—Aramco World, May 1959.

SECURITY OR RELIEF?

Our Social Security program has begun to resemble a fast-flowing river cutting deeper and deeper into the moal fiber of the American public. It will bear close watching by farmers in the years ahead, or it may engulf and drown the public that it is supposed to make "secure."

Before we go any further, let's be clear. Farm Bureau isn't out to kill Social Security. Farmers have few bones to pick with the present program, and they are willing to shoulder their part of the responsibility in safeguarding the financial security of our senior citizens.

Self-employed farmers did not fight the amendments which several years ago included farm laborers in the program. After asking that self-employed people (farmers included) be allowed to enter the program on a voluntary basis, most Hoosier farmers were pleased when they were brought into the program in 1955, even though all were forced to enter.

0153

But farmers did not bargain for a broad, socialistic welfare program when they entered. They were going along with a limited security, or insurance, progam to help assure that senior American citizens would have some income after 65.

Costs and benefits under the program have spiraled since 1954, and the cost has far outstripped the estimates even of the members of Congress who studied the 1954 amendments. In the past six years, each Congress has either increased the benefits or the costs, until this year the tax to carry on the program is actually what is was expected to be in 1960-64. And the spiral continues. Where will it stop? Or will it?

There are countries in the world today which have cradle-to-grave "security" programs—payments for children, payments for disability, payments for unemployment, payments for medical care, etc.—and the tax they pay to support the program reaches as high as 12½ per cent of their entire gross income. This is more than many peole in the U.S. pay in federal income taxes. If the present trend continues, employer and employee together will be paying 12¾ per cent on $4,800 in 1975, and self-employed farmers will be paying more than 6 per cent, instead of 8 and 6 per cent on $4,200 as estimated by Congress in 1954. This, of course, is only if benefits are not extended.

A dark cloud on the horizon is the likelihood that Congress will consider and may pass a bill this year allowing people drawing Social Security to have free medical care at government expense. This is socialized medicine in its purest form, and a principle firmly opposed by farmers. All this adds up to unlimited taxation, with thousands of people, both energetic and shiftless, becoming wards of the government instead of assuming their personal responsibilties.

In the matter of retirement, Farm Bureau is supporting H.R. 10 before Congress which provides for allowing self-employed persons to deduct up to 10 per cent of their net income for tax purposes if it is paid as premium or deposit on a restricted retirement policy or trust fund. The yearly limit on the deduction would be $2,500 or $50,000 in a lifetime. This principal would allow people to provide for their old age, if they were able, and they would get tax benefit for so doing.

As the "giant" strains at its leash, freedom-loving people might well ponder to what extent an employer should be expected to insist that an employee provide for his old age. And, is the expanding program teaching Americans to eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow, Uncle Sam will take care of all their needs?

Farmers take a dim view of the ever-increasing speed with which the limited "security" program of 1937 is rushing toward an all-inclusive "relief" plan for the nation.

Congress should "freeze" Social Security right where it is, and leave it alone to perform its intended purpose and no more. This should be done on a self-supporting basis.

—The Hoosier Farmer, March 1959.

PRICES AND OUR WELFARE

A group of tobacco growers recently went to Washington and appeared before the House Agriculture Committee. Most members of the Committee have been constant advocates of high rigid government price supports for various agriculture products. But the tobacco growers requested a lowering of price supports on their product. Why? Because the high price suports are causing American tobacco growers to lose their foreign markets. In other words, American tobacco is being priced out of the market. Other American farm products with prices kept artificially high through government support programs likewise are losing markets.

Ray Vicker, an American journalist, reports on a conversation he had with a Rhodesian (Africa) government official. "In a free market," the Rhodesian official said, "we might have had trouble competing against your highly mehcanized American farmers, and many tobacco plantations would never have been started." But with the high price supports pushing up prices of American tobacco and the government at the same time restricting tobacco acreage, the Rhodesian farmers are growing greater and greater amounts, and taking away our markets.

World-wide cotton markets also have been lost to American producers because of high price supports. American wheat is in the same situation, although the American taxpayers generally, and not the wheat farmers, have so far been left "holding the bag." Wheat and cotton farmers are producing not for the market but for the government—to the tune of billions of tax dollars each year. It's costing a million dollars a day in taxes just to store the surplus of agricultural products which the American and foreign consumers do not need or won't buy at government-fixed prices.

The agricultural situation is only one of several danger spots in the American economy. Some of our industrial products which have competed successfully in the world market for a century now are being priced out of the market. The situation is serious—to the industries and their millions of stockholders, to the millions of workers whose jobs are jeopardized; and in the long run, to all American citizens.

At any farm supply store in America you are likely today to find bundles of barbed wire from German factories far outselling American-made wire, even though the German product must be shipped across the Atlantic and carried by train from East Coast ports. The American jobber and retailer get German barbed wire at a price considerably under the cost of the same quality wire produced in American factories, and can sell it for less. American barbed wire is being priced out of the world market—even out of its domestic market. More than 50 per cent of all barbed wire now sold in America is imported.

The major cause of this is that wages in American steel mills and fabricating plants have been pushed up each year—without sufficient regard to productivity and competition. And the German workers, with excellent machine tools, have improved their per-worker productivity far beyond the margin of wage raises they have been getting from time to time. This puts their companies and their nation in an excellent competitive position. Japan, too, is producing several products that are taking markets away from American industries.

A midwestern company manufacturing nails pays its workers $2.90 an hour and sells its product at $9.80 per 100 pounds. Similar nails from a German plant, with wage costs of 90 cents an hour, can be purchased in America for abut 15 per cent less. America now imports about 50 times more nails than it exports. The U.S. News and World Report notes that a long list of other American items are being priced out of the market by wage increases out of line with productivity and the reality of competition. These include bicycles, sewing machines, steel flatware, typewriters, fishing tackle, clocks, watches, clothespins, woolen gloves and fabrics, cotton cloth, cameras, plywood, automobiles, tires, radios, turbine generators and many other items.

Not only the welfare of American industry—the ownership-worker team—but of the whole American population is endangered. Our American plants making barbed wire naturally are having to cut production, closing down jobs. Plants making all these other products likewise are hard hit. Our nation's great production of wealth through manufacturing is jeopardized, and that's of concern to everybody. This situation should be understood and recognized by labor union leaders. Wage raise demands must now be measured against the competitive situation in the world market. The welfare of all of us, particularly the wage earners, is at stake.

—"Looking Ahead," by Dr. George S. Benson, President, National Education Program, Searcy, Arkansas.

With some girls, the end justifies the jeans. . . . . Adult western, one in which the love triangle doesn't include a horse . . . . If you have any doubt about your property line, your neighbor will remove it.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

Bible material: I Kings 16:29—19:21.

Devotional reading: Psalm 46.

WE ARE NOT ALONE

Lesson for May 31, 1959

Every man who stands up for what he believes to be right in the sight of God—stands up, speaks up, and works to make the divine dream come true—every such person will have times of deep discouragement. An American will think of the familiar examples of Washington and Lincoln who went through dark times when no one, that is to say nobody who carried much weight, seemed to be on their side; times when they even wondered if they could be on God's side. Any one who speaks for a cause which has not yet become popular, any one who speaks courageously against the prevailing winds of belief in his time, will feel sooner or later that he stands alone.

Prophets in Flight

It has often been so with God's prophets. Indeed, the picture our minds draw for us, of brave prophets bearding tyrants in their palaces, thundering God's judgments on nations and individuals, men unafraid, not caring what men might say or do so long as they were speaking for God, that picture does not always fit. Consider the prophet, Elijah, a brave man most of the time, but running now, running away, as far as his legs would take him. And from what? Just a woman. True, she had threatened to butcher him. But Elijah had lived through threats before. The thing was, this woman was a queen, so much a queen that her wretched husband never dared say No to her. When she threatened to do anything bad, you could be sure her heart (a bad one) was in it! So when they told Elijah what she said, he lost no time getting out of there. Forty days and forty nights he fled. And when God asked him why, "I only am left," he said. What was one man against the nation? One Elijah for God; Jezebel and all Israel against God. Hopeless odds, Elijah thought.

The Invisible Army

How wrong can a prophet get? Elijah estimated the number of God's loyal people in all Palestine as One, namely himself. God's count made it seven thousand. Elijah, scared as he was, turned out to be only .00014 right, no very high figure! This is a mistake which many pioneers of faith have made. There are more people on God's side than you might think. Looking about us in our country today, seeing what crowds there are that believe silly and even wicked lies, how many people who will go out and vote for candidates who are plainly not on God's side or anywhere near it, how few people there are at church compared with the crowds (let us say) at the racetrack, how hard it is to put into action, anywhere, the most elementary Christian principles—looking at ahe American scene, the Christian is sometimes tempted to complete cynicism and despair.

He Had God

The prophet Elijah learned something else in his wilderness hideaway. He found God there, and God had something for him to do. Elijah had believed in God a long time; but he associated God with spectacular miracles, fire from heaven, rock-breaking winds, resurrections of the dead . . . Now he learns to know the God of the still small voice, the God who comes in the voice of duty. The three things God gave him to do were not miracles, they were very simple acts. But they were going to change the course of history, more than some of the miracles Elijah had before then performed. Now it is not true that any one can "have God" if he likes. But it is true that those whom God has, have God with them, by them, in them. The man or woman who goes faithfully about life's plain duties, who stands for what he knows to be right, no matter what, will discover that he is not alone. To listen to the voices of the crowds, to be an echo of common prejudices, is to hear within nothing but a dreadful silence and to stand alone in a waste place. But to hear that still small Voice, in spite of all the Jezebels of the world, even under threat of death is to know oneself never alone.

Stone quarry owner rates Chevrolet the toughest truck going

"Put a Chevy out there and it stays!"

At the Snyder Stone Quarry, Martinsville, Va., you see Chevrolet trucks of all ages. "They get better every year," Mr. R. G. Snyder says. "My '59's keep going with no downtime for major service . . . moving more material at less cost than any other truck I've had." The grades are steep from quarry to crushing mill, the loads big and punishing. That's why Mr. Snyder specifies Chevrolet. "You never do wear one out. You just get tired of looking at it and get a new one."

The 8403 tandem you see up above is taking on a mountain of a payload. "About 28,000 pounds of granite," Mr. Snyder states. "And it moves over the road like a light truck."

Today you sure can't assume that because a truck is trim-lined and good looking it doesn't work every bit as hard as those old-styled steam rollers. Put a Chevy on your run and see the big difference that precision-engineered chassis components and super-efficient power make. Your Chevrolet dealer will arrange the details.

Now's the time—see your local authorized Chevrolet dealer for a real truck buy

"We save time, work and space by heating our home ELECTRICALLY"

Says Mr. Donald Bieber

The Bieber family considers electric heat a wise investment, and they've had two other types of heating. Mr. Bieber says, "I save a lot of time and trouble because I don't have to bother with opening and shutting registers, checking the fuel supply, changing filters or anything else. My wife spends less time with her cleaning because electric heat is clean. It doesn't make any dirt or soot. And since there is no bulky heating unit with electric heat, we have more room for living and storage in our home."

President Johnson's Impeachment Fails

The greatest state trial in American history, involving President Andrew Johnson ended on Tuesday, May 26, 1868.

Grim-faced Andrew Johnson, who had become President on Lincoln's death, favored a gentler treatment of the defeated South than the radical Republicans who controlled Congress. Johnson was a stern and stubborn man. He denounced Congress and vetoed most of its acts, which Congress in turn passed over his veto.

The bitter struggle between Congress and the President came to a climax in February of 1868 when he dismissed his disloyal Secretary of War, Edwin M. Stanton, against the provisions of the new Tenure of Office Act which Congress had passed over the President's veto. The House of Representatives raged and voted, 126 to 47, "to impeach Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, of high crimes and misdemeanors."

Under the Constitution the House of Representatives has sole power to prefer charges against a President, while the Senate sits as a court for the trial of the charges, with the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court presiding. A two thirds vote of the Senate is necessary for conviction.

Old Thaddeus Stevens of Pennsylvania, boss of the Republican majority in the House, hated Johnson and planned the impeachment. But the eleven "high crimes and misdemeanors" finally charged against the President were mean and petty.

The trial, presided over by Chief Justice Salmon P. Chase, opened on March 13, 1868 in the Senate chamber. The President was never present. He was represented by his counsel, men of high ability, while seven members of the House acted as prosecutors. Cabinet members, generals, and other famous men were witnesses for many days. Finally, on May 16, the Senate was ready to vote.

The first vote was on the eleventh impeachment article. The scene in the high court was dramatic. Members of the House crowded the floor, the galleries were packed with officials, diplomats and important citizens. Outside surged a crowd unable to enter. Telegraph operators sat ready to flash the news all over the nation. In dead silence the roll call of senators proceeded, with each one rising to say "guilty!" or "not guilty!" There were 54 senators, of whom two thirds, or 36, were needed to convict. The vote turned out 35 for conviction, 19 for acquittal. President Johnson had won by one vote!

The Senate adjourned until Tuesday, May 26. On that day the high court met again before a crowded Senate chamber. This time the vote was on the second and third articles. Again the roll call of senators showed 35 for conviction and 19 for acquittal. It was final. The remaining articles were never voted on. The court adjourned, never to convene again. President Andrew Johnson had been sustained by one vote.

New Phone Book

General Telephone customers in Butler and Saint Joe will receive new June 1959 directories within a few days, George Bartindale, district commercial manager, has announced.

The new telephone books contain alphabetical and classified listings of customers in Saint Joe and Butler, plus alphabetical listings for Angola, Fremont, Hamilton, Orland and Pleasant Lake.

The June directory is bound in a new five-color panel cover showing persons using some of the latest in telephone equipment. The panels are on a tourquoise background.

A new feature in the book is the space provided on the first information page for customers to fill in numbers of emergency services in their area, such as doctors, fire departments, ambulance service and local and state police. A page listing modern telephone conveniences and services also is included.

Some 1,415 directories are to be mailed June 1. Altogether, 1,700 new books were printed, with 285 to be held in reserve.

While every effort will be made to see that each customer receives a new directory, some customers may be missed. They are asked to call the business office of the telephone company.

Memorial Service Saturday

Rev. Henry Weber will be the speaker at Memorial Day services to be held Saturday afternoon at Riverside Cemetery in Saint Joe. The brief services will follow a parade from the Legion Home to the cemetery.

Annual Memorial Day observances are sponsored by the local American Legion Post. Members of the post will conduct services Saturday morning at 9:00 a.m. at Spencerville, 10:00 a.m. at Newville and 11:00 a.m. at Alton Park.

In the afternoon Legionnaires, Boy Scouts, children and any others who wish to participate will gather at the Legion Home at 1:30 p.m. to form the parade. The Riverdale High School Band will lead the parade.

The community is invited to attend the service in memory of departed servicemen.

Scout Program Falters At Local Level

The Saint Joe Boy Scout troop is inactive and has been for several months.

This fact was pointed out this week by Joe Smith, area advisor for the Anthony Wayne Council, Boy Scouts of America. As a result Mr. Smith is searching for men who will serve as adult leaders for boys in the community who want to participate in Scout activities. "The job of scoutmaster takes time and effort, and we need someone who is willing to devote himself to a continuing program of Scouting," Mr. Smith stated.

Needed for the local troop are a scoutmaster and an assistant scoutmaster. The two men work togther with the boys in various projects, planning camp-outs, etc.

Scouting is dead in Saint Joe at the present time. Needed are adults to furnish the required leadership. Anyone who can help the program is urged to contact Mr. Smith.

Community Club Family Dance Saturday

Activities of the Spencerville Community Club are continuing with the next big event to be a square and round dance for the entire family.

The family dance will be held Saturday night, June 6, at the Spencerville Community Building. Starting time is 8 p.m.

The caller for square dancing will be John Brothers of Fort Wayne. Dancing will continue until 11:30 p.m. or 12 midnight.

Refreshments will be available at the dance. Admission price is one dollar per family.

Those who do not know how to square dance are invited to attend. There will be instructions given during the evening for any beginners.

New officers of the Community Club were recently elected. They are as follows:

Glenn Moore, president.

Vaughn Allen, 1st vice president.

Bill Hudson, 2nd vice president.

Mrs. Robert Hollabaugh, secretary.

Mrs. Merl Dean Furnish, treasurer.

Man Repeats Bank Swindle Scheme

LeRoy C. Chaney, Jr., 39, convicted ten years ago in the brank fraud which ruined the Farmers & Merchants State Bank at Spencerville, is being held in Tiffin, Ohio, on charges of obtaining $700 from two Tiffin banks by fraud. Eight other banks in Ohio have retainers on Chaney, charging him with check kiting in the amount of $4,836 obtained in a period of one week.

Chaney is being held under $2,000 bond in the Tiffin city jail. He appeared in a Tiffin court Wednesday and pleaded not guilty on the two counts against him.

Two accomplices involved in the Ohio bank fraud scheme are still at large, according to first reports of the case. Several others were involved in the Spencerville bank case, though not necessarily as accomplices of Chaney.

Tiffin police said the Tiffin check scheme worked in this fashion:

Chaney would appear one day and deposit $50 in a checking account. The next day he would appear and deposit two or three fraudulent checks for several hundred or a thousand dollars. He would then immediately withdraw about $350 and leave town.

Since May 25 Chaney pulled 16 such plans in eight Ohio cities moving from city to city by car. Only eight cities have sent retainers to the Tiffin police but authorities believe many more will be forthcoming.

Chaney was arrested Tuesday morning as he emerged from the second bank which he reportedly had bilked of $300. The banks involved in Tiffin were the Commercial National and City National banks.

Jim Robinson Takes Own Life

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at 1:30 p.m. for James Byron Robinson, Jr., 40, of Saint Joe who committed suicide early Friday morning. Services were held at the Baidinger - Walter Funeral Home in Spencerville with James Beck officiating. Burial was in Maple Grove Cemetery near Delphos, Ohio.

Mr. Robinson apparently took his life as a result of despondency over marital troubles. Thursday night he had driven his new car into a car driven by his wife from whom he had been separated since last February. After conversing with her later until early Friday morning he left her residence. Then sometime between 5:30 and 6:00 a.m. Friday he shot himself through the heart with a bullet from a 22-caliber pistol. The body was seen by a B&O train crew a short time later about 500 feet east of the east crossing of the railroad off state road 1. The body was on the south side of the tracks.

The B&O towerman investigated and found the body, then contacted Wilbur Yeiser who confirmed the identification.

Mr. Robinson was employed as a milk truck driver for the Pet Milk Company at Garrett. He also served as one of the Riverdale school bus drivers.

The deceased was born at Van Wert, Ohio, November 23, 1918, the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Robinson, Sr., residents on state road 427 north of Robinson Chapel in Allen County. He had lived for the past seven years in Saint Joe.

Survivors include the wife, Irene; the parents; two sons, Richard, 17, and Ronald, 16; a brother, Robert, of Fort Wayne; a half-brother, Clifford Balyeat of Fort Wayne; and seven sisters, Mrs. Phyllis Heyman of Saint Joe, Mrs. Marie Day of Fort Wayne; Mrs. Wilbur Roth of Grabill, Rosemary Eberly of Waterloo, Mrs. Margaret Landrum of Huntington, Mrs. Patricia Boner of Fort Wayne and Mrs. Betty Price of Payne, O.

Local News

The young people's class of the Lutheran Church visited Wittenberg College and Oesterlen Home for Children at Springfield, Onio, Saturday, May 23. Included in the group were Penny Beebe, Suzanne Coburn, Glenda Sible, Jim and Jerry Wasson, Merle Holden, Allen Amstutz, John Baker and Michael Haberkorn. Transportation was furnished by the class teacher, Ted Haberkorn, and Mrs. Herbert Amstutz. The group was taken on a tour of the Wittenberg campus, enjoyed lunch in the college cafeteria, then visited Oesterlen before returning to their homes. The group plans a picnic and swimming party Sunday, June 21.

Peter D'Mura, district minister of Jehovah's Witnesses, has arrived in Auburn to supervise a three-day conference of the group in the Auburn high school gymnasium Friday, Saturday and Sunday. D'Mura will be the principal speaker at the gathering which is sponsored by the Watchtower Society of New York. The purpose of the program is to give Jehovah's Witnesses advanced training and to help others to appreciate the value of home Bible education. The film "Divine Will International Assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses" will be shown at 7 p. m. Saturday. The climax of the meeting will come Sunday afternoon at 3 p.m. when D'Mura delivers an address, "A Paradise Earth Through God's Kingdom," before an expected crowd of 1,200 persons.

David Lawrence Lynch, 21, a former resident of Auburn, now residing at Fort Wayne, has confessed to the robbery of the Grabill Bank in March. He has also admitted committing several other robberies in Fort Wayne.

Over the Memorial Day week-end Sheriff Dorsie Likens and his deputies traveled a total of almost 2,00 miles in patrolling state, federal and county highways. The exact mileage driven was 1,942.

The DeKalb County Cancer Unit office opened Monday in the City Hall at Auburn. The office is located on the third floor. Hours when the office is open are 1 to 4 p.m. daily, Monday through Friday. Available from the office are items needed for the care of cancer patients and films and other information for use at public and organizational meetings. There is no charge made for showing of the films.

Methodists from 435 churches in northeast Indiana will gather at North Webster June 20-28 for the annual Epworth Forest Assembly, the highlight of summer activities for the North Indiana Conference. The yearly camping program on Lake Webster includes a program for all ages.

The DeKalb County Chorus under the direction of Mrs. Alice Yarian will sing at 2:20 p.m. Tuesday, June 9, at the annual Festival of Music sponsored by the Agricultural Extension Department as a feature of the Homemakers Conference at Purdue.

The Indiana School for the Blind will conduct a two-day familiarization course on the training of the pre-school sight deficient child. The course will be conducted at the School for the Blind, 7725 College Avenue, Indianapolis, and will begin at 1:30 p.m. on Thursday, June 11. Noted eye specialists and child training experts will be featured on the program. Food and lodging will be provided free of charge for all mothers of blind or partially sighted children under the age of six years. Further information is available from the school.

Driver license suspensions include those of Clarence O. Bigger and Walter Newsome of Auburn and J. Wiler of Corunna.

Rev. Carl Thompson has been named to continue as pastor of the Newville circuit by the Indiana North Conference of the E.U.B. Church held at Oakwood Park at Syracuse over the week end.

Hans Schmidt, well-known "bad man" of the wrestling world, has been handed a 60-day suspension by the Indiana State Athletic Commission for failure to appear at a wrestling show sponsored by the Auburn Kiwanis Club May 15. The suspension is also effective in 34 other states. The wrestler's explanation for his absence did not satisfy the commission and the suspension was handed out.

24 DeKalb County 4-H boys and girls are attending the annual 4-H Round-Up at Purdue University. The group includes Carol Jean Baker, Sharon VanLeuven, Anna Lee Wolf, Nancy Brandon, Phyllis Parker, JoLynn Rienoehl, Carolyn Moughler, Janet Troyer, Paul Friend, David Blaker, Jerry Brand, John Heitz, Larry Dove, Larry Gurtner, James Mason, James Lane, Lyle Holman, Lynn Witt, Tom Smith, Ronald Moore, Tom Stahl, Dale Rinehold, Larry Brandon, Larry Funk, Robert Jarrett, Michael Buchs, Bruce Scranage, Pat Middaugh, Max Reinoehl, Harold Baxter, Bobby Lee Pease and Richard Fogle.

The Indiana Mental Health Commission has announced that it will investigate the possibility of using Sacred Heart Hospital at Garrett as a facility for the mentally ill or child guidance center.

Those Little Things . . . .

When someone takes his life, I think most of us who know him begin wondering what we could have done to prevent it. When my friend takes his life, it's time that I thought a little about other friends and acquaintances and what my attitude is toward them. It is only in the deepest caverns of despair that a rational person destroys his own life. Who of us has not known those moments when there just didn't seem to be a friend among us, or there just didn't seem to be any way out of a given situation, or everything seemed piled up against us? Everyone has these dark moments and we all react differently. This depends a good deal upon the person himself. But I think a little of our reaction is also influenced by those about us. That is what makes my friend's death last week so terrible. Maybe I could have helped in an unsuspecting way; maybe something that I could have said and ought to have said would have been the difference between his dropping into utter despair and climbing into the light of hope.

One of the characteristics I admire in a man is that of loyalty. During the past season of bowling, five men proved their loyalty to their sponsor, this little weekly newspaper. All five bowled the entire season without missing a night, they never required a substitute. This is loyalty, at least I think so. One of those five was Jim Robinson. I point this out to you to give a good example of what procrastination can mean. You see, I had intended to recognize this loyalty in one way or another, with words of thanks or a gift or something, it doesn't matter how, really. But the intention had not been carried out when my friend reached the depth of his despair. Now I feel guilty, because I don't know, and you don't know, but what a word of appreciation for just such loyalty, unrelated as it might seem to his personal problems, might have been the difference between life and death. Maybe it's making too much of a little thing. But I know that words of encouragement from friends for efforts put forth in the community and in occupation help to overcome those discouraging moments of failure or of criticism. Knowing that you are appreciated makes a big difference when any kind of difficulty arises.

So, I don't know if my friend knew how I felt about his loyalty. Maybe he didn't know how you felt about some other good he may have done for you. And now it is too late. Perhaps this is a good lesson in brotherhood, a good reminder to do today what you think about today.

And here's to Jim, a loyal bowler and a good bowler. But this is one split he just couldn't pick up.

Others say . . . .

FROM THE STEELWORKERS

Several independent news gathering organizations made surveys of the sentiments of steelworkers before negotiations for new contracts began, and some of them were surprised at what they found. Most of the workers interviewed said they did not want their union to strike and most of them said they did not want an hourly pay raise. Worker after worker told the newsmen they saw little point in pressuring for pay raises because "you don't even have it in your hand before prices go up."

This observation by the steelworkers indicates that the destructive power of inflation is being recognized by more and more American citizens. In the heart of the steel producing area of the Midwest, the Chicago Daily News sent its reporters out to talk to the steelworkers and, in many cases, their wives. The newspaper published the results showing that "the steelworkers don't want a strike; they fear inflation and don't want a pay raise at the expense of other benefits."

Samuel Lubell, professional pollster, whose articles appear in the Saturday Evening Post and Scripps-Howard newspapers, went into other steel producing areas, talked to the workers and then reported that substantial numbers of them are "satisfied with current working conditions." But probably the most thorough-going sampling of steelworker attitudes was obtained by staff reporters of the magazine U.S. News and World Report. They talked to steelworkers and their wives in Gary, Indiana; Fairless Hills, Pennsylvania; Pittsburgh; East Chicago; Hammond, Indiana; Sparrow Point, Maryland; and Fontana, California.

The magazine in a feature article concluded that the rank and file of steelworkers want steady work, and not a strike; bigger pensions, not bigger pay checks; peace with their employers, not more strife. But, the magazine said, most of the workers would obey a strike call if their union leaders issued one.

A member of the interviewing team of reporters, who talked to workers of Bethlehem Steel, said: "Biggest surprise to me was that only one worker interviewed said he would like a raise, and he did so sheepishly. Most came out strongly against a raise in cash form on the ground that it would be taken away by taxes and by the 'stores' (inflation), as they put it. Another big surprise was that, of those interviewed, not one had anything to say against the company. Nobody appeared sore at management."

Here are excerpts of steelworker interviews quoted in the U.S. News and World Report.

" I don't want a wage increase. I'm satisfied to keep working the way we are. We don't have to have high prices and high wages to have high living standards. It's a vicious circle of higher wages and higher prices—I guess coal and steel started it."

"I'd settle for present wages if prices would just stay still." "I'd like everything to go back to 1953. I had more spending power per day than I've had since."

"If you get $2 or $3 a week in pay increases, after they boost your income taxes and prices go up in the stores you lose 50 cents a week. That's right. You start with a pay raise and end with a pay cut of 50 cents a week." From a steelworkers wife: "If my husband gets a raise, eevrything else would go up in price. If he gets a longer vacation, he will benefit and won't hurt his neighbor too much who doesn't work for a steel company." And here is a wise observation by a steelworker: "Aluminum can compete with us on price now. If we push steel prices up again, through a pay raise, then we'll lose more business to aluminum."

Some of the steelworkers noted too that foreign-made steel and steel products now are being sold at prices under the American-made products—and this is endangering jobs of many American workers in many different industries.

The attitudes revealed in these interviews are heartening. More and more American workers are becoming aware that production is the only source of wealth, that greater production per man-hour is the primary requirement for rising living standards, and that every citizen has a stake in the problems of American industry and industrial management. Labor leaders need to take note.

—Dr. George S. Benson, president, National Education Program, Searcy, Arkansas.

FORGET IT

If you see a tall fellow ahead of a crowd,
A leader of men marching fearless and proud,
And you know of a tale whose mere telling aloud
Would mean that his head must in anguish be bowed,
It's a gretty good plan to forget it.
If you know of a skeleton hidden away
In a closet, and guarded and kept from the say
In the dark; and whose showing, whose sudden display,
Would cause grief and sorrow and lifelong dismay,
It's a gretty good plan to forget it.
If you know of a thing that will darken the joy
Of a man or a woman, a girl or a boy,
That will wipe out a smile, or the least way annoy
A fellow, or cause any gladness to cloy,
It's a gretty good plan to forget it.

Board To Get Rooter

The Saint Joe Town Board met Monday evening at the Town Hall in Saint Joe.

Included in the discussion of town affairs was a report of progress made in seeking the cooperation of the state highway department in constructing curbs and leveling for drainage on state highway 1 through Saint Joe. Further conferences with state officials are planned.

Plugged drains and puddles of water in certain areas were pointed out. The board will proceed with investigation of rooters for drain-clearing purposes with purchase of such a unit planned. Money for purchasing a rooter was included in the budget for 1959.

The problem of numerous stray dogs was discussed. Contact with a Saint Joe resident has established the possibility of establishing definite rules and penalties concerning the keeping of dogs within the town limits.

Bake Sale Saturday

The Peppy Gals 4-H Club will hold a bake sale Saturday, June 6, starting at 9:00 a.m. The sale will be held at the Spencerville Shell Station.

Proceeds from the sale will be given to the Spencerville Community Club.

The public is invited to patronize the bake sale.

FUTURE JETS 4-H CLUB

The 8th meeting of the Future Jets was held June 1 at 1:00 p.m. Pledges to the flags were given. The group then sang "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" and "Tell Me Why." Religious thought was given by Imagene Nusbaum. Roll call was then taken by answering with a book of the Bible. Minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary. Old and new business were discussed.

Monday, July 20, at 3:00 p. m. will be the time for local judging. On June 24 at the assembly room of the court house in Auburn there will be a junior club demonstration at 9:00 a.m. The dress revue will be held August 13. On July 1 the county judging contest will be held at 9:00 a.m. in the court house.

Health and safety was given by Beth Fields who also presented an electrical play. Judy Scott gave a demonstration. The 4-H creed was given by Virginia Guiff. Recreation was enjoyed.

LUST FOR POWER
Lesson for June 7, 1959

Is there one sin from which all other sins come? Many theologians think there must be; but they do not all agree on what sin is the root-sin of all the rest. One sin which has been singled out for this doubtful honor has been called "the lust for power." It is not wrong to desire power; otherwise Jesus would have severely condemned the two disciples who wanted to sit on thrones at his right and left. It is not wrong to wish to influence other persons, otherwise it would be a sin to run for president of anything. Nevertheless, desire for power can be so exaggerated that it becomes a passion, a soul-destroying passion.

Law and the Lust for Power

There is a first-class example of how the lust for power can run away with a man, an example of how other sins are spawned by this one, in the Bible story of King Ahab and the private citizen named Naboth. Nearly all readers of the Bible know this story and those who do not know it should look it up (see the references given here), for it is a dramatic story. King Ahab was of course one of the wealthiest men in the kingdom. He had all he needed and more besides. But he wanted the vineyard of the small farmer Naboth. He wanted it so much that he was willing to break the law of the land, he was willing to go even as far as murder, to get what he wanted.

Ahab could never have got that vineyard by legal means. If Naboth did not want to sell, there was no law to make him. More than that, according to the law of those times, Naboth was required to hold on to his property. Ancient Hebrew law saw to it that every family was provided with land, and must not get rid of their landed property, large or small. Ahab was at first "stumped" by this fact. But spurred by his wife Jezebel, a sort of Lady Macbeth, Ahab rode right through the law, using perjury and murder before he was through, all to get that one vineyard.

Property for use or for Power?

History is filled with examples of men who have been so mad for power that, like Ahab, they paid no attention to laws that would have held them back from what they wanted. We have seen this in our time in Hitler abroad, and in some men in high places in our own country.

But there is another thing about the lust for power. Why is it that many persons seem unable to stop acquiring property? Long after they can no longer use it, long after they have enough, they keep on going, they never feel up to the game, they want more and more. The thing becomes almost a disease.

One wise thinker of our times believes that this sort of thing, the sort of thing Ahab did, is a case of wanting security overmuch. A man wants to feel safe, so he piles up wealth and property around him like walls to shut out misfortune. He does not care whom he hurts, just so he himself is safe. Another thinker sees in all this, evidence to support the proposition that while property for use is a good thing, property for power alone is dangerous to society and that wanting to have what you cannot use is a sin.

My Rights and My Reach

One thing is certain: the prophet Elijah, being God's man and not the king's saw no good in what Ahab had done. There was nothing in being a king which gave a man the right to disregard other people, nothing in being a king that gave a man the right to smash the laws of God. Ahab must have thought, "My rights go as far as I can reach." But the fact is, the true rights of a man, especially a strong man, are very seldom as big as his reach. To put that into other words: Don't think that because you CAN get by with it you have a RIGHT to do anything you please.

When you, whoever you are, begin to think your rights outrank all others' rights, take care. The sin has already begun to work in you too.

the travel-lovin' Chevrolet

Nothing else but a dyed-in-the-wool sports car like the Corvette can take a turn with such solid assurance!

It's easy to see where Chevrolet gets its road sense. With big coil springs at every wheel, a firm, wider stance and all of its pounds distributed with painstaking care, Chevy's born with it.

The only thing that may be hard to understand is how it can offer the ride it does, along with so many other luxury-car virtues, and still compete in the low-price field.

We use the word compete only in the sense of price. For with a ride as special as Chevy's, real competitors are hard to come by. There's a world of difference between Chevrolet's coil springs at all four wheels and the leaf springs that most other cars still use. Take a Chevy down a snaky back road and you'll feel the difference in the sure way it holds through curves and shoots over rough spots with hardly a ripple.

This one's really made to travel and loves every minute of it.

BY WILLIAM BRODIE

FRANKLIN'S KITE EXPERIMENT

With a thunderstorm coming up over Philadelphia on the hot, sultry afternoon of June 5, 1752, Benjamin Franklin hurried out to a nearby meadow, carrying a home-made kite with him. His 21-year-old son, William, going along somewhat reluctantly at the prospect of getting wet, carried a Leyden jar, a glass jar coated with tinfoil and topped by a brass knob.

Benjamin Franklin was 46 years old at the time and experimenting with the new strange power which scientists had recently named electricity. The thought had occurred to him that lightning and electricity were the same. How to prove it?

He decided that a kite reaching up to the thunder clouds would be the best way of drawing down lightning. He made a kite out of a large silk handkerchief stretched over a light cedar frame and firmly fastened at the corners. A pointed wire was fastened at the top of the kite. To the long hempen string Franklin tied a silk ribbon, and at the point where the ribbon and string joined he fastened a large iron door key.

On this stormy afternoon, Franklin, accompanied by his son, hastened out in the field to try his kite experiment. By a cowshed in an open field the kite was raised high. Black clouds piled up in the sky and a wind tossed the tree tops. A cloud passed over the kite. Thunder cracked. But there was no reaction with the kite.

Franklin, standing with his son in the doorway of the shed as the rain poured down, began to despair of success. The wind carried another black cloud over the kite, and suddenly Franklin saw the fibres of the hempen string stand on end while a flickering flame streamed down its length. Excitedly he touched his knuckles to the door key. He felt a shock as a spark flew out. With a shout of triumph Franklin drew spark after spark from the key with his knuckles, receiving a stronger shock each time.

"We have it, Billy! We have it!" he cried, as he directed his son to hold the Leyden jar to catch the sparks. Joyfully, Benjamin Franklin knew that his discovery was complete. Lightning and electricity were the same. He had proof for all the world and he wrote about it later in his famous Poor Richard's Almanac.

SISTERS OF THE SKILLET HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Sisters of the Skillet Home Demonstration Club met May 28 at the home of Beverley Mansfield with Maxine Harter as co-hostess.

The meeting was opened by the president with everyone repeating the club collect. A prayer entitled "Others" was given by Beverley Mansfield for devotions. The history of the song of the month, "Love's Old Sweet Song," was given by Connie Hollabaugh, who then led everyone in singing the chorus. Roll call was answered by 13 members with one guest present.

It was announced that the fair booth committee will be as follows: Paula Roberts, chairman; Gladys Akey, Naomi Alwood and Arden Dwyer.

The club gave a donation to the mental health fund. A demonstration was given by Judy Dwyer. The meeting was then adjourned with the prayer song.

During the social hour a Chinese auction was held by the flower committee.

County Gets 4-H Recognition

The State 4-H Club Office at Purdue University has announced that DeKalb County will receive special recognition for having an outstanding 4-H club program during 1958.

Based upon 4-H enrollment as compared to the potential plus the number of members 4-H members in the county in standard clubs, DeKalb County will receive a bronze award during the annual 4-H Club Round-Up at Purdue in June.

Membership in the county in 1958 totaled 813, and of these 664 were members of standard clubs. 25 per cent of the boys and girls of 4-H age took part in the program last year.

These awards have been made annually for 15 years by Prairie Farmer-WLS in cooperation with the Purdue University Agricultural Extension Service. The first time a county wins an award it receives a plaque to hang in the county extension office. Subsequent awards are in the form of engraved bars which are attached to the plaque.

This is the 13th year that DeaKlb County has qualified for this special merit award.

Around the Town

With the Editor

If very many more people had the enthusiam that Marsha Keller has over the "500" race, there would be a million at the race instead of 175,000. She was in last week and all hepped up about the race she and Ned saw this year. The Dewey Whites and John Dileys also were among those who went to Indianapolis on Memorial Day.

Larry Mason says he has a few of his 4-H buddies set up in the bee business. Now he wants to get himself set up. So, I repeat the request given here a couple of weeks ago: if you have a swarm of bees to get rid of, call Larry at 2275.

Sandy and Tesie Means are visiting their grandparents, the Means and the Yeisers, for several weeks. It wasn't long until Sandy got drafted at the service station once she got to Saint Joe. She was busy scrubbing windows a few days after the girls got here. And she went so far as to extend the window washing to include the windshields on the cars of grandpa's customers. There was just one difficulty, evident as I passed the station one day. There she was washing the windshield all right—sprawled spread-eagle fashion across the car hood because she couldn't reach the windshield from the ground.

Musings as an amateur gardener putters with a hoe: only 5 or 10 minutes of this and look at those blisters come up—even tho' it's hot this evening, it isn't bad working out here. There's the accordion music drifting over this way as Kay Halt practices at her home. And between those selections, I can hear the high school band as Mr. Lowry puts his charges through their paces in marching formation. Ah me, I don't mind these blisters at all . . . .

Ice Cream Supper June 13

The Spencerville Methodist Church will hold an ice cream supper Saturday, June 13, at 5:00 p.m. The supper will be served on the church lawn in Spencerville.

The menu will include sandwiches, potato salad, baked beans, pie, cake, coffee and cold drink, and plenty of homemade ice cream.

The public is invited to attend.

In case of rain, the supper will be served in the church basement.

School Bill Explained

A meeting was held Thursday of last week for school board members, superintendents, principals, township trustees, advisory board members and others interested in schools. Dr. Marion McGhehey, executive secretary of the state school board association, was the principal speaker. He explained the provision of the reorganization law, Senate bill 6, passed by the 1959 Indiana State Legislature pertaining to schools in the state.

The meeting was held at Garrett.

Mr. McGhehey explained that the law provides for appointment of a committee of 9 in each county in the state to formulate plans for reorganization of the administration of public schools. The committee is empowered to draw up preliminary plans for consolidation of schools on a county-wide, intra-county or inter-county basis.

The county superintendent of schools serves on the committee by virtue of his office. The other 8 members will be selected by appointment by the circuit judge. They will include a school board member not serving also as trustee, a trustee who may or may not be serving as a member of a school board, a principal or superintendent from among the schools in the county, and 5 representative citizens who are not connected with school systems in advisory or administrative capacities or with vested nterests.

The committee must meet within 90 days after appointment. They have one year to formulate a plan for proposed school districts. The committee is not bound by political subdivision. Indications are that the minimum desirable enrollment for efficient operation in any 12-grade system is 1,200 to 1,500 students. A state committee will also be appointed to supervise the program.

The committee also is empowered to determine the method of selection of school boards in the proposed district and to determine qualifications. They will also determine means for disposition of current liabilities of the school systems.

Public hearings will be held after the preliminary plans are formulated. The final plans must be submitted to the state for approval. 90 days after the final proposed plan is approved, a petition may be circulated. If 55 per cent of the eligible voters in a proposed district favor the plan, it becomes a reality. If that fails, the judge of the circuit court is obligated to call for a referendum at a primary or general election. A simple majority is needed for approval.

Schools which now have not more than 112 high school students will be prohibited by law from starting construction of any new school facilities. There are now 290 schools in that category in Indiana.

Group Completes First Aid Course

First Aid classes have been conducted for the past several weeks in the Saint Joe and Spencerville communities by Mrs. Doris Yeiser of Saint Joe.

Those who completed the standard and advanced courses in First Aid are as follows:

Mrs. Gladys Akey, Mrs. Alice Kagey, Mrs. Jean Moore, Mrs. Bobbette Rediger, Mrs. Lois Strong, Mrs. MaDonna Wade and Mrs. Marie Ward.

The following completed the standard course:

Frank Kessler, Larry Beaty, Curtis Ransom, Mrs. Mary Ellen Beaty, Mrs. Marguerite Fish, Mrs. Alice Hollabaugh, Mrs. Berniece Hollabaugh, Mrs. Dorothy Kimes, Mrs. Alma Ransom, Miss Ida Reed and Mrs. Wilma Woodring.

Mrs. Yeiser has announced that a new class in First Aid instruction is being organized to begin some time in September. Anyone interested in receiving such instruction may contact Mrs. Yeiser for enrollment in the class.

Parrish-Billow

Miss Carol D. Billow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Billow of Saint Joe, became the bride of Billy H. Parrish, son of Rev. and Mrs. John Henry Parrish of Rowland, N. C. The wedding took place at 7:00 p.m., Monday, June 1, in St. Paul Lutheran Church in Durham, N.C. Vows were read by Rev. Henry Schroeder and the groom's father, Rev. Parrish.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Matron of honor was Mrs. Jean Billow Danchi of Gary, Ind., sister of the bride. Best man was Mr. Donald Hanks, a friend of the groom.

Mr. Parrish is studying for the ministry and will be ordained in the Methodist Church in 6 months. The bride is employed as a registered occupational therapist at the medical center at Duke University in Durham.

The young people's class of St. Mark Lutheran Sunday School held an outdoor supper meeting Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Haberkorn. Eleven class members were present.

Ralph Hook, Guy Orwig and Victor Housel have reported to the DeKalb County commissioners that they, as an investigating committee, do not deem construction of a proposed county road on the township line between section 24 in Jackson Township and section 19 in Spencer Township of public utility. A group of citizens had previously petitioned for the road.

The marketing quota penalty rate on excess wheat of the 1959 crop has been announced as $1.07 per bushel. The rate was set at 45 per cent of the wheat parity price as of May 1, as specified by law.

Driver license suspensions include those of Larry DeVon Carpenter of Auburn and Jerry Stoy of Ashley.

Auburn city judge Phil Butler fined William E. Rucker of Saint Joe $25 and costs of $15 on a charge of drunkenness. Rucker entered a plea of guilty last week.

Seven boys from the Ashley area have been cited for appearances in the DeKalb County juvenile court after admitting that they blew the heads off four tame rabbits with firecrackers stuffed in the rabbits' ears "just for kicks." Identity of a 13-year-old was not disclosed, but the others were identified as Bill Pressley, 17, of Ashley, Jerry Stoy, 17, of Ashley, Jon Phelps, 17, of Ashley, Claude Kessler, 17, of Waterloo, John Healey, 16, of Ashley, and Herschel Erwin, 17, of Hudson.

The Tri Mu Class of St. Mark Lutheran Sunday School will hold a family outdoor picnic meeting Sunday evening at 6:30 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Bevington.

Wee Haven Parent Group met June 4 with 22 members present. Plans were made for the June 20 ice cream social and the forthcoming social to be held August 22 at the school. Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

County price support rate for the 1959-crop barley in DeKalb County will be 81 cents per bushel. Oats will be supported at 51 cents. Rye will be supported at 94 cents.

Funeral services were conducted Tuesday for Forest Steininger, 69, of Auburn who died Saturday of a heart seizure as he studied a Sunday School lesson. He was the father of Emmett and Dee Steininger, publishers of this paper from 1946 to 1948.

An audience of 1,221 attended the final session of the 3-day conference of Jehovah's Witnesses at Auburn Sunday afternoon. Peter D'Mura was the speaker at the Sunday meeting. 27 persons took up the ministerial work of Jehovah's Witnesses by being baptized by immersiion Saturday afternoon. Saturday night's attendance for the showing of a film on the International Assembly was 1,541.

The ASC county office is accepting wheat allotment applications for certain farms. A producer who intends to seed wheat for 1960 on a farm on which no wheat was seeded for harvest as grain in 1957 and for which a 1958 and 1959 allotment was not established, irrespective of whether or not wheat was seeded for harvest as grain in either 1958 or 1959, and who desires to be considered for an allotment must make application for an allotment in writing by July 1. - - - - phew!

The R.H.C met June 2 at the home of Mrs. Grace Laub. 11 members were present. A very lively discussion was held by the ladies on the definition of home and on fashion hints. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Officers of the joint Luther League of the local Lutheran congregations will attend a 2-day meeting in Indianapolis Friday and Saturday of this week. They will be accompanied by Ted Haberkorn, sponsor-advisor for the trip. The group includes Gary Sible, Carol Baker, Sharon Smith and James Norris.

George R. (Bob) Stephens has been named basketball coach at Auburn. Mr. Stephens formerly taught in the Dunkirk, Ind., schools, serving there for the past 3 years.

Former Sen. William E. Jenner has announced that he will not be a candidate for governor of the state of Indiana in 1960. This leaves Lt. Governor Crawford F. Parker with an apparent open field for the Republican nomination for governor.

Attending the Junior 4-H Leader Conference at DePauw University are Patricia Getts of Hamilton, Linda Leas of Ashley, Cloyce Baxter of Butler and Larry Friend of Auburn.

Morality - After Money

Sunday morning I heard the minister say that the road to hell is paved with good intentions. A piece of mail this week brought that observation to mind. This particular mailing came from a group called "Citizens Against Communism," located in Wichita, Kansas. A cartoon on the mailing depicted a figure representing "International Communism" pushing the Statue of Liberty from a cliff, assisted by small figures helping to pull Miss Liberty over. The smaller figures represented "Subversive elements in Supreme Court, Government, N.A.A.C.P., Benevolent Foundations, Foreign Aid, Mass Communications Media, Amusement Industries." The figure giving the push at the same time is thinking of its means of infiltrating our liberty, by Communism in universities, Communism in churches or big labor. The title of the cartoon is. "Which Mask Shall I Wear When I Push Her Over?"

As I studied the cartoon, the thought occurred that this is another apparently well-intended bit of propaganda which might do guilty of concentrating our efforts on "Commore harm than good. Because we may be munism," period, when we don't even know what it means, while other programs which we consider "good" may be taking away as much as "Communism" threatens to remove. Certainly there is a definition of "Communism"; however, how many of us know what it means? What good does it do even when we do know the definition when well-intended programs under the guise of "public welfare" take away the freedom which this "Communism" is also trying to take away. The point is, what difference does it make who or what takes away our freedom; the important thing is that it is taken away.

It is remotely possible that ten or twenty years from now "Communism" as we vaguely picture it today will be a dead duck. If that is so, we will be sitting ducks for some other "ism" or idea which also can destroy freedom. We in America are too ready to latch onto something as our whipping boy and throw the whole blame for all our troubles onto that one object. In this manner we remove the blame for our troubles from our shoulders and place it on some other source such as "Communism." Even in everyday conversation, we sometimes use the term "Communistic" in leveling criticism at someone or something. This is a dangerous practice; we are like the little three-year-old who damns and hells in his talk and doesn't know what he is saying.

If we are in trouble with a subversive element in our country today, it is because we weren't very careful in our thinking somewhere along the way sometime back. If there is a subversive element gaining strength in our country, it is because we haven't taught ourselves the meaning of freedom, the responsibilities it holds for those who want to preserve it. We haven't opened our eyes to the failings in other idealism which pooh-pooh the freedom we cherish. It is easy to fall prey to a feeling of disinterest. These crises which we fall heir to are often brought on by personal selfish desires. At a time when we could have and should have said "no" to the prospect of our own personal gain under a program which had questionable merit just on the principle of the thing, we have said nothing and have pocketed the rewards from that silence. The rewards cease eventually, and then we are aroused and fearful of the danger that then stands before our country.

Today we hear more and more outcries from agriculture to be released from government control. A bill is in the process of introduction in our Congress to wipe out government regulation of agriculture, to put agriculture on a supply-and-demand basis. These cries are getting louder. Why? Because agriculture now is being told "too much," it feels, on how to run its business. It doesn't like fines for growing too much grain; it doesn't like quotas and it doesn't like other things in present government control. Isn't it strange that twenty years ago when such an act was first introduced, it wasn't thrown out? It was just as bad twenty years ago as it is now. If government control now is bad, it was bad twenty years ago. But agriculture liked the road it was led on for a while and the promise that lay ahead on that road; the road was covered with greenbacks. So nobody raised much of a cry.

Today our Congressmen little by little seek to reduce the amount of money spent on non-service-connected medical benefits paid to veterans. The cost is getting too great because we have so many men in our population who are becoming ex-servicemen, therefore eligible for these benefits. The percentage of the male population eligible for these benefits grows and the cost grows, so something must be done. If it is wrong to be paying out these benefits now, it was wrong from the very beginning. Why did we do it? Mostly because of fear of being called "unpatriotic." Today that fear has diminished because we want to reduce the cost of government. The pinch of high expenditures brings out the realization that something isn't quite right.

Today we have Congressional investigation of rackets in the labor unions. There is the need for regulating the operation of unions as there is the need to regulate the administration of any business. There is a realization that the demands made by union leaders are not now to the best interest of the workers. Surveys of steel workers, for instance, show that the majority do not want more money because their increased pay would bring on a general rise in prices that would wipe out their personal gain in wages. Why do they oppose a pay hike? Because it would hurt them. If it would hurt them now, it has hurt them all aong. If it is not to their best interest to demand more money now, it was not to their best interest in the past to demand higher and higher wages and more and more "fringe benefits." But again, while there was no hurt, there was no holler.

Getting back to the matter of "subversive" elements, the above examples show that there is a bit of "subversiveness" in all of us. We cannot today pinpoint subversiveness under the title "Communism." We cannot separate ourselves from these ideas or movements or policies which in time are revealed as hindrances to preserving freedom, sometimes contributors to the destruction of freedom. We must be on our toes, certainly, against what today's "Communistic" world may attempt to do to us. But we must recognize that destruction can be accomplished more readily when the enemy has help from within. This help can come from it's own number; it can also come from within ourselves.

Americans should be on guard against condoning anything that is morally wrong. If it is wrong, it is wrong, even though temporarily there doesn't seem to be any harm in letting things go. Constant diligence on this point will prevent the major crises which we find ourselves facing from generation to generation. I am just as capable of destroying my America as is the avowed Communist who outwardly and purposely hates what America stands for. And every other American is in the same boat with me.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank all my friends, neighbors and Pastor Miller for all the prayers, visits, kindness and many beautiful cards I received during my recent stay in the hospital and convalescence at home.

The monthly singspiration of the DeKalb County Christian Youth Crusade will be held Sunday evening, June 14, at 9:15 p.m. at the First Church of God, 10th and Jackson, in Auburn. Young and old alike from the churches of the county are invited to join in this time of special music and singing. During the meeting a special report will be given by Rock Reinhart of Saint Joe on his recent plane trip to St. Louis as guest of St. Louis Youth For Christ.

Prof. James Cope of Earlham College, Richmond, has requested the cooperation of DeKalb County residents in the study of bats. Banded bats have been released in the past to further the study of their migratory habits and Prof. Cope asks that persons knowof the presence of a colony of bats notify him at Richmond or contact the county agent's office in Auburn. Finding of a bat with an aluminum identification band on the wing should also be reported. The study is being furthered thru a three-year grant from the National Science Foundation.

About 1700 Boy Scouts will pitch tent Friday at the Steuben County 4-H park where they will take part in the 27th annual 3-day scouting camporee. 500 tents will dot the hillside at Crooked Lake this week end.

Some self-employed farmers are failing to report their earnings and pay the social security tax every year, according to Christian H. W. Luecke, district manager of the Fort Wayne social security office. In some cases, the farmer thinks that he can report earnings for back years at anytime in the future and get social security credit for those earnings. Some other farmers think that it will only be necessary to report earnings for the years when they near retirement age. Self-employment earnings must be reported within 3 years, 3 months and 15 days after the end of a particular year to gain credit for that year.

Tax Hearings Set

Taxpayers who have complaints of personal property assessments made this spring will have an opportunity to be heard from June 15 through June 24. The DeKalb County Board of Review will meet on those days to hear complaints.

The schedule of hearings is as follows:

Monday, June 15—Auburn-Jackson, Jackson and Butler townships.

Tuesday, June 16—Corunna, Richland and Fairfield townships.

Wednesday, June 17—Butler city, Wilmington and Stafford townships.

Thursday, June 18 — Saint Joe, Concord, Spencer and Newville townships.

Friday, June 19 — Garrett, Altona and Keyser township.

Monday, June 22 — Auburn and Union township.

Tuesday, June 23—Ashley, Smithfield, Franklin and Troy townships.

Wednesday, June 24—Waterloo and Grant township. The hearings will be held from 8 a.m. to noon and 1 p. m. to 4 p.m. daily.

A "FIRST" CANDIDATE — Honolulu, Hawaii — Hopeful of becoming the first U.S. Senator of Japanese descent, Daniel Inouye relaxes at his Honolulu home with his wife, Margaret, and their pet dogs. The 34-year-old lawyer-businessman and Territorial Senator has announced his candidacy to serve the 50th state of Hawaii in the upper house of Congress. A veteran of a famed World War II Nisei unit, the 100th Battalion, Inouye lost his right arm in action in Italy.

ONE FOR THE ROAD — Leavenworth, Kans. — Donning an old-fashioned "duster," Alfred L. Quest recaptures the past by posing alongside his 1922 Model T Ford outside his home in Leavenworth, Kans. The old model touring car is the only registered antique auto in Leavenworth County. Quest purchased it four years ago and had to buy a $5. special lifetime antique license for it. He recently drove the old auto on an 88-mile trip.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Bible material: II Kings 5.
Devotional reading: Psalm 33:8-22.

ACROSS BORDERS

Lesson for June 14, 1959

"They're not our kind of people." How many times that is said, and has been said. That one sentence is enough, in many people's minds, to end the question: Shall we take them in? Shall we have anything to do with them that is not absolutely necessary? In particular, that one sentence is used as a bar at the church door, where no such bars ought to be.

We have in the Old Testament a story about two men who were as different as two men could be. Just about all that goes into that phrase—"not our kind of people"—could have been said by either of these men against the other. It is pretty certain that the friends of either man would not have "accepted" the other man. And yet these men found a way across the border, a way that is always to be found when men look for it.

Race Barriers

It is not only in America, still less only in the "Deep South," that differences of race bring up the expression "Not our kind of people." Wherever two races meet and compete, there is a race problem. The ancient Jews knew all about it. Of course a modern American might smile at the difference between Elisha the Jew and Naaman the Syrian. They were both orientals, weren't they? But Elisha's friends, and Naaman's friends, would not have smiled about it. Jews felt pretty grim when they thought of Syrians and Syrians felt pretty contemptuous when they thought of Jews. They would not for a minute have considered themselves of the same race. The Syrians at that time were much the stronger people. They thought of Israelites or Hebrews (as Jews then were called) as a weak, stupid, dirty, inferior race. The Hebrews on the other hand by no means looked up to Syrians as noble examples and benefactors. They thought of them as cruel men, oppressing the weak and living by power, not by justice. The two races might be related as enemy and enemy, or as master and slave; but not as friend and friend, not as equals. Yet Naaman and Elisha crossed the border of race.

Barriers of Position

Another difference between people which leads to the thought, "Not our kind," is the difference which is caused by position in society, including difference of occupation. You can take twin babies and bring them up in separate homes, one the home of an illiterate manual laborer, and the other the home of a banker or a college president; one boy will have no education and the other will a very fine one; then follow the boys through life, and by the time they are 30 each one would be saying about the other (if he didn't know they were brothers), "Not my kind of people."

Elisha and Naaman were they were different by occu- not only different by race, pation and position. Elisha was a prophet of God, his specialty was religion. Naaman had a kind of religion, a very different one, but he didn't take even that very seriously. Elisha was a poor man, Naaman was wealthy, and a slave-owner. Elisha's most spectacular labors had been the saving of lives (and saving Naaman's was right in his line); Naaman's business, as a general, was killing (including killing Israelites.)

High-Altitude Crossing

And yet Elisha and Naaman crossed the border-line drawn by the contrast between their social positions and work in life. How did they do it? They did it the way modern armies or peacetime fleets of commercial planes can cross borders which once upon a time were formidable and all but impossible to cross.

In the same way, the road across the barriers caused (for example) by race or by position or occupation or money or education, is seldom a road through these borders. It is above them. And the name of this high dimension is religion. It was at last in the bond of a common faith that Elisha and Naaman met, "two strong men face to face."

Chevy heavyweight takes all the meanness out of tough hauls!

When a truck goes to work for Lester Brothers, Inc., of Martinsville, Virginia, it's in for a life of extra-hard labor. Loads are whoppers—whole sections of Lesco prefab homes. Runs are scheduled without let up. And at the job sites the going's always tough. That's why Lester Brothers specify Chevrolet; why they're adding new ones as soon as the older models need replacing. Chevies take the meanness out of the roughest jobs. And they cost less to maintain than any other trucks Lester Brothers have owned!

A going concern like Lester Brothers, with tight delivery dates to meet every day in the week, demands maximum truck dependability and performance. And, mister, they get it—with most of their Chevrolets going at least 100,000 miles (some of them 150,000) before the engine heads even come off! With big truck V8's that hum right along on hurry-up schedules. With Chevy trucks that are easier to handle, specialists at getting in and out of congested job sites.

This particular operation sure points up Chevrolet's natural ability to handle any kind of job that could come along. It illustrates what we've been saying for a long time—that once you put a Chevy on the payroll, that tough job loses its fight fast and settles down to a smooth-running routine. If your job demands even half as much as this one does, you've got good reason to visit your Chevrolet dealer. He's the man with specific information . . . the man to see before another good working day goes by.

Vacation Time

At least 6 and possibly 10 per cent more Americans will take to the road for their 1959 vacation than last year, according to the Chicago Motor Club. Requests for information about motor travel from members in the club's territory in Illinois and Indiana probably will exceed 700,000 this year. Requests for accommodations are running ahead of last year, but tourists should have no trouble getting lodgings if they write for reservations reasonably far in advance. Available tourist space is increasing.

Vacation rates are stable this year and most establishments are holding the line, although there are exceptions. Rates are likely to go up in places were major improvements, such as air conditioning, have been made. Prices may also be higher during special seasonal events.

One notable trend in auto vacationing is the increased interest in camping. Families are discovering to their delight that a camping vacation can provide added enjoyment and at the same time reduce costs. Another factor in the camping upturn is that modern camping equipment makes it easier for the average person to have a successful outing without really roughing it.

Places to go in the next two weeks include:

To Sept. 17—Centennial Exposition and Trade Fair at Portland, Ore.

To June 23—Mrs. America pageant at Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

June 13-20—Gold Rush days at Idaho Springs, Colo.

June 14—Third annual outboard regatta at Warsaw, Ill.

June 14—Folk song festival at Ashland, Ky.

June 14-20—Golden Jubilee at Powell, Wyo.

June 16—Golf fun day at Kewanee, Ill.

June 16-20—Hiawatha pageant at Elgin, Ill.

June 17—Music festival at Green Bay, Wis.

June 18-21—Rodeo at Marion, Ill.

June 19-21—Wyoming mineral and gem show at Riverton, Wyo.

June 19-26—Centennial at Waukeegan, Ill.

June 20—Annual rose festival at Newark, N.Y.

June 24-Aug. 16—Grant Park concerts at Chicago (Wednesday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday at 8 p.m.)

June 26-July 4—Sesquicentennial at Huntington, W. Va.

Tractor Club

On June 4 the DeKalb County Tractor Maintenance Club met at the Rapp Equipment Co. in Garrett. There were a total of 64 members and parents present for the meeting.

The meeting was opened by president Jerry Brand who introduced Glen Burgoyne and Harry McCortney who welcomed the group. Larry Friend read the secretary's report and new and old business were discussed. Under new business it was suggested that the club investigate the possibility of buying jackets for the group with the club name on the back. Wayne Newcomer was appointed head of the investigation committee.

The group then divided into their respective work sessions to study the lesson for the evening. After taking the quiz, the boys then reassembled to hear a talk by Richard Pfefferkorn of Corunna on saving fuel. Tom Griffin and John Heitz then gave a demonstration on power take-off safety. After the demonstration period, Tom Griffin, John Heitz and Dennis Whittington served refreshments.

This year's club has one of its largest enrollments, 69 members.

Around the Town

With the Editor

We've got five cute kittens at our house and the mama cat, too, so the kittens have to go. If anyone wants the little ones, they're free for the asking by a good home.

The cold hard facts of life struck last week.

As I worked here in the shop and the clock showed about 5 p.m., there was a happy "So long, Dad" sent my way through the open door. I was startled for a moment then saw Phil's head bobbing past the front windows. For a moment I was puzzled and called out, "Where y'going?"

"Ball practice," was the reply from down the street.

And it was then it hit me—our little boy isn't so little anymore.

—This makes the third time it's hit me.

I have been derelict in my duties in not sending out statements when subscriptions run out. So Esther covered the whole mailing list a few weeks ago and we sent statements. By some of the replies I think there are some readers who have been derelict with me.

Anyhow, the reactions are interesting. Here are some of the comments:

"Thanks for sending me a bill."

" Please cancel subscription. I don't have this kind of money." (Local reader back 10 years; never said boo about cancelling.)

"I've put this off, much too long, just as we often do. Your article 'From the Editor's Desk' last week was wonderful, and so true. I enjoy your articles each week but being 'human,' I just put off telling you. I know I speak for all of your subscribers. Thanks so much and 'keep up the good words and work'."

"What do you mean sending me a bill for $21.50 for a paper with two sheets that hardly pays for the ink its printed with. I never did order that paper in the first place and the only reason we brought it up from the mail box was to keep it from being cluttered up. Am herewith returning this copy and hereafter do not send me any more St. Joe News."

Another subscriber came in and said that she had intended to renew but hadn't caught me in or hadn't been in to pay up; but because she received a bill, she wasn't going to pay what she owed and wanted the paper stopped.

Another subscriber sent in her renewal and back subscription with a note asking me to say hello to so-and-so for her.

It takes all kinds.

From an ad in the Butler Record-Herald last week:

"Ladies Shorts — A Certain Group — Half Off"

—Hmmmmm.

Board Buys Drain Rooter

At a special meeting Tuesday evening of last week, the Saint Joe Town Board voted to purchase a rooting machine for use in drain maintenance in the town.

The purchase was authorized after a demonstration by a sales representative of a company which manufactures the rooters.

Cost of the outfit is $769.00. This includes equipment for drain clearing up to 200 feet distant, saws and other tools needed in drain work. 4-inch, 6-inch and 8-inch tile can be cleared with the equipment.

Rainbow Car Wash Friday

The Rainbow Girls have "Dad" in mind this week end.

The group will sponsor a car wash Friday of this week and their slogan is, "Give Dad a Car Wash." Washings will be done at Casey's Mobil Service in Saint Joe and at Spencerville Shell station in Spencerville from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m. Friday, June 19.

A regular wash will be $1.00 with white sidewalls requiring $1.25.

MODERN MRS. HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Modern Mrs. Home Demonstration Club met June 3 at the home of Janice Burley with Ruth Timbrook as co-hostess. There were 16 members and 2 children present.

The meeting was opened by the president by repeating the club collect. Devotions were given by Gladys Smith and history and the song of the month by Gay Varner. The club discussed a trip with the Newville Club tentatively set for Columbus, Ohio.

A lesson on child care was given by Mary Klepper. This lesson will be continued next month by Gladys Smith.

A white elephant sale was held and pennies turned in for members' ages when they were married.

Refreshments were served by the hostess. and co-hostess.

The next meeting will be at the home of Gay Varner with Gloria Inlow as co-hostess on July 1.

Family Dance Saturday

The Spencerville Community Club continues its activities this coming week end with a family night of square dancing.

The dance will be held Saturday night, June 20, at the gym in Spencerville. Hours will be from 8 p.m. to midnight. Family night admission charge is one dollar per family with all children free with their parents, otherwise twenty-five cents for children.

Mr. Lawrence Lemish will be the caller.

Everyone is invited to attend.

Dad - A Weed?

The dandelion once was selected as the appropriate flower for Father's Day because "the more it is trampled on, the more it grows."

That about sums up the plight of Father. Once a year we throw him a bouquet - or a tie - and chalk up another duty well done. But the old man surely is worthy of better treatment because, as The World Book Encyclopedia points out, his name is a title of honor given to those who establish anything important in human affairs.

Take George Washington, for example, known as the Father of His Country. Washington shares that title with such illustrious Romans as Cicero, Jilius Caesar and the emperor Augustus.

Homer is called the Father of Epic Poetry because of his "Iliad" and the "Odyssey." Geoffrey Chaucer, whose "Canterbury Tales" established a standard form of English verse, is know as the Father of English Poetry.

Every physician honors the Father of Medicine when he takes the oath devised by the Greek physician Hippocrates. And any man who ever baited a hook knows that Izaak Walton, author of "The Compleat Angler," is the Father of Angling.

The age of the atom has ushered in even more "fathers." J. Robert Oppenheimer has been called the Father of the Atomic Bomb, while Dr. Edward Teller is credited with being the Father of the Hydrogen Bomb. Admiral Hyman Rickover is known as the Father of the Atomic Submarine.

That's enough to put any father's head in the clouds. But lest he begin to feel giddy from these associations, let him remember that Satan is called the Father of Lies.

Where To Go-- And How

Marathon driving is a deadly enemy of the vacationing motorist, the Chicago Motor Club has cautioned.

Many motorists, traveling on limited time and financial resources, try to pack the maximum amount of driving into their vacation. This greatly increases chances for a traffic accident.

The driver who tries to set an endurance record on his vacation trip runs the risk of extreme fatigue which reduces alertness and reaction time.

The following safety tips are offered for those planning a motoring vacation:

Start your trip early in the morning so that you can stop early. It's a safe rule not to drive more than 7 hours a day. Longer driving stints are dangerous.

During the trip stop approximately every two hours for rest and refreshment. This helps you maintain your driving efficiency.

If more than one passenger in your car can drive, take regular turns at the wheel.

To avoid drowsiness and highway hypnosis, constant threats on long trips, talk with others in the car or listen to snappy music on the car radio. Also, avoid heavy meals during you trip.

Always let moderation be your guide. Remember, it's better to cover a few miles less on your trip and return home safe and sound.

Places to go:

June 19-21—Buffalo Bill Rodeo at North Platte, Neb.

June 19-21-Wyoming mineral and gem show at Riverton, Wyo.

A Start Is Just the Beginning

We we look about the place where we live in a moment of serious thought, we can decide that either this place is doing all right or it isn't doing all right. The community is dead or it is progressive. If it is dead, it is going backward, relatively speaking, or it is standing still at best. If it is progressive, it is growing with the times and living with the times.

What is a community? I can't chop off a few acres of ground out here somewhere in the country and say, "Here's a community." Community refers to a place in a certain definite sense; but it is really not the place but the people at that place. Thus, if a community is dead, the people are figuratively dead. If the people are thinking progressively and desirous of growing with the times, then the community is progressive. The character of the place reflects the character of the people at that place.

When someone mentions the word "progressive," I think we often picture things in terms of "new." If a man is progressive, he is thought of as being an advocate of "new" ideas and "new" ways of doing things. Part of progress is being able to use the right "new" ideas for the benefit of society. Progress in the world involves improvements and inventions, all of which must be put in the "new" category.

While this is a necessary process, this seeking of new dieas and new ways, there is also a need, a very great need, for remembering what has been done in the past. We unite in certain groups for community projects and promote those things which we feel are for the public good and which we can obtain by our own local efforts. Sometimes, I think, we mistakenly let ourselves fall into the belief that "getting something started" is most of the battle. Actually, the starting is quite often not too difficult. The difficult part is keeping interest up after the start is made, interest in what these ideas meant when they started and what they mean today and tomorrow.

I don't think we are too mindful of this obligation to keep at something. Maybe it's the smallness of the community; a larger community would have the advantage of more numbers who might be available for community work, although they then have a larger unit to work with and need more workers. At any rate, we have such things as little interest in keeping recreational facilities presentable, such as the ball diamond. Many who helped to start the ball rolling to install lights are still in this community but take no active part in recreational activities. We have, once again, lack of adult leadership in the Boy Scouts. This is how many times now that the Boy Scouts have been "started" in the community and within a few years faded away? Even the Booster Club, reactivated little over a year ago, is strangely silent now when we should be "buzzing" with activity. Little public response has come to requests for help in the past when the park was to be worked on. And above all, there is a reluctance on the part of a good many adults to be their brother's keeper in a broad sense, or even their own keeper. Instances of abuse of public and private property are left without a reprimand on the spot. School property is abused at any time and no adult takes his right to stop the abuse. These are instances when the job left for "the other fellow" is everybody's job. not for "progress," particularly, but for keeping intact what has been gained.

When I hear somebody say that we aren't progressive here, I can agree with him, not just because we are slow to move forward but also because we get a lot of things started and then let them drift out of sight—or out of mind.

SAFEGUARDING OUR LIBERTY

A resolution of importance to every citizen has been submitted in the United States Senate. It is Senate Joint Resolution 32. It proposes an amendment to the U.S. Constitution reserving to the states exclusive control over public schools. Such an amendment shouldn't be necessary, for when they created the federal government the 13 original states retained full control over their respective schools and all other internal domestic affairs.

Such an amendment is necessary now only because the present Supreme Court, acting contrary to the Constitution itself, in numerous decisions has shattered the structure of states' rights, one of the great bulwarks protecting each citizen against federal tyranny, and essential to long retaining personal freedom.

States' rights is not a narrow issue concerning the present controversy raging around Southern schools; nor is the need for establishing full state control over state schools founded on any individual's or group's wishes regarding segregation or integration. The principle of states' rights, the delegation to the states of control over intrastate affairs, including schools, was a keystone in the structure of American freedom when the Constitution was drafted. We will cease to have a Republic if this foundation stone is torn out, for destroyed with it would be our individual liberty.

The history of this nation brings sufficient light to bear on the principle of states' rights. The War of Independence was conducted by representatives of the 13 original states assembled in a loosely knit Continental Congress. In the midst of the war this Congress adopted Articles of Confederation and submitted them to the 13 legislatures, in 1778. Article No. 1 said simply: "This confederacy shall be the United Sttes of America." The states delegated only those powers to the Congress which they could not handle individually - the power to wage war, establish a uniform currency, make treaties, and contract debt for general expenses such as paying the Army.

Several years after victory in the War of Independence, representatives of five states met and decided to call a Constitutional Convention of the 13 states to better formalize a federal union. The Continental Congress did not call the convention. It felt that creation of a constitutional Republic, with a federal government, should be left entirely to the states. In the drafting of the Constitution, the basic spirit and philosophy of the Articles of Confederation were preserved. The delegation of powers to the federal government, carefully surrounded by safeguards, followed closely the states' rights philosophy established in the Articles of Confederation.

Yet, after the Constitution had been ratified, Thomas Jefferson and other leaders, still fearful of federal government tyranny, secured adoption of the first 10 amendments - the last of which, No. 10, clearly states the Jeffersonian philosophy of states' rights: "The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectfully, or to the people." These powers included the power of decision over all purely local or state-wide affairs.

In recent years a federal wedge has been driven into the door of public education and other states' rights by Supeme Court decisions. After many failures, some legislation has been pushed through Congress—largely because of the apathy of citizens—appropriating huge sums of federal money for school buildings and aid to students. Legislation is now offered before Congress which would appropriate federal money for payment of teachers' salaries. Nobody can successfully deny the fact that along with federal grants finally goes federal control.

The prtposed amendment, S.J. Resolution 32, would place squarely in the hands of the local people the right to operate their schools as they see fit and as the Founding Fathers intended when they drafted the Constitution. If the federal government takes over control of the educational system, as it is beginning to do, ultimately we will have political control and it will become the chief factor in destroying academic freedom. Farsighted people will support S.J. Resolution 32 to keep control of public schools in the hands of the several states.

—Dr. George S. Benson, president, National Education Program, Searcy, Arkansas.

Mr. Ted Haberkorn
Editor, St. Joe News
St. Joe, Indiana

Hi Ted,

Well, I thought it was about time I got around and wrote you a few lines, and let you know how much we appreciate the St. Joe News. Since it has been a year since we have been to St. Joe, and it might be another year before we get back there again. We can't travel to much since we are expecting an addition to the family pretty soon.

The Staff that I am on is moving off the present flagship, the USS Vulcan (AR-5) and we are moving down to the U.S. Naval Base here at Norfolk. The reason is because the Vulcan is going into the Naval shipyard in two weeks and that is when we are moving down to the Naval Base, June 23rd.

We would like to have you mail the News to our home address, which is below, instead of the Vulcan, which we will no longer be aboard.

Let us know how much a subscription is and we will take one, since you will be mailing the News to our home address.

Well Ted I guess that is all there is to say, except the weather sure is hot out here.

So long for now, and we would like to thank you again for receiving the St. Joe News because it sure keeps us up to date on the things happening back home.

Sincerely yours,
Don and Peg

Local News

Joe Vinson's hot rod is out of circulation—no oil in the fuel.

Vern Ludwig, 15, of R1, Butler was booked on driving without an operator's permit Sunday afternoon following a 2-car accident in Newville.

Mrs. Patrice Phelps and grandson visited a week in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Wineland. Sunday guests in the same home were Mrs. Gayle Rugman and Chet Leonard of Fort Wayne.

Bob Davenport, head football coach at Taylor University and former All-American backfield star, will speak at the DeKalb County CYC rally Saturday, June 20. The rally will start at 7:30 p.m. in the court house, assembly room in Auburn. Mr. Davenport is considered one of America's outstanding Christian athletes and is acclaimed by Coach Henry R. "Red" Sanders of U.L.C.A. as the greatest fullback he ever coached. Young and old are invited to hear this former star of the athletic world.

Mrs. Baxter Bowling is in Englewood, Colorado, visiting her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Deisler. She sends word home that, even though the days are hot, they have had a picnic in the Rockies and threw snow balls. They have been ice fishing, too, unhampered by flies or mosquitoes. Mrs. Bowling left for Colorado June 2 and is enjoying her vacation. But she will be glad to get back home again in good old Saint Joe.

The 1959 Indiana State Legislature has loosened the ban on fireworks for the Fourth of July, relaxing restrictions so that sparklers and toy snakes can be used by the youngsters in observing the holiday.

Walter Gamble, 61, of Garrett was found guilty of a felony last week in connection with transportation of alcoholic beverages on a public highway with knowledge of unpaid taxes. Sentencing was delayed on request of his attorney for a continuance in order to file motion for a new trial. Gamble was arrested by U.S. Treasury agents and state excise police April 17 as he fled Garrett with what police said was his last load of "moonshine." His wife, Callie, 57, was arrested with him. She faces charges of possession of alcoholic beverages without a permit. Her husband also faces the same charge and still pending in circuit court are two traffic cases against him.

Mrs. Stanley E. Davis of Saint Joe underwent major surgery last Wednesday morning and is reported as in satisfactory condition. Her room number is 316 Parkview Memorial Hospital, Fort Wayne.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Haberkorn and family were Sunday evening supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Hall and daughters, Susie, Margie and Ellen, of Fort Wayne.

Mrs. Frances Huddleston attended the Greensburg, Ind., community centennial and reunion of all high school classes Wednesday of this week.

Driver license suspensions include those of Walter Derrow of Auburn and Paul Northrup and Keith Tritch of Ashley.

Mr. and Mrs. John Christlieb of Fort Wayne were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Vinson and family.

Jeri Walter, 20, of Auburn was arrested for reckless driving and driving at unreasonable speeds Monday night after he led a state trooper on a wild 18-mile chase on state road 8 at speeds ranging up to and in excess of 110 miles an hour. The young man was finally caught in a dead end alley in Hicksville, Ohio. The chase began in Auburn when Trooper Richard Crosley observed the Walter car traveling at a high rate of speed. He took up pursuit and followed the Walter car at distances from 100 to 700 feet at high speeds. At Newville Walter left the road but regained control and continued on to Hicksville where an undentified motorist assisted in blockading a dead end alley leading to the apprehension of the speeding driver. Two others were in the car with Walter. He explained his actions as the result of fear of losing his driver's license with another arrest. He has 8 points against him under the Indiana point system. Another arrest would cause suspension of his driving privileges.

Mr. and Mrs. John Stromberk and Richard Freeburn spent Sunday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Haverstock and family of Fort Wayne celebrating the 5th birthday of Bobby Haverstock. The Haverstocks will soon be leaving for their new home near Sarasota, Florida.

Dance pupils of Betty Green will present their annual revue on Friday night, June 19. The revue will be given at 7:45 p.m. at the Edgerton, Ohio, High School gym. This year a skit will be presented with the revue. Pupils participating from the Saint Joe area are Victor Dermott, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marion Dermott, and Diann Rucker, 8, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Rucker. There will be no admission and the program will be open to the public.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Miller and daughter, Diana, and Sharon Holden spent Saturday evening with the C. A. Bradtmuellers in Woodburn.

Over 100 acres of corn were damaged Tuesday by a killing frost that struck lowlands in widely-scattered sections of DeKalb County, according to county agent Ernest Lesiuk.

A birthday party was held Thursday at the home of Mrs. Glen Wineland celebrating the birthdays of Mae Ervin, June Baker and Ethel Haverstock. Those attending were Mrs. Haverstock and children, Pamela, Jonquil and Bobby of Fort Wayne, Mrs. Jean Moyer of Auburn, Mrs. Linda Voirol of Garrett, Mrs. Patricia Phelps and grandson, Steven, of Mansfield, O., Mrs. Esther Coburn, Mrs. Ervin and daughter, Jeanne Ann, Mrs. June Baker and daughter, Suzie, Mrs. Phyllis Baker and daughter, Cindy, Mrs. Callie Ridgway, Mrs. Effiebel McCann, Mrs. Emma Strombeck and the hostess, Mrs. Wineland.

An investigation is to be made as to the cause of excessive stream pollution resulting in the killing of a large number of fish in Cedar Creek. Fish were observed dying at Cedarville several days ago, including catfish, carp, suckers, rock bass and small mouth bass. It is believed that the poison causing the disturbance may be cyanide.

Mr. and Mrs Eddy Halt and family visited Mr. Halt's mother at the Lutheran Hospital in Fort Wayne Monday evening. Mrs. Halt was hospitalized after suffering a broken leg Monday.

Mrs. R. C. Hart spent the week end in Fort Wayne with her daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Girardot and son.

Universal Tool & Stamping Co. of Butler has a total of $151,058.40 in its profit-sharing fund for employees, with 100 participants in the fund, it was announced Saturday night at the firm's fourth annual banquet in the company clubhouse. $44,412.90 was added to the fund during the past year. 26 new members were added to the list of profit-sharing members Saturday night. 150 attended the banquet.

Leo Beach will not be sponsored by the Cedar Creek Community Association this summer due to contamination of the water considered beyond the limits for public safety. The problem comes as the result of sewage which drains into the lake from septic tanks, many of which are defective and outdated. Meetings have been held by citizens interested in solving the problem so that the area may offer its full potential as a recreational facility. The area can be used for fishing and boating. But notices have been posted stating the condition of the water as far as bathing is concerned.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Bible material: II Chronicles 17:19—20.

Devotional reading: II Chronicles 20:5-12, 18-21.

A STRONG COUNTRY

Lesson for June 21, 1959

The story of King Jehoshaphat in the Bible gives us a valuable illustration of what a "strong country" or nation is, and also how the various parts of institutions of a country support one another. When the words "strong" or "weak" are used of nations today, the meaning usually is a military one. A strong nation is one that would be likely to win a war if it got into one. Now the kingdom of Judah, which had been pretty weak, revived its military strength under Jehoshaphat's leadership. He reorganized the army itself and also rebuilt the fortresses that guarded the strategic points in Judah. But there were other nations which were even stronger from a military view, and they did not outlast little Judah. There were other forms of strength in that nation.

Support of Education

In those days there were no colleges, no schools in our sense of the word. Most of what we now teach in school was still unknown; we would call that civilization "barbaric" if it existed today. Nevertheless, even bookless people need education. King Jehoshaphat saw to it that the schools went to the people. He routed the priests, Levites and princes out of the capital city where most of them seem to have gone, and sent them around the country to teach the people where they lived. We can observe similar movements today in the village schools of India or the folk-schools of Denmark. Many Americans seem to think you can't have real education without big expensive plants (including gymnasiums bigger than anything else); but where countries are small and poor, as Jehoshaphat's was by our standards, you have to do something simpler.

Support of the Courts

King Jehoshaphat knew that even an educated and well-churched nation needs good courts. His strong charge to the judges he appointed is still as good as new. (Incidentally, we note that he saw to it that every town had a court. If courts are not available, if they are too far and too few, you get the "west-of-the-Pecos" stuff, which is really not law at all.) The king advised the judges to make their decisions in the fear of God, not of men. Courts which make only such decisions as they know will be popular are basically unfair. A court must not ask: Will everybody like this, but, is this fair and just in the sight of God? Furthermore, the king warned those judges against partiality, or taking bribes. "Peddlers of influence" were a nuisance in those days as well as these. A court or a judge that can be bought, a lawyer who thinks only of his fee and his fame, are obstructions to justice. Some one has said that the whole purpose of the law is to protect the weak from the strong. And when courts are too weak to do that, the whole country slides into weakness and decay.

Support of the Church

Little if anything is said about organized religion in Jehoshaphat's time. We may assume that the temple worship was going on, and we know the king suppressed many of the local shrines or "high places" as they were called. The trouble with those "high places" was that they tended to get off the track and actually become centers of idol-worship, sometimes of a repulsive sort. But the signiifficant thing about this king's attitude to religioin was that he expected it to push out into the other institutions of society. When his army was in a tight place, he prayed, "We do not know what to do, but our eyes are upon Thee." He reminded his judges that God was their Judge. He sent both priests and Levites out to teach. It takes not only a strong army, strong educational institutions and strong courts to make a strong nation; a strong religion is needed as the base of it all. But the strength of a nation's faith is not shown in its far-flung organizations nor in the number attending public worship. The test of a nation's professed religion was then and is now: Does it work out into the country's whole life?

NEWVILLE TWP. HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Newville Township Home Demonstration Club held their regular meeting on June 10 at the club house with Mesdames Ida Brush, Dorothy Meek and Leota Shafer as hostesses.

In the absence of both the president and vice president, the secretary, Bernice Miller, called the meeting to order. The club repeated the collect.

Devotions were by Edna Mickelson who also led singing of a hymn and a song.

Mrs. Frances Huddleston was present with some of her 4-H girls who gave demonstrations. They were Judy Scott, Sharon Boylan, Karen Boylan, Kathy Brown and Imogene Nusbaum.

Roll call followed discussion of business. 17 members were present.

Meeting was adjourned by singing the prayer song.

The hostess served delicious light refreshments.

AMERICAN HISTORY

BY WILLIAM BRODIE

"HOME, SWEET HOME"

June 9, 1791 is the birthday of John Howard Payne, the man who wrote the immortal song, "Home, Sweet Home." He was born in little old New York, the sixth of a family of nine children. His father, William Payne, was of English ancestry and of the same family as Judge Robert Treat Payne, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, and Dolly Payne, wife of President Madison. His mother, the second wife of his father, was Sarah Isaacs, a girl of Jewish descent whose father had settled in Easthampton, Long Island, before the Revolution.

Young Payne was a boy prodigy who became stage struck at an early age. At 15 he wrote a play which was performed in New York. At 18 he was an actor on the stage. By the time he was 22 his fame as an actor enabled him to go abroad and play in London.

John Howard Payne remained in Europe for twenty years, either acting, or writing and adapting plays for the stage. Washington Irving was abroad at this time also and Payne collaborated with him in adapting plays. In 1823 he wrote the words of the song "Home, Sweet Home," that was to bring him immortal fame, though few remember him as the author. The song appeared in one of Payne's operas, "Clari: or the Maid or Milan," which was performed at Convent Garden, London, and was sung by the leading soprano, Ann Maria Tree, for the first time on May 8, 1823. The music was adapted from an old Italian melody. It was enthusiastically received, and is still sung all over the English-speaking world.

"Mid pleasures and palaces though we may roam,
Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home!"

Though Payne's popularity rests on this one song, he accomplished much more in the theatre of his day. He was the first native American to attract attention in Europe as an actor and dramatist. He wrote 63 plays of which four were among the greatest successes of that time. His plays and acting earned him much money, but he remained poor, and was often without funds. He never married, and his homeless, wandering life lent a pathetic touch to his famous song.

In 1843 President John Tyler appointed him consul at far away Tunis, Africa, and here, on his second tour of duty, Payne died on April 9, 1852, a sad, ill, and lonely man.

SPENCER TWP. HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Spencer Township Home Demonstration Club met June 10 at the home of Gladys Hart.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Ida Reed. Club collect was repeated by all. Devotions were by Nellie Allen. History of the song of the month was given by Alice Kagey who singing.

Project lesson on building a mental health for children was given by Alice Kagey. Roll call response was facts about our country or state.

The women's camp will be held July 22-24 at Camp Limberlost at LaGrange.

Dorothy Kimes gave a brief report on the club visiting at Auburn. Arminta Steward, Eleanor Crothers, Berniece Wilder, Marie Ward, Edna Hudson, Gladys Hart and Ethel Webb gave for the birthday auction which brought in $9.20. Club prayer song was sung by all.

There were 21 members, 1 guest, Stella Goldsmith of Port Richey, Fla., and 6 children present. A delicious lunch was served by the hostess assisted by Eleanor Crothers.

Harlan Days

An amateur show and a drum majorette school will be features of this year's annual Harlan Days celebration. The dates for the event are Thursday, Friday and Saturday, July 30, 31 and August 1.

Auditions for the amateur contest will be conducted at hte new Harlan gym located at the northwest edge of Harlan on the Spenerville Road. They will be held the week of July 13. The best 30 acts of those auditioned will be selected for the Harlan Days program. Acts will be judged for appearance, costumes, showmanship, talent and audience appeal. Contestants will be required to furnish their own accompaniment.

Contest eliminations will be held Thursday and Friday evenings, July 30 and 31. Three winners will be selected each evening. The six winners will then compete in the Saturday, August 1, finals. The contest is open for all ages. A total of $200.00 will be given in cash awards and all contestants chosen to appear on the show will receive an award.

All amateurs from the tri-state area are urged to enter promptly. Entries should be mailed to: Harlan Talent Show, Box 48, Harlan, Indiana. The following information should be included in the contestant's entry: contestant's name, address, phone number, name of act, and type and description of act. The deadline for contest entries is July 8.

The majorette school will be held July 29, 30 and 31 in conjunction with the Indiana State D.M.A. Twirling Contest and the Harlan Day Fair. Mr. D. A. Bartle, Jr., has been appointed chairman for both twirling events.

Mr. Victor Faber, 1949 National College Champion, and his staff have been selected as instructors for the school.

Classes will be conducted at the Harlan Elementary School gym from 10:00 a.m. to noon and from 1:00 p.m. to 4:00 p. m. daily on each of the three days. Several courses will be offered.

Any person 8 years old and older is invited to enroll. Enrollment can be made by writing to the Indiana Majorette School, Box 48, Harlan, Indiana.

WOWO Now On Full Time

Beginning May 29, radio station WOWO added 3½ hours to its daily schedule, making it a full 24-hour station with the exception of Sunday when it will sign off at midnight.

The management of the station points out that this additional time on the air is especially advantageous for summertme due to the additional car radios in use as well as later retiring habits.

The extra hours will be devoted to music entirely under the direction of Sam DeVincent, veteran broadcaster. DeVincent has been with WOWO for 14 years and has excellent musical background. His collection of more than 50,000 selections of folk and historical music which he has categorized into "musical history" stories makes him one of the leading collectors of musicana in the country today.

Music on the extra hours of broadcasting will be varied to please all types of listeners.

PICTURES OF THE WEEK

DETROIT — Though there are "hares" involved, this is no "shaggy dog" story. Cindy, pet spaniel of Mr. and Mrs. W.J. Tyrrel, has adopted three baby bunnies found wandering in a field near the Tyrrel home. The foursome diets on eyedropper-fed milk and baby food while Cindy proudly supervises, showing a rare-bit of bunny love.

EXPLANATION BY ELVIS — Friedberg, Germany — Pfc. Elvis Presley, better known for his singing efforts in the rock 'n' roll field, plays the good host during the "open house" ceremonies at the U.S. 3rd Armored Division's headquarters. Elvis is showing his jeep to Michael Jones, and trying to teach the lad how to use the microphone in the jeep.

OLD AND NEW — Rome — Backed by a picturesque wall of masonry from out of the past, modern autos are displayed along the famed Appian Way in Rome. The medieval masonry is studded, mosaic-like, with fragments of Roman statues and bas-reliefs. The autos are new Fiats. Model adds another modern touch to the scene in her colorful flowered chiffon dress.

CITIZEN OF ONIONTOWN — Oniontown, N.Y. — Seventy-one year-old William Vincent fondles his pet cat, "Sam-Sal," in his one-story frame shack in this primitive settlement a mile outside of Dover Plains, N.Y. For nearly a century, the residents of Oniontown have been living "by themselves," forsaking the comforts and conveniences of modern civilization. It is only recently that such things as radios and automobiles have begun to appear among Oniontowners. Old Bill Vincent attributes this trend toward modernism to the younger generation. But as yet no one in Oniontown has a television set. Bill, who likes to read, gets his light from the two kerosene lamps in the foreground.

Lions Install Blaine Kimes

District Governor Walter Kesler of Tri Lakes installed recently-elected officers of the Saint Joe Lions Club at a meeting held Monday evening at St. Mark Lutheran Church in Saint Joe. Present also was Mrs. Kesler for the Ladies Night pot luck meeting.

Perfect attendance pins were awarded to six members of the club for the 1958-1959 year of Lions Club activity. Receiving the awards were Blaine Kimes, Virgil Kimes, Maurice Kline, Lynn Fisher, Clifford Billow and Ted Haberkorn. The pins were given to the wives who in turn pinned them on the lapels of the Lions.

Mr. Kesler spoke briefly on the attributes of a good Lion and a good Lions Club, reviewed the accomplishments of the local club for the past year, then installed the new officers.

Officers for 1959-1960 are:

Blaine Kimes, president.

Walter Morr, 1st vice president.

Wayne Storer, 2nd vice president.

Warren Clauser, 3rd vice president.

Clifford Billow, secretary-treasurer.

Hearsel Shockley, tail twister.

Glenn Moore, Lion tamer.

Board of directors—Ralph Keeler and Frank Laub (new members to serve 2 years); Joe Smith and Hal Elzea (holdover members with 1 year to serve).

Prizes were awarded to the man and lady present, each guessing nearest the number of beans in a quart jar. Mrs. Glenn Moore won a casserole set and Fairfield Meese won a 3-way outdoor lamp for their close guesses.

Mr. Kesler presented a past president's pin to the outgoing president, Ted Haberkorn.

The first item of business under the new president, Blaine Kimes, was establishing the first Saturday in August, August 1, as the date for the club's annual ice cream social.

The outgoing president presented a waste basket to the new president to help him keep track of the mail to be received during the coming year, and he presented a bottle of aspirin to Mrs. Kimes to help her during the coming year.

4 Deaths From Traffic Accidents

Four deaths have occurred in the past week as the result of traffic accidents near Butler.

Last Friday morning 12-year-old Wayne Badman of Edgerton was killed in an accident involving two trucks on U.S.6 one and one-half miles east of Butler. The boy was riding in a milk truck driven by Ted Jewell, also of Edgerton, when it was struck broadside by a tractor-trailer unit driven by James Watkins of Newark, N.J. Watkins reported he was driving east on U.S.6 when he observed the milk truck traveling south on a gravel road, County Road 75. The milk truck drove into the path of the semi resulting in the collision.

Watkins suffered fractured left ribs, shock and bruises.

Two teenage boys were killed Monday afternoon as they raced side by side on state road 1 north of Butler.

Killed as they raced their convertibles were Michael DeWayne Gillingham, 18, of New Haven and Robert Michael Chapin, 16, of Fort Wayne. The accident occurred as the racing cars crested a hill and the Gillingham car crashed head-on into a third car driven by Frederick Machenbach, 28, of Fort Wayne. Chapin and Gillingham were killed instantly. 17-year-old Gerry Chronister of New Haven, a passenger in his father's car driven by Gillingham, died Wednesday of this week as a result of injuries suffered in the crash. Machenbach suffered abrasions to the head, shock and a laceration to the right forearm.

FUTURE JETS 4-H CLUB

The ninth meeting of the Future Jets was held June 22.

The meeting was callled to order and pledge to the flag given. The club sang "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" and "Six Little Ducklings." Religious thought was given by Virginia Guiff. Roll call was taken and minutes of the last meeting were read. Business was discussed.

Claudia Strombeck gave a demonstration along with Joyce Keating and Sharon Boylan. Health and safety was given by Beth Fields. Recreation was then enjoyed. Ethel Fields served refreshments.

The Champion Chefs 4-H Club is helping again! Going vacationing? Then you'll want your car washed and all ready for your vacation trip.

For the park fund at Saint Joe and the Community Club at Spencerville, the boys of the Champion Chefs Club will have a car wash from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. this Saturday, June 27. Washes will be done at Casey's Mobil Service in Saint Joe and at Kenny's Motor Service in Spencerville.

Proceeds will be given for the above-mentioned uses.

Thank you - don't forget the date.

PEPPY GALS 4-H CLUB

The Peppy Gals 4-H Club met at the home of Janice and Jackie Walter on June 23 at 7:30 p.m.

The president called the meeting to order. Jackie Walter led pledges. Carol Zimmerman led devotions. Roll call response was "what I dislike to do." 22 answered the roll.

There were 3 visitors present.

New business included a discussion on "local judging."

Linda Fisher made 9 drinks for demonstration. Jackie Walter made Peter Cottontail salad and Janice Walter made a stack-up salad. Dianna Northrup made a root beer float.

Local News

Miss Phyllis Darlene Baker and Ralph J. Nussbaum will be married on Saturday, July 18, at 6:30 p.m. at Concord Methodist Church. Miss Baker is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold W. Baker of near Saint Joe. Mr. Nussbaum is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Howard Nussbaum of Spencerville. Miss Baker is employed by the Lincoln Life Insurance Co. and Mr. Nussbaum is employed by the Indiana Air National Guard at Baer Field in Fort Wayne. Both are graduates of Riverdale High School at Saint Joe.

A surprise birthday party was held Thursday of last week to celebrate the 10th birthday of Linda Halt. Present at the party were Sandy and Teresa Means, Teresa Vinson, Diana Miller, Jackie Walter, Becky Stiver, Melanie Carr, Kathy Yeiser and Pamela Holman.

"Moonshiner" Walter Gamble, 61, of Garrett was sentenced to serve not less than one nor more than two years at the Indiana State Prison at Michigan City, the penalty handed down in DeKalb Circuit Court Friday afternoon. Gamble's attorney immediately filed a motion for a new trial. Hearing on the motion was then scheduled for Wednesday of this week.

Clarence Bowers, principal of the Waterloo-Grant Township High School for 11 years until his resignation last spring, has been named superintendent of DeKalb County schools by the county board of education. The new superintendent will complete the unexpired term of Roger Hess. The term expires August 16, 1961. Only other applicant for the position of county superintendent was Ben Simpson, assistant high school principal of the Garrett-Keyser & Butler Township school system, who withdrew his application when the board of education turned down his request for an immediate raise of $600 in the annual salary of the superintendent. The salary is currently $7,800.

Jeri Walter of Auburn, 20, was sentenced to serve 10 days in the DeKalb County jail at trial held in Auburn City Court Wednesday. He pleaded guilty to charges of reckless driving and driving at an unreasonable speed. The sentence was ordered served on week ends. In addition the court imposed a fine of $50 and court costs of $16.75 and suspended the youth's driving privileges for 60 days.

John Shultz, 18, of Butler was sentenced to serve 45 days at the Indiana State Penal Farm at a session of Auburn City Court Wednesday. The sentence came as a result of charges of theft of gasoline. Shultz recently served 10 days in the county jail for malicious destruction to another young man's automobile in Saint Joe.

The dry earth was moistened this week at last, and the field crops and gardens given a shot in the arm by rainfall. Two weeks of no precipitation had brought an extreme dry condition to the soil.

Influence Peddling

Much to-do has been made about the act of "influence peddling" in the upper circles of our society. It is particularly noticed when this supposed "influence peddling" goes on in political and governmental circles. Buying off someone in any way is not a very commendable act; being bought off also is not very praiseworthy. But I wonder if some of the highly-publicized instances of "influence peddling" brought to our attention in the news occasionally today are really as bad as they sound. And maybe some of this "influence peddling" is for our benefit, presuming that the good-will which is sought by the giving of gifts and granting of favors is for the benefit of the public in the long run. I'm not saying that we ought to forget about the whole thing and let a wide-open field be given to anyone who wants to throw his weight around. What I am saying is that the conduct of business affairs and the conduct of governmental affairs in a sense require occasional acts of benevolence to keep things running smoothly.

A lot depends upon the people who are involved. I wouldn't want to be the recipient of a Cadillac from one of the labor leaders now on the spot in the investigation of rackets in big unions in return for my giving testimony favorable to his defense. (I would also hate to turn down such a gift!) But I wouldn't have any feeling of hesitancy to accept a cup of coffee from one of our local businessmen or perhaps any private citizen if we happened to be discussing some situation of local importance and he happened to suggest that we have a little refreshment - "on" him. I wonder if there is any basic difference between the two offerings of a favor or a "gift." It seems to me the only difference is in the cost of the gift involved and the person offering the gift. If there is influence peddling in the giving of the Cadillac, there is influence peddling in the buying of a cup of coffee.

It is important to analyze the particular situations which arise in this matter of the giving of gifts. I imagine some of the gifts which are pretty "big" in my eyes, and yours, too, are, to the higher ups, comparative drops in the bucket. What influence may be wielded in giving of gifts and granting of favors doesn't vary too much in degree considering the different situations that are involved. And I think that maybe we are better off in some ways because people do show what we can call a form of appreciation for consideration that may be given to a subject. Of course, there is the element of time involved. A gift of appreciation could, at the right moment, become a bribe. But I think with proper timing, giving of gifts of one form or another can be help to our everyday living in politics and government just as it creates good-will in private affairs.

There are probably a lot of people in political office, both elected and appointed, who have been sweating out these occasional reports of "influence peddling." It is a difficult task to determine offhand when an act of appreciation will be publicly accepted as in order or out of order. We are too ready to jump on our officials' backs and lead them to slaughter because of something which we may not completely understand. We might accept a cup of coffee offered by a friend or business associate and think nothing about it even though we might just happen to be talking about getting something done in the community. But let officials in high office do the same thing, fundamentally, and heads fall.

"Influence peddling" itself isn't bad. The evil comes with the possibility that it is bad influence we are trying to peddle.

Polio Immunization

People are funny.

Take, for instance, the matter of polo immunization shots. In the state of Indiana, according to a report from the Indiana State Board of Health, in 1958 over 60 percent of the counties in the state had less than 70 per cent of the first grade children (or those entering school for the first time) immunized against polio. The immunization record for smallpox was even worse with only 20 counties reporting 70 per cent or more immunized against that disease. Immunzation records for diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus were better, though far from what might be called a comfortable percentage.

Isn't it strange that after years of living in fear of polio and after the introduction of a vaccine that has proven its merits, we ignore the opportunity, the responsibility, of protecting ourselves and our children from the ravages of polio.

It is almost as if the discovery of a vaccine automatically immunized us, at least that is what we Hoosiers must think judging from state-wide statistics.

Have your children had polio shots? Have you had polio shots?

Others say . . . .

DIFFICULT TO KEEP EVERYONE HAPPY

Reading my mail has made me indignant, and I am now writing a dirty letter to the editors, knocking this bum, Ruark. I'm telling you, kids, Simon Legree was a rose geranium alongside y'r ob't sv't. No man can be as nasty as me without he should get lynched, yet. Nobody can be as wrong as me. Even on purpose.

When I wrote a piece suggesting that this Faubus maybe should have a passport before they allowed him to leave Arkansas, a strange condition similar to Lower Slobbovia, I was a hero. The letters poured in. They poured in when I soundly commended the Indians in North Carolina for clobbering the Ku Klux Klan, also a strange state of mind.

My Negro writers were high in praise, and so was a strange tribe which self-styles themselves "liberals." To the KKK and some barely literate types I was a "niger-lover" and should be lynched.

I am afflicted with the unfortunate habit of journalistic honesty, so when I went out to Africa for the umpteenth time and wrote some columns about the various African independencies, the reading complexion changed. What I said from knowledge was that perhaps the wild tribes I knew, and was living with at the moment, were about 90 per cent unready for what the city-sliciker organizers were shrieking about as independence. Now I am a shenzi, a bum; and my former friends yell that I have sold out to the KKK, colonialism, and awful force-us, which is a pet name I have for a native of Arkansas. At the same time, the KKK and a bunch of other bigots sprang forward to suggest that, "We need more like you to keep our country free."

Mind you, what I have said is only that kids should go to school whatever their color and that some African tribes with their grandpa's wristbones still in their septums are going to take a power of kicking from a bunch of city-bred, foreign-educated opportunists who care nothing for their brethren except to use them.

The fact that their brethren don't even know their names, never heard of them and couldn't care less, escapes the opportunists as they scream for independence. And the brethren continue to kill each other while the Russians slide in and use the chaos as the Russians always use choas.

I suggested, mildy, once, that the money wasted on funeral flowers could be better spent on flowers for the living, or even on such things as cancer reesarch, since I never knew a corpse that could smell or see a flower. The florists screeched. Meanwhile, back in the research ranches, a lot of doctors wrote in to say, by golly, here's a real hep young man.

So then I wrote a piece about maybe it would be nice to find an old-fashioned-type doctor who didn't rely entirely on a prescription pad and the antibiotics that rapidly go out of fashion—a doctor who might even make a house call or speak to you civily on the telephone.

Bam! My poor old bones were consigned by the doctors to be given to the KKK, the NAACP, the morticians and the florists. All of a sudden the American Medical Assn. joined the sacred guild of witch doctors, the psychiatrists, and the French airy-fairies who make the sack dress possible, in a united front against yours ever et cetera.

Convicted murderers have accused me of malfeasance. Africans who have never been south of Richmond and no closer to Africa than the polo grounds tell me all about Africa. The combined guild of wives and mothers and juvenile delinquents relish my blood as an aperif. I am loathed in the South, hated in the North, detested in the West, and stoned in Arkansas, which I consider a rare compliment.

But one thing I notice that is almost invariable in the name-calling which the reader is allowed for the money he pays to read you. Most of the stuff is anonymous, or is under the letterhead of some sort of pressure group, or is signed "Patriot," or "One Hundred Per Cent American," or "World War Two Vet," or "Pet Lover."

Excuse me, until now I had forgotten the anti-vivisectionists and the vegetarians. With those kids I am really very big on the hate list, and the fish lovers will be along any minute.

—Robert C. Ruark in the Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette.

DO IT YOURSELF AUTO — $22

What would be your guess on this question: What is the labor cost in an automobile selling for $2,000? Most people no doubt would guess the labor cost at 25 to 30 per cent of the selling price. A few might guess as high as 50 per cent. Actually, after direct and indirect taxes are deducted, labor costs amount to approximately 80 per cent of the selling price of a new car. And that's about what it amounts to in any manufactured product — 80 per cent. This fact emphasizes the part wage raises play in the price of products to consumers.

If wage raises come as a result of increased productivity, because of improved machine tools, manufacturing techniques and worker efficiency, then the consumers as well as the workers have a chance to benefit. In this situation prices can be lowered or quality and service improved—or both. If wage raises, on the other hand, are not based on increased productivity then the price of the product manufactured goes up. And when prices go up, the very people who got the wage raises soon find that their dollars are not buying as much as they previously did, so they begin thinking about another raise.

This is the process of leap-frogging—wages going up, then prices going up, then wages going up again, and so on and on. The people who are not on industrial payrolls suffer to a greater degree than the wage earners, and the people on retirement or other fixed income are terrifically hard hit. This situation is out of character with the traditional American way of life which, for a century, has been producing more and more goods of higher and higher quality at lower and lower prices—thereby constantly improving the living standard of all.

Organized labor's leadership should be farsighted enough to realize that benefits to wage earners will be extremely short-lived and the future of wage earners placed in jeopardy unless all three groups in the American economic system benefit with each step of industrial progress. The employee's primary responsibility is to the company which created the job he holds, a job made possible by an employer investment of more than $12,000 on the average. The employer must make a profit or go out of business.

But the employer cannot make a profit unless the product he manufactures, or the service he renders, attracts buyers in the competitive market. Consumers won't buy if the quality is lower or cost is higher than a competitor's wares, or ifthey can't afford it. The market is not likely to expand unless there is a constant improvement in quality and-or reduction in price. Henry Ford started selling his Model T's at nearly $1,000, but each year as he mastered his mass production techniques and added machine tools, he cut the selling price—and each year more people could afford to drive Model T's. Within a few years he was selling the car for less than $300—and millions of people could buy them. Most manufactured items have a similar history. But today prices on many items are continuing to rise.

Recently we made a study of a $2,000 automobile—to see what made it cost $2,000. You'll no doubt be surprised at what we found: It takes 4 1-2 tons of coal, 2 3-4 tons of iron ore, 50 pounds of cotton, 14 pounds of finished wool, or synthetic materials, aluminum, zinc, lead, copper, and countless other raw materials to make an automobile. Without the addition of labor costs, these things are worth about $22. But these raw materials require the accumulated labor of thousands of people in countless crafts to transform them into a finished automobile.

Miners dig the coal and iron ore; railroad and maritime workers transport these materials to the steel mill where other workers convert the ore into steel. Then the fabricating plant workers come into the picture. The cotton accumulates labor cost when the farmer tills the soil; the workers sow the seed, and others cultivate and harvest the crop. Other workers transport it to the gin, others gin it, others transport it to the textile mills —and finally the cloth reaches the auto plant. When all of the parts and materials finally reach the factory for assembly, the labor costs of automobile workers, of course, must be added to the price of the car.

In the $2,000 automobile, taxes can be figured at about $500. Direct and indirect labor costs add up to approximately $1200 of the $1500 balance—or 80 per cent. And who gets the $300? Raw material cost—$22. Net profit to producers of raw materials and allied industries—$89. To part manufacturer—$47. To local dealer—$77. To car manufacturer—$65.

It's obvious that wage raises - unless offset by increased productivity - boost the prices of things we buy—and tend to lower everybody's living standard.

—Dr. George S. Benson, president, National Education Program, Searcy, Arkansas.

THE FUNCTION OF AN EXECUTIVE

As nearly everyone knows, an executive has practically nothing to do except to decide what is to be done; to tell somebody to do it; to listen to reasons why it should not be done, why it should be done by someone else or why it should be done in a different way; to follow up to see if the thing has been done; to discover that it has not; to inquire why. To listen to excuses from the person who should have done it; to follow up again to see if the thing has been done, only to discover that it has been done incorrectly. To point out how it should have been done; to conclude that as long as it has been done, it may as well be left where it is. To wonder if it is not time to get rid of a person who cannot do a thing right; to reflect that he probably has a wife and a large family, and that certainly any successor would be just as bad, and maybe worse. To consider how much simpler and better the thing would have been done if one had done it oneself in the first place. To reflect sadly that one could have done it right in twenty minutes, and as things turned out, one had to spend two days to find out why it has taken three weeks for somebody else to do it wrong.

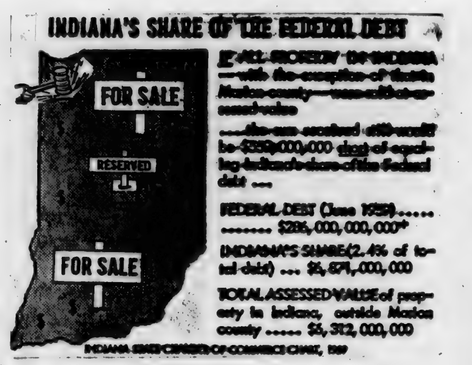
CC Chart Shows Hoosier Debt Share

Seriousness of the rising federal debt was emphasized this week by the Indiana State Chamber of Commerce in a plea for holding down federal expenditures and providing a balanced budget as a step toward halting inflation.

The State Chamber shows in the accompanying chart that if all Hoosiers outside of Marion County were to sell at assessed value all of their property - such as home, buildings, factories, public utilities, machinery, automobiles, livestock and household goods -- the sum realized would not equal Indiana's share of the total national debt of more than $286 billion.

Some $559,000,000, or about half of the $1,124,000,000 at which property in Marion County (Indianapolis) is assessed for taxation, would be needed in addition to raise the total Indiana debt share of about $6,871,000,000.



The chamber estimated that DeKalb County's share of the debt is approximately $40,540,080.

Indiana's share of the debt was computed on the basis of a formula which shows Hoosiers bear approximately 2.4 per cent of the costs of all Federal expenditures. The county share is based on a formula including the county's proportion of total state population and of state gross income tax payments.

Among the chamber's recommendations, according to Jack E. Reich, executive vice-president, is the defeat of proposals to spend additional billions of dollars in Federal aid for purposes the chamber said were primarily problems which should be handled by local and state governments and individuals.

"With our ELECTRIC heat pump, we're so comfortable we hate to leave the house!"

Says Mr. and Mrs: R. J. Wolf

"And this year-around air-conditioner saves space... gives us more freedom decorating our new home."

Mr. Wolf, an interior decorator says, "I personally selected an electric heat pump to heat my home in the winter and cool it in the summer because I'm convinced it provides the most pleasant living conditions of any unit yet invented. It gives us a 'controlled climate' that is so comfortable we actually hate to leave the house.

"The compact unit is in the garage," continues Mr. Wolf, "where it doesn't take up any living area. And this extra space gave me more freedom when I planned the house."

RELIGION IN LIFE
Lesson for June 28, 1959

"The test of a nation's professed religion was then and is now: Does it work out into the nation's whole life?" That last sentence from last week's column will be our starting point for this one. The fact is, that sentence raises a great many questions. HOW does religion work out into the life of a nation? Just one side of that single question will be enough for this week's short discussion.

The Ancient Style Is Not For Us

The story of the high priest Jehoiada and the young king Joash is a story of how religion worked out into public life once upon a time. But of course we can't follow Jehoiada's line, for obvious reasons. For one thing, he was an uncle (by marriage) of the boy king, whose parents had been murdered when he was a baby. Little Joash has been brought up in the Temple itself, in secret, and we can be sure that the High Priest had had much to say to his nephew. Now we can't pick some future President of the U.S.A. in his infancy and take him off (say) to a Bishop's home, or rather the Bishop's cathedral, and bring him up there—even if his uncle were a bishop, which isn't likely. Furthermore, High Priest Jehoiada was not only an in-law of royalty. He was head of the official state religion. Most Americans do not want a state religion, we feel it is better (for all its drawbacks) to have a religiously free nation. So if we are going to make religion a force in national affars, we shall have to do something different from what Jehoiada did.

Two Mistakes

But we have the ssme problem Jehoiada had: How can we get religion into public life? The point is, he used the opportunity he had. And so may we, if we use any consecrated ingenuity. To make the problem simpler, let us limit it to this question: How can organized religion, that is to say the church, make itself felt in the public (that is, the official) life of the nation?

Two opposite mistakes have been made. One is to throw the weight of the church into the political arena, as a voting and fighting unit, so that the church becomes either in name or in effect a political party. This has happened more than once in European politics. The short verdict must be that it does neither the church nor politics any good. The opposite mistake is made by some of those who see well enough what is wrong with the church's becoming a "clerical party" or anything of the sort. Shying away from that blunder, some have stumbled into another: namely withdrawing the church entirely from political life, so much so that no minister and no church body ever raise a voice regarding any political issue, or any issue which politicians and lawmakers have to deal with. The verdict on this also is short and straight: A bad solution. Political life and leaders, left to themselves, assume that religion has nothing to say about public interests; and the church becomes morally deaf and blind.

What the Church Can Do

Between these two futile mistakes there are some actual possible ways of making Christian influence felt by those who stand in places of power, great or small. (1) Churches can make public statements in their conventions or assemblies, about matters of national or international concern. Examples of this would be such statements as have been made in the south on the race question, bringing popular race prejudice to the light of God's Word and finding it a sin. Another example is a statement made by the National Council of Churches criticizing the government's foreign policy at certain points. This is not politics; it is the church seeing moral ssues and saying what they are. (2) Churches can make an effort to win public men to Christian living. (3) The church can encourage young Christians to prepare themselves for public service as a Christian duty.

BIGGEST BRAKES!

One of the 7 big bests Chevrolet gives you over any car in its field

The published opinions of independent experts, plus comparative facts and figures, bear us out on this: Chevy gives you 7 big bests over its competitors—beginning with biggest brakes. Not only biggest, but built with bonded linings for up to 66% longer life. To prove its advantage, Chevy out-stopped both the other leading low-priced cars in direct competitive tests, conducted by NASCAR,* of repeated stops from highway speeds.

BEST TRADE-IN

Check the figures in any N.A.D.A.† Guide Book. Chevy used car prices last year averaged up to $128 higher than comparable models of the "other two."

BEST STYLE

It's the only car of the leading low-priced 3 that's unmistakably modern in every line. "In its price class," says POPULAR SCIENCE magazine, "a new high in daring styling."

BEST ECONOMY

No doubt about it: two Chevrolet 6's won their class in the famous Mobilgas Economy Run, got the best mileage of any full-size car, 22.38 m.p.g.

BEST ROOM

Official dimensions reported to A.M.A.‡ make this clear. For example, Chevy front seat hip room is up to 5.9 inches wider than comparable cars.

BEST ENGINE

Every motor magazine has given Chevrolet's standard and Corvette V8's unstinted praise. As SPORTS CARS ILLUSTRATED puts it: "Indeed this device is surely the most wonderfully responsive engine available today at any price."

BEST RIDE

MOTOR TREND magazine calls Chevy "the smoothest, most quiet, softest riding car in its price class." You'll be able to tell this yourself, instantly. Stop by your Chevrolet dealer's for a look at a whole raft of little advantages besides these 7 big ones.

Starting Tips For Summer Driving & Where To Go

Failure of a car to start on high humidity days generally brings with it numerous "wet wire" complaints from motorists. But the Chcago Motor Club points out that wet wires are seldom the cause of the trouble. More often the blame lies with the motorist's handling of a common situation or else the general condition of the car.

Actually, any car has wet wires when the humidity goes over the 90 per cent mark. And while wet wires or wet spark plugs cause some leakage of electrical energy, this loss alone shouldn't be enough to keep the car from starting if the engine is in good shape.

Most common cause of poor starting on high humidity days is the pumping of the gas pedal by the driver. Instead of helping to start the car, pumping the gas pedal works just the opposite, having the same effect as overchoking or flooding the engine.

The club offers the following tips for prompt car starting on a humid or wet day:

Do not pump the gas pedal.

Simply turn on the ignition key, hold the gas pedal all the way down to the floor, then step on the starter.

If the car fails to start, the trouble may lie elsewhere and a mechanic should be called to check the situation.

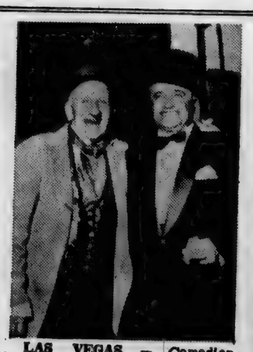
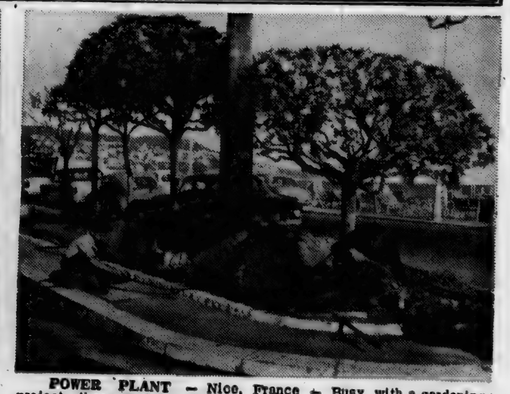
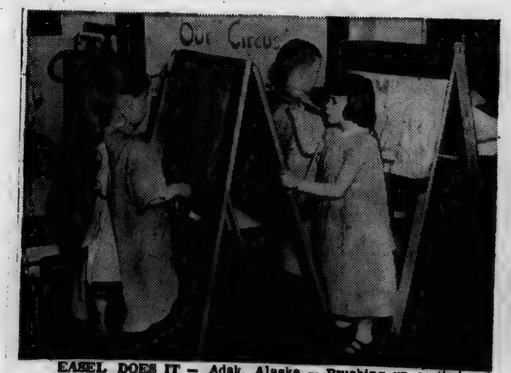
MECHANICAL MAN — New York — Decked out in some strange-looking headgear, this lad is demonstrating the talents of "Robert the Robot," a new mechanical toy. The robot's eyes light up, he walks, he talks and moves his hands — all via remote control. The mechanical toy, made by the Ideal Toy Corp., will be displayed at the American Fair in Moscow this summer. It sells for about six dollars.



LAS VEGAS — Comedian Jimmy Durante (L), and Eddie Jackson who broke up their act of 30 years in show business last year, decided that they belong on the stage once more, so they have teamed up for a six weeks engagement at Wilbur Clark's Desert Inn.



POWER PLANT — Nice, France — Busy with a gardening project, these workmen plant electrical cables at Nice. They don't plan to grow electric light bulbs though — the wiring is part of a project to illuminate the city's flower gardens at night.



EASEL DOES IT — Adak, Alaska — Brushing up on their art work, five-year-olds paint pictures in the kindergarten class of a school in Adak. The youngsters are the children of personnel stationed at the U.S. Navy base in Adak. The kids' paintings were submitted to the National Kindergarten Art Show.

I LOVE YOU — Kansas City, Mo. — "Mirror, mirror in my hand, don't you think that I'm just grand?" That seems to be the feeling of three-year-old Candy Ward, who looks as if she could just kiss her reflection to pieces. Or maybe she's just practicing a pout.

PAT DRY — Miami, Fla. — A new fad hits the sands in Miami, where these beauties sunbathe beside beach towels printed with pictures of singing star Pat Boone. The towels, designed by Mertex, also bear the inscription "Always Your Boy — Pat Boone." The singer's fans say the towels are better than autographed pictures because they are "right here beside us all the time."

Around the Town

With the Editor

Ricky Roberts was in a dither recently . He has been taking guitar lessons from Larry Halt, which set him up for a few selections at a family reunion. But before the get-together, Ricky was puzzled as to what he would play. He was so excited about the idea that, when he asked Kay Halt's opinion of suitable musical numbers, he did it this way:

"What should I play for the funeral?"

—That's what I hear, anyhow.

You've heard of "A Tree Grows In Brooklyn"? We've got something just as unexplained right here in Saint Joe.

You might blink twice, but that IS a stalk of corn rising up at the corner in front of the Lutheran Church.

Vandals Active At Church

Vandals have taken property from the Saint Joe Church of Christ and have caused damage to windows in the church building.

Taken last week were a plastic clothes basket which the congregation was using to collect clothes pins for the Grundy Mountain Mission Home for Children. Also taken were church and Sunday school records dating back several years and of little monetary value except to the congregation. The clothes basket was valued at around four dollars, not including the undetermined value of the clothes pins.

Damage to the windows was apparently done early this week. The amount of damage was not disclosed.

The Spencerville Fire Department makes note of a contribution from Harry and Dick Loucks and extends its appreciation for the donation.

Fireworks On Fourth From 'Way Back

Who put the fireworks in the Fourth of July?

Much of the credit goes to John Adams, according to The World Book Encyclopedia. The Founding Father declared that Independence Day "ought to be solemnized with pomp and parade, with shows, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires and illuminations, from one end of this continent to the other, from this time forward for evermore."

So, from that time forward, the birthday of the U.S. has been marked by brilliant explosions of color and noise, and the deaths and accidents that invariably accompany them.

Americans, however, got the idea for fireworks from Europeans, who got the idea from the Arabs, who merely copied the Chinese.

In 1232 A.D., when a Chinese city was besieged by Mongols, the defenders cooked up a batch of saltpeter, sulfur and charcoal and frightened their attackers with ""arrows of flying fire." Arabs were quick to copy these weapons, which probably were rockets. The Crusaders brought them back to Europe where the Italians discovered that they made fancy exhibitions as well as formidable weapons.

By the time fireworks spread to England and France, figures and structures of wood and plaster had been added.

In 1520, when Henry VIII met Francis I on the Field of the Cloth of Gold in northern France, the historic moment was celebrated by the appearance of a huge dragon that thundered across the sky breathing fire. By the 1600's, fireworks had developed into such an art that two schools of thought had arisen to argue over methods of display. The Southern school centered in Italy, concentrated on building elaborate structures such as castles and temples, from which the fireworks were exploded. The technique of setting off the fireworks was shrouded in mystery.

The Northern school, influenced by the Protestant movement in Germany, thought the Italian procedure smacked of popery. The Northerners exhibited their fireworks before the show, for all to admire, and then made them the important part of the display.

While the two schools fumed over their firecrackers, fireworks crossed the Atlantic and became an American institution.

FOURTH FACTS— Independence Day was first celebrated in Philadelphia on July 8, 1776, the day when the public learned the actual words of the Declaration of Independence.

The Declaration of Independence was called a unanimous declaration when it was presented to the public on July 8, 1776. But the World Book Encyclopedia reveals that it wasn't unanimous until July 19 when the New York delegation to the Continental Congress announced that it favored the document.

The birthday of the United States, the Fourth of July, did not become a legal public holiday until 1941.

Thomas Jefferson is remembered most as the author of the Declaration of Independence. However, he was also the foremost American architect of his time, a translator of Greek plays, a violinist and the inventor of the dumbwaiter and the swivel chair.

Remembering 'the Fourth'

The Fourth of July isn't just a holiday. We can do our country a great service by keeping the significance of the Fourth of July alive in our minds and in the minds of those about us. Too often our days which are set aside to commemorate some particular incident in history lose their significance as we take advantage of the day off to enjoy the leisure opportunities about us. Sometimes we help to cloud the significance of a particular date by changing its name. For instance, November 11, which formerly was designated "Armistice Day" to observe a significant date from the battle of World War II has been changed. We no longer record November 11 as "Armistice Day," referring to a particular day for a particular event, but we observe it as "Veterans' Day," a title which preserves nothing in our minds relating to past history. There are a good many veterans today, but they all do not have any particular connection with November 11.

A lot of water has passed under the bridge since July 4th became a significant date in the history of this country. It was a brave and somewhat brash move to make, a united but somewhat disorganized group of colonies declaring that they owed allegiance to no one in the hereafter except to God and the united group they became. It is difficult to appreciate the hardships that must have been prevalent in those days in making such a move. Can you imagine making such a move without the means of communication that we have today? How difficult it must have been to get any sort of movement going and keep it alive without telephones and telegraph and speedy means of transportation. It is all the more amazing that we did declare our independence under the comparatively "primitive" circumstances which were then an accepted part of everyday living.

But it was done. The prize was great enough to make the sacrifices and the burdens of work worth the bother to establish a new kind of freedom in this world. The Fourth of July is a great day for Americans. We owe it to those pioneers of freedom from the 18th century to keep our minds alert to the responsibility we have to preserve our freedom, to the opportunities we have to fulfill that responsibility. Each day presents a new opportunity.

He who carries a fifth on the fourth may not be around to go forth on the fifth.

—Jay Gould on his noontime news commentary.

A NATION UNDER GOD

Lesson for July 5, 1959

"This nation, under God" has been a classic phrase ever since Lincoln said it. The expression had no doubt been used before him. Indeed, the reverse side of the United States seal, which can be seen on the back of any dollar bill, shows an unfinished pyramid, right under an eye, which the designers meant to be the eye of God. For the motto over the picture is ANNUIT COEPTIS. This being translated means "He has approved the things which have been begun." But who is "He"? It can be none other than God. For without his approval it does no good to brag about anybody else's.

The Gods of the Nations

So from the very beginning, our nation on its official seal has acknowledged that it was begun and must continue under the eye of God. His approval is vital. We put "In God We Trust" on our coins. We open Congress with prayer every day it meets. We administer solemn oaths to public officials. Even in the army, where you would perhaps not expect it, the Department of Defense sees to it that every man has the opportunity to worship God. At Fort Knox, for instance, there are not less than 20 chapels provided by the army and used every day by Roman Catholics, Protestants and Jews.

It is not a novelty, or a peculiar thing, for a nation to recognize God officially, and to keep God—a god of some kind—before the eyes of the people. Armies have had chaplains since back in the times of the Romans—not in the modern sense of course, but professional religious men who accompanied the troops. The Chinese emperors used to sacrifice annually to the God of Heaven. We all know about the Japanese Shinto, a religion all tied up with intense patriotism. In Abraham's time and long before that, the priest-kings of Ur used to sacrifice to the city's special deity, Nannar the moon-god. Every nation has SOME god. Even the wild Scythians, who bowed to no other god, would thrust a bare sword into the ground and offer sacrifice to the sword.

Where We Hang Our Hearts

Whatever a man hangs his heart on and depends on, said Martin Luther, that is his God. What a man hangs his heart on, in reality, may not be the God he officially acknowledges. "In God We Trust," says every nickel of our money. But do we trust God or our money? What do we depend on? ICBM's, those intercontinental ballistic missiles that can destroy whole cities at one shot? IBM machines, those immense robots that can solve problems faster than any human being can? What is it that can render us secure? Space satelites? More education? Democratic government? A favorable trade balance — keeping other nations always in debt to us? Capitalism? These are all gods—somebody hangs his heart on these, some or all of these, and depends on them. But they are not God.

The God of Jesus Christ

The Christian belief about God is summed up in Paul's title for him in Romans 15:6: "The God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ." Any sort of alleged god who does not measure up to that, is no true God. Any "god"' Christ would have disowned is no God. This proposition should set us thinking. One of the thoughts is this: A favorite book of Jesus in the Old Testament, one he quotes often, was Deuteronomy. Now the book of Deuteronomy makes a great deal of the idea of a nation under God. But close to the very beginning of that book you will find the Ten Commandments. The true God is the one who gives to man the law by which he lives. No man and no nation has any right to suppose that either a nation or a man can claim the favor and protection of God and at the same time defy him by breaking his laws. The God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, because he is indeed the High God, says to every nation that professes to be "under" him: Do you mean it?

Royalty Brings Problems

Queen Elizabeth's visit to Chicago in July will provide a sparkling contrast to the city's first experience with royalty nearly 100 years ago.

Chicago's budding society was itching to show off its finery - imported from the East - and to display the fancy drills it had practiced for a grand parade, when the Prince of Wales came to town in 1860.

But Albert Edward - later King Edward VII - came incognito as Baron Renfrew. According to the research department of The World Book Encyclopedia, he squelched the plans for celebrations in his honor and insisted on being treated like an ordinary Englishman.

Mayor "Long John" Wentworth saved face by declaring that the prince was merely following the wishes of most Chicagoans, who did not like "kow-towing to royalty."

The city got its chance to entertain in the grand manner in 1893 when the Duke and Duchess of Veragua arrived for the World's Columbian Exposition. Back home on the farm, the duke quietly raised prize bulls for the Madrid bull ring. But in Chicago, he was wined and dined as the only living descendant of Columbus. The festivities overwhelmed the duke and he was reluctant to leave. The national commission that was paying his expenses was just as reluctant to see him stay. After a month, the commission declared that his visit - so far as the national pocketbook was concerned - was at an end.

Chicagoans hoping to meet Queen Elizabeth might take a tip on etiquette from the debate that raged over the visit of the Infanta Eulalia of Spain in 1893. The crucial question was: is it proper to shake hands with a princess. Mrs. Potter Palmer - whose word was society's law - decided it was up to the princess.

Mrs. Parker needn't have been so solicitous. The late entrance wasn't yet fashionable in Chicago, and the Infanta created a social scandal by daring to arrive late and leave early at a reception given for her - by Mrs. Palmer.

Around the Town

With the Editor

There have been some confused motorists while the resurfacing job is being done on state road 1 in this area. The placement of the signs and the number of them brings a laugh.

Last week I started for Spencerville and there was a "road closed" sign at the edge of Saint Joe. I went through it like everybody else did. At Spencerville there was another road-closed sign and on down the road still another.

I suppose the psychology is that if you put up enough signs along the road, eventually the driver will begin thinking that maybe the road really is closed and turn off to make a detour.

Mike and Dave and I went to a Cub game last week. And I got myself in the situation of jumping to a wrong conclusion by forgetting about our modern conveniences.

We sat in an empty section of the grandstand. A short way down the line two girls in their teens no more than sat down than they pulled out a couple of cans and f-f-f-t, they enjoyed their refreshments. Aha, thought I, a couple of delinquents swiping a six-pack of beer and coming out to the ball park for a good time. I mentioned this to Mike and we then watched the players warm up. Shortly thereafter Mike said, "Dad, you've got a jolt coming — that's pop in those cans!"

—I felt better though smaller.

Dave got himself in a jam Saturday evening and if HE could have felt smaller, he would have felt better, too.

We were at Pretty Lake at Ruth and Bob Shafenacker's vacation cottage. After watching the fireworks we played cards. As the card game came to an end, Aunt Ruthie asked Dave if he would help tidy up a bit and carry those bottles to the rear of the cottage. He got the wise idea that he could carry more bottles if he used one finger for each bottle, so he stuck in his fingers and got a bottle for each. A few moments later there was a bewildered "Hey Mom - - -" from the back room. There stood Dave with two bottles fast to his fingers.

—Yup, he got them off without breaking anything.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank everyone for their helpfulness in caring for Judy during the past two years, especially appreciated is the help of Carolyn Miller, Louise Church, Mary Lou Brookfield and Rev. Ivan O. Miller.

County Youth Now Under 10PM Curfew

(Auburn Star, Wednesday, July 8, 1959)—

DeKalb County authorities Wednesday, in the face of a mounting juvenile delinquency problem that officials say has reached alarming proportions ordered a 10 p.m. curfew on all boys and girls under the age of 18.

The order is effective immediately. The joint announcement was released Wednesday by Deputy Prosecuter H. Charles Winans, Sheriff Dorsie A. Likens, Aubrn Police Chief C. H. West and Garrett Police Chief Chet Bartels. The deputy prosecuter said peace officers in the other remaining DeKalb County communities will be directed to enforce the curfew.

The curfew was ordered under provision of the delinquent child statute of Indiana. The statute forbids "any boy or girl under 18 to wander about the streets or highways between the hours of 10 p.m. and 5 a.m. without being engaged in a lawful business occupation." The restriction does not apply to children in the company of parents.

Authorities said that, effective immediately, any boys and girls caught after curfew will be taken to the nearest police station. Their parents will be advised to pick them up there. Repeated violations will result in the filing of delinquency charges in the DeKalb juvenile court. The law also provides for filing of charges against parents.

The deputy prosecutor and police, after a conference with court authorities, emphasized that the curfew order is not directed at the majority of youngsters who have in the past caused police no trouble. The strict order is, however, the only means by which authorities can control a dangerous situation. They said many parents apparently are unaware of the increasing juvenile problem in DeKalb County.

Within the past few months a major portion of police activities has been directed towards juvenile work. The offenses include promiscuous sex activity, teen age drinking, numerous acts of vandalism and irresponsible driving that has resulted in traffic fatalities, personal injury accidents and a record number of arrests of juveniles for traffic offenses.

Fire Destroys Auburn Market

A supermarket in Auburn, one of three operated by state representative Lyle Leas of Auburn, was swept by fire early Wednesday morning with fire and water damage amounting to an estimated $150,000.

The fire was brought under control by fire fighting units from Auburn, Garrett, Butler, Waterloo, Grant Township and an aerial ladder crew from Fort Wayne. The blaze had threatened an entire city block across from the court house square.

The blaze started in the produce wrapping section of the market toward the rear of the store. The origin of the fire is as yet undetermined. A motorist gave the first report of the fire at 4:38 a.m. Wednesday after seeing smoke and flames pouring from the building on the north side of the square. A baker at a nearby establishment turned in an alarm at the same time.

Fire gutted the produce wrapping section and destroyed the roof on the one-story addition at the rear. The flames then shot up the north wall of the three-story building and poured in through the windows into the second and third stories above the market. Flames spread to the third floor of an adjacent hardware before brought under control.

Loss to the market was estimated at $$80,000 with the remainder of the total damage suffered by the building and the hardware.

Three In Nurse Graduating Class

Roberta Andrea Carr and Fletta Lorene Griggs of Saint Joe are among the 50 students who have successfully completed 3 years of nursing education and will graduate at commencement exercises to be held at the Wayne Street Methodist Church in Fort Wayne on July 26 at 3 p.m.

Miss Carr is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Carr. Miss Griggs is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Griggs.

Also included in the list of graduates is Miss Eleanor Joan Roberts of Spencerville.

The graduating class is now eligible to take state board examinations to become Registered Nurses. The group includes 8 student nurses from Fort Wayne, 38 from other local Indiana cities, 4 from Ohio, 1 from Illinois and 1 from New Jersey.

Following commencement services, a reception will be held in English Hall of the Parkvew-Methodist School of Nursing on Randalia Drive.

Socials Planned Sat'day, Ths'day

Concord Methodist Church will hold an ice cream social this coming Saturday evening, July 11. Serving will begin at 5:00 p.m.

The menu includes chicken, ham, hot dog and sloppy joe sandwiches; baked beans; potato salad; homemade pie, cake and ice cream; cold drinks and coffee.

The public is invited to attend.

The Newville E.U.B. Church will sponsor an ice cream social next Thursday, June 16.

The social will be held at the church and serving will begin at 5:30 p.m.

The menu includes chicken and hot dog sandwiches, baked beans, pie, cake, coffee, kool-ade and, of course, ice cream!

The public is invited to attend.

Lions Elect International President

Clarence L. Sturm of Manawa, Wisconsin, was elected International President of Lions International at the Association's 42nd Annual Convention in New York City. Lions International, with 590,000 members in 92 countries or regions, is the world's largest service club organization. Lions International is best known for its many youth programs, community service projects, sight conservation activities and aid to the blind. Nose-Thumbing The Law

Now that "the Fourth" is past, there possibly will not be too much said about that day's accompanying problem, the matter of fireworks - until "the Fourth" rolls around again next year. Oh, there may be something said behind the scenes since a group of firemen in our state oppose the legalizing of snakes and sparklers by our state legislature. Their opposition is based on the grounds that such partial legalizing of fireworks makes it practically impossible to enforce laws governing the use of fireworks, this plus the fact that such partial usage will bring an increase in fire losses and personal injuries. I sympathize with that group, but I feel sorrier for the human race as a whole, or maybe just the Hoosier state. Because the present situation makes the adult portion of the population major contributors to juvenile delinquency.

During the summer months there is an emhasis on water safety. Laws passed by the state legislature in recent years are rigidly enforced because of the great number of boats now skimming over the waters of our lakes, some of them pulling skiers. The laws were passed for the safety of the public. Enforcement of the laws is quite evident during the summer months. Our county daily runs lists of violators of boat regulations quite frequently, with fines running into amounts of fifteen, twenty and twenty-five dollars approximately. I imagine there were a lot of arrests made on "the Fourth" due to boat regulation violations. There's nothing wrong with that, particularly. Maybe we've gone overboard on boat regulations in some respects; but at least the regulations are being enforced and the law is upheld to a great degree. People are more aware of boat regulations.

But what was wrong on the evening of "the Fourth"? There weren't any arrests being made on the same lakes which are so closely patrolled for boating and fishing violations - if the same thing went on elsewhere as at one Hoosier lake. Where we were on "the Fourth" we saw some nice "private" displays of fireworks put on by several lake residents in front of their cottages. We also heard through the afternoon frequent "bangs" that indicated that several were observing "the Fourth" in the good old fashioned way. But the fact was, and is, those people were all violating the law. Why weren't they being arrested?

Is it any wonder that our young people show disrespect for their elders and the law when their elders set an example of disrespect? We Hoosiers who pride ourselves on our "Americanism" are doing a sorry job as examples of law-abiding citizens by our attitude toward legislation controlling the use and sale of fireworks. This makes two sore thumbs in our state, the other being the confused matter concerning daylight saving or central standard time, everyone doing as he darn pleases.

I don't know whether it's right or wrong to ban fireworks. A lot of people get hurt using them. But it seems to me that we would be better off to observe the declaration of our independence by celebrating it as we did "in the good old days" and as law abiding citizens, but with particular care that fireworks are used properly and reserved for that particular occasion alone. There are laws already on the books to punish those who abuse the privilige of shooting fireworks and they can be punished. I have no sympathy for those who toss firercackers into passing autos or toss them around at the ball diamond or toss them from cars as they pass by, or those who light sparklers and toss them around in the air when others are near by. Neither have I any sympathy for those who think that passing a law will stop the use of said fireworks. I doubt if there was much less chance of having a firecracker tossed in my car during the past "Fourth" than there was before because those who had possession of the crackers were violating the law in the first place, why should they have any more respect for an individual? A conscientious person usually doesn't throw a firecracker into a car when a firecracker is legal and he doesn't usually posses them or shoot them when they are illegal.

We have three boys in our family and we want to protect them just as much as anyone else wants to protect any of their sons or daughters. But I can see that they are missing out on something. Shooting firecrackers CAN be fun and it CAN be fairly safe. I can see that they are just itching to get in on something that, right now, is held just out of their reach. At the same time I can see that they notice others doing something that is against the law - and getting away with it. This is difficult enough for adults to fathom, much less boys and girls.

I would sooner take a chance on their getting hurt in the process of learning the proper use of fireworks (or punished for improper use) than to shut them off completely without any "practical education." Sure as shootin', one day they will be someplace where temptation will be too great and there will be a firecracker around or else they will be living someplace where it's legal to shoot firecrackers and then - boom, there goes a finger or a hand or an eye, theirs or someone else's.

Laws and regulations protect us. But our basic safety comes from knowledge.

Others say . . . .

FISCAL POLICIES BEING MADE BY ECONOMIC ILLITERATES

In our Congress today policies vitally affecting the survival of our form of economic system are being made by economc illiterates.

In business boardrooms and union meeting halls across the nation today decisions directly involving our jobs are being made by men who have only the vaguest idea of what creates a job.

In our high schools and colleges the future leaders of America are being taught either nothing about our economic system, or are being given courses woefully superficial, dreadfully inadequate.

We are a nation of economic illiterates.

Few students in our high schools learn anything at all about our economic system in their classrooms.

The vast majority of American adults are not only ill-informed on economic issues, worse, they don't care about being better informed.

Most of our lawmakers are loaded with misconceptions about the economic issues on which they're passing laws.

And this indictment goes to the very top of our nation at a time when understanding of the American economy is imperative if we are to meet the challenge of the Soviet economy.

Harsh words, yes! And even harsher ones are being spoken by groups which are taking the trouble to dig into the extent of our ignorance - such as the highly respected, non-political Committee For Economic Development, the Ford Foundation, The Carnegie Corp.

So seriously does the CED view our illiteracy that the last meeting of its 160 trustees (consisting of the nation's leading industrialists and scholars) was devoted to the question, "Can A Free Economy Survive Its Own Economic Ignorance?" And out of the conference came general agreement that it well may not be able to. Consider:

Less than 5 per cent of America's high school students have been taking the equivalent of even one course in economics; eight times as many students enroll in music as in economics.

Even those who do take courses get inferior training - for fewer than 10 per cent of elementary school teachers and fewer than 25 per cent of high school teachers have had as much as one-quarter course in economics.

At the college level the situation isn't much better. Not more than 15 per cent of students in colleges of liberal arts take courses in economics. Even at the Schools of Business most of the education is in "practical" stuff and only a tiny part of it is devoted to the basic makeup of our system.

At the adult level it's unlikely that one in 20 today has had any formal training in economics, and so great is the lack of understanding that in one recent survey adults placed the whole field of social studies (which includes economics) on a par with such subjects as training in driving a car!

JULY

0199

It's downright awful, and the CED's trustees believe the situation is now urgent enough to warrant an all-out attack.

At the high school level, the CED is planning to expand its support of the Joint Council on Economic Education - the 10-year-old headquarters for work on the problem of economic illiteracy. The Joint Council is pioneering in training economics teachers, preparing objective and quality material in economics for use by teachers and students.

At the college level the Ford Foundation and Carnegie Corp. are now completing studies on illiteracy which hopefully will become the basis for a national policy to strengthen economic education in the colleges.

At the adult level the CED is promoting the establishment of "CED Associates" in 20 major centers to help local leaders of business and education promote the widest understanding of our economy.

It's a beginning at least, I salute it with a prayer, for I've always feared that if our system ever dies, it will be because, in our ignorance, we didn't know it was dying - or we were killing it.

—Sylvia Porter in the Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette.

MY AUTO WITHOUT THEE, IN MONEY I WOULD BE

My auto, 'tis of thee, short cut to poverty—
Of thee I chant.
I blew a pile of dough on you three years ago,
Now you refuse to go—or won't or can't.

To thee, old rattlebox, came many bumps and knocks;
For thee I grieve.
Badly thy top is torn; frayed are thy seats and worn;
The croup affects thy horn, I do believe.

Thy motor has the grip; thy spark plug has the pip,
And woe is thine.
I, too, have suffered chills, fatigue and kindred ills,
Trying to pay the bills since thou were mine.

Gone is my bankroll now; no more 'twould choke a cow,
As once before.
Yet if I had the yen, so help me John—Amen!
I'd buy a car again and speed some more.

—Bay City Motorist 1915 (contributed by Ralph Sechler to show that times haven't changed in 44 years).

Le 14 JUILLET —BASTILLE DAY

Ten days after the Fourth of July comes another holiday known around the world. It is France's Bastille Day, which Frenchmen call le quatorze juillet—July Fourteenth.

For the French, Bastille Day is not only a holiday but a great celebration. Exciting festivities begin the day before and do not end until the day after.

All France has impressive military parades with brass bands, and torchlight parades with singing and dancing in the streets. Fireworks light up the night. In the squares of Paris, as in smaller towns, the dancing continues all night on July 13 and all night on the 14th, too. Streets are alive with tricolor flags, bunting and garlands of light.

Why do the French pour so much of their heart and spirit into July 14?

All the world knows that France, in 1789, had a great revolution. Generally, it is believed that only the poorer revolted. This, historians agree, is untrue. The leaders were French bourgeoisie, members of the middle class. But all the people of France were ready for a change: the peasants, city people, the middle classes and even many of the aristocracy. All sensed that the time had come when Frenchmen should be free men, unafraid of each other and obedient only to the law.

The revolt was not only against despotism. A food shortage and unemployment spurred the relovters, but chances are that the American Revolution was the real spark that inspired Frenchmen to act. French soldiers who had fought in America had returned home with tales of what it was like to live in a free country. And canny Benjamin Franklin, visiting Paris, was full of enthusiasm for what America had done. Franklin loved liberty, and it is certain that he knew that his comments fell on interested ears.

On Sunday morning, July 12, word spread that King Louis XVI, the well-intentioned but not overly astute monarch, had fired the popular minister of finance, Jacques Necker. Necker had struggled valiantly to untangle the nation's financial mess and was trusted by the people—rich and poor alike.

This was the fuse that exploded the revolution. A wave of anger spread through France. Small riots began. And two days later, on July 14, the people of Paris marched in a mob to the great, gloomy Bastille—an ancient prison—and cannonaded it out of existence. Although virtually unused at the time, and manned by only a small garrison, the Bastille had become to all Frenchmen a symbol of the things they feared and hated. One of the great ironies concerning the taking of the Bastille is that on the page of his diary that reads "July 14, 1789" Louis XVI wrote the single word "Rien" (Nothing).

Out of the revolution was born France's magnificent "Declaration of the Rights of Man and Citizen." Among other things, this declares: no man can be arrested (or detained) except by law; all men are presumed innocent until proved guilty; all men are entitled to their own opinions—and all men are born with equal rights.

France's Declaration, coming close on the heels of the American Constitution, gave the whole world a second hope for man's freedom and dignity. As France became liberty's second home, many catch phrases sprang up about her new destiny. One of these nostalgic maxims, creditable in various wordings to Benjamin Franklin, Thomas Jefferson and many Gallic notables, caught the spirit of the fruits of the revolution. It states: "Every man has two countries; his own and France."

Brake Safety Helps Trip Enjoyment

The efficency of an automobile's brakes is an important factor in automotive safety any time of the year. But this factor is increasingly important as the summer months roll along and families are enjoying both long and short trips for their summer vacation enjoyment.

The Chicago Motor Club advises systematic care and attention to car brakes as an aid to preventing accidents.

Hints on brake health include:

See that brakes are inspected regularly, especially before and after long trips.

Have brakes repaired or adjusted at the first sign of wear or malfunctioning.

Check brake fluid in master cylinder at frequent intervals. Always be sure the vent hold and filler cap are not stopped up.

Don't jam on brakes at the last second when coming to a stop sign or red signal light. This is not only hard on your passengers, but detrimental to the brakes.

When descending steep roads, use low gears as much as possible; use the brakes intermittently, but don't "ride" the brakes.

Needless damage can be done to your brakes from overlubrication of wheel or axle bearings. Water can also cause harm. After a heavy rain, keep a lookout for deep water under viaducts, and detour accordingly.

LADIES LITERARY CLUB

The Ladies Literary Club held its midsummer meeting on July 1 at the home of Mrs. Harvey Carr. There were 11 active members and one emeritus member, Mrs. William Staman, present.

The meeting opened with the club collect and the pledge to the flag. The program for the 1959-60 club season was read.

Following the business meeting, the group played bunco, after which the committee served light refreshments.

The committee for the evening was Mrs. Harvey Carr, Mrs. Carl Carpenter and Mrs. Forrest Bevington.

CHOICES COUNT

Lesson for July 12, 1959

Not all choices are worth losing sleep over. What tie shall I wear today? Shall I drive to town by the old road or the new road? What shall I give Grandpa for his birthday? The results of these choices are not likely to be world-shattering one way or the other. Still, they might be more important than you think. If you pick the wrong tie, the right girl may turn you down, for the reason that anybody who would wear a monstrosity like that couldn't have much sense. If you take the new road to town, some of the new traffic may give you a funeral sooner than you expected. And if Grandpa happens to be very rich, the wrong kind of present might induce him to change his will.

Decisions Determine Destiny

There are great choices in life as well as small. Looking back over a long life, an old man can see where this decision or that changed the whole direction of his lifetime. A train crossing Missouri approaches a little station where it will not stop. There is a long siding at that station, and it is empty. The express train could just as well be sent through the station on the siding as on the main track, they are both going in the same direction. But coming out of Union Station in St. Louis, with its maze of switches—that is another proposition. All trains head out of that station in exactly the same way, but when they hit those switches, they are turned once for all—westward to the Pacific Coast cities, or east to New York, or south to New Orleans. So it is with life. Some decisions turn life toward a destiny of glory, or of misery . . . depending on the choice . . . depending on the one who chooses. It was so when Moses said to his people: "I have set before you life and good, and death and evil . . . therefore choose good."

"Once To Every Man and Nation'

"Once to every man and nation comes the moment to decide," wrote James Russell Lowell in what is now a well-known hymn. "Opportunity knocks but once," is an old proverb. Hymn and proverb are partly true, partly not. When an opportunity for decision has been ignored, or when the wrong choice has been made (and ignoring the choice entirely is itself a wrong choice), that particular opportunity, that one decision, does not come again. What one has lost by wrong decision is lost for good. But in the mercy of God there may be other times. The nation of Israel, to whom Moses made his appeal to decide for God, again and again had to make that same choice: Who is on the Lord's side? When we think of how one generation follows another, we see how true it is. Our forefathers may have decided for God; but unless we in our time face and act on that same central choice, for God or against him, our ancestors' good choices will not help us a great deal.

Background For Decision

No choice, whether that of a man or a nation, is made in a vacuum. A man makes the good choices, or the bad ones, of his life against all the background of his earlier life, education and training. This is brought out in Deuteronomy where the heads of families are commanded to teach their children the law of God. This writer once met a young man who was a patient in a hospital. He talked quite freely about the problem that was bothering him. He was undecided what to do when he got out of there. Should he be a rum-runner, bringing "moonshine" out of the mountains into the city, or should he get a job in the post office? All he could see was that the post office job was safer, but the rum-running was better paid! That's a little funny, but isn't it a little sad, too? If that young man had been brought up in a Christian home, if he had gone to church and to Sunday school, if he had given his heart and his mind to Christ, how differently he would have faced that problem, how different his choice would have been!

Best Room!

JUST ONE OF 7 Big Bests Chevrolet OFFERS you over any other car in its field!

Take a tip from the experts . . . in their own words . . . and from on-the-record facts and figures: More than ever, Chevrolet gives you more than any other of the leading low-priced three! More room to relax in, for instance. A sampling of official dimensions reported to A.M.A.* makes this clear. Chevy front seat hip room, for one thing, is up to 5.9 inches wider than comparable cars. And Chevy even offers more front seat head room than all but one of the high-priced cars!

Best Brakes Not only bigger, but built with bonded linings for up to 66% longer life. Just to prove what's what, Chevy out-stopped both of the "other two" in a NASCAR†-conducted test of repeated stops from highway speeds.

Best Style It's the only car of the leading low-priced 3 that's unmistakably modern in every line. "In its price class," says POPULAR SCIENCE magazine, "a new high in daring styling."

Best Engine Every motor magazine has given Chevrolet's standard and Corvette V8's unstinted praise. As SPORTS CARS ILLUSTRATED puts it: ". . . surely the most wonderfully responsive engine available today at any price."

Best Ride MOTOR TREND magazine calls Chevy ". . . the smoothest, most quiet, softest riding car in its price class." You'll be able to tell this yourself instantly, once you take the wheel.

Best Economy No doubt about this: two Chevrolet 6's won their class in the famous Mobilgas Economy Run, got the best mileage of any full-size car, 22.38 miles per gallon—with Powerglide.

Best Trade-In Check in any N.A.D.A.‡ Guide Book. Chevy used car prices last year averaged up to $128 higher than comparable models of the "other two."

"Convenience and comfort have doubled in our 65-year-old home, now that it's ALL-ELECTRIC!"

Says Mr. Charles M. Smith

The Smiths recently converted their 65-year-old home to electric heat and added some new electric appliances. Mr. Smith says, "Our comfort has doubled! Now we can adjust each room in the house to any degree of heat we want. And the other electric appliances ease my wife's work load and help her work more efficiently."

Reddy says: "I&M electric rates have never been increased. If your electric bill is higher, it's because you're using electricity to take over so many more of your household tasks. Talk "hands free" with Speakerphone

The Speakerphone lets you carry on a normal telephone conversation without ever raising your voice, straining your ears, or lifting the receiver. It leaves your hands free to dig out papers while you're talking—leaves you free to move about your office without missing a word.

That's because the transistorized Speakerphone amplifies the caller's voice through a separate loudspeaker and picks up your voice with a sensitive microphone in the base of the instrument. All with the push of a button.

In fact, several people can sit in on a telephone conference without the need for passing the phone around. Yet the handset is there to be used whenever you want privacy.

Using the Speakerphone is as easy as carrying on a conversation with someone in your office. It lets you sit back and relax.

You can have a Speakerphone installed in your office now. Phone our Business Office today about this modern business convenience.

SISTERS OF THE SKILLET HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Sisters of the Skillet Home Demonstration Club met at the home of Jean Moore with Arden Dwyer as co-hostess on June 25.

The meeting was opened by the president, Jean Moore, with everyone repeating the collect. For devotions the "Lord's Prayer" was repeated. History of the song of the month, "How Can I Leave Thee," was given by Connie Hollabaugh who then led the singing of the song.

Roll call was answered by 13 members with 1 guest present. Leila Moore presented a past-president's pin to the 1958 president, Effiebel McCann.

The meeting adjourned with the prayer song.

During the social hour a Chinese Auction was held by the flower committee. Work was done on unfinished projects such as copper pictures and wooden trays.

VACATION

It's the middle of July,
The weather's nice and hot;
And The Editor's having trouble
With the old lead melting pot.

T'would seem the time is ripe
For him to take a Va-cation,
If you can call it that when
Fixing tools for one's Vo-cation.

At any rate, 'tween rest and repair,
The Ed's taking off next week.
Fear not, dear readers, don't despair,
. . . . . .He'll be back.

Square Dance Saturday

The Spencerville Community Club is sponsoring a square dance this coming week end.

The dance will be held Saturday night, July 18, from 8:30 p.m. to 12:00 midnight at the Spencerville Community Hall. Admission will be $1.00 per family, kids free with parents.

Lawrence Lemish will be the caller.

Lightning Hits Tower

Lightning accompanying last Friday night's rain storm scored a hit on the Saint Joe water tower. The cathodic protection unit at the pump house was put out of commission as the bolt of lightning hit. The red bulb atop the tower was shattered and fragments of the glass scattered over a 100-foot area. One piece of glass flew down and broke a window in the Willard Hurni home.

No other reports of damage have been forthcoming in connection with Friday's storm. No estimate was given for the water tower damage.

Social Saturday

The big attraction in Spencerville this Saturday night will be the ice cream supper hosted by the Methodist Church. These suppers, held on the church lawn, attract folks from all over DeKalb and Allen counties. The menu for this one will include home-made ice cream as the feature, hot ham and hot dog sandwiches, chicken and noodles, potatoes salad, baked beans, pie and cake with coffee and cold drink. The big feed starts at 5:00 p.m. Saturday, July 18, Proceeds from this supper will go toward the expanded facilities for youth camping. All food is homemade by members of the church.

4-H'ers Take Trip

On Sunday, July 12, 33 4-H club members left Auburn to attend a 3-day camp at Camp Limberlost on Oliver Lake in LaGrange County. County agent Ernest J. Lesiuk is camp director and Paul Bateman is program chairman.

The senior campers returned Wednesday afternoon. Members of this camp are in the eighth grade or higher. Members of the junior camp left Wednesday afternoon for their session.

Included in the senior group were Don Funk, Wayne Bry, Clarence Bry, Jerry Grawbadger, Edwin Humbarger and Hugh Stroh of near Auburn, Gary Sible, Randy Reinhart, Leota Schrader and Joyce Fisher of near Saint Joe and Sharon Beaty and Sharon Kay Smith of near Spencerville.

WORKERS NOT SHIRKERS 4-H CLUB

The Workers Not Shirkers 4-H Club met June 30 at the school.

The meeting was called to order by Carol Baker. Linda Halt led the singing. Mrs. Hudleston coached the girls in judging. Record books were given out.

On July 1 county judging was held at Auburn. Carol Baker placed third in room improvement, Linda Halt fourth in junior foods, Jeanene Hudson third in junior clothing and Patricia Coburn fourth in junior foods.

The club met July 7 with Carol Baker in charge. Songs were led by Nannette Shockley. A demonstration on sandwich making was given by Nannette Shockley. Charlene Cook made cookies which the club judged.

The next meeting will be held July 14 at 1 p.m. at the school.

Miss Janet Irene Mansberger and Richard Lee Bassett were united in marriage at 2:30 p. m. on June 20 at the United Brethren Church in Hudson. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Mansberger of Hudson and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Bassett of near Saint Joe. Rev. Walter Throop performed the double-ring ceremony. The newlyweds reside in Fort Wayne where both are employed.

Announcement was made last week by Bell Telephone Co. of proposed installation of dial systems at exchanges located in Auburn and Spencerville. The program of transition from the present system to dial will be carried on for a period of two years. A lot has been purchased from Edward and Janet Woodring in Spencerville for construction of a new telephone building.

Glen Cole is still in the Hicksville Hospital.

A short in an electric cord has been named the cause of the $150,000 fire at Leas Market in Auburn last week. The report was made by Auburn Fire Chief Gilbert Potter.

A leisurely bandit robbed Auburn Federal Savings and Loan Association of $9,288.15 in a daylight hold-up Friday afternoon. The hold-up came at 2:50 p.m. Friday afternoon as the firm prepared to close for the day. The bandit tied up the president of the association, Amos Adams, and three office employees after locking the front door. The four were locked in a wash room as the bandit made his escape. As yet no clues have been discovered as to the identity of the bandit who made a clean getaway.

Ruth White, MaDonna Wade, Neva Hursh, Myrtle Pugsley, Lazerne Keller, Helen Hoffer and Doris Yeiser enjoyed a pot luck supper and canasta game recently as guests of Catherine Bowser at her cottage at Hamilton Lake.

A DeKalb County CYC Singspiration will be held Sunday evening, July 19, at the Auburn Missionary Church. The Singspiration which is an hour long service of singing and special music, begins at 9:15 p.m. Assistant officers of the youth organization will be in charge of the service.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Burley visited their son, Bob, at Princeville, Ill. Mrs. Burley remained at her son's home while Mr. Burley returned home.

A Funspiration is planned for Saturday, July 18, by the social and recreation committee of the DeKalb County Christian Youth Crusade. The program will begin at 1 p.m. Two centers for recreation will be open for the youth. The Country View miniature golf course at the north edge of Waterloo will be open and the youth may play as long as they like between the hours of 1 and 5 p.m., free of charge. Other recreational activities include softball, volley ball, badminton and swimming at Pokagon State Park until 6 p.m. A picnic supper and weiner roast will be held in the area near the pavilion at 6:15. The remainder of the evening's program will include a period of organized recreation and fun, with a closing devotional period at 8:30. All young people in the county are invited to join in the afternoon of activities. Registration should be made at the miniature golf course. Each person should have money to pay his way into the state park. A free-will offering will be taken for food and recreation expenses.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Keller spent Monday at Adams Lake visiting the Lloyd Dunten's.

Driver license suspensions include those of Thomas Parker of Saint Joe and Ray Woodard of Garrett.

A train derailment on the New York Central tracks in Butler Saturday morning caused an estimated $15,000 in damage to railroad property. Cause of the derailment was a defective journal on the 45th car.

Anyone having newspapers in the Spencerville area, please call Glenn Moore at 46F2. The Cub Scouts appreciate your help.

Bible material: Ruth.

Devotional reading: Isaiah 58:6-11.

ALL HIS CHILDREN

Lesson for July, 19 1959

The "book" of Ruth is a very short one. It could easily be printed in fairly large type on one page of a newspaper with room to spare. But it is a mistake to judge writings by their length, otherwise the Congressional Record would be the world's literary masterpiece, and Lincoln's Gettysburg Address a worthless trifle. As a story, the book of Ruth has a great charm. It is one of those parts of the Bible which we might call God's extras, something which could have been left out, but which, once we have it, we would not part with.

Ways To Read Ruth

One can read this little tale of long ago just as a tale and enjoy its simplicity and beauty. Or one can find in it much sociological interest, what marriage meant in those far-off days, what provisions were made for the very poor, and so forth. One can also enjoy and learn something from the characters described in it, each one sketched in a few revealing words. The author is strangely modern at this point. Writers today seldom use adjectives (such as heroic, brutal, clever or what not) about their characters; they just let us see them and judge for ourselves. So it is in the book of Ruth. But the way we propose to look at "Ruth" is this: the book shows with quiet simplicity how the very kinds of people many of us are inclined to look down on or shy away from are God's children.

Plain People

There is another book in the Bible telling about the times when the characters in the story of Ruth were alive; it is the Book of Judges. It is full of hero-stories. But none of those heroes appears on the pages of "Ruth" and none of the characters in "Ruth" are mentioned in the tales of blood and battle that make up the Book of Judges. Apart from all the fame and the glory, apart from the people who nowadays would make the headlines, lived the simple farmers and poor people whom Ruth knew. You might get the idea from reading Judges that God is interested only in brilliant, exceptional people, great leaders and heroes. But the Book of Ruth brings out the point, for the thoughtful reader, that God has just as much interest in the humble as in the great and famous. His children are everywhere.

The Foreigner

It was written in the Hebrew law that certain foreigners were not to be welcomed, not to be treated as equals, not to be married by a Hebrew. Moabites were especially to be kept apart. No descendant of a Moabite, to the tenth generation, was to be accepted as a member of the "congregation" of Israel. Yet first Mahlon and then Boaz married this Moabite girl. Boaz knew she was a foreigner, but his question was not: What is her nationality, but, What kind of woman is she? Boaz was one of those rare people who are kinder than any law requires; who look on people as individuals, not as members of a (perhaps hated) group. It is hard for us today to think of God as having children in Viet-Nam and Czechoslovakia and Thailand and other "outlandish" places. But he does!

In-Laws

The most impressive and solemn expression of the devotion of one person to another is found here in the book of Ruth. Strangely enough (some would think) it is addressed to a mother-in-law. How down-to-earth the Bible is! Many people think of in-laws as either away off yonder, a strange tribe, or else as an interfering lot when they live too close. They have status only because they are married to some of US. Nothing could be more absurd. God's children are your in-laws just as much as your "own" people. This particular in-law—or we ought to say, this pair of them—were closer, more helpful to each other and more understanding than their own flesh and blood. There may be undiscovered treasures among your in-laws!

One-key control: only Chevy in its field has done away with fumbling for two or three keys. The same key unlocks the door, starts the engine, opens the glove box and trunk.

WHY DO WITHOUT THIS CONVENIENT LITTLE TOUCH... LET ALONE
THESE BIG CHEVY VIRTUES!

BIGGER BRAKES
Not only bigger, but built with bonded linings for up to 66% longer life. Just to prove what's what, Chevy outstopped both of the "other two" in a NASCAR*-conducted test of repeated stops from highway speeds.
*National Association for Stock Car Advancement and Research

GREATER ROOMINESS
Official dimensions reported to the Automobile Manufacturers Association make this point abundantly clear. For example, Chevy's front seat room is up to 5.9 inches wider than in comparable cars. And Chevy even offers more front seat head room than all but one of the high-priced cars!

MOST ADVANCED ENGINES
We'll let SPORTS CARS ILLUSTRATED talk about Chevy's standard passenger car and Corvette V8's: "Indeed, this device is surely the most wonderfully responsive engine available today at any price." And every motor magazine concurs! There are eight V8's to pick from—the widest choice in Chevy's field.

FRESH STYLING
POPULAR SCIENCE magazine's experts took one look and said, "In its price class, Chevy establishes a new high in daring styling."

HIGHER TRADE-IN
N.A.D.A.* Guide Books carry the proof of Chevy's extra trade-in value. They show that Chevrolet used car prices last year averaged up to a solid $128 higher than comparable models of the other two cars in Chevy's field.
*National Automobile Dealers Association

FULL COIL RIDE
You've almost got to find a really rocky road to show off Chevy's easygoing ride to full advantage. MOTOR TREND magazine gives you an idea, though: "... the smoothest, most quiet, softest riding car in its price class."

BIGGER SAVINGS

Two Chevrolets packing our pennypinching 6 with Powerglide delivered a whopping 22.38 mpg in this year's Mobilgas Economy Run, winning the first two places in their class and walking away with top honors among all full-size cars. How can you argue with a figure like that?

Here are four reasons why the Leonard Browns installed ELECTRIC heat in their 50-year-old home!

1 "WE WANTED MORE COMFORT! And we got it," says Mr. Brown. "Now we have an even heat with no more drafts or cold floors. And with electric heat, we have a thermostat in every room. We all feel more comfortable."

2 "WE WANTED MORE LIVING AREA!" According to Mrs. Brown, "Our new electric baseboard heaters are attractive and out of the way. The old stoves took up too much room and were an eyesore."

3 "WE WANTED A CLEANER SYSTEM!" Mrs. Brown finds, "Electric heat does not create any soot or greasy scum."

4 "WE WANTED MORE CONVENIENCE!" Mr. Brown explains, "It was convenient (and economical, too) that we did not have to rebuild our chimney, buy a bulky heating unit, install hot water pipes or hot air ducts, or have yearly inspections."

Do any of these four reasons apply to your home? See your electric heating dealer or call I&M today!

I got this one at the Butler Record-Herald office this week.

A farmer who owned 17 mules decided he was going to divide them among his three sons, giving the youngest one-ninth of the mules, the middle son one-third and the oldest one-half. The sons figured and studied, then told the father it couldn't be done. He said, yes it can. Go down the road and borrow a mule from the neighbors; then you'll have 18. One-ninth of 18 is 2, one-third of 18 is 6 and one-half of 18 is 9. 2 plus 6 plus 9 equals 17—and you have one left over to return to the neighbors for the one you borrowed.

. . . . .lesee, what was that again, 2 plus 6 plus 9 . . . .

Just after I started my vacation, Bill Vinson came into enough money to take us both vacationing for quite a while. But it didn't last long.

After a trip to the bank one day, a frantic call came to the Vinsons from a bank teller asking if they had too much money—that is, she wondered if she gave them $1000 too much when they got change; the young lady was that much short. Bill started through his change and wow, there it was a thousand bucks.

I'll bet that girl has two gray hairs from that experience.

If you ever go to Chicago in the near future, take road 6 to the Michigan City entrance to the toll road, then get on the toll road. In three trips to the Windy City in the last month we have found very little traffic on 6 and you can move right along. Then the toll road saves you from that suburban Chicago traffic.

And if you're hungry, stop at Dollie's Restaurant in Walkerton. We had club steaks there a couple of weeks ago and we never saw Mike and Dave dig into a meal with such enthusiasm and lip-smacking. Phil had his old standby, a hamburger, which was ". . . m-m-m-m, DE-licious!"

Square Dance Saturday

The Spencerville Community Club will sponsor a square and round dance this Saturday evening. The dance will be held at the Community Hall in Spencerville starting at 8:30 p.m.

The public is invited to attend. Admission will be $1.00 per family or 50 cents for adults, 25 cents for children.

Lions Club Social Saturday

The Saint Joe Lions Club will serve its annual ice cream social this coming Saturday evening, August 1, starting at 5:00 p.m. The social will be held on the town lot on the main street of Saint Joe.

With the great public acceptance of last year's social which featured real homemade ice cream right from hand-crank freezers, the club will again serve more of the same with members preparing to do service throughout the evening at the crank of the familiar old-fashioned freezer. Other items on the menu include baked ham sandwiches, charcoal broiled hot dogs, baked beans, potato salad, homemade pies and cakes, coffee and kool-ade.

Musical entertainment will be offered during the social.

In case of bad weather, the social will be served in the fire hall.

Proceeds will be used to support projects of the Lions Club and other community organizations.

Kindergarten Class Forming

Mrs. Harry Farrer of Saint Joe has announced plans for opening a class for kindergarten-age students in this area. The kindergarten class will help young boys and girls prepare for entrance into public school when they reach the age of 6.

Mrs. Farrer has invited parents of five-year-olds to contact her for further information about the school which will be held at the Newville Church of Christ parsonage in Saint Joe. Mr. Farrer is pastor of the Newville church.

Mrs. Farrer has had experience in conducting kindergarten classes, having done so at Nashville, Tenn., while her husband attended Johnson Bible College in that city.

Further information may be obtained by calling Saint Joe 2853.

Pheasants Released

The Saint Joe Valley Conservation Club recently raised and released 100 pheasants through the efforts of the club's secretary, Estil Taylor.

As a conservation project, the birds were raised from a shipment of chicks received last May from the State Conservation Department. With the local club furnishing feed for the birds, Mr. Taylor cared for them until he released them July 18 in the Saint Joe-Spencerville area.

4-H Awards

The girls and boys of the Riverdale school at Saint Joe and Spencerville have completed their home economics projects in Foods, Clothing, Baking, Food Preparation, Food Preservation and Crafts.

This year there were four clubs, one at Spencerville with Mrs. Jean Moore as adult leader, one at Newville with Mrs. Lois Guiff and Mrs. Dorothy Meeks as adult leaders, and two at Saint Joe with Mrs. Frances Huddleston as leader. Mrs. Huddleston also served as instructor for all four clubs.

Petition Seeks Establishing Hospital Board

County-wide public meetings were held Monday evening concerning petitioning of DeKalb County commissoners to establish a four-man hospital board which would investigate the possibilities of establshing a county hospital. The meetings were held in six localities, Saint Joe, Auburn, Butler, Waterloo, Garrett and Ashley.

A total of approxmately 550 persons attended the meetings with 70 attending the meeting at the Riverdale High School gym at Saint Joe. Derwood Ridgway conducted the meeting with Burton Campbell of Butler speaking on the proposed petitioning for a hospital study.

Signatures of 30 per cent of the resident freeholders of the county, including not less than 50 from each township, will empower the county commissioners to create a hospital board. The commissioners may elect to conduct their own investigation. They are not bound to put into effect recommendations of the hospital board.

The petitions may be signed only by residents of the county who own real estate in the county. Residents who have property encumbered by mortgage may sign but persons purchasing real estate on contract are not eligible to sign. If property is in joint title, both husband and wife should sign.

Petitions now being circulated should be returned to the county auditor by August 15.

Signing the petition in sufficient numbers to reach the 30 per cent figure of resident freeholders would result in an investigation which could result in one of three recommendations: a decision that no county hospital is needed, a decision indicating a need for erecting a new structure, or a decision recommending the purchase of existing facilities.

Lela Northrup and Parlia Hull were supper guests of Marie Meese Monday of last week.

The R.H.C. met at the home of Mrs. Hazel Washler Tuesday afternoon, July 7. 12 members answered roll call by telling of some unusual visit to grandma's house. Two visitors, Mrs. Josephine Shuff and Mrs. Gladys Houk, were present. The hostess served ice cream and cake.

Protestant churches of DeKalb County have been invited to participate in a united effort in evangelism from August 18 to 30. Officers of the DeKalb County Christian Youth Crusade, which is sponsoring its 8th annual union evangelistic crusade, have begun preparations by contacting more than 50 churches in DeKalb County. Evangelistic services will be held for 13 nights at the Junior High Auditorium in Auburn.

The 43rd annual Baker Reunion will be held at Eckhart Park in Auburn on Sunday, August 2.

Sunday, July 19, dinner guests of Mrs. Marie D. Meese were Mr. and Mrs. M. Morr and son, Mickey, and Mr. and Mrs. Pete Baider of Springfield, O. All visited in the afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. James Draggoo at Jimmerson Lake. Mickey remained for three weeks at the boys' camp at Pokagon.

Cy Gustin brought a team of buddies over for a softball game against his former mates on the Saint Joe Church of Christ team, fully intending to win. But the local church team was up to the task and won a pitchers' battle, 1-0, as the game went into extra innings and the winning run scored by Bob Clauser in the 8th inning. The game was played Wednesday evening.

"COME ON-A MY SHOW"—Husky-voiced Rosemary Clooney beckons Hoosiers to her 1959 Indiana State Fair shows in the Coliseum. With the harmonious Four Lads quartet, versatile western-pop singer Jimmy Dean, and the mellow music of Jan Garber and his orchestra, Rosie will appear September 5th at 5 and 8 p.m., and September 6th at 1:30 p.m. Other Coliseum headliners will be Ricky Nelson, September 2nd and 3rd, and Art Linkletter, September 4th. State Fair dates are September 2-10.

Donald E. Baker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton E. Baker of Saint Joe was promoted to yeoman third class, USN, on June 16 while serving on the staff of the Commander of Service Squadron Four aboard the repair ship USS Vulcan at Norfolk, Va.

The July meeting of the DeKalb County Farm Bureau directors was held July 20 at Auburn. It was announced that state fair tickets are available at the co-op office. It was urged that members attend a meeting August 5 from 1 to 5 p.m. at Rochester when detailed explanation will be given of the new school reorganization bill. The picnic will be held at the Waterloo shelter house Sunday, August 30. State convention will be held November 11, 12 and 13 at Indianapolis. Community leaders' meeting will be at the Van Orman Hotel in Fort Wayne on September 16.

Paula Nessle of Toledo, O., now visiting with Flora Renn of Spencerville, will be one of the conetstants in the amateur contest at the Harlan Days celebration this Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Driver license suspensions include those of Thomas Tucker, Jackie Johnson and Richard Torrence of Auburn.

DeKalb County farmers opposed wheat controls by 2 to 1 but the nation was 80 per cent in favor of said controls. The wheat referendum returns showed 17 votes cast by Concord, Spencer and Newville townships out of an eligible 65. 3 voted in favor, 13 opposed and one vote challenged. 126 of 395 eligible DeKalb County voters cast ballots. In the state 6,490 wheat farmers voted; 32,000 were eligible to vote.

Mrs. Marie Meese, Mr. and Mrs. M. Morr and Mr. and Mrs. Pete Baider visited Mr. Ed Leichty at the Betts Nursing Home and Mr. Sam Morr at the Berkley nursing home at Auburn July 19.

Miss Phyllis Darlene Baker and Ralph J. Nusbaum were united in marriage in the Concord Methodist Church July 18. Rev. John Dicken performed the ceremony. Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Harold Baker of near Auburn. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Howard Nusbaum of Spencerville.

Scharlott Ann McMaken of Fairfield Township has filed suit for divorce from Albert McMaken charging that her husband is jealous of her and harbors a deep resentment towards their child. She also alleges that he has refused to provide reasonable necessities for his family and has left their home on various occasions without just cause. The couple married February 2, 1958, and separated July 11, 1959.

Billy, Patty Ann and Denny Cook of Fort Wayne spent several days recently in the home of their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Hook.

Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Baker, formerly of the local Lutheran parish, were Wednesday visitors in Spencerville.

Mrs. Baxter Bowling, Mrs. Herbert Miller and daughter, Diana, spent Wednesday afternoon and evening visiting Mrs. Bowling's brother, Mr. Floyd Hamman, and family of Defiance and sisters, Mrs. Joseph Buercle and family and Mrs. Joseph Jackson and family, of Paulding. They enjoyed a picnic lunch with the Buercles.

Devoitonal reading: James 1: 2-12.

TESTING OF FAITH

Lesson for August 2, 1959

The chapters forming the Bible material for this week are inadequate, and the few verses chosen for printing in most Sunday school quarterlies or leaflets are pitifully inadequate to give the reader an impression of the book of Job such as that tremendous book deserves. This column, therefore, will be devoted this week to giving briefly the background of Job and to encouraging the reader to explore the great book itself.

An "All Men's Book"

One of the great writers and thinkers of the 19th century called Job an "all men's book." Just a year or so ago a distinguished American writer produced a play, "J.B.," based directly on the book of Job. This book speaks to people who never read any other book of the Bible. Most of the Old Testament is distinctly Jewish (not that this is a mark against it); but the book of Job is not Jewish. There is in it no mention of the promised land, or of the people made famous in Hebrew history. There is no reference to the temple nor to its sacrifices, no quotation from any prophet. In fact Job is not represented as even being a Hebrew himself. He is one of the "children of the East"—in Jewish eyes a foreigner. There is nothing to attach the book to any particular place or time. For the problem dealt with here—and it is indeed a problem play in profound sense—is your problem and mine and everybody's.

Prologue In Heaven

The theme and the problem is suffering. Every human being either suffers personally or has to watch the suffering of those he loves. But this is more of a puzzle to religious persons. The non-religious person can shrug it off, decide to grin and bear it, and say, "Well, what can you expect? We are caught in this vast universe like a fly in a printing-press, no wonder we get crushed. No machine cares for what it mashes." But the religious person believes in a God who is all-powerful, all-wise, all-merciful. All creatures are in his hand, the whole world is in his hand as the song says. So then why doesn't he prevent suffering, if he can?

This is the problem; but it is not discussed as a professor or theologian might discuss it, in an essay. It is put into the form of a dramatic poem. It begins with a prologue in heaven. God's sons have come to see him, and among them is Satan. God asks Satan where he has been, and Satan says on the earth. God asks him if he has seen that good man, God's servant Job, "a blameless and upright man." Satan says yes, but he doesn't think much of Job. God pays Job well for being good; but who wouldn't be "good" for the prosperity and happiness which Job enjoys? Take away the prosperity and happiness, and then you'll see Job throw his goodness away in the whirlwind; he will renounce God to his face.

Man's Faith In God

Satan has no faith in Job; but God has. God lets Satan bring calamity after calamity on Job's head, quite sure that Job will hold true. And Job does hold true. His faith stands the test. But meanwhile there is a tremendous and agonizing wrestling with the problem. Job has three friends who come to "comfort" him but all they do is debate. They believe that all suffering is caused by sin, and therefore all Job has to do is repent and his troubles will vanish. He knows that his sins have not brought on these troubles, so how can he repent? So begins the great debate. This is not a book for children, it is for grown people who have wrestled with pain, grief and bitterness. The reader should try to read Job for himself, and see how it comes out. One striking fact: The question, Why do good men suffer, is never really answered in the book; it is unique in the Bible in raising a great question it does not answer. But two great truths stand out: God's faith in his servants, and God's servant's faith in God.

Chevrolet's proud Impala Convertible and the sleek Corvette

WHAT MAKES CHEVY HOT? "THE MOST WONDERFULLY RESPONSIVE ENGINE AVAILABLE TODAY AT ANY PRICE"

That's how SPORTS CARS ILLUSTRATED magazine expresses its admiration for Chevy's vigorous Turbo-Fire V8. Indeed, every motor magazine has given Chevrolet's standard passenger car and Corvette V8's unstinted praise. Take it from the experts: there's no more exciting performance in Chevy's field. What's more, you can choose from the widest range of powerplants among the leading low-priced three when you go Chevy!

HERE ARE 6 MORE BIG REASONS WHY CHEVROLET'S THE HOTTEST SELLER OF THE YEAR!

BEST BRAKES

Not only bigger, but built with bonded linings for up to 66% longer life. Just to prove what's what, Chevy out-stopped both of the "other two" in a NASCAR*-conducted test of repeated stops from highway speeds.

*National Association for Stock Car Advancement and Research

BEST STYLE

It's the only car of the leading low-priced three that's unmistakably modern in every line. "In its price class," says POPULAR SCIENCE magazine, "a new high in daring styling."

BEST TRADE-IN

Check the figures in any N.A.D.A.* Guide Book. Chevy used car prices last year averaged up to $128 higher than comparable models of the "other two."

*National Automobile Dealers Assn.

BEST ECONOMY

No doubt about it: two Chevrolet 6's won their class in the famous Mobilgas Economy Run, got the best mileage of any full-size car, 22.38 miles per gallon—with Powerglide transmission.

BEST RIDE

MOTOR TREND magazine calls Chevy ". . . the smoothest, most quiet, softest riding car in its price class." But you'll be able to tell this yourself, the instant you take the wheel.

BEST ROOM

Official dimensions reported to A.M.A.* make this clear. For example, Chevy front seat hip room is up to 5.9 inches wider than comparable cars.

*Automobile Manufacturers Assn.

Spencerville News

Janice Hollabaugh, Reporter

The Earl Lohses and Mr. Ralph Lohse, a brother of Earl Lohse, spent the week end at their home near Spencerville.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Brendel and daughter, Susan, spent several days in Chicago this week.

One of the Spencerville Community Club's projects this summer has been the recent "yard work" for a number of widows. In the next few weeks some of the members, under their president, Glen Moore, will attempt to clean the corners and main street of the town.

Funeral services for Mrs. Ruth Crowl of Deer Park, Washington, mother of Robert Crowl of Spencerville, were held Tuesday afternoon of last week. Mrs. Crowl was injured in an automobile accident June 28 and had remained in a coma until her death.

The Elliott Reunion was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Moore Sunday, July 19 with 36 present from Ohio, Michigan and Indiana. A lovely pot luck dinner was enjoyed by everyone present. Election of officers was held in the afternoon. Everyone enjoyed ice cream in the afternoon before departing for their respective homes, after a vote of thanks was extended to the Moores for their hospitality. Next year's reunion will be held at the roadside park near Hicksville.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Kast and son, Mark, and daughter, Ann, spent Sunday afternoon with his father, Harry Kast, and wife.

The annual Boots Reunion will be held at the Earl Lohse home on Sunday, August 2.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Emenhiser returned recently from a western trip. Accompanied by their daughter, Linda, they visited the W. D. (Shorty) Millers in Deming, N.M., the Grand Canyon, Arizona, Utah and Mexico. The Millers are former residents of this community and relatives of the Emenhisers.

The C. E. Bakers had the Dilley Reunion at their home July 19 with over 50 present to enjoy the day.

Mr. Ross Bair has returned to his home after being confined for several weeks at the Wabash Hospital in Peru.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hollabaugh and Tom and Beth Ann were recent visitors with the Jerry Bowsers in Indianapolis.

Mrs. Josie Baltz was a recent visitor of her sister-in-law, Jessie Sommer.

Mike Fankhauser and David Edgar visited their aunt and uncle, the Paul O. Vogts, several days recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Norris and Jim and Jeanie entertained at a family birthday dinner recently in honor of the parents of Mr. Norris, the E. M. Norrises of Rome City.

The M. H. Hollabaughs visited their cousin and wife, the C. F. Hollopeters, at New Madrid, Mo., recently. On their return trip they stopped at Roachdale and enjoyed supper with Ruth and Bill Weninger.

Mrs. Glenn Brendel and Susan visited relatives in Nevada, O., recently.

Twenty miles out of Tucson on a high-desert run...

Chevy shows how a real pro handles the hot ones!

You'll find four 10703 heavyweights working out of Tucson for Construction Materials, Inc. They tote big, bruising ready-mix loads up and down mountain grades and through the furnace heat of Arizona desert country. According to Mr. H. K. Creswell, a company executive, "You couldn't ask for more out of a truck. They handle every run we put them on . . . and cost less to buy and maintain than any make we've had."

Big-tonnage operators don't become Chevy believers overnight. If you're used to big oversized rigs, you might question Chevy's lean-muscled modern design. Once you get one in action though, all the questioning stops.

Then you see how pure efficiency stacks up against excess pounds. It's Chevrolet's advanced engineering and quality control that make the difference. Its soundly constructed chassis and sheet metal. Its slick-shifting 5-speed box mated to high-torque Workmaster V8 performance. Its precise steering and handling ease. That's why so many heavy-duty owners are being converted to Chevy. Your Chevrolet dealer's the man to see.

No job's too tough for a Chevrolet truck! CHEVROLET

SAINT JOE VALLEY HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The regular meeting of the Saint Joe Valley Home Demonstration Club was held at the home of Eva Clauser.

The president, Nancy Coburn, called the meeting to order with all repeating the club collect. Devotions were given by Mary Baker.

The history of the song of the month, "America, the Beautiful," was given by Mary Krise. All joined in singing the song. The secretary's report was read and 11 members answered roll call by telling what convenience in their home they like best. The special leaders gave interesting talks.

This club will entertain the Jackson Twp. home demonstration club at the August meeting.

The meeting closed with all singing the club prayer. Refreshments were served by the hostess, Eva Clauser, and co-hostesses Mary Krise and Cora Funk.

Around the Town

With the Editor

Every so often you hear about some school chum from years back, one you haven't heard of or particularly thought of.

I heard of one of my old high school and band buddies recently through business connections. Back in those days I played bass clarinet and next to me was John Frazier "Budge" Snyder who tooted alto clarinet. Both of us were converted saxaphone players after Ralph Boyden got hold of us.

And guess what Budge is doing now. He is a full fledged doctor, a pediatrician, practicing in Milwaukee.

Oh well, I guess it figures. In those days he was already quite involved with the babes.

I imagine the Dale Collins family would like to be down in Florida when we run into these hot days and warm evenings. When they visited that state recently at the home of Ruth's sister in Miami, they partook of the swimming pool at the house quite frequently. Whenever you got warm, just jump in and cool off.

Wouldn't that be the nuts. It's hot, you can't sleep, so go swimming. Boyoboyoboy. Lead the way!

Sometimes I get worried about what which way the boys are getting influenced and what's going on over there wherever they are. But I suppose it's not too bad.

They get in games of pool, Allen, Merle, Mike and Dave and I supose some of the rest of the gang. And they bet a nickel on the games—which isn't particularly good and they have been told.

But there was one bet I didn't think needed cancelling.

Merle is a Detroit Tiger fan and our boys are (they have to be to live at home) Cub fans. Merle suggested a wager a few weeks ago. He said, "If Detroit wins the pennant, you pay me a dime and if the Cubs win the pennant, I'll pay you a dime."

—Nobody's going to get hurt on that one.

When you're working in a print shop or doing housework or just relaxing, radio is still the best companion we have, I think, outside of people.

Last week as I worked with the company of our small portable, Bob Sievers was presenting a program of music which he thought would be "pleasing to everybody." He fulfilled my hopes by playing music instead of number after number of our current rock-and-roll "vocalists" and their wailings. Don't get me wrong, I don't have anything against r-and-r. But it gets rather tiresome to hear day after day the same ung-chung ung-chung beat with the same stuff over and over by the same people. So Mr. Sievers' program of music began with a refreshing air.

Later he called in a young lady to review a new record which she thought would be a hit. It was an r-and-r'er and she asked Bob what he thought of it after it was played (she thought it was "way out"). Bob was on the spot: "Well, uh-h-h-h, I don't particularly care for it, but I think it will be a hit." What a diplomat; and I think he spoke for a lot of people in those few words.

The funniest part was when the young lady said she thought it was "way out." Bob replied, "Well, while you're playing it, I'm going to get something that's way in - - -."

I don't like to be a square, man, but I mean like, sometimes it's too much.

Parties Prepare To Nominate Town Slates

Political activity in Saint Joe is beginning to swing into high gear with party caucuses to be held in the next few weeks.

Candidates must be selected to run for town board positions, one member from each of Saint Joe's three precincts, and for the office of town clerk-treasurer.

The Republicans will meet on Tuesday evening, August 18, at 8 p.m. at the town hall to select their candidates. Officers for the caucus have been selected by Walter Stewart, Republican precinct committeeman, as follows:

Leon Kees, chairman; Jean Shockley, vice-chairman; Ted Haberkorn, secretary; Esther Haberkorn, treasurer.

All prospective candidates and eligible Republican voters are urged to be present to select nominees for the November election.

Harvey Hull, Democrat precinct committeeman, has announced officers for the Democrat caucus as follows:

Clifford Billow, chairman; Freida Guilford, vice-chairman; Loretta Musser, secretary-treasurer.

No date has as yet been set for the meeting of the Democrats, but announcement of the date is expected within a few days.

Town voters are urged to keep the caucus dates in mind and attend the meetings from which shall come candidates for town offices.

Beauty Shop To Open Monday

Darlene's Beauty Shop will open officially for business next Monday, August 10, in Saint Joe. The new business venture will be located at the east end of the main street in Saint Joe.

Operator of the beauty shop is Miss Darlene Wisler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Wisler of near Saint Joe. Miss Wisler is a graduate of Riverdale High School, Class of 1958, and attended Warner Beauty College in Fort Wayne for her beauty training.

An open house will be held at the beauty shop this coming Sunday afternoon, August 9, from 2 to 5 p.m. The public is invited to inspect the beauty shop and its facilities and meet Miss Wisler.

Former Resident To Present Travelogue

Mrs. Marguerite Hercules of Tyler, Texas, will give a world travelogue at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, August 9, at the Saint Joe Church of Christ. The program is open to the public.

Mrs. Hercules is the former Margaret Milliman, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Milliman of Saint Joe. She graduated from the local high school, attended Ball State Teachers' College and returned to teach home economics and English in the local high school for three years.

For the past 14 years, Mrs. Hercules has been women's editor of the Courier-Times-Telegraph in Tyler. She has won numerous awards for excellency in all phases of newspaper work from the Texas Women's Press Association, National Federation of Press Women and Associated Press.

Three years ago Mrs. Hercules made a 28,000-mile trip around the world. Last year, she visited the World's Fair in Brussels and toured 11 European countries. She has also toured the United States, Canada, Mexico and the Caribbean area. She has given over 50 travelogues on her visits to foreign lands.

Mrs. Hercules will be accompanied to Saint Joe by her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hercules, and her grandchildren, Kathy Ramona and Billy Frank of Fort Worth, Texas.

At the Diamond

Next Wednesday and Thursday nights will feature local ball teams in competition with the older element of the population in ball games at the Saint Joe diamond.

On Wednesday evening at 7:30 p.m. Little Leaguers will face their dads in a game of hardball. Price Brookfield and Joe Robinson, managers of the Little League teams, invite dads of Little Leaguers to participate in the game.

On Thursday evening, the high school team will play a team composed of old-timers (?) over 30 years old. This contest will also start at 7:30 p.m. All men over 30 who wish to test out the old wing are invited to play against the high school.

The Little League players plan to attend a major league game on Saturday, August 29. All boys who plan to go to the game should contact Mr. Brookfield as soon as possible.

Charge Filed

Fort Wayne Teamsters Union Local 414, headed by Irvin Swigert, has filed a second unfair Labor Practice charge against Rhinehart Mfg. Co., Spencerville, Ind. The company regularly employs from 5 to 9 factory workers and produces steel livestock and poultry equipment. The Teamsters Union maintained a picket line of about 6 weeks duration in May and June.

The new charge states that the company has violated certain employee's working conditions standards and claims abuse of such employees. Approximately two persons in the plant are now members of the union.

The matter is now under investigation by the National Labor Relations Board.

SPENCER TWP. HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Spencer Township Home Demonstration Club met at Alton Park for its July meeting.

The business meeting was held after a potluck dinner. 4-H girls were guests of the club. all Polio report was given by Ida Reed. Devotions were led by Berniece Wilder. The song of the month, "America, the Beautiful," was led by Alice Kagey.

Roll call was answered with "how to keep cool." Secretary's report was given by Berniece Wilder. The club prayer song was sung by all. Alice Kagey led contests for the girls.

There were 13 club members, 15 4-H members and four guests present.

Bible material: Ecclesiastes.
Devotional reading: Philippians 3:8-14.

IS LIFE EMPTY?

Lesson for August 9, 1959

The committee that chooses the "Uniform Lessons" represents more than 34 denominations. This quarter, as readers may have noticed, whole books of the Bible have been chosen. Unusual, indeed, unique among these is the book called Ecclesiastes. It is not quoted by any New Testament writer. In fact, at the time of Christ, debate was still going on among Jewish teachers as to whether to keep or discard this book from the sacred collection. It is a long way removed from the religion of the prophets, the apostles and of Jesus. For instance, it not only doubts immortality, it positively denies it. Whatever religion it presents is all of this world.

The Religion of a Cynic

It was evidently written by a cynic, or a man whose cynical moments shadowed his writings. A cynic is not necessarily a sinner, except so far as lack of faith is sin. The cynic is a man who has tasted the cup of life and found it—not so much bitter, as empty. Like a mournful refrain the words run through the book, "All is vanity and a striving after wind." "Vanity" here represents a Hebrew word which does not mean pride, but emptiness. The modern expression would be, "Nothing to it." Life (to the author of this book) is like one of the boxes you may buy in a toy store—on opening it you may find another box, and when that is opened, there is another . . . and so on and on. But what is in the last box? Nothing at all. So life has gay wrappings, it promises a great deal, but at the heart of it—nothing but emptiness and a striving after wind. It is discouraging to see all the things the cynical author had found without value: work, wealth, fame, pleasure, novelty . . . Of love he only mentions it to say that there are times when hate is more appropriate. Of the life beyond he can only say "the dead know not anything" . . .

The Riddle of Ecclesiastes

Now a curious thing about this book is that here and there in it are flashes of something like religion. It is religion, but (as we said) not much like what Paul and John knew. Along with all the expressions of unfaith, of cynicism, there are some expressions of faith—a chilly kind of faith to be sure, but still faith; a crocus in the snow is not a summer garden, but still it's a flower. How account for the little crocus of the author's faith in the snowy waste of his cynicism? Various answers have been given. One is that this book is a sample of what little faith man can have without revelation; another is that one man couldn't have written the whole book, but that some pious editors added religious footnotes contradicting the irreligious pages. Another explanation is that this book was written all by one man, who had various moods. In his dark moods he lost faith in nearly everything, but in his better moods he could say, "Well, in spite of all that, nevertheless. . . ."

Nevertheless . . .!

For there were some things in which this poor rich man could believe. It may be true, he says, that man toils for the wind, that he seldom is rewarded in proportion to his toil; nevertheless, a man may find enjoyment in the toil itself. The days of life may be few, nevertheless, they can be used as well as possible while they last. God may be far away; but nevertheless there is a God, and it is stupid to act as if there were none. Of God's love, this ancient writer has no conception; of his forgiveness he feels no need. He had never been through the furnace of suffering as Job had; he suffered from having too much, not from having too little. He had never found any one to love, or to love him, we may judge. In short, this man had lived on the glittering surface of life. Nevertheless, though the deeper experiences were denied him, though he did not know God at close range, though he knew no way to love God, nevertheless he could obey him, he could pay his vows even to the distant God. If this faith of the cynic is not saving faith, it still is on the way.

smoothest ride!

One of the 7 big bests Chevrolet gives you over any other car in its field

Anyone who's ever taken a Chevy over a choppy country road can tell you how lightly Chevrolet's Full Coil suspension handles rough going—and coil springs never squeak, never need grease! Try this velvet way of going for yourself. Once you do, you'll find your own way of saying what MOTOR TREND magazine puts this way: ". . . the smoothest, most quiet, softest riding car in its price class." But the happiest part of it all is that this Full Coil ride is just one of seven big bests—all documented by published opinions of experts and on-the-record facts and figures.

BEST ROOM—Official dimensions reported to A.M.A.* show that Chevrolet sedans offer more front seat head room than all but one of the high-priced cars—more front seat hip room (by up to 5.9 inches) than the "other two" of the leading low-priced three.

BEST ENGINE—Chevrolet engines have long won expert praise from virtually every automobile magazine, and, just recently, Chevrolet received the NASCAR† Outstanding Achievement award for "the creation and continuing development of America's most efficient V-type engines."

BEST ECONOMY—A pair of Chevrolet sixes with Powerglide won their class in this year's Mobilgas Economy Run, topping every other full-sized car. And the winning mileage was a whopping 22.38 m.p.g.

BEST BRAKES—Chevy's bonded-lining brakes are the biggest in their field, built for up to 66% longer life. In a direct competition conducted by NASCAR, Chevy outstopped both of the other leading low-priced cars in a test of repeated stops from highway speeds.

BEST STYLE—It's the only car of the leading low-priced 3 that's unmistakably modern in every line. "In its price class," says POPULAR SCIENCE magazine, "a new high in daring styling."

BEST TRADE-IN—Any N.A.D.A.‡ Guide Book can give you the figures on Chevy's extra value. You'll find that Chevrolet used car prices last year averaged up to $128 higher than comparable models of the "other two." Your Chevrolet dealer will be happy to tell you about a whole host of other advantages besides these seven. Why not drop by his showroom?

"Our ALL-ELECTRIC home makes life more pleasant!"

Says Mr. George Picha

The cost is only $32.00 a month on the convenient I&M budget plan . . . with heating included.

"I'm a partner in an aircraft electronics service business at an airport, and I know what electricity can do," says Mr. George Picha. "This experience has convinced me the best way to heat a home and get modern conveniences is with electricity. It has made our life a lot more pleasant."

Reddy says: "I&M electric rates have never been increased. If your electric bill is higher, it's because you're using electricity to take over so many more of your household tasks. Actually, the more you use each month, the less you pay per kilowatthour. Living better electrically costs so little, yet means so much."

Around the Town

With the Editor

A lot is read in the headlines these days about integration of schools in the south and the possibilities of trouble when a negro enters what has always been exclusively a "white" school. I suppose we don't appreciate such problems, living in a community where color difficulties have not arisen. And maybe we are a little "above" the goings-on down south.

But I think we have our own "integration" problems even though we don't recognize them, intentionally or otherwise overlooked. Our local "problem" has to do with geographic location of origin. And the small fry pick up the ways of their elders quick as they do everything else in this respect.

I'm talking about some of those in our community who come from, say, Kentucky or Tennessee, or maybe even southern Indiana, who have been dubbed "hill billies" by a good many. I don't suppose one of these southerners objects to being called by that name if it is a means of identification - or maybe they do. Anyhow, cartoons about hillbillies aren't any more disrespectful than cartoons about farm folk or city slickers, etc., etc. We recognize the characters by certain identifying ways of talking, or by certain manner of dress, or by certain habits. But it goes beyond merely identifying, I think, when we hear our young folk using the term when some of their difficulties arise in playing, for instance, and "sides" are taken and a battle line is drawn, in a sense; too often the battleline is determined by the use of the term hillbilly. This makes our younger generation in this community just as subject to censure as those young people we have seen in the papers in the past participating in racial conflicts; there isn't any difference. The trouble is the kids get their ideas from us grown ups.

But one of our southern friends handed it back the other evening. As a group of boys and girls played at the ball diamond among the cars at a game recently, one of our local young ladies taunted a boy with, "Oh, you hill-billy!"

He stood up in defiance and said, "Well, Ah'd rathuh be a hill billeh than a Hoo-shuh!"

Ways of living and ways of speaking create barriers just as do differences in color—unfortunately. But none of the differences gives the right to ridicule.

Park Cleared For Seeding

Officers of the Booster Club and members of the park committee pushed park work into high gear this week with the contracting of services of Carl Carpenter to do major clearing at the park site in Saint Joe. Work done thus far shows great promise that the community will have use of the park and its facilities by next summer.

Mr. Carpenter was given the job of land clearing following meetings of the Booster Club directors and another meeting of its president, Maurice Kline, with members of the park committee. A bulldozer has been utilized in doing the work and a visit to the park site will show the extent of the clearing and grading.

The present work is being financed through Boster Club treasury funds. Principal source of funds thus far has been individual memberships sold to residents of the community who want to be community Boosters. Memberships are $6 per half year or $12 per year. Eddie Halt is membership chairman. Additional funds have also been received through donations and money-raising projects of local 4-H groups.

Membership list of the club through June of this year includes the following:

Roy Bowser, Gene Casebere, Warren Clauser, Joe Robinson, Frank Sechler, Ralph Sechler, Maurice Kline, Ralph Keeler, M.E. Storer, Donald Kinsey, Lloyd Dunten, Leon Kees, Orville Coburn, Richard Loucks, Albert Wade, Bud Shockley, Ted Haberkorn, Derwood Ridgway, Herbert Miller, Harold Straley, Willard Hurni, Fairfield Meese, Eddie Halt, Bill Vinson, Ray Means, Walter Reinhart, Donald Sechler, Forrest Bevington.

Social Friday

Mt. Pleasant E.U.B. congregation will serve an ice cream social this Friday night, August 14, starting at 5:30 p.m.

Included on the menu are weiner, sloppy joe, ham and chicken sandwiches, baked beans, potato salad, pie, cake, coffee and cold drink. Vanilla, pineapple and black walnut ice cream will be served.

The public is invited to attend.

Musical entertainment will be provided by Rock Reinhart.

Parties To Meet Tuesday To Name Candidates

Saint Joe Democrats have selected next Tuesday, August 18, as the date for their caucus to be held to select candidates for the forthcoming November election of town officials for Saint Joe. The meeting date coincides with that chosen by the Republicans of Saint Joe for their caucus.

The meeting of the Democrats will be held at the Riverdale high school, as announced by Harvey Hull, Democrat precinct committeeman. The Republicans will meet in the town hall as announced last week by chairman Leon Kees, acting for Republican precinct committeeman Walter Stewart who has been ill.

Meeting time for both parties is 8:00 p.m. and Saint Joe citizens, eligible to vote, are urged to attend the meetngs. Candidates must be selected to run for the three town board positions and that of the town clerk-treasurer.

K'garten Parents Asked To Meet Thursday

Mrs. Harry Farrer has announced that the kindergarten class which she will instruct beginning this fall will have a pre-registration day next Thursday, August 20, from 2 to 4 p.m.

At this time parents of 5-year-old children who wish to enroll their children in the class may meet with Mrs. Farrer and help to acquaint the young people with their coming first experience with school. The get-acquainted meeting next week will be held at the Farrer residence, the Newville Church of Christ parsonage, third house east of the former West End Grocery opposite the Mobil Station.

Kindergarten classes will begin September 8 and will be held from 9:00 to 11:30 a.m. during the week.

Parents and children are invited to next Thursday's pre-registration day.

NOTICE

The Republican Party caucus for the town of Saint Joe will be held Tuesday evening, August 18, 1959, at the town hall at 8 p.m. Selection of candidates will be made for town election to be held in November. Candidates to be selected are for offices of town board, three candidates, and town clerk-treasurer.

The Glenn Moores are spending their vacation at Lake Pleasant in Michigan.

The Clayton E. Bakers returned home last Friday after visiting their son and wife, the Don Bakers, at Norfolk, Va.

Mrs. Clair (Mary) Timberlin spent last week with her parents, the John Weidners.

Mrs. John Hartwich and daughters of Schneider, Indiana, spent several days with her sister's family, the William Millers, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Kimes and Mrs. Minerva Kelley and daughters, Lucille and Mary, attended a reunion at Berne August 9.

The J.S. and M.H. Hollabaughs spent Friday of last week in Battle Creek, Mich., with the F.B. Joneses and attended the Cereal City Centennial and Recreation Festival. One of the attractions was the longest breakfast table in the world where free breakfasts were served to all and all the ladies were given a rose bud.

At Big Island this week for the Boy Scout Troop in Spencerville are Jim Miller, Louis Fisher, Jerry Furnish, Mike Studebaker, Jim Norris, Ronnie Nusbaum and Mike Hudson. Lynn Fisher, George Doll and Jim Dwyer are spending a couple of days each with the boys.

Last Tuesday in honor of the birthday of Mrs. George Beams who is at the Rose Haven Rest Home in Hicksville, a celebration was held. Four friends of Mrs. Beams from Mishawaka were present, in addition to Mr. and Mrs. Cal Laux, Mrs. Flossie Rhoades, Mrs. Virgil Kimes and daughter, Dianne and Rev. and Mrs. Ivan O. Miller. A birthday cake and ice cream were served to the group by Mrs. Kimes.

MODERN MRS. HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The August meeting of the Modern Mrs. Home Demonstration Club was held at the Newville club house August 5 at 8 p.m. There were 14 members, one guest and two children present.

The president, Phyllis Sipe, called the meeting to order by repeating the club collect. Devotions were given by Gladys Smith and the history and the song of the month by Pat Griffin. Virginia Applegate gave a report on her day at camp and showed the club a stool that she had made.

A report on polio and the complications and distress that it can bring was given by Lois Ann Hook, health leader. Everyone was urged to get their families immunized against polio.

A trip to Fort Wayne with the Newville club was discussed and several plan to go. Also discussed were ways of increasing the treasury which needs additional funds. It was decided to sell candy and have a white elephant sale. An entertainment committee for October was appointed to set up a program for October guests, the Stafford Township club.

The business session was closed by singing the prayer song. The hostess, Betty Miller, and co-hostess, Virginia Applegate, then served delicious refreshments to complete an enjoyable evening.

The next meeting will be held at the Waterworks Park in Hicksville on September 2 at 7:30. Hostesses will be Pat Wright and Gladys Smith. Election of officers will be held and a white elephant sale conducted, followed by a weiner roast. Members are to bring their husbands, hot dogs and buns and be ready for a lot of fun.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Bible material: Lamentations.

Devotional reading: Psalm 30:1-5.

STEADFAST LOVE

Lesson for August 16, 1959

Why is it (some have asked) that we hear so much about the love of God in the New Testament, but in the Old Testament find his love seldom mentioned? The answer is that it is all through the Old Testament, too, occurring not less than 215 times. In the Hebrew original, that is. For centuries this fact was concealed from the English-speaking reader by translations which turned the Hebrew word into "mercy" or "kindness" or other words. It is now realized that the best way to translate that common word is "steadfast love" and it is so translated throughout the Revised Standard Version. It means something stronger than simply "love"; it expresses the enduring, persistent, patient and steadfast quality of God's love to man.

Love Among the Ruins

People ask sometimes, what does the Bible tell us about God that other religions do not? Are not all religions worshipping the same God by different names? Of course the one greatest truth about God, which we find in the Bible and nowhere else, is that he is the God and Father of Jesus Christ. But long before Jesus was born, the Hebrews knew that God is a God of steadfast love. Other religions did not know this. That God is to be honored, worshipped, obeyed and feared, yes all religions knew that. But only the Hebrews knew the God who is Love.

It may be a surprise, but it is very like the whole Bible that we should run across the same little word ("chesed" in Hebrew) in a very unpromising place, the book of Lamentations. This little "book" (8 pages long) lives up to its name; it is the most mournful book in the Bible. Well it may be; for it was written about the dreadful time after the downfall of Jerusalem, in the cruel hardships of defeat. Yet even here the "steadfast love" of God is felt and praised. Even among the ruins of a once fair city, the inspired poet does not give up his faith in the God of love.

New Every Morning

There is a wonderful thing about the love of God, which all those who know the true God realize, even when they do not understand it. That is, his love never grows stale. It is never, so to speak, a habit, it is always a surprise. Just at the moment of deepest discouragement, just at the very brink of fatal temptation, the inner Voice speaks, and joy and strength return again. God's love is the most surprising thing in the world. It is, as this poet of the Lamentations said, new every morning. We do not deserve it, we may give up counting on it—but there it is.

All God's saints, that is, those who have felt most deeply this divinely persistent and persuasive love, have discovered at some time or other, usually at some crisis, some time of trouble or of grief, that it is not on the sunniest days that God is most likely to make himself known.

No Heavenly Grandfather

The writer of Lamentations leaves us with a needed warning. It is easy to get a little too enthusiastic about the love of God. Many persons have felt so sure of it—and sure of God—that they felt now they had a license, so to speak, to do whatever they like. They think of God's love as something so sure and certain, so guaranteed, that nothing they do makes any difference to God, He is no longer a heavenly Father, in their sight, he becomes a heavenly grandfather. He is up there always ready with something specially nice for his favorite little ones. But the poet of the Lamentations knew better than that. In the downfall of his beloved city he sees the hand of God, a God who had endured the carelessness, disobedience and pride of his people till (to use Isaiah's word) he was tired of it. A father or mother, if they really love a child, will discipline the child when he needs it. A father who would never punish his son, no matter what, does not actually love him. It is because of God's love, not in spite of it, that he punishes us.

*most m.p.g. *miles per gallon

one of 7 big bests Chevrolet gives you over any car in its field

Proof that Chevy delivers the most miles from a gallon comes from an indisputable source: this year's Mobilgas Economy Run. For a pair of Chevrolet sixes with Powerglide walked away with the first two places in their class—got top mileage, in fact, of any full-sized car. Over the Run's long, rugged course, over mountain and desert in the long, long haul from Los Angeles to Kansas City, the winning Chevrolet averaged a whopping 22.38 miles per gallon. That's the kind of economy-engineering that keeps you saving while you drive!

BEST STYLE—It's the only car of the leading low-priced 3 that's unmistakably modern in every line. "In its price class," says POPULAR SCIENCE magazine, "a new high in daring styling."

BEST BRAKES—In competitive tests of repeated stops from highway speeds, conducted by NASCAR, Chevy outstopped both of the "other two." Naturally—Chevy brakes with bonded linings are far larger, built to lengthen brake life by up to 66%.

BEST TRADE-IN—Look at the record—the used car prices in any N.A.D.A.† Guide Book. You'll find that Chevy used car prices last year averaged up to $128 higher than comparable models of the "other two."

BEST ENGINE—Chevrolet engines have long won expert praise and, just recently, Chevrolet received the NASCAR Outstanding Achievement award for "the creation and continuing development of America's most efficient V-type engines."

BEST ROOM—Official dimensions reported to A.M.A.‡ make this abundantly clear. Chevy front seat hip room, for instance, is as much as 5.9 inches wider than in comparable cars.

BEST RIDE—MOTOR TREND magazine names Chevy ". . . the smoothest, most quiet, softest riding car in its price class." But this is one Chevy feature you really should discover for yourself, at your Chevrolet dealer's. Stop by soon!

Around the Town

With the Editor

Virgil Laux and family got back from a western trip this week and report that it's a small world.

They visited Rocky Mountain National Park and Denver and while stopping at one of the stop-off places in the park to enjoy the view, who did they see but the Lyle McMakens of Saint Joe who were attending a convention at Denver. Virgil also saw a fellow employee of Fort Wayne during the trip.

The Lauxs made good use of their Pontiac station wagon, utilizing a couple of small car mattresses and a small stove to take care of eating and sleeping. It sounded like a pretty good trip, from what I heard from Virgil.

One thing seemed to bother him, though. One of those Ramblers was on his tail for quite a spell even though it also had quite a load. It reminded me of that novelty tune of a year or so ago about the Rambler that passed a Cadillac and the driver wanted to know when the latter was going to shift out of second.

I haven't heard many fish tales this summer. One did get told last week by Elwood Savage and Walter Stewart who had been up on Pigeon River (I think), near Mongo. They reported catching trout which then made its getaway so quick that the line snapped with the crack of a ".22". They also saw a big bass going after those bugs (we always called them snake-feeders), waiting for the larger ones to fly by, then leaping 2 and 3 feet out of the water in hot pursuit of the bugs.

Esther and I went to Lake James a couple of weeks ago for an evening of fishing and I thought we would get a load they way it started. As I prepared her pole and unwound the line, the hook was in the water, bare. When the line was pulled up, there was a fish on the end of it. But the remainder of the evening didn't bring what we thought it would. The other fish weren't as desperate as that first one.

Speaking of the ones that got away, if you want to enjoy yourself, just listen—not to what I'm going to say here but just listen wherever you are. There are chuckles all over the place.

As I flopped on the couch this week after a bite of lunch for a few moments' relaxation, I listened to the sounds of the house as boys came in and went out at lunch time, as Esther worked at canning chores in the kitchen, as the ordinary conversation was carried on in the routine of things. It was fun just watching and listening when suddenly from the kitchen came Mom's voice: "PHIL! ! - - - -Doggonit, he got away!"

Candidates Named For Town Election

Candidates for offices in the Saint Joe Town governing body were selected at meetings held Tuesday evening at the Town Hall and at the high school in Saint Joe.

Voters in the corporate limits of the town selected the following candidates who will run for office next November:

Trutees

Ward I—Albert Wade and Roy Bowser.

Ward II—Joe Robinson and Ted Haberkorn.

Ward III—Frank Monroe and Hearsel Shockley.

Clerk-Treasurer

Harvey Carr and Sharon Bowser.

Approximately 55 persons attended the two meetings.

First Aid Class Being Organized

Mrs. Doris Yeiser of Saint Joe is currently organizing a class for first aid instruction and asks that anyone interested in receiving such instruction attend a meeting to be held Tuesday evening, August 25, at 7:30 p.m. at the Saint Joe fire hall.

The purpose of the meeting is to make arrangements for a regular meeting night for the course of instruction and other details which must be taken care of in connection with the series of instruction meetings. The only cost involved is the purchase of an instruction book for 75 cents or one dollar. Mrs. Yeiser's services are given without charge.

Those who cannot attend Tuesday's meeting but who are interested in taking the first aid course are asked to contact Mrs. Yeiser by calling Saint Joe 2715.

Social Saturday

Concord Methodist Church will serve an ice cream social this coming Saturday, August 22, starting at 5 p.m.

Included on the menu are chicken, ham, sloppy joe and hot dog sandwiches, chicken and noodles, potato salad, baked beans, homemade pie, cake and ice cream, coffee, chocolate milk and kool ade.

The public is invited to attend.

Club Has Yard Lights Available

The Spencerville Community Club reports that yard lights are still available.

In a project undertaken two years ago, ornamental lights were made available to residents of the Spencerville community at a quantity price. A good response by Spencerville residents has made streets in the community better lighted and thus safer through citizens' cooperation. There may be some who have not as yet purchased and installed a light in their yards. The club is now able to secure the lights with an order for 12 or more units for a reduced price. Those interested in buying a yard light are asked to contact Glen Moore.

It is hoped that there will be more lights seen this fall in Spencerville yards for public safety and convenience.

SPENCER TWP. HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Spencer Twp. Home Demonstration Club met August 12 at the home of Ellen Hart with co-hostess Garnet Furnish.

The meeting was called to order by Ida Reed. Club collect was led by Garnet Furnish. Devotions were led by Arminta Steward. The history of the song of the month, "A Merry Life," was given by Alice Kagey who also led singing.

Alice Kagey gave the project lesson. Report of the council meeting was given by Berniece Wilder.

Election of officers was held with the following results:

President: Elva Hoover.

2nd vice president: Claudia Haffner.

3rd vice president: Garnet Furnish.

Secretary: Berniece Wilder.

Treasurer: Marie Ward.

The club decided to go to the state fair September 2.

Roll call response was: what my mother did that is outmoded now. Marie Ward was auctioneer for birthday auction. 19 members, one visitor and two children were present. A delicious lunch was served by the hostess and co-hostess.

'Anti-Labor Legislation'-A Misnomer

One of the characterictics of collectivist thinking as it appears in this country today is that if you are not in favor of an idea or a program which is supported by some particular organization or group, you are "against" that group and "against" those who make up that group. This attitude isn't necessarily carried by the average members of any such groups. It is more likely to be reflected in public statements made by high officials of those groups. So today, if I am in favor of legislation which will place a burden of responsibility on labor unions to behave themselves, I am "against" labor and "against" the working man. Little concern is given for the reasons behind proposing such corrective legislation. The only thing that matters (for propaganda purposes) is that so-and-so is in favor of something that will hurt us.

I think any legislation which might be proposed today, right now at the present moment, which is intended to coral labor in some of its practices, should be written as much as possible as a measure for the common good for all time. I hope that our legislators aren't considering labor reform bills with a picture of Hoffa or Beck or some other labor leaders in the backs of their minds, with the result being that legislation might be aimed at individuals rather than aimed at overall correctiveness. While I may think these men are rascals (a mild term, no doubt,) I still don't like to think of our legislative system as being so inadequate as to find it necessary to pass laws for each individual, in a sense. It is true that the proposed legislation is a result of the actions of these particular men. But their power is a result of something more significant than just power through position. The whole matter goes deeper into the extent to which organized efforts through unions can go without destroying individual freedom. While unionism has gained much for a lot of people, it can also, when let go too far, hamper further gains by some because it is a leveler of the working society while also being a help to the working society.

If this can be taken as an "open letter" to our Congressmen, may they take it as an endorsement of the present so-called "anti-labor" legislation which I don't think is anti-anything. It is something that has finally reached a stage of passage because a situation has gotten out of hand and it is in the public interest to correct it.

Others say . . . .

FARMING AS A BUSINESS VS. GOVERNMENT POLITICIANS

Our farms do not belong to any one of us or to any Government. Our land, all our possessions belong to the Man Upstairs, or The Creator of all things. We only hold a title or contract by which we have control of our various lines of business during our lifetime. And if we rob or destroy our God-given soil, we are in a sense bank robbers because we are stealing the soil bank reserve that belongs to the coming generations.

According to the Book of Leviticus, the land should grow crops for six years and then be rested for one year, with the people living on the surpluses of the six years until new food is grown in the eighth year. Now it is our (the farmers') business to rest part of our land every year so that in the seven years our land will be replenished with crops grown for soil bank building. We as farmers should not look to any government for pay for anything we could and should do for ourselves.

I believe that we can set our own prices on foods (grains, livestock, fruits and vegetables) by cooperation with one another thru existing cost of production records compiled by our state agricultural colleges. These records are the average cost and profit of given sections of the states. We, as farmers, could furnish or produce food at a lower cost to the consumer because under average cost of production and stabilized marketing, there would be less gambling on food products after leaving the farms.

The farmer would know at the time of planting or livestock planning the price he would receive tomorrow when his products would be on sale in the market. Farm loans by banks, PCA's and others would be more secure giving a more solid foundation for agriculture. The small or low income farmer could use his factory pay check to repair or build new buildings if he worked part time off the farm.

How can we do it? By using factory business methods and cooperation, establishing a marketing office in a region or county or a brokerage where farmers could list livestock, grains, etc., and the time when these products would be ready for the final assembly line to the consumer.

In times of overproduction the farmers would be issued cards, according to acreage owned or on which taxes are paid, in proportion to the estimated amount of foods needed for the next crop or marketing year. Farmers would be able to trade cards or parts of cards with one another. If one raised beef only, he could trade his milk or pork or other meat allotment to a neighbor who grew hogs or other meats, and the same thing could be done with all other commodities.

On grains in surplus times, the excess could be held over and sold the next year and the unused land could be put into a soil-building crop that is needed to keep that important balance in reserve for coming generations.

When the farmer makes a profit on his business, he is able to purchase city or factory made goods which in turn gives the non-farm workers jobs with good pay and opportunities to vacation and see other parts of the world. The farmer can also go visiting other places and in general keep the wheels of progress rolling.

All this can not be done by bankrupting a government to make good times on borrowed money. Government control of farming or any other business has never been successful; only in the spending of other people's and future generations of Bank Depositors' money have politicians made a success.

ARE WE INTERESTED?

THERE IS NOW NO LEGALLY CONSTITUTED AUTHORITY TO STUDY THE HOSPITAL SITUATION IN DeKALB COUNTY:

IF WE WANT ADEQUATE HOSPITAL FACILITIES FOR OUR COUNTY, THIS MUST BE DONE:

* State Law requires that 30 per cent of the resident freeholders of the county and not less than 50 freeholders in each Township petition the County Commissioners to establish a legally constituted body, a County Hospital Board, to investigate and recommend a course of action.

* Exhaustive study by the Hospital Board may result in one of the following recommendations: 1. Build a new hospital; 2. Use existing facilities; 3. No emergency exists and there is no need for official county action.

* Recommendations of the Hospital Board are not binding upon the Board of County Commissioners. Our County Government will make the final decision.

It is imperative that we resolve this situation

* State Law provides this procedure for the residents of the county to determine their hospital needs.

* If you are interested in seeing this matter resolved, sign one of the petitions now being circulated or clip the coupon on this page and mail to: DeKalb County Auditor, Court House, Auburn, Ind.

REMEMBER:

—In signing a petition, the freeholder is under no legal obligation.

—If property is encumbered by mortgage, the freeholder may legally sign.

—If property is in joint title, either or both owners may legally sign.

PRAYER OF CAPTIVES
Lesson for August 23, 1959

It surprises most people when they first look into it, how much the Bible has to say about prisoners. To mention only two examples: the Ten Commandments, copies of which hang on many a church wall, begin with a reference to a "house of bondage," a Hebrew expression for a place where slaves and prisoners are kept under guard. The God who gave these laws is the God who sets prisoners free. Then in the New Testament where Jesus is preaching to his own village friends and relatives, he takes a text from Isaiah describing his own work (Luke 4:18; Isaiah 61:1); one of the first things God gave him to do was to "proclaim liberty to the captives."

Eleven Million Exiles

Furthermore, some books of the Bible were written by men who had been in jail or were actually in a jail when writing. The prayer which is the subject of this week's study comes from the Hebrew exiles, for it represents not simply one man's prayer but may be thought of as the desire of many a heart. Exile, we have to remember, is a form of captivity without chains. Living in exile is like a bear in a modern zoo; he sits in no cage, but free to roam around on the rocks. He does not have bars around him, but there is something just as effective, a deep moat all around his rocky island, too wide and too steep for him to cross. So the exile (Daniel or Nehemiah or Joseph, for instance) may be free enough to build a house or to plant a garden; but all around him is the invisible pit, the impossibility of ever going home again.

Today, it is estimated, there are in the world more than eleven million refugees, "stateless" people, who have left their native land because they had to, driven by the cruelties of war or the colder cruelties of peace. Vietnamese, Arabs, Jews, north-Koreans, Chinese, Hungarians, East Germans, Indians . . . the list is far longer than that. Millions of these exiles are Christians; they know what the prayer of captives means.

What Can They Do?

Many of these modern exiles live under conditions that make a modern jail look like the Hilton Hotel. For every Hungarian (for example) who manages to reach the United States and a new start in life there are thousands who live in barracks, supported by the World Council of Churches, or the United Nations, at poverty level. If it were not for these great organizations millions would have starved and many thousands who have been resettled would still be in ragged tents or barracks without hope or help. The exiles are by no means from the down-and-outs back home. Most of them are professional people, farmers, skilled workmen, persons who could make an independent living if they had a chance. The writer knows of one Hungarian family who at the moment of writing would be very happy to come to the United States, but are barred out because—though the father is an unusually educated and able man—no one here has been found who will sponsor them. They have a number of children, and unless some person or group guarantees their support and education in case the parents die, the U.S. will not admit them. This is only one case among many.

Prisoners Near By

Most people who read this column are free and self-supporting. Concentration camps, detention barracks, the life of exiles, seem far away. But many people who read this can do something about the friendless prisoners of the world. It may be that your church has never undertaken to sponsor a refugee, or to take part in sending help (through Church World Service or otherwise) to the unfortunate victims of wars and-or bad governments in the refugee camps of the world. If so, you might be the person to spark-plug a real Christian effort along this line. But there are many prisoners still nearer. There is a jail or a penitentiary somewhere not far from you.

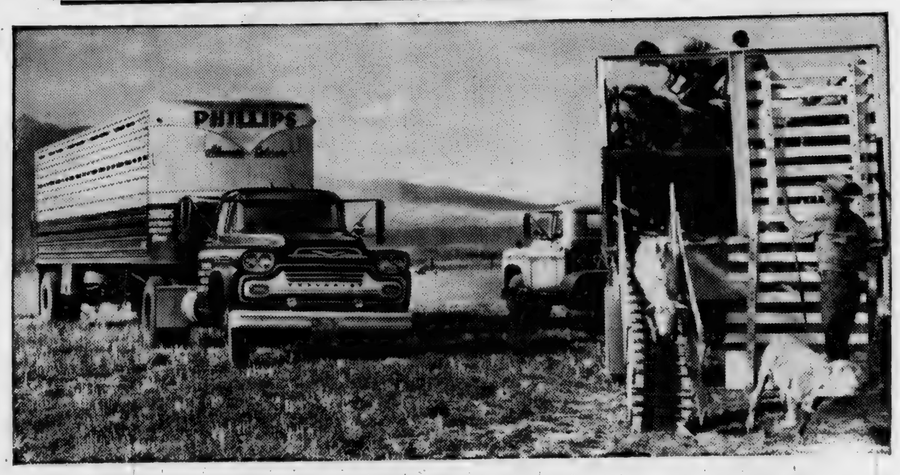
Two Chevy middleweights prove their rawhide stamina!



Top hands on high-country hauls!

Ask any trucker who's been over Wolf Creek Pass, 10,850 feet up in the San Juans: a 9-mile pull to the summit and low gear all the way down. Mr. C. H. Phillips of Alamosa, Colorado, has a 6403 and a 6503 Chevrolet truck that are up over this route the year round, taking sheep and beef to pasture, later marketing the stock in Denver. In less than a year, his Chevy middleweights have averaged about 50,000 miles of this kind of treatment—and they're going stronger than ever!

Watch Chevy trucks at work out in range country. It's a sight to see the way they pack into high-up mountain pastures and handle through brush and rock like a cowman's favorite cutting horse. Take any truck work for that matter. Chevy middleweights probably handle a bigger variety of jobs than any trucks alive. About anything you name, including work that used to be reserved strictly for bigger rigs. When a truck's built the way a Chevy is, lean-muscled and rawhide-tough, it takes to ugly trails the same way most trucks roll over the highway. A buggy and a trailer, stolen August 7 at Spencerville, were found a few days later under the covered bridge at Spencerville and along a roadside dump. The buggy, owned by Amos Schmucker, was found under the bridge heavily damaged. The trailer, also damaged, owned by Gerald Rediger, was found at the dump.

Larry Snyder of near Saint Joe filed notice of appeal after conviction on a minor traffic charge last week. Arrested for proceeding onto highway 427 at 20 to 25 miles per hour after stopping for the stop sign approximately 50 feet from the intersection, Snyder seeks a trial claiming he complied with the law by stopping at the sign. The prosecution said the stop sign constituted a warning to stop at the intersection.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Grimes are the parents of a daughter, born August 12 at the Defiance Hospital. Mr. and Mrs. Foster Gee are great-grandparents of little Miss Pamela Faye, weight 8 lbs. 12 ozs.

Around the Town

With the Editor

In case we're beginning to think this weather is rough, remember that last summer we didn't have a summer; it was real cool, man, and like no vacation weather. And it was about 6 weeks before we had to light the furnace already.

Me, I'll take sweat any day. And a nice relaxing evening on the front porch. Ah-h-h-h-.

The thermometer says it's 90. But to look at the main street you'd think it had snowed. It looks as if everyone and his brother tosses candy wrappers, popsicle sticks, cigarette wrappers, gum wrappers, potato chip bags, etc., etc., just anywhere they please. Saint Joe can boast of the most littered main street in the county and there are a few hundred people responsible.

Phil makes his spending money picking up empty pop bottles out of our yard from time to time.

He should complain?

Petition Notes

August 31 is the deadline for signing and turning in a petition to the DeKalb County Auditor for the purpose of establishing a county hospital board to continue work begun by the DeKalb County Hospital Association in seeking to obtain improved hospital facilities for the county. Petitions have been published in county newspapers and individual copies are being circulated in an effort to obtain signatures of 30 per cent of the resident freeholders in the county. 30 per cent must sign the petition in order to establish the hospital board.

If the petitioners reach their goal, the county commissioners will establish the hospital board according to law. The board will study the situation and recommend one of three possible oconclusions: a new hospital should be built, existing facilities should be purchased and expanded, or there is no need to expand present hospital facilties.

County residents who have not signed the petition and who are resident freeholders should sign the petition before August 31 if they support the petition. The auditor must then check the list of petitioners and certify that they are valid before further study can be made.

It is pointed out that the county commissioners are not bound by the recommendation of the hospital board. Any decision on the hospital matter will be a decision made by the commissioners.

Registration Day Sept. 4

Riverdale principal Joe Smith has announced that registration of students for the 1959-1960 school year will be held on Friday, September 4. Classes will begin on regular schedule on Tuesday, September 8. Registration will be held starting at 9:30 a.m. with school buses making their regular route runs accordingly.

The only requirement for registration day is that students bring a pencil.

Book rental fees are as follows: elementary $7.50; junior high and high school $8.00. Book rental money should not be taken to school on registration day to ease the burden of registration. Money should be taken however on the first day of school when classes meet in regular session and distribution of books is begun.

Mr. Smith urges students in the upper grades who have moved into the community in the past few months and will be new enrollees at Riverdale to stop in at his office in the high school building at Saint Joe anytime before registration day to acquaint themselves with the local school program and to take care of the transfer of grades from other schools. Cooperation in this respect will help to ease the work of registration.

Fair Dates Sept. 22-26

The weather may not seem like it—but fair time is here again. And Carl Perkins, president of the DeKalb County Free Fall Fair Association, has completed appointments of fair committees for this year's edition of the annual event.

The fair will be held in Auburn starting Tuesday night, September 22 and running thru Saturday night, September 26.

Other officers for the 1959 fair are Hal Hoham, first vice president; Dorsie Likens, second vice president; Ralph Wible, secretary and concessionnaire; H. L. Provines, recording secretary; Lloyd Hoodelmier, treasurer; Warren Sunday, fair attorney; Ernest Lesiuk, county agricultural agent, and Albert Pell, assistant county agent.

Directors for 1957-59 are Orlie Willenar, Franklin Township; George Dilley, Smithfield; DeLoy Thornburg, Wilmington; Ray Carnahan, Jackson; Clayton Hartman, Richland; Wilbur Beree, Newville; Washington Teeters, Grant; Russell Shumaker, Ashley; and John Linton, director-at-large.

1959-61 directors are Donald Johnson, Union; Kent Provines, Keyser; Kenneth Coburn, Spencer; Derwood Ridgway, Saint Joe; Dal Winn, Butler; Carl Sinders, Butler Twp.; W. D. LaRowe, Concord and Clyde Leeke, Auburn.

Correction — The Spencerville Ladies Aid will meet in the church basement on Thursday, October 3, at 1:30 p. m. with Izetta Chaney and Frances Doll as hostesses.

Labor Day Began In 1882

Labor Day can be variously defined as: the end of summer; the beginning of the school year; a national traffic jam; or simply an excuse for a long week end away from the office.

But the founder of the holiday, Peter J. McGuire, conceived it as a tribute to "the industrial spirit, the great vital force of every nation." In 1882, McGuire, a leader in the Knights of Labor, proposed that a day be set aside to honor the working man. He suggested the first Monday in September, since it came almost midway between Independence Day and Thanksgiving Day. The Central Labor Union of New York adopted his proposal and held the first Labor Day celebration on September 5. As McGuire had suggested, the union paraded through the streets of Manhattan, to show the strength and spirit of trade and labor organizations.

Shortly after, the Knights of Labor voted for an annual celebration. In 1884, the Federation of Organized Trades and Labor Unions of the United States and Canada, predecessor of the American Federation of Labor, voted to make the celebration national. The first state to make Labor Day a legal holiday was Oregon in 1887, according to The World Book Encyclopedia. The legislatures of Colorado, Massachusetts, New Jersey and New York quickly followed suit and, in 1894, Congress made Labor Day a national holiday.

Labor Day now ranks with Independence Day, Washington's Birthday and Thanksgiving Day as the most generally celebrated holidays in the U.S.

'Temporary' Taxes

Ordinarily I'm not a betting man. But if I had an extra five or ten or hundred or thousand bucks lying around doing nothing right now, and I could find any takers, I'd bet that the "temporary" increase in the federal gasoline tax which Congress is mulling over now will be anything but temporary. The President asked for a cent and a half hike and the discussion now is over giving him a cent raise, all for the federal highway program which I don't know anything about. What I do know is that I get tired of these comforting words and phrases that are used to catch us off guard when the powers that be are aware that John Public is going to squawk about higher taxes.

It takes a lot of complaining and a lot of politicking to get a tax reduced when it is supposed to be only "temporary" in nature. It takes more hollering than that to get a tax abolished when the need has passed (or have we ever had a tax abolished???). My memory gets refreshed every so often when I go into the store to buy certain items about this "temporary" tax business. We still have "temporary" war-time excise taxes that were supposed to be in force only to meet the emergency of the times. But the "emergency" is still with us, or is it? And "temporary" has a new meaning in this decade; "temporary means permanent. Mr. Webster's efforts to keep us up to date have been foiled.

As I said, I don't know anything about the federal highway program; I suppose they do need the money if the President says so. But with all the automobiles we are driving today, all the traveling we do today, all the gasoline that we pour into our gas tanks today, it seems odd that we have to have so much more money. A cent and a half, or even just a cent, more per gallon is a whale of a lot of money. And if somebody on the inside says that maybe we could use even more, then I think we've lost our heads and gone overboard on federal highways, particularly since we now have little buggies moving around on a cushion of air.

Maybe we do need that extra cent tax; it would hurt. What hurts most, though, is that deceitful word "temporary." There are too many temporary taxes hanging around yet from many years past and they won't let me swallow that line anymore. This would be another temporary thing to add to the permanent problem of inflation. The more taxes we pay for this highway program, the more money we will be paying, too, for goods and services, the higher goes the cost of living and on it goes.

The steelworkers missed the boat by not capitalizing on that little word, "temporary." We probably wouldn't have a strike in progress today if they had only asked for a "temporary" raise. If the government can do it, why can't the people - and with the government, "temporary" can go on forever.

Others say . . . .

FORTUNE FAVORS THE BOLD

For the first time in 150 years, all Hoosier public schools are to be thoroughly examined by the people who support them. This statewide look at school facilities, curriculum, finance, teaching and administrative staff and organization is provided for in the School Corporation Reorganization Act of 1959.

Preparation for the study will begin this month or next when this new law and others passed by the recent General Assembly become effective. Circuit court judges will name the county school study committees within three months following the effective date of the law. Before naming the committee, however, the judge must call a county convention of township trustees, school board members and all interested citizens of the county to explain provisions of the law and answer questions.

After the convention, the judge has 10 days in which to designate the study group. Committees are to be composed of the county superintendent of schools, one township trustee, one member of a board of school commissioners or school trustees, one superintendent or principal of a town, city or consolidated school and five lay citizens of the county. This group has one year from the date of the county convention to study the county's school systems and come up with a preliminary written plan for reorganization.

Hoosier farmers have always had a deep interest in school organization, courses of study, teaching quality and tax costs. While Farm Bureau did not sponsor this legislation, now that it is law, the organization has taken the lead in acquainting its members with provisions of the Act. Copies of the new law were printed and mailed to 2,500 local Farm Bureau leaders, as well as to county superintendents, township trustees, county agents, circuit court judges and leaders in many other organizations. Earlier this month, three regional School Conferences were held by Farm Bureau at Indianapolis, Rochester and Jasper to explain the law and answer questions. It is expected that the programs of township Farm Bureau meetings in September will be devoted to study of school problems and opportunities.

While much "professional" help is going to be needed by county committees, it is refreshing to know that this study is to be made by average citizens who it is hoped will apply a large measure of "horse sense" to their deliberations.

Even though farmers are heavy property taxpayers, they are interested in having more than just a tax study of schools made. Curriculum, teaching, administration and school policy must be examined to make sure that our boys and girls are getting the kind of education that will best prepare them for life, work and happiness in the rapidly-changing America of tomorrow. This is no time to be penny-wise and pound-foolish.

It's hard to see how anything but good can come from this study, if local school officials, administrators and citizens of the community sit down and make a united and honest effort to improve their schools. The plan can fail miserably if different groups resort to spineless "buck" passing, which is all too common in connection with school matters.

Hoosier farmers are well-acquainted with the law. They will be interested and helpful in making the study a success.

—C. W. Stall, Editor, The Hoosier Farmer, August, 1959.

GOVERNMENT PAYS FOR STEEL STRIKE IN HUGE TAX LOSS

The biggest loser in the steel strike is the government.

The government is losing more than the steel companies or the strikers.

The government's losses are in taxes. These will have to be made up eventually, out of the levies on all taxpayers.

The Treasury, at the request of Sen. Lyn-Don B. Johnson, estimated the tax loss at $45,000,000 a week, which would be about $9,000,000 a day for a five-day week. This is admittedly a broad estimate and was based on the assumption of a long strike.

However, a private estimate puts the loss at a minimum of $10,000,000 a day, even if the strike is short.

Newspaper advertisements of the United Steelworkers of America say the steel companies stand to make $2 billion this year. Since most steel companies are in the 52 per cent tax bracket, this would mean Federal corporate taxes of more than $1 billion.

But there are no profits during the strike. On a base of 255 income days a year (365 days less 52 two-day week ends and six holidays), the steel companies are losing a net of almost $14,000,000 a day and the government about the same amount.

There are an estimated 500,000 steelworkers, of whom about 86 per cent are on strike. The average wage is $3.10 an hour, which would be $24.80 for an eight-hour day.

This means a loss of more than $10,000,-

AUGUST

L 920 0244

000 a day in wages. Federal income taxes on this are difficult to estimate, but at 20 per cent would be $2,000,000.

The net loss to the strikers would therefore be $8,000,000 .

But ordinarily this $8,000,000 would flow into home payments, rent, insurance and trade, less (of course) savings.

This would generate more taxable profits and, in addition, quite a bit of Federal excise tax on autos, liquor, appliances, etc. The tax loss on this $8,000,000 a day would be difficult to calculate—in fact, the strike would probably be over before any firm figure was reached.

But if it would generate $2,000,000 a day in taxes, we have this recapitulation of the government's losses per day:

Corporate taxes $4,000,000
Income taxes $2,000,000
Other taxes $2,000,000

The total equals the loss to the workers and more than doubles the steel companies' losses.

But that's not the end.

The cost of shutting down, an estimated $20,000,000, and the cost of refiring furnaces later at the same amount, will cut into future profits of the steel companies and, hence, into tax payments to the Federal government.

Losses from continuing overhead, unproductive salaries and increased depreciation will also be charged against future profits, again reducing the take of Partner Uncle Sam.

The loss of taxes on money not being spent by strikers is estimated above at $2,000,000 a day, but there are other losses, perhaps as great or even greater.

Thousands of railroad and other transportation workers have been thrown out of work by the strike. Workers in warehouses and plants have been laid off because of the lack of steel.

Again, taxable corporate profits and taxable personal incomes are being reduced or eliminated. These additional totals can only be guessed at. Perhaps $1,000,000 a day. Perhaps $2,000,000.

But any sizable figure makes the Federal government the biggest loser.

Then there are losses by state and local governments depending on wages, company income or sales for revenue. On top of this will soon be rising costs of unemployment insurance and relief for strikers' families.

You ought to read every written and broadcast word about the strike.

As a taxpayer, you're underwriting the show. You ought to watch it.

—Elmer Roessner in the Fort Wayne News-Sentinel.

CONGRESS AND HARRY BRIDGES

When Harry Bridges sat in a Congressional hearing room in Washington and threatened to aid the enemies of the United States in a war in which the interests of international Communism were involved, many Americans in and out of Congress were shocked. But the shock wears off, and Bridges knows this well. Would anything be done about Harry Bridges? This was the question that bothered me. Would the apathy of our people permit the threat to go unchallenged? Would Congress forget it?

I wrote a personal letter to every member of the House of Representatives and the Senate. My letter called attention to the Bridges defiance. It asked: "What will you, as a Representative of the American people, do about this traitorous challenge and the power of the man who has so boldly made it?" So far, 204 replies have been received. Almost without exception they have been personal, responsive, thoughtful letters. They have come from leaders of both parties in the Senate and House.

Actually two issues are contained in the Bridges threat: (1) His presence in America at the head of one of the nation's most strategic unions in spite of the fact that he twice has been found to be a Communist; (2) His apparently unassailable power merely as a union boss—power which, if joined with that of labor boss Jimmy Hoffa (as planned), can paralyze the nation's economy.

Many of the letters from Senators and Representatives dealt with both issues. All expressed shock and deep concern over the Bridges statements. A number of the Congressmen including Rep. Francis E. Walter (Pa.), chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee, called attention to the Walter Bill, H.R. 6780, which would impose a stiff fine and imprisonment on a labor leader who would carry out such a threat as Bridges made—in times of "national emergency" or war. This is one protective step in the right direction, but I personally believe that it would not halt Bridges' union if it wanted to sabotage our war effort. A number of his leadership associates are known Communists. A few jail sentences—with recourse to a "liberal" Supreme Court again—wouldn't bother them too much.

Here are the categories of the replies from Congress:

1. The Bridges statements to the House Un-American Activities Committee shocked us but we believe there are sufficient present laws to take care of such people and such threats. An excerpt from a well-known Senator: "I believe there is available to the Government a wide variety of weapons which could be used to deal with any situation which might arise in the exercise of power by such persons as Mr. Bridges." Approximately 30 per cent of the letters took this view.

2. The Bridges statements constitute a challenge to the Government of the United States and we intend to do everything in our power to protect our nation against Bridges' power. Excerpt: "I feel that Bridges' testimony will serve as a stimulant for Congressional action to correct some of these abusive powers which have been exerted by some of the nation's labor leaders like Bridges and Hoffa." These Congressmen (about 30 per cent of the letters) mentioned the Walter Bill and some of the labor boss control legislation arising from the McClellan Committee hearings.

3. The Bridges statements are another indication that our present laws aid the rise to power of labor bosses and their continuation in autocratic power. We need new strong laws to prevent such great power centralization in the hands of one labor boss or a few. But the chances of such legislation being enacted by the present Congress are very slim indeed. Excerpt: "Efforts to enact legislation which would negate the autocratic power of such individuals as this and the organizations they control can obviously not be passed with the composition of Congress as it is. It remains to be seen whether the American public will demand of their Representatives the necessary forthright action on threat of expulsion. Nothing short of this would suffice." About 40 per cent expressed similar frustration.

Senator McClellan made a statement pertinent to both the Bridges and the Hoffa threat: "I would say again to my colleagues and to my countrymen everywhere—don't minimize or underestimate the dangers to our free economy and internal escurity that are involved in this threat. Such dangers do exist; they are real; and something must be done about them."

Something effective will be done only if and when you and millions of other citizens demand it.

Bicycle Club Forming

Boys and girls in the Saint Joe community are invited to a meeting to be held Saturday afternoon, August 29, at the home of Larry Halt to participate in the formation of the Saint Joe Bicycle Club. Sponsor of the club is Halt Furniture and Hardware.

Meeting time is 2:00 p.m.

The purpose of the club will be to promote good rules of safety for bicycle riders as training for future responsibilities as automobile drivers. Dues will be charged but the amount has not yet been definitely determined. Dues will be used to make up prizes to be awarded at the end of a year of club activity.

Attendance at meetings will be stressed. Bicycles will be safety checked every month. Members will be expected to obey traffic rules. Enforcement of safety measures will be carried on through older members of the club who will serve as "policemen." A record will be kept of violations of the rules of safety and this record will be the basis for the awarding of prizes.

It is planned to select officers from the 11 years of age and older group of members who will serve as guides and counsellors for the younger members.

Adult advisor will be Eddie Halt.

Membership is open to boys and girls who own bicycles and wish to help promote bicycle safety.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
International Uniform Sunday School Lessons
BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Bible material: Joel.
Devotional heading: Acts 2:1-4; 12-18.

GOD FOR EVERYONE
Lesson for August 30, 1959

There is a serious mistake into which most religions fall, and even Christian people have been known to fall into the trap. It is the mistake of fancying that religion is so difficult, or so sacred, or so something-or-other, that it can't be left to the common man. Religion is for spiritual aristocrats, religion is for the very few, religion is for professional religionists. It is for a sort of Religious Union, and people who want it have to deal with the Union or they don't get it.

The Bible gives no sort of comfort or support to this twaddle. The Bible teaches, both directly and indirectly, from end to end, that religion is for everybody. No one has a copyright on it, no one and no union has a right to build a fence around it and charge admission. Religion is absolutely just as much the concern of the man in the street as it is of the man behind the stained glass.

Everybody Needs God

The Protestant form of the Christian religion, being based directly on the Bible, highlights a doctrine called "the priesthood of all believers." For many Protestants today this expression has very little meaning. They don't know much about priests and they don't want to know more. And the last thing they want is to BE priests. But still it is an important doctrine. Because once you forget it, you are all set to slip back into leaving religion to the preacher, or to your grandmother, or to old people and children, or to religious specialists of some kind.

The Bible on the other hand teaches that true religion is for everybody on the same basis. There are three important points here. One: Everybody needs God. The prophet Joel saw this, so did all the prophets. The same disasters, the same temptations, the same troubles and trials, the same hopes and disappointments, come in varied forms to be sure, but at the center of life there are always these needs and troubles.

Where Is the Road To God?

We were thinking last week about refugees. Literally millions of them dream of just one thing: a passport. A passport to somewhere, anywhere away from the bloody prison that their old country has become. All the refugees in one barracks may need passports; but not all can get them. Is religion like this? It is true, all men need God. But suppose the road to God is barricaded with difficulties and technicalities and requirements without number, like the road to citizenship in a free country? Suppose the road to God has a secret gate? Happily, this is not the case. The road to God is in the heart. "Return to me with all your heart," the prophet Joel says for God; no technicalities, no elaborate ritual or rule-book.

"My Spirit On All"

So—every one needs God; every one can find the road to God, for it is within him, it is the road of the repentant returning heart. But there is a third point equally important, and also a part of this "priesthood of all believers." The third point is that God's ideal world, the world he will surely bring to pass, is one in which God's spirit will be poured out on all persons, all humanity (which is what "all flesh" means). In Old Testament times, most good people thought of the Holy Spirit as destined only for the distinguished few. God's Spirit would come to a Moses or a Joshua, to a King like David, or a prophet like Samuel. But not, oh never, to the common man or woman. Spirit-filled people were a small and rare company. The rank and file might obey God from a respectful distance. The ordinary believer no more expected his God to live with him than the private expects the general to be sitting next to him at chow time. The New Testament shows a different picture: the prophecy of Joel is being fulfilled. "Spiritual" people in God's church and kingdom are not a tight little elite. Every one whose heart's prayer is "Come, O Holy Spirit" will be the Spirit's host.

Chevrolet's exuberant Impala 4-Door Sedan

Chevy's the hottest one on the road

It's the hottest looking, hottest saving, hottest selling of the leading low-priced three.

Have you had a taste of pure engine efficiency recently? Well, it's standard equipment in Chevrolet's lineup of eight lively V8's. These are the powerplants that recently won the NASCAR* Outstanding Achievement award for "America's most efficient V-type engines."

One, in fact, produces over one horsepower for every single cubic inch of displacement. It's the only American engine to reach such a high level of deep-breathing efficiency. But whichever Chevy powerplant you pick, you're primed for some of the perkiest going you've ever enjoyed, and you'll know it for sure the moment you set your Chevrolet into silk-smooth motion.

Or maybe you're looking for a tightfisted six. Well, Chevy's got just the ticket for you—the savingest six in its field.

And wait, wait till you hook up your favorite Chevy engine to one of Chevrolet's five transmissions, including those precision stickshift gearboxes and ultra-smooth Turboglide, among others. We'll leave it to you to choose your favorite from the five, and don't think you won't have fun doing that!

Oh, there's a long, long list of things to like about Chevy, and your Chevrolet dealer will be more than happy to tell you all about it. Why not make it a point to visit him soon?

The 27-pound-girl left for diagnosis and possible surgery at the Mayo Clinic. Stacy is shown feeding her pet lamb.

Farm S.S. Dates Coming

There are some very important dates ahead for most farm operators and farm hands according to an announcement by Christin Luecke, manager of the Fort Wayne Social Security office. He referred to persons engaged in any kind of agricultural enterprise, either as an employee or as a self-employed farm operator.

Although social security tax returns for 1959 farm earnings are not due until early 1960, the records upon which these tax returns must be based should be completed as soon as the farm hand has been paid, or, in the case of a self-employed farmer, as soon as his farm produce has been sold.

Future benefit payments to the worker and his dependents upon retirement at age 65, or in case of total and permanent disability between age 50 and 65, and to his survivors in event of his death at any age, are determined from the amount of earnings reported on social security tax returns. If these earnings have been understated or omitted entirely, it's the worker and his family who are the losers. Any farm employer who had one or more employees during 1959 to whom he paid as much as $150 in cash wages during the year, or who worked on 20 or more days and was paid on a time rate basis, is required to file social security tax returns and pay the social security taxes due on these wages no later than Janaury 31 of the following year. Likewise, all self-employed farmers whose net farm earnings are $400 or more in any year are required to file Schedule F along with their Federal income tax return and to pay the social security tax due on these earnings. The social security tax is due even though there is no income tax due, Mr. Luecke points out.

More information can be obtained from the Social Security office at 343 W. Wayne in Fort Wayne.

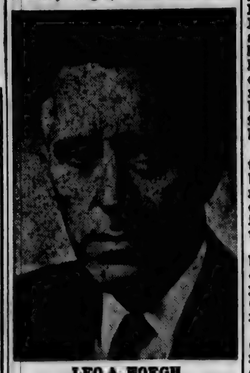
HOW TO SURVIVE—IF NUCLEAR WAR COMES

Substantial protection for families from radioactive fallout can now be developed through construction of simple home shelters. All of the illustrations used on this page are from "The Family Fallout Shelter," a publication of the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization. Free copies of the booklet may be obtained by writing: Box Home Shelter, Battle Creek, Mich.

Hoegh Says Every Family Needs A Fallout Shelter

Civil and Defense Mobilization Director Leo A. Hoegh says "everyone, even those far from a likely target, would need shelter from fallout" in the event of an enemy attack.



LEO A. HOEGH
. . . most could be saved

In the introduction to "The Family Fallout Shelter," a publication of the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization, Mr. Hoegh says: "In an atomic war, blast, heat and initial radiation could kill millions close to ground zero of nuclear bursts. Many more millions—everybody else—could be threatened by radioactive fallout. But most of these could be saved."

Mr. Hoegh pointed out that the Federal shelter policy is based on the knowledge that most of those beyond the range of blast and heat will survive if they have adequate protection from fallout.

The OCDM booklet contains building plans for five basic fallout shelters. One is a do-it-yourself project with solid concrete blocks. Cost of the shelters ranges from $150 to $1500.

Copies of "The Family Fallout Shelter" may be obtained from local civil defense offices or by writing: Box Home Shelter, Battle Creek, Mich.

Home Fallout Shelter Checklist

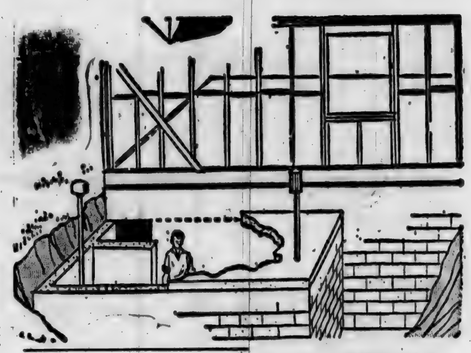
Food and cooking equipment:
- Water (2-week supply, a minimum of 7 gal. per person)
- Food (2-week supply)
- Eating utensils
- Paper plates, cups, and napkins (2-week supply)
- Openers for cans and bottles
- Pocket knife
- Special foods for babies and the sick

Supplies and equipment for sanitation:
- Can for garbage (20-gal.)
- Covered pail for toilet purposes
- Can for human wastes (10-gal.)
- Toilet tissue, paper towels, sanitary napkins, disposable diapers, ordinary and waterless soap
- Grocery bags, newspapers for soil bags
- Household chlorine (2 pt.) and DDT (1 qt. of 5% solution)
- Waterproof gloves

Shelter equipment:
- Battery radio with CONELRAD frequencies (640 or 1240) marked, and spare batteries for 2-week operation
- Home use radiation meters, when available
- Flashlights, electric lantern, and spare batteries for 2 weeks
- Clothing
- Bedding (rubber sheeting and special equipment for the sick)
- A first-aid kit and supplies listed in OCDM Leaflet L-2-12, First Aid: Emergency Kit; Emergency Action
- Writing material
- Reading material
- Screwdriver, pliers, and other household tools
- Games and amusements for children

Items outside the shelter but within reach:
- Cooking equipment (canned heat, or camp stove) and matches
- Home fire-fighting equipment
- Rescue tools

(From "The Family Fallout Shelter" booklet) Free upon request: Box Home Shelter, Battle Creek, Michigan.



For Family Protection In Nuclear War

ANOTHER type of shelter which gives excellent fallout protection can be built as an added room to the basement of a home under construction. It would add about $500 to the total cost of the home. The shelter illustrated here is based on such a room built into a new home in the Washington, D. C., area in the Spring of 1959. Important considerations for each type of shelter are: arrangement of the entrance, ventilation, radio reception and lighting. "The Family Fallout Shelter," an OCDM publication, contains plans for five basic fallout shelters. Copies may be obtained by writing: Box Home Shelter, Battle Creek, Mich.

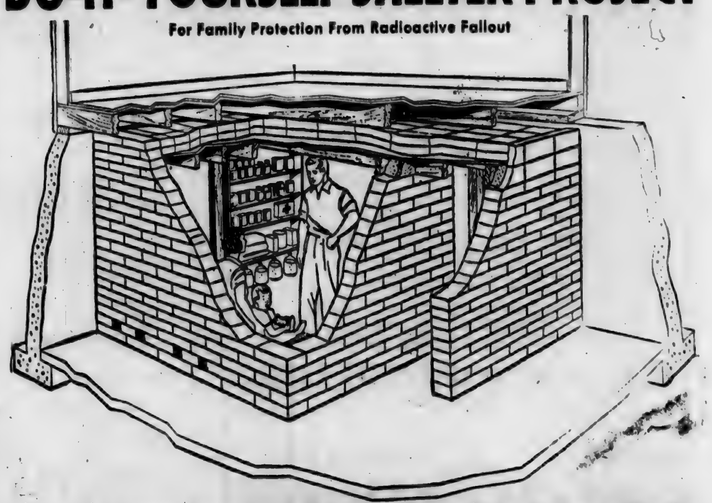
UNDERGROUND CONCRETE SHELTER

For Family Protection From Radioactive Fallout

AN UNDERGROUND reinforced concrete shelter like this can be built for about $1,000 to $1,500 by a contractor. The illustration shows the shelter with roof at ground level and mounded over. The same shelter could be built into an embankment or below ground level. For plans write: Box Home Shelter, Battle Creek, Mich.

DO-IT-YOURSELF SHELTER PROJECT

For Family Protection From Radioactive Fallout



BASEMENT SHELTERS generally are the least expensive type that will give substantial protection. The basement shelter shown here can be built with solid concrete blocks as a do-it-yourself project for $150 to $300. Standard 8-inch solid concrete blocks are recommended because hollow blocks would have to be filled with concrete to give effective protection. Bricks are an alternative. If they are used, the walls and roof should be 10 inches thick to give the same protection as 8-inch solid concrete blocks. Plans for this do-it-yourself project appear in "The Family Fallout Shelter," OCDM booklet. Copies may be obtained from Box Home Shelter, OCDM, Battle Creek, Michigan.

Softball Ends

The 1959 softball season ot the Saint Joe Church League came to a climax last week as the Saint Joe Church of Christ defeated Meese - Rehobeth - Concord-Norris Methodist 10-0 in the final play-off game. A forfeit by the Saint Joe team to the Methodists on August 14 necessitated a second meeting between the two teams.

The champions went through their regular schedule without a defeat, winning five games in preparation for the double-elimination play-off.

Final standings were as follows:

TEAM	W	L
Saint Joe Ch. Chr.	5	0
Methodists	3	2
Saint Joe Lutheran	3	2
Coburntown	2	3
Mt. Pleasant	2	3
Spencerville Lutheran	0	5

The coveted sportsmanship trophy, awarded by vote of players on all league teams, was won by the Saint Joe Lutheran team for the second consecutive year. The team has also won the award one other year.

A game between the champion Church of Christ team and a team of all-stars from the other participating teams was won by the champions last week.

Around the Town

With the Editor

The younger set is getting a good taste of what troubles you can run into when laws and rules are set up and someone has to use some judgment in seeing that the rules are abided by.

There is a lot of enthusiasm for the bicycle club—and there is also a lot of enthusiasm for watching one another to get the goods on 'em. Everybody's a policeman and they have to have witnesses to press a case against a member and, o boy, you should hear the arguments going on sometimes. And you never saw so many hand signals in your life as we have in town now.

Some of the members were out for their one last fling this week. They thought enforcement wouldn't begin until next week so they were riding around sans signals, etc.

It reminded me of the situation when the young man finds his one and only, he can't live without her and proposes marriage, she accepts, then he attends a stag given by his male pals as one last fling before losing his "freedom."

The kids are having the same perplexities with their bicycle club as grown ups have with the church—arguing over a set of rules becomes more important in itself than understanding what the rules seek to accomplish.

Modern living has its complex problems and sometimes it looks as if you just can't win. F'instance, our automobiles got so big and bulky that we turned to the smaller foreign cars to "run around" in, you know, those short trips for shopping, to get the kids, etc. But look what happens.

The Mayer sisters stopped in this week for some poster board, which happens to be 22 inches by 28 inches. As they left the shop, Priscilla commented, "Oh, I hope we can get it in the car." I thought, "Huh?! Get the poster board in the car?" But a glance out the window to see their little blue puddle-jumper brought a world of understanding. You know, that poster board DOES make it a pretty tight squeeze.

Local News

An International truck driven by Frank Ross of Saint Joe and a Plymouth station wagon driven by Fred Loeffler of Jackson, Mich., were involved in a colision Monday in Auburn. Damage to the car was estimated at $200 with $75 damage to the truck.

Anita and Bob Baker and daughter, Pam, of Chicago, spent their vacation with his parents, the C. E. Bakers. Mrs. Baker will be remembered as the former Anita Lawson. She reports that her parents are moving to Demott, Indiana, 30 miles south of Valparaiso, where Mr. Lawson has accepted a position as science teacher. Mrs. Lawson will teach the first grade.

Mrs. Harold Furnish and daughter, Grace Ann, visited Saturday evening in the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Inlow.

Improvements Noted In Town

The past several weeks have seen an increase in activity by homeowners and business establishments in the realm of property improvement and expansion. Such work serves to enhance the standing of the community in the eyes of the public and creates the desire on the part of others to get in on community improvement by making improvements on their own property.

Two new homes are being constructed in Kline's addition at the southwest corner of Saint Joe. Mr. and Mrs. Earl Chamberlin are building a home, having resided on their lot in a housetrailer for the past two years before beginning construction of a permanent-type residence. Just to the north of the Chamberlins another new home is under construction owned by Bob and Sue Richmond.

New construction is also underway in the business section. Vinson's market is constructing a 22x32 cement block building as an extension to their present building. Negotiations are presently in progress with the possibility that the post office may be moved into the new structure.

Halt Furniture and Hardware is erecting a building which will connect their store building with the warehouse at the rear of the property. This will mean not only convenience in handling of merchandise but also additional space for display.

Other improvements have been noted in the town. Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Evans have added on to their home. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rosenberry have a new cement block porch on their home. Mrs. Lena Meek is making improvements on her property. Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ewell have made their home more comfortable and attractive.

New siding and painting of the trim are improvements being given the Monty Likes property.

In addition to these instances of building construction and remodeling, there has been a wielding of the paint brush, all of which indicates better things for the physical appearance of Saint Joe as well as the personal comfort of its private citizens.

It's Fall-School Opens Friday

Students of Riverdale schools will register for the 1959-1960 school year on Friday, September 4. Registration will begin at 9:30 a.m. DST, according to Principal Joe Smith.

School buses will make their regular runs Friday morning to bring students to the elementary school at Spencerville and the junior high and high school at Saint Joe. Registration requires only a brief time with students usually returning to their homes before noon.

The only equipment needed for registration day is a pencil and students are asked to bring pencils with them. Book rental money is payable next Tuesday, September 8, when classes will begin their regular sessions. Rental for elementary grades is $7.50, for the upper grades $8.00.

With school once again in the offing, parents of students will be pleased to note that the school cafeterias will be in operation offering a balanced diet prepared especially to meet the needs and likes of boys and girls of school age.

The menu for the junior high and high school at Saint Joe for the next two weeks has been announced by Mrs. Willard Hurni as follows:

Tuesday, Sept. 8—sloppy joe sandwich, sliced tomatoes, green beans and raspberry cobler.

Wednesday, Sept. 9—mashed potatoes, hamburger gravy, vegetable and fruit.

Thursday, Sept. 10—hamburger and spaghetti, cabbage salad, ice cream and cookie.

Friday, Sept. 11—potato salad, cheese, vegetable and apple sauce.

Monday, Sept. 14 — baked beans and weiners, lettuce salad and cherry cobler.

Tuesday, Sept. 15 — mashed potatoes, beef and noodles, sliced tomatoes and ginger bread.

Wednesday, Sept. 16 — ham salad sandwich, escalloped corn, celery and carrot sticks and fruit.

Thursday, Sept. 17 — beef stew, brownies and fruit salad.

Friday, Sept. 18—escalloped potatoes with cheese, vegetable, peanut butter sandwich, ice cream and cookie.

Bread and butter and milk are served with all meals.

The Saint Joe News
St. Joe, Indiana

Dear Ted:

Thanks very much for sending me the marked copy of your editorial on "Anti-Labor Legislation-A Misnomer" and also "Farming as a Business vs. Government Politicians". I have read both of these articles with interest. As you know, I voted for the Landrum-Griffin Amendment to the labor bill when it was adopted in the House. This proposal and the Senate approved measure are now in Conference to resolve differences between the two pieces of legislation.

I also thought the article on agriculture was most timely. You know that I have introduced a farm bill which would repeal the existing program but the measure is just pending before the House Agriculture Committee.

With kind regards.

Very sincerely yours,
E. Ross Adair
Member of Congress

The Hamilton Lake Ski Show will be held Sunday, September 6, at 2 p.m. at Cold Springs Resort. With four inboards instead of the usual two for towing, the club will have 29 boys and 20 girls performing in the two-hour show. There will be backward skiing, five girls pulled behind one boat, and four members of the ski club taken over the jump at one time. It is expected that this will be the best show ever offered by the club and will include a kite which lifts the skier several feet off the water.

MT. HAMILTON'S "BIG EYE" — Mt. Hamilton, Calif. — Visible through the open doors of the dome is the nearly-completed 120-inch telescope at the University of California's Lick Observatory here. The telescope, when it is put into operation later this year, will be the second largest in the world. With it scientists will explore millions of space 800-million light years distant. The observer's cage, at the prime focus of the four-ton mirror, is located atop the 85-foot tube.

To Select From Youth Exchange Candidates

DeKalb County farm youths between 20 and 30 years of age may now file applications for reservations to go abroad under the 1960 International Farm Youth Exchange program. Only unmarried young men and women with an outstanding farm and organizational background can qualify for the "good will ambassador" program, according to Ernest Lesiuk, DeKalb County agricultural agent.

Preliminary application forms may be obtained from the county extension office. They must be completed and returned to the State 4-H Club Department at Purdue University prior to September 19.

Personal interviews will be held Saturday, September 26, at Purdue.

The six youths selected as I-FYE delegates will live abroad with farm families next year and on their return to Indiana will be expected to relate their experiences at various group meetings.

The costs of the foreign assignments are shared by the counties, the Purdue Collegiate 4-H Club, the Agricultural Extension Service and the National 4-H Foundation.

Eric Holm, state leader of the IFYE program at Purdue, said that 34 Hoosiers have gone abroad since the program's beginning. 66 foreign visitors have lived with 237 farm families in 84 counties.

Youths At Fair

Five DeKalb County 4-H boys and girls are attending camps at the Indiana State Fair in Indianapolis.

On Monday three girls left for the girls' school of economics. Attending are Esther Fetters of Saint Joe and Sandra and Mary Jane Moughler of Butler.

The school is held each year to give young women of rural Indiana an opportunity to receive special training in the many phases of home making and community building. Girls must be 16 to 21 years of age, single, have no college training and be outstanding in their activities in various counties.

The county home demonstration council is the sponsoring organization.

Paul Smith and Clarence Bry are attending the boys camp. Two boys are awarded the trip each year on the basis of achivement and tenure of 4-H club membership in the county.

The trip is sponosred by the 4-H Club Council.

Purpose of the camp is to provide good sleeping quarters, food and educational activities to livestock exhibitors, State Fair judging teams or achievement trip winners.

Bob Wilder In Campus Activity

Bob Wilder of Saint Joe, a sophomore on the Indiana University campus at Bloomington, is participating in two activities as the fall term approaches. He attended the 1959 Disciples of Christ Student Fellowship Conference August 25-31 at Association Camp near Estes Park, Colorado. The conference included 500 students from 100 college and university campuses from the United States as well as several foreign countries.

Theme for the conference was "The Mission of the Church in the Whole World."

Bob is also among 192 candidates who will try out September 8 at the annual Marching Hundred-Hoosierettes band camp.

The candidates, including 54 returning bandsmen and 26 coeds who marched last year with the Hoosierettes, will spend two weeks in concentrated drills and rehearsals under the direction of Ronald D. Gregory, I.U. director of bands. Three rehearsals will be held daily during the first week, while the second week their activities will be dovetailed with Freshman Orientation Week.

Bob will try out for the I.U. Marching Hundred drum section.

The 1959 band schedule includes home football appearances at the Illinois game Sept. 26, Marquette Oct. 10, Michigan Nov. 14 and Purdue Nov. 21; Vincennes Band Festival Oct. 12; away game with Northwestern Oct. 31 at Evanston; and the Homecoming Variety Show at I.U. Nov. 13.

Spencerville News

Janice Hollabaugh, Reporter

The graduating class of 1934 of Spencerville High School celebrated their twenty-fifth anniversary Sunday, August 30, with a carry-in dinner at Eckhart Park in Auburn. There were 12 graduates two of whom are deceased, Fred Stemen and Frank Hamilton. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Schrader and family of Saint Joe, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Witmer and family and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Means and family of Leo, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hensley of Leonidas, Mich., Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Leas and daughter of Auburn and Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Emenhiser and daughter of Spencerville. Notes of regret for not being able to attend were read from Mildred Anderson Bennet, a class member from Everett, Washington, Mrs. Frank Jones of Battle Creek, Mich., and Miss Ida A. Reed of Spencerville, the latter two former teachers of the class.

Last week Mr. C. F. Hollopeter of New Madrid, Mo., spent several days with the M. H. Hollabaughs. Recently Barbara and Sue Hemrick, daughters of the Dick Hemricks of New Haven, visited in the same home.

Mike Frankhauser and Dave Edgar visited their aunt and uncle, the Paul O. Vogts, last week.

Last week Miss Cheryl Norris visited her cousin, Miss Susan Brendel.

The J. S. Hollabaughs had as Sunday dinner guests Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Launtz of Battle Creek.

On Saturday afternoon at 2 p.m. Miss Linda Harts and Mr. Bruce Laux were united in marriage at St. Peter Lutheran Church, Rev. Ivan O. Miller officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Kenneth Ridgway and Mr. Austin Harts and the groom is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Laux.

For the past two weeks Mrs. Flossie Rhoades has enjoyed the company of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Ella Emrich, of Huntertown. On Thursday her nieces, Mrs. Thelma Syders of Cincinnati and Mrs. Paul Howe and son, Curt, of Hamilton, visited Mrs. Rhoades.

The Ladies Aid of St. Peter Lutheran Church meet in the church basement Thursday, September 3, with Mrs. Francis Doll and Mrs. Izetta Chaney as hostesses.

Mrs. John Weidner remains in poor health.

The W.S.C.S., Martha Circle, of the Methodist Church met with Mrs Rod Trout, hostess, and Mrs Paul Graham, cohostess, on Tuesday afternoon with devotions given by Rev. Trout and the lesson by Mrs. Vaughn Allen. On Tuesday evening the Queen Esther Circle met with Mrs. Margaret Jacobson, hostess, and Mrs. Betty Rediger, co-hostess. Mrs. Naomi Trout gave the devotions and Mrs. Virgil Laux led the lesson.

While touring Europe this summer Mr. and Mrs. M. George Hollabaugh had a wonderful five days in Munich and were fortunate to be in that city when the meeting of German Lutheran churches began. They spent the day at the exhibits talking with the participants and enjoying tea with Pastor Geyer, one of the Munich ministers. Doris and George enjoyed dinner that evening with several people they had met during their stay.

Class Plans Reunion

The 1959 picnic of the Reunion Association of Concord Township High School will be held Sunday, September 13, 1959, at the Alton Park Community House located two miles east of Saint Joe on state road 101. A pot luck dinner will be served at 12:30 p.m.

The organization started a few years ago under the direction of the Class of 1917. Last year the class invited members of all classes from 1910 to 1920 inclusive. 66 attended the reunion. It was then decided to expand and include classes from the beginning of Saint Joe High School's existence to the year 1920, then even including later classes if there were those who wished to attend. This plan was adopted for the 1959 meeting.

Officers elected last year for 1959 were William Quance of Auburn, president; Mrs. Pauline Baumgartner of Spencerville, secretary; and Mrs. Gladys Treesh of Auburn (now deceased), treasurer.

TREATMENT FOR CHILDREN, in many cases, can be fun. This is one of the basic tenets of doctors and other staff members at treatment and rehabilitation centers operated by the Sister Kenny foundation. Shown exercising her legs by riding a specially-built "trike" is this little girl who was receiving Kenny treatment and rehabilitation for cerebral palsy. Under its expanded program, the Kenny foundation now provides treatment and rehabilitation for patients of all ages with neuromuscular disabilities, including polio.

Treatment and rehabilitation for polio patients is and will continue to be a vital concern of the Sister Kenny foundation as long as the disease exists. The foundation provides care and treatment for acute cases and rehabilitation services for those who are left with crippling aftereffects.

Favorite Comic Page Characters Back Kenny Appeal

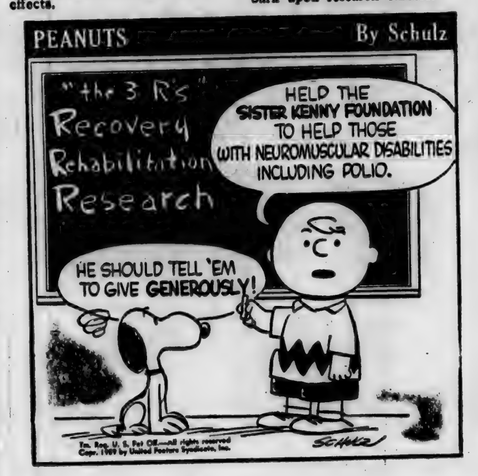
Minneapolis, Minn. — Favorite characters who populate the comic pages of the nation's press are again joining in the plea for generous contributions to the 1959 annual fund appeal of the Sister Elizabeth Kenny foundation, according to Al Capp, national volunteer chairman. Capp is creator of the "Li'l Abner" newspaper comic strip.

Capp

Voicing their appeals in especially - prepared cartoons, drawn gratis by their creators, which are appearing in daily and weekly newspapers throughout the country, these comic characters include "Blondie" by Chic Young, "Bugs Bunny" by Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., "Peanuts" by Schulz, "Li'l Abner" by Al Capp, "Miss Peach" by Mell, "Big Ben Bolt" by John C. Murphy and "Forest Friends" by Walt Disney.

Capp said the Kenny foundation provides a treatment and rehabilitation program for victims of neuromuscular disabilities and diseases, including polio, regardless of race, age, creed or financial circumstances.

The foundation also sponsors extensive medical research into neuromuscular disabilities, including polio, at its own facilities and leading hospitals and universities across the country. In addition, it provides financial assistance for qualified medical doctors to embark upon research careers.



NURSING AIDES — Three nurses aides pity the plight of the piggy who can't get waited on! The scene took place in the swine barn at the 1958 Indiana State Fair shortly after birth of the litter. The nurses stopped by after duty at the Red Cross emergency hospital on the Fairgrounds. This year's Fair is September 2 through 10.

Legislation enacted by the Congress in 1957 permits farmers whose wheat acreage allotments are less than 30 acres to grow up to 30 acres of wheat for use exclusively on the farm where produced as seed, human food or livestock and poultry feed. To be eligible for this exemption from the provisions of the Wheat Marketing Quota Program, all producers having an interest in the wheat on a farm must file a Feed Wheat Application with the local ASC County Office. The final date for filing application for wheat for harvest in 1960 has been established nationally as 15 days after the producer has been mailed his notification of 1960 measured wheat acres.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Inlow of near Hicksville are the parents of a baby girl, born Monday afternoon, August 31, at Hicksville Community Hospital. The baby weighed six lbs. twelve ozs., and has been named Sharman Ann. This is the couple's sixth child, their fifth daughter.

The DeKalb County Farm Bureau directors met Monday night, August 24, at the Farm Bureau Building in Auburn. Plans were completed for the county picnic, also for the Auburn fair. There will be a booth in the industrial tent where 1960 memberships will be accepted. There will be a pet and hobby float in the parade on Saturday. Judge Harold Stump addressed the group on juvenile delinquency. Carl Sliger Rural Youth chairman, announced that their group would clip corn tops at road intersections as a safety precaution if owners would notify them. District community leaders meeting and flower show will be held at the Van Orman Hotel in Fort Wayne September 16 at 9:45 a.m. Anyone may show flowers. The county Farm Bureau annual meeting will be October 22 when a secretary and women leader will be elected.

Mrs. Louise Lawrence of Defiance and Mr. and Mrs. John Kleas and Joseph Like of New Bavaria spent Sunday afternoon with Clara and Joe Foltz. Mrs. Lawrence is an aunt of Mrs. Foltz, the others are cousins.

Joe Vinson, Merle Holden Phil Carpenter, Mike Haberkorn and Ted Haberkorn attended the Cubs-Braves game at Chicago Friday.

All-day guests, bringing a basket picnic with them, with the Joe Foltzs were Mr. and Mrs. Don Cox, Mrs. Gertrude Cox and Mrs. Lola (Cox) Notschke, all of Toledo.

Chairman Ray Miller of the DeKalb County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee has announced a change in the method of determining wheat history acreage for wheat farms on which the allotment is underseeded. The change is the result of a law which has just gone into effect and which is designed to help farmers who underplant protect their future wheat allotments. Under the new law, a farmer who plants no wheat for 1960 harvest may still obtain maximum history acreage credit for 1960 if his actual planted acreage of wheat in either 1958 or 1959, plus any acreage diverted from wheat under the Soil Bank, was equal to 75 per cent of his farm wheat allotment. If a farmer does not meet this requirement and wants to get maximum wheat history credit for 1960, then he must meet the 75 per cent planting requirement for 1960. In addition, a farmer who is prevented from seeding wheat for the 1960 crop because of unfavorable weather can preserve his maximum 1960 wheat history agreage credit if he notifies the county committee by December 1, 1959, and the committee makes an official determination of this fact. —phew!

Carol Jean Baker, daughter of the Clayton A. Bakers, and John Baker, son of the Clayton E. Bakers, enjoyed a wonderful week at Camp Lutherwald last week.

A pot luck dinner and reception was held Sunday noon at St. Mark Lutheran Church for Rev. and Mrs. William Billow. The young couple, who are home on one year furlougr after five years of missionary work in Japan, showed slides of their life in a foreign land.

Masons To Visit Home

J. Carl Humphrey of Muncie, Grand Master of Masons in Indiana, has announced that Sunday, September 13, is the Masonic Fraternity's annual visitation day at the Indiana Masonic Home in Franklin.

For the twelfth consecutive year, thousands of Indiana Masons and members of the Eastern Star, with their families and friends, will converge on Franklin from every section of the state to attend this mammoth "Masonic Family" get-together. Visitors will chat with permanent guests of the home, tour the spacious buildings and grounds and view the progress of administration policies and the improvements that are constantly going forward at this fraternal home.

Special interest will be centered in the home's new $2,000,000 Nursing Hospital, completed in 1957, the first geriatric hospital erected in Indiana and now a model for the nation.

Other features will include a band concert by the award-winning Franklin High School Band, specialties by members of the Orders of DeMolay, Job's Daughters and the Rainbow Girls, and, in keeping with the day, a vesper service conducted by the Rev. Robert L. Hall, the fraternity's Grand Chaplain and pastor of the First Congregational Church in Michigan City.

The Indiana Masonic Home is located on a 320-acre tract at the south edge of Franklin. It is maintained by the Masonic Fraternity and the Order of the Eastern Star Of Indiana to provide for indigent members and their families. Started in 1915, it has grown steadily and now ranks among the leading fraternal homes of the United States. Currently its population is 435.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
International Uniform Sunday School Lessons
BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Bible material: Obadiah; Jonah 1 and 2.

Devotional reading: Psalm 37:1-9.

GOING AGAINST GOD
Lesson for September 6, 1959

You would never think that such a fool lived on earth as to try to go against God. But there not only have been such fools, there are such nowadays, and you and I, dear Reader, may be two of them. Look at the testimony of the Bible; look around you in the church and the world; look into your own heart; and you may be convinced.

Yes, in the church and in the world; for even God's own people go against him, as fractious children kick and scream when their mother is trying to do them good. Consider the cases of Obadiah and Jonah. Obadiah is a little 2-page "book" mostly about the sins of Edomites, who were enemies of God's people to start with. Jonah is all about the sins of Jonah, one of God's prophets. The curious fact is that both the Edomites and Jonah were guilty of the same kinds of sins. Both worked against God.

Pride

The Edomites as a nation, at the time of Obadiah, were a proud people. They had wealth, they had power, they occupied a territory where an invading army had scarcely a chance. Being proud, they could not believe that any evil could touch them. They were immune, serene, never to be conquered. They had defied men; they were prepared to defy God.

Jonah the prophet also was proud. He was so proud, so sure he knew what to do and when to do it, that when God told him to go preach to Nineveh, he not only did not go but he paid the fare for a long sea voyage in the exactly opposite direction to Tarshish. The peak and center and symptom of the sin of pride is this conviction, "God doesn't know best; I do!"

Violence

The prophet Obadiah condemns Edom, in the name of God, for their violence in war against their "brother Jacob", meaning Israel. We all object loudly to violence in war when somebody else is doing it. From the days of Grant and Sherman, whose names are not yet revered in the land that sorely felt their violence, to these perilous times when we can't say enough against the Russian rocketeers, the victims of violence don't like it. The thing the Japanese did to us at Pearl Harbor we did to them, only more so. We didn't like it when they did it; they didn't like it when we did it.

But it is not only "godless" nations that love violence. God-fearing individuals may be found shrieking "Kill him!" Jonah the prophet (to get into next week's story a little) was not content with preaching as the Lord commanded. He wanted to see Nineveh burn, and was bitterly disappointed when the fireworks did not go off.

"You Stood Aloof"

A careful study of Obadiah 11-14 shows that what Edom did to Israel was not so much actual attack as it was just standing by and doing nothing, or cheering on the armies which did the fighting. The Edomites were the looters, the camp-followers of the main enemy. They did comparatively little actual damage themselves, but they were pleased to see it done.

Jonah likewise kept himself aloof from Nineveh and Ninevites. He did not encourage their repentance, he did not like it. He evidently thought the only good Ninevite was a dead one, not a repentant one. He could not put himself in their place. He could sympathize with God's anger, but not with his mercy. The 120,000 babies of Nineveh meant something to God; nothing to Jonah.

"As You Have Done—"

God plays no favorites. Going against him is complete folly, it is absolute sin. If God had no use for violence, pride and selfish aloofness in the time of the prophets, has he changed today? Is America such a favorite nation with God that all our own pride and violence can go unnoticed by the Almighty? "As you have done, it shall be done to you" echoes down the ages as a warning to all. Wind is the seed of whirlwind.

State Office Building Ready In 1960

Corner-stone laying ceremonies for the big $16 million structure, and also for the new $2,200,000 Employment Security Building, will be held at 2:30 p.m. Friday, October 9.

The 14-story limestone and glass-faced structure, encompassing 816,000 square feet gross area, will house more than 50 departments of government. These departments presently are scattered about the downtown area in 18 different rental properties representing an annual outlay of about $1 million including maintenance. Substantial savings are anticipated by having a centralized mailing department and central stationery and supply control. A central location for business machines and data processing also will make for greater economy.

The building will contain a cafeteria with a feeding capacity of more than 3,000 persons.

Underground tunnels to the State Library Building and parking lots, where there will be parking space for 1,400 automobiles, will ease the pedestrian traffic problem. A tunnel under Senate Avenue will connect the present Statehouse, where elected officials will remain, and the new office building for free-flowing foot traffic.

Window-washing will be facilitated by a motorized unit operating on tracks around the roof.

The new State Office Building is going up at the rate of two floors per month. Structural framework is to be completed in February of 1960 and occupancy of the building is scheduled late the same year.

SAINT JOE VALLEY HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Saint Joe falley Home Demonstration Club entertained the Jackson Township club August 21 at the Mt. Pleasant Church. Hostess was Mary Trenary and co-hostesses were Emma Trenary and Mary Washler.

The president, Nancy Coburn, called the meeting to order with all repeating the club collect. Devotions were by Mary Washler. The history of the song of the month was by Elizabeth Shull and all joined in singing "A Merry Life."

The lesson on first aid was given by Doris Yeiser. The secretary's report was read and approved. 20 members answered roll call by telling their favorite TV program and introducing their partner from Jackson Township who also gave her favorite TV program.

There were 14 guests and 7 children.

The club was invited to Waterloo by the Franklin club on Wednesday, September 2, for an all-day meeting.

The meeting closed with the singing of the prayer song.

The social hour was in charge of Audrie Walter and Elizabeth Shull. Refreshments were served by the hostesses.

TWO HOURS, NEW YORK TO PARIS — New York — This is a Lockheed artist's conception of an airliner of the future — a dart-shaped craft capable of traveling at 2,000 miles per hour. Powered by chemically-fueled jet engines, it would carry about 80 passengers and could operate from standard-length metropolitan runways. Such a plane would be able to make the trip from New York to Paris in two hours.

General Telephone Company of Indiana, in connection with its rate petition currently pending before the Public Service Commission, has released certain business figures pertaining to the company's operating experience over the past several years along with the expected monthly income to be generated by the company's proposed rates. The proposed rates will add about $126,000 in monthly revenue (after taxes). A company official stated that General's rate of earnings will decline for the month of August for the 32nd straight month. This is due to increased operating costs and the company's capital investment and expansion program. The rate hike does not affect the Saint Joe exchange.

How your neighbors live better electrically

"With an ALL-ELECTRIC laundry, our young son needs fewer clothes,"

Says Mrs. Louis Snow

"Yet he always has plenty of clean clothes, regardless of the weather outside.

"My little son, Mark, is two years old," says Mrs. Snow, "and you can imagine how hard he is on clothes. He's growing like a 'weed'! But I make sure he always has plenty of clean clothes by putting my all-electric laundry to work every other day, rain or shine. Protecting YOU Labor Day Week End

"Stop Murder" is the key phrase of Indiana's most extensive state-wide crusade against traffic slaughter. It will be invoked during the Labor Day week end with every available facility of state and local enforcement agencies participating.

Gov. Harold W. Handley has assured that a full-scale onslaught on slaughter will be waged. Not only will the full force of State Police and Indiana National Guard patrols be used during a four-day period, but all sheriffs and city police will augment the drive during the week end.

State Traffic Director Lucien C. Bever announced that all enforcement agencies have been solidified for a broadside protection of lives. The hand-in-hand program used so effectively during the July 4th week end when State Police and National Guard patrolled roads with two-way radio contact, again will be used to full extent.

Cong. Adair Reports On Trip To Poland

As a United States delegate to the Interparliamentary Conference, I had an opportunity to spend a few days in Warsaw, Poland. Because of important votes coming up in the House of Representatives, my stay was cut short and I returned to this country sooner than I had expected. However, I was there long enough to observe a great deal and to reach some conclsuions.

Religion Fourishes In Poland—Especially since the Revolution in October of 1956 at which time the Polish people threw off some, but by no means all, of the communist controls, they have been able to worship with much more freedom. The country is almost entirely Roman Catholic and the vast majority of the people freely and openly attend religious services in spite of the fact that this is frowned upon by the communist dictators. This is a very significant factor because I believe that the deep religious convictions of the Polish people have given them strength to withstand the war, death, destruction and communist domination of the last twenty years. Last Sunday morning I passed one church which was apparently crowded beyond capacity. There were a considerable number of people standing outside and joining in the worship in that way.

The Polish People Have a Fierce Love of Freedom — Again in spite of the communist dictatorship everywhere you see evidence of the fact that the Poles do love their freedom and individual liberty. They have demonstrated throughout their long history that they are willing to fight for it and that attitude still persists. Some people inquire, then why didn't they go further with their revolution of October 1956? To which they may answer, they went as far as they could to achieve additional freedoms which they now enjoy. Their further point of view is, and it has considerable merit, that if they had pressed matters further, they might have been treated like the Hungarians were and consequently lost all that they had gained. As it is, they have made an appreciable step forward in achieving a measure of liberty—but they still have a long way to go.

The Poles Are Friendly — Even for those of us who could not speak the language, it was apparent that the Polish people were very friendly to citizens of the United States. When one went down the street they would smile and nod in a cordial manner. Some suggested that this was because so many of them have relatives in our country and I think that is partially true, but beyond that I think they have a real liking for us and hope to achieve such freedom and self-government as we enjoy.

Warsaw Is Being Rebuilt — Although during the war, between first the Nazi and then the Russian invaders, 85 per cent of Warsaw was destroyed, it is being rebuilt with amazing rapidity. Large areas of the city were reduced to heaps of brick and rubble and from these new buildings and new homes must rise. There are still many areas which have not been rebuilt but the important thing is that the Polish people are moving ahead with the limited facilities available to them, and are rebuilding their capital city.

—Cong. E. Ross Adair, Fourth District.

PTA 'Social' To Introduce New Teachers

With the beginning of the new school year, activities are underway not only for the students but also for the parents. The first meeting of the Riverdale P.T.A. for the 1959-1960 school year will be held next Tuesday evening, September 15, at 7:30 p.m. at the high school gym in Saint Joe.

With a total of 11 new faculty members now at Riverdale, P.T.A. president Ted Haberkorn suggests to parents that next Tuesday will be an opportune time to meet the new teachers as the P.T.A has a "get-acquainted" meeting to start the year. The "ice breaker" social meeting was held last year to introduce teachers to parents and will be held again this year.

To help warm the feeling of friendship at the meeting, refreshments of coffee and donuts will be served. Mrs. Herbert Amstutz is chairman of the refreshment committee.

Other officers for the new school year are Mrs. Robert Davis, vice-president; Mrs. Robert Musser, secretary; and Mrs. Virgil Laux, treasurer.

Tentative plans for the coming year call for participation of the various grades in programs throughout the year. This will augment the presentations made by speakers and other program personnel.

Parents, patrons and teachers are urged and invited to attend the meeting.

Public Apathy Hinders Hospital Movement

The hospital petition circulated for the past few weeks, gained a total of around 2,500 signatures, freeholders of DeKalb County who desire to have a hospital board appointed by the county commissioners to investigate the hospital needs of the county.

The 2,500 signers represents about 15 per cent of the freeholders in the county. 30 per cent of the freeholders must sign the petition in order to obtain authority for the commissioners to appoint a board.

No announcement has been made of the future of the hospital movement since the response of the public has not been as expected and hoped for. Biggest response was gained in Butler where 574 signatures were obtained, representing 51.5 per cent of the estimated 1,115 freeholders in that city. In Waterloo 239 freeholders signed, or 33.7 per cent. In Auburn only 427, or 12.9 per cent ,signed the petition. And in Garrett there were 97 signers.

Greatest success in obtaining signatures was found in Franklin, Spencer, Stafford, Troy and Wilmington townships.

The deadline of August 31 was set for circulating the petition.

Tabulations last week showed the following totals:

Auburn 427, Garrett 87, Butler city 574, Waterloo 239, Ashley 24, Corunna 18, Altona 2, Saint Joe 17, Butler Township 2 ,Concord 35, Fairfield 7, Franklin 181, Grant 38, Jackson 41, Keyser 7, Newville 6, Richland 22, Spencer 90, Smithfield 49, Stafford 57, Troy 80, Union 39 and Wilmington 180.

Class Plans Reunion

The 1959 picnic of the Reunion Association of Concord Township High School will be held Sunday, September 13, 1959, at the Alton Park Community House located two miles east of Saint Joe on state road 101. A pot luck dinner will be served at 12:30 p.m.

The organization started a few years ago under the direction of the Class of 1917. Last year the class invited members of all classes from 1910 to 1920 inclusive. 66 attended the reunion. It was then decided to expand and include classes from the beginning of Saint Joe High School's existence to the year 1920, then even including later classes if there were those who wished to attend. This plan was adopted for the 1959 meeting.

Officers elected last year for 1959 were William Quance of Auburn, president; Mrs. Pauline Baumgartner of Spencerville, secretary; and Mrs. Gladys Treesh of Auburn (now deceased), treasurer.

On Vacations

Most of us look upon that period in our work year which we refer to as our "vacation" as being a time when we do something different from the ordinary routine of things in our world of toil. And I think we associate something "different" with being away from our usual habitat; at least, that is the way I've thought of a vacation. But it has become apparent with the passing years that a vacation isn't what it seemed it must be, a chance to "get away from it all" in the literal sense.

This year's vacation for me (and the remainder of the family) was really something different. We preluded our special week with a trip to Chicago and a ball game. Otherwise, our vacation was spent in our own backyard. Though the lure of the lake was still present, there was, surprisingly enough, a great deal of pleasure derived from, of all things, doing the wash for Mom while she was busy canning the fruits of our garden. I think I might become a wash fiend if I had washing to do regularly. It's a challenge in a way to set up a workable schedule of running a load, hanging it out while another load goes through, not using too much hot water that you run out and ruin the schedule, and work in some other chore along with the wash. But the greatest enjoyment is in the refreshing and invigorating feeling as you inhale deeply of the clean smell of the clothing as it waves in the breeze. Thank goodness I have a nose that works so that I can flop in bed when the sheets are just changed, breathe deeply of that clean smell still clinging to the clean bed-clothing, and, ah-h-h-h-h, reflect on Mother Nature's kindness to us humans in that fresh-air fragrance.

Something else I enjoyed was the opportunity to putter around in a do-it-yourself effort. Time really flies when you become absorbed in woodworking. The smell of the wood, the pleasure of doing something that I've wanted to do for years but just didn't find time, the reward of seeing an object take shape as I delved into the intricacies of carpentry in my amateurish way (though the finished product almost was too big to get out of the basement), this was another part of my vacation.

There were other things which were enjoyed, too, such as gathering the tomatoes from our patch as they began the ripening process and made it necessary for more canning to be done. Sounds like an odd vacation, perhaps. But this year our vacation shows something more than "a week off." Though vacation was a week of work, it was a rewarding week. This year we have something to show for it.

—But the lure of the lake is still there.

Others have probably found out what has dawned on me in the recent past. "Vacation" is a state of mind.

Others say . . . .

GOOD EVENING

Our nation's foreign policy at present seems to be that this country will intervene in any war anywhere, unless it is an attempt, as in Hungary, to overthrow Communist tyrants. Such efforts of enslaved people to free themselves, we will regard as private quarrels in which we have no interest, except purely academic ones. But if it is a military quarrel in some other part of the world in which no one is particularly fighting for human freedom, we will stand right on the sidelines hoping for a chance to get in it. What gives, what gives, what gives?

Theoretically, the justification of all our many foreign commitments and our huge defense spending is to stop Communism, but after we ignored the abortive Hungarian revolt by freedom-seekers, we turned around and lent millions of the American taxpayers money to the puppet Hungarian red government. We have lent money to the Polish Reds and to the Czechoslovakian Reds. If Russia asked us for a loan tomorrow to buy more longe-range bombers, you'd find advocacy over here for the loan.

It is a terribly serious sin in the minds of the kind of American internationalists we have had for any American even to think of American self-interest, let alone speak on behalf of it. Yet it is very apparent that if we keep on doing indefinitely what we have been doing in the past, we will either break ourselves financially or so let the blood of this country on foreign battlefields that we will never recover sufficient strength to keep on living.

A few years ago we wrote something here critically of a foreign nation and within a week, one of the military personnel of that nation, based in Chicago, was in our office expressing his great displeasure over our effrontery in criticizing his country. He had the right to come here, which he exercised, and I had the right to throw him out, which to my regret now I did not exercise. I can imagine what would happen to an American in a foreign country taking to task anyone there for a criticism of America. In Hyde Park, London, almost any point of view can be expressed by an Englishman about anything, but woe be unto an American or any other foreigner who presumes as a guest in the country to avail himself of freedom of speech there. He is soon informed that he is out of his bailiwick, and I think rightly so. This country is almost so overpopulated with lobbyists for other countries, some paid and some volunteers, that you sometimes feel that the guests have taken over the house and assigned the back bedroom to the hosts. Maybe there should be a meeting on some far removed island of those now-surrounded people who feel no sin in worrying about the future, not of the world, not of the UN, not of NATO, not of England or France, but of the United States of America.

Some writer the other day cited the fact that God's commandment is "Love thy neighbor as thyself," with the commandment clearly implying that a proper love for one's self is not merely something allowable but something required. Anyone who doesn't have a proper regard for himself is guilty of wrongdoing too. A person has obligations to himself and to his family that come ahead of all other obligations except those he has to God. A man cannot morally risk his life needlessly, neither can the United States risk its life needlessly.

With another big feed supply in the making, Chairman Ray W. Miller of the DeKalb ASC Committee has reminded farmers who want to participate in the price-support program this fall and winter that adequate storage must be available. Mr. Miller urges that farmers look over their farm storage carefully and plan buying or building more structures if they are needed. Under the government farm storage facility loan program, a farmer may obtain a loan of up to 80 per cent of the cost of a new grain storage structure at 4 per cent interest. The loan runs for five years and may be paid in annual installments after the first year.

Says Mr. R. J. Wolf, Interior Decorator

"Our average monthly electric bill, including electric heat, is only $31.28.

"I'm an interior decorator and also have studied architecture. My job, planning homes, is to make them as comfortable as possible, yet cater to individual tastes. I personally selected an all-electric home for my family because I firmly believe electric heat and electric appliances offer the very best in savings, comfort and convenience."

Reddy says: "I&M electric rates have never been increased. If your electric bill is higher, it's because you're using electricity to take over so many more of your household tasks. Actually, the more you use each month, the less you pay per kilowatthour. Living better electrically costs so little, yet means so much."

Something Old . . . .

Perhaps the electric automobile may make a comeback, as some automotive sources say, but this 1922 Detroit Electric Coupe was restored to its former beauty by the Henry Ford Museum staff for the Ninth Annual Old Car Festival at Greenfield Village in Dearborn, Mich., on Sunday, September 20. The battery-driven vehicle, made by the Detroit Electric Car Company, sold for $4,000 when new. It will be used by Festival officials. Above, Donna White is at the controls as the car emerges from the Covered Bridge during a trial run in the Village. Nearly 400 antique automobiles, many of them participants in the Cincinnati-Detroit Glidden Tour revival, will make this Festival the biggest in history. Only cars built prior to 1926 are eligible. The Festival is a highlight of the Village's 30th Anniversary Year.

. . . And Something New

Heralding a new "breakthrough" in automotive design, the Ford Falcon — shown here with three views of the Fordor model — is all-new from the ground up. Functionally styled, the Falcon has a full length sculptured side panel that adds grace to its lines and provides greater strength for doors and side panels. The Falcon's all-new 90-horsepower six-cylinder engine is designed to give up to 50 per cent better gasoline mileage than standard cars.

College Conf. Sept. 21

A "College Transition Conference," sponsored by the Steuben-DeKalb County Committee On High School-College Cooperation, will be held Monday evening, September 21, at Tri-State College in Angola. Mr. Joe Smith, principal of Riverdale High School, will be one of the participants in the conference, one of 35 to be held throughout the state to study problems relating to the successful transition of young people from high school pupils to college students.

The week of September 21 has been proclaimed "Go To College Week" by Governor Harold W. Handley. The committee for the Angola conference has accordingly planned a program of interest to school administrators, high school teachers and counselors, high school pupils and their parents and members of school boards.

The conference opens at 4:30 Monday afternoon, September 21, so that teachers, pupils and parents may attend. Following the panel discussion at 4:30, dinner will be served at the Tri-State College cafeteria. Workshop sessions opening at seven o'clock start the evening program, with a closing session at 8:15 for the presentation of reports by workshop recorders.

Problems encountered by college freshmen will be discussed in the panel to be led by F. K. McCutchan, high school principal of Metropolitan Schools of Steuben. College students will be among the panel participants.

Workshop sessions will be given over to talks on high school preparation and college standards in English, adequate preparation in science and mathematics for college work, effective counseling and interpretation of tests, and college problems in gaining admission, planning finances and adjusting to campus life.

SERVICES FOR MRS. ADDIE MILLER

Funeral services were conducted Thursday for Mrs. Addie Miller, 80, of Spencerville who died Tuesday of last week at the Sheehy Nursing Home in Butler. She had been a patient at the home for approximately 9 weeks and was hospitalized for three prior to entering the nursing home. Mrs. Miller had been in ill health for two years and died of a complication of diseases.

Mrs. Miller was born January 2, 1879, in Cedar Creek Township, Allen County, the daughter of John and Harriett Bair. Her first husband, Safra Boger, whom she married in 1900, died in 1901. Her second husband, Adrian Miller, died on September 6, 1934. Mrs. Miller had been a resident of Spencerville for 25 years and was a member of the North Scipio Methodist Church.

Survivors include a stepson, Harold Miller, of Hicksville, a brother, Ross Bair, of Spencerville, and a sister, Mamie Bair, also of Spencerville.

SISTERS OF THE SKILLET HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Sisters of the Skillet Home Demonstration Club met August 27 at the Spencerville Community Building with the 4-H girls and their leaders as guests.

The meeting was opened by the president, Jean Moore, with everyone repeating the collect. Devotions were given by Sharon Bowser. The history of the song of the month, "A Merry Life," was given by Connie Hollabaugh who then led the singing of the song. Roll call was answered by 11 members and 12 guests.

A report was made by the fair booth chairman, Paula Roberts. The club members decided to sell candy and ribbon. A safety hint was given by each 4-H girl and club member. Each member was asked to bring her rummage to the September meeting.

The meeting closed with the prayer song. During the social hour, the entertainment committee, Gladys Akey, Dorothy Markle, Arden Dwyer, Connie Hollabaugh, Dorothy Christman and Marguerite Fish, had a record hop and games for the 4-H girls. Refreshments were then enjoyed by all.

Around the Town

With the Editor

It's always amazing how we can be reduced from ambitious and energetic individuals to weaklings in a matter of a few hours by those bugs that cause what we generalize into the term "the flu." They got me Wednesday and Thursday this week and that's why the paper's late.

Virgil Kimes was telling a fish story Monday about his experience at Crooked Lake.

He or someone else got a 2-lb. or so bass on the line and, as they worked it in, it swam past the boat so they could see it. Then as they continued to play the fish, it came back. Only "it" wasn't a bass any more, now "it" was a pike described by Virgil as "long as a broom." The only explanation seems to be that the pike took the bass that took the bait.

—Yep, it got away.

Stanley Davis Rites Held

Funeral services were conducted at Hicksville Saturday for Stanley E. Davis, 71, who resided in Newville Township. Mr. Davis died unexpectedly in his sleep Wednesday night of last week. His wife had been staying in Fort Wayne with a son while convalescing from an operation. Mr. Davis had been staying at home.

He had customarily eaten breakfast with a daughter, and when he did not arrive at the usual time, she went to the Davis home and, after removing a screen, entered to find him dead in bed, aparently the victim of a heart attack.

Mr. Davis was born October 12, 1887, in Newville Township, the son of John and Nancy Countryman Davis. He lived his entire life in Newville Township where as a young man he was a salesman for the Minneapolis Company, manufacturers of steam and gasoline engines. Later, along with his farming, he operated a threshing machine. For many years he then drilled wells and did well repairing.

Mr. Davis attended the Newville E.U.B. Church and was currently serving on the Riverdale school board.

Survivors include the wife, the former Claudia Poper; a daughter, Mrs. Lola Rucker of near Saint Joe; four sons, Loren of Fort Wayne, Keith of Antwerp, Richard of Saint Joe and Roland of Waterloo; 14 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren; a sister, Mrs. Ethel Engle of Hicksville; three brothers, Vaughn of Fort Wayne, Dale of Athens, Michigan, and Donald of Lorain, Ohio.

J. Paul Hill, pastor of Coburn Corners Church of Christ, conducted the funeral services. Burial was in Riverview Cemetery at Newville.

Plan For Yule Music Festival

Tentative plans were made last week for further organizing the musical talents of the community into a program to be presented during the coming Christmas season. Churches of this area and the music director of the Riverdale schools are cooperating in planning for the Christmas Choir Festival which will be given Sunday, December 13.

Mrs. Omer Hanson is chairman of the planning committee with representatives of the various churches to serve as members of the committee.

A meeting of the committee has been set for Tuesday, September 29, at 8:00 p.m. Representatives of the church choirs will meet that evening at the Saint Joe Church of Christ.

Community churches are urged to send representatives to this meeting to assist in programing. If the plan is successful, the festival may then be continued in coming years.

Recital Sunday

Students of Kay and Larry Halt will present a recital on Sunday afternoon, September 20, at 2:00 p.m. The recital will be given in the Riverdale High School gym at Saint Joe.

Those taking part in the program will be Melanie Carr, Connie Beck, Rowena Moore, Roger and Patricia Coburn, Ginny and Teresa Vinson, Cathy Wolfe, Linda Halt, Brenda and Marynelle Baker, Margaret and John Keith, Ricky Roberts, Jerry Bartell, June Perry, Ricky and Terry Chilcote, Elaine and Michael Dixon, Betty Renfrow, Sharon Ummel and Leitha Lanzer.

The public is cordially invited to attend.

Lions Resume Activities

The Saint Joe Lions Club began the 1959-60 year of activity Monday evening with a meeting held at Chaney's Restaurant in Spencerville.

Blaine Kimes is president of the organization.

The major portion of the meeting was devoted to planning for the food stand to be operated at the Lions' usual location at the County Fair, at the south side of the court house square.

Cons'n Club Opens 4th Trap

The shooting season is begining its year this month with the Saint Joe Conservation Club to hold a shoot on Sunday, September 27, after being idle since July.

The club has greatly increased its capacity during the last year with four traps now available for action. One trap was opened in June and the latest opened this month. Larger entries can now be handled in the club's shooting schedule.

The program for Sept. 27 is 100 16-yard and 100 handicap targets. There will be time for practice shooting before and after the regular program.

Ralph Johnson is chairman of the shoot committee.

Spencerville News

Janice Hollabaugh, Reporter

On Sunday evening the Glenn Moores had as supper guests his brother, Ted, and wife and children, Linda, Gary and Mike, and their cousin, Kim Witmer, of Fort Wayne, as well as Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kast in honor of Ted's birthday.

Among the ill from our community are Gaylord Rediger; a medical patient at Parkview in Fort Wayne, Mrs. Rosie Widdifield at St. Joseph in Fort Wayne and Mrs. Edna Hudson who is at Sanders Hospital in Auburn in critical condition. Mrs. Barbara Carter had surgery in Parkview last week but is now at her home in Spencerville. Mrs. John Weidner who has been bedfast and very ill for a number of weeks remains the same while Mrs. Edna Goldsmith who was a patient at Souders in Auburn is at home with friends in Auburn for a while until she is able to come to her home west of town.

On Wednesday, September 2, 37 members and friends of the Spencer Township Home Demonstration Club chartered a bus and attended the Indiana State Fair in Indianapolis.

The Virgil Kimes family spent Labor Day week end at the home of his brother, Charles, and family at Crooked Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. George Dancer, who live on a farm west of Spencerville, observed their 60th wedding anniversary on September 11 and were honored by their son, Wayne, and family with an open house at their home in Fort Wayne.

Large Group Attends PTA

A large group of parents, teachers and students attended the opening 1959-60 meeting of the Riverdale P.T.A. at the high school gym Tuesday evening. Attendance was estimated at near 200.

The meeting was advedtised as a social get-acquainted gathering with parents invited to introduce themselves to the faculty, particularly the new members of the faculty.

The Riverdale band, under the direction of Mr. Robert Lowry, opened the evening by playing several marches.

The president, Ted Haberkorn, then suggested that parents and teachers examine their school and their individual attitudes to see if all are doing justice to the students in our schools at the present time, in view of the community's anticipation of a new school at some indefinite future date. He suggested that we may be letting our anticipation override the necessity for maintaining our present school in a way in which we can all be proud.

The treasurer's report, given by Mrs. Virgil Laux, gave a balance of over $1,800 in the treasury.

Mr. Howard Hill then introduced the elementary faculty members, after which Mr. Joe Smith introduced the upper grade faculty. Both commented on the excellent progress of the band in the time in which Mr. Lowry has served as director.

Refreshments of coffee, donuts and chocolate milk were then served during the social hour by Mrs. Herbert Amstutz, Mrs. Virgil Mathes and Mrs. Orville Coburn.

Kenny Foundation Sponsoring New Polio Oral Vaccine Tests

Minneapolis, Minn.—The end of polio world wide is in sight but the final battle still must be fought, according to Marvin L. Kline, national executive director of the Sister Kenny foundation.

A recent international conference in Washington, D.C., of outstanding polio scientists from 20 nations brought their combined wisdom to bear on live virus polio vaccines which can be taken by mouth instead of injection and which, it is agreed, have many advantages over the killed-virus vaccine now in wide use in the United States.

The meeting was under the joint sponsorship of the Kenny foundation and the Pan American Health Organization of the World Health Organization. It was agreed that some problems in connection with the live virus vaccines must be worked out yet and a second international meeting is planned to assess further tests and trials with the product.

Three different types of such vaccines, all developed in this country, already have been tried upon more than five million people in various countries of the world with seeming success. Control tests in the United States, Kline said, have been confined for the most part to the University of Minnesota under joint sponsorship of the Kenny foundation and the Minnesota State Department of Health.

A 1958 test at the university led to mass tests that summer in Colombia and Nicaragua. In a 1959 test members of student families were fed all three strains of live polio virus in a single dose of cherry flavored liquid. Results of this still are being assessed.

The live virus vaccine is weakened to the point where it protects without giving the disease by passage through a variety of tissue materials. It is much cheaper to produce than the killed virus vaccine and can be administered with greater ease.

The vaccines are not licensed yet for use in the United States although several other nations now are using them, Kline declared. The next year or so should give a definite answer for all countries.

Meanwhile, Kline said, staff and facilities of the Kenny foundation remain geared to deal with such polio outbreaks as may occur. Until the final battle is won, the fight against this dread crippling disease must continue with determined vigor, he added.

Imagine a truck ride so smooth and cushioned that fragile loads can travel the worst "washboard" roads with ease. Imagine a truck ride that virtually eliminates shimmy and wheel fight, cuts side sway on curves, makes steering far steadier and easier, keeps drivers far fresher. Imagine a truck ride that permits higher safe cruising speeds, more trips per day with all kinds of cargo over every type of road surface. Imagine a ride that keeps up to 78% of all objectionable road shock and vibration from ever reaching the driver and cargo, a design that sharply reduces twisting and fatigue forces on chassis, cabs and bodies, that keeps trucks young for extra thousands of miles. / Soon you won't have to just imagine such a ride. You can try it for yourself in the trucks that do the next best thing to paving every road in America—new Chevrolet trucks for 1960. You'll see what happens when Chevy's truck engineers design a whole new line of trucks around a whole new kind of torsion-spring suspension. These trucks are new from the ride on up—with wonderfully roomier cabs, brawnier frames, style that's fresh as sixty and more! Don't decide on any new truck till you see the newest of all.

Radio in the Wheat Fields . . .

Golden grain funneling from two combines at once into one of custom combiner Earl Estill's radio-dispatched grain trucks symbolizes the modern efficiency of today's mighty mechanical assault that reaps the wheat of mid-America.

Modern wheat harvesting has come a long way from the days of the big threshing crews and horse-drawn harvest wagons. Today big combines, fast hauling grain trucks and huge storage elevators reap the harvest of America's grain belt in record time.

And during this summer's wheat harvest another modern innovation speeded the harvest for one custom wheat combiner with even more efficiency.

That innovation was the use of a two-way radio communications system.

Custom combiner Earl Estill of Carrier, Okla., who has been cutting wheat by contract for 15 years across the Great Plains, is one of the first combining outfits to use radio to speed the harvest.

He has two-way radios in his pickup, his two grain trucks, one of his three Gleaner-Baldwin combines built by Allis-Chalmers and in the house trailer from which his 18-year-old daughter, Judy, prepared all the meals for the hungry harvesters.

His radios are 100-watt transistors set up on 43-10 megacycles with a 40-mile range. They are licensed by the Federal Communications Commission on an industrial band.

The progressive Oklahoman feels his two grain trucks with radios can do as much work as three without radios. The major purpose of the communication system is to dispatch trucks to waiting grain elevators and return, find out if the elevators are full and what the moisture content of the wheat is when it arrives at the elevator.

Another important role, says Estill, is to "tell Judy where and when to bring dinner and supper to the field."

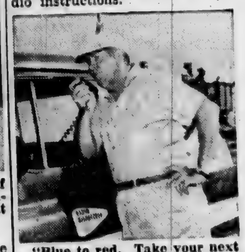
Estill also uses the radio while transporting his combines and crew between cutting jobs by informing his drivers of road conditions and directions to the next custom contract job.

In the field, Estill can tell his crew cutting instructions, information on cutting conditions from the lead "Gleaner" and when and where to move next.

"Radios enable us to cut more acres because we don't have to waste time getting together to find out what, when and where we are going to work next in the field or fields," Estill says.

His seven-man crew begins the harvest each year on Estill's 430-acre farm at Carrier, Okla., in early June, moves into southwestern Kansas, then by July 4th they are in western Nebraska and by late July and through early August they are cutting through South Dakota. Sometimes Estill's crew has gone through Montana almost to the Canadian border.

Through all these states this summer radio speeded the harvest for this wheat harvester and it could mean that someday soon most of the wheat of mid-America will be cut by radio instructions.



"Blue to red. Take your next load to the elevator," says custom combiner Earl Estill as he gives one of his truck drivers hauling instructions over the two-way radio system installed on all his grain trucks, his house trailer and pickup.

"White to blue, where shall I bring dinner, Daddy?" asks Judy Estill from the house trailer that serves as the "cook shack" for Earl Estill's custom combining crew. An immediate reply over Estill's two-way radio system will tell Judy the location of her "Daddy's" harvest operations.

These nine big silver combines—aided by a two-way radio system tied into the lead Gleaner-Baldwn combine, the grain hauling trucks, the "cook's" trailer and information dispatching pickup trucks—worked with precision efficiency as they moved in tandem formation across vast wheat fields in southwestern Kansas this summer.

Gravity Hinders Athletes

The law of gravity may take some inches off the records of Latin American athletes who competed in the Pan-American Games in Chicago.

To most sports fans, Newton and Einstein are out of their element on the playing field. But The World Book Encyclopedia explains that the force of gravity, which keeps third base on the ground and prevents a high jumper from clearing the moon, varies over the earth's surface. It gets weaker as one travels toward the equator or farther above sea level. This means that a javelin thrown in the Panama Canal Zone would travel 3½ inches frther than in Madison, Wisconsin. It would travel about one foot farther than at the North Pole.

A broad jumper would leap 3-8 inch farther in Texas than he would in Massachusetts. And a shot-put thrown 50 feet in Finland would travel an inch farther in Rome.

The upshot is that most Latin-American athletes are fighting stronger gravity in Chicago. All other conditions being equal, it might be difficult to set any records over those established in the second Pan American Games held in Mexico City in 1955.

The capital of Mexico sits on a high plateau more than 7,000 feet above sea level, and not too far from the equator. Chicago, many degrees north of the equator, barely keeps its feet dry at 600 ft. above sea level. The best place for setting records probably would be in Lima, Peru. Nestled in equatorial mountains, Lima has the world's weakest gravity.

What do the gentlemen with the tape measure do about all this? Nothing. They figure it will all come out right in the end.

Around the Town

With the Editor

We do funny things when we're kids. Think of the times we grabbed for whatever excuse we could to get out on some work we were supposed to do. But we could play all day long and put out all that energy in recreation without any second thought about it.

Some of that energy was used several weeks ago to pull a section of bleachers from the ball diamond into the bean field across the road. Some more of that energy was also used to carry the merry-go-round from its mooring to the ditch across from the school. And the other night we found that additional energy was used to carry off the good-sized pop cooler in the stand at the ball diamond. It's gone.

Or does someone know who borrowed it???

'Skeet' Meese Dies At 64

Fairfield Meese, 64, who returned to Saint Joe in August of 1958 after an absende of 47 years, died Friday evening at 7:30 p.m. at the Dickerhoof Convalescent Home in Butler. Mr. Meese died of a complication of diseases following an illness of 5 weeks.

"Skeet" was born in Saint Joe on August 7, 1895, the son of the late Frank and Callie Meese. In 1911 he enlisted in the Navy. He resided on the west coast during his many years in the service prior to returning for a visit to Saint Joe last summer. The visit extended itself thru the winter and "Skeet" made his permanent home in Saint Joe after marrying the former Marie Draggoo.

Survivors include the widow; a stepson, James Draggoo, of Auburn; a stepdaughter, Mrs. Eloise Morr, of Springfield, O.; and a brother, Fred Meese, believed to be a resident of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Meese was a member of the Saint Joe Church of Christ, the Walter Whitehurst American Legion Post at Saint Joe and the Saint Joe Lions Club.

Funeral services were held Monday with Rev. Ivan O. Miller, pastor of the Saint Joe and Spencerville Lutheran churches, officiating. Burial was in Riverside Cemetery at Saint Joe.

Club Needs Donations For Benefit Auction

Glenn Moore, president of the Spencerville Community Club, has announced that the organization will sponsor a public auction next month.

The auction will be held on Saturday, October 17, in the Spencerville Community Building.

Proceeds from the sale will be used to pay for fuel needed to heat the community building for youth activities during the winter months.

Anyone having items to donate for the auction is asked to contact Mr. Moore or Mr. Vaugh Allen.

Fair Gets Good Start

DeKalb County's Free Fall Fair got underway Tuesday evening under fair skies and warm temperatures which brought out a large crowd for the kick-off parade and the official opening. The parade was held at 7:00 p.m. Tuesday with fair officials, county fire fighting units, law enforcement agencies, school bands, and various clubs and individuals participating.

The Riverdale High School Band was in the parade Tuesday evening and played also for Wednesday's entertainment activities. The band will also march in Saturday's parade.

The local community is represented on the mid-way again this year with the Spencerville O.E.S. operating a coffee and donut stand and the Mt. Pleasant and Spencerville Methodist churches and the Saint Joe Lions Club operating lunch stands.

Also participating in the fair are the home demonstration clubs and 4-H clubs.

Personal Message For Servicemen

Families of servicemen now have an opportunity to send a personal Christmas message overseas. Through the courtesy of radio station WANE, anyone in this community who has a son or relative overseas may make the coming Christmas season a happy occasion for their serviceman by sending him a personal message.

Rev. Rod Trout may be contacted at Spencerville for additional details of this public service project.

Interested persons should contact Rev. Trout by Friday of this week, September 25.

Choir Festival Meeting Tuesday

Representatives of churches in this area are reminded of the planning meeting to be held Tuesday, September 29, for the Christmas Choir Festival to be held in December.

Ministers of area churches and choir rrepresentatives are urged to attend Tuesday's meeting to be held at the Saint Joe Church of Christ at 8 p.m. Further plans will be made for the festival.

Mrs. Omar Hansen is serving as choir director, assisted by individuals from other participating churches. Men and women, boys and girls will be asked to participate in this first attempt at a community-wide Christmas program of music.

Shop, Pl'ground Equipped At Riverdale

Elementary students of Riverdale will enjoy added recreational facilities on the elementary school playground at Spencerville with the installation of outdoor baskets for basketball shooting. Surfacing of the playground has been done in part to provide playing area for basketball. In addition, backstop wire was installed on the ball field portion of the playground this summer for the convenience of the baseball players. Work at the school was done under authorization of the school board.

At the high school in Saint Joe, equipment is being purchased for the integration of a course in manual training with the agriculture program.

Principal Joe Smith announced this week that due to the lack of facilities, the manual training program cannot be opened to all who want it and it is being integrated with the ag courses in the upper four grades.

Russell Guinther is in charge of the agricultural and manual training programs.

CHEESE IT — Denmark, Wisc. — Talk about curds and "weigh," these workers are filling a mammoth tub with curds to fashion the world's biggest cheese at Denmark, Wisc. The gigantic cheese, requiring 150,000 pounds of milk, will weigh 14,316 pounds. The specially-constructed wooden tub stands more than seven-feet high and is exactly seven feet in diameter. The colossal cheese will be aged in a cooler and shipped to California for exhibition.

The new vaccine is designed to be taken orally, and a single swallow will give long-lasting immunity to all three types of paralyzing polio viruses. Developed over a 13-year period at the Lederle Laboratories, the oral vaccine is made of living polio viruses which have been modified or weakened. Ultra-violet lights in the sealed cabinets insure complete protection against contamination as the vials are filled.

THE LONG PULL
Lesson for September 27, 1959

The same thing never happens twice. But the same kind of thing happens over and over in the history of mankind. Man is the same sort of creature everywhere you find him, and all the gadgets and inventions of the past 300 years have not changed him very much. So you might expect the same kind of situation or problem to turn up again and again in the long history of man on this planet.

One of these might be called the Run-Down Situation. We could call it the Problem of the Rut. It is the state of things when nothing of great importance is happening as far as we can see, when one day is about like most other days. In fact, it's the way life looks to many people over 40. The great thrills are over, death is nowhere yet in sight, there is nothing to do but to keep on plodding as patiently as possible.

For the Long Pull

The prophet Malachi lived in such times. This last book of the Old Testament comes from a time of disillusionment, weariness and tedium. The great thrill of coming home from exile was over long since—more than one hundred years, in fact. Nobody had seen a miracle, no Moses was in sight. The Jews in Palestine, where Malachi preached, had once been all excited about being able to come back in peace to Jerusalem to build a temple and to worship the true God. But as time went on people became tired of the endless series of sacrifices, even the priests became bored with the whole thing. People stopped coming to the temple. The priests did not think of carrying religion to the people, and the country was sinking deeper and deeper into religious indifference and moral decay. There were many religious observances, but not much heart-religion.

In this situation Malachi preached. He did not have the dramatic power of Amos nor the tenderness of Hosea nor the majestic world-vision of Isaiah — to this very day Malachi is nobody's favorite prophet. Nevertheless what he said then seems to fit our day remarkably well. For he was giving his people hints for what we might call "Religion For the Long Pull."

Do Better

Malachi's recipe for doing God's will, as a nation, was simple and will always work. He did not propose anything new or startling. What he recommended, in a nutshell, was doing the good things better—the good things they were already doing in a half-hearted discouraged sort of way. They had priests, men of God they were called. BE men of God! was Malachi's word for them. Take your responsibilities, get out there and teach the people, don't live selfish secluded lives. (This in modern terms would be a plea both for better ministers and for better schools.)

Then Malachi spoke of supporting the law. The expression "law-abiding" is not exactly thrilling, even to law-abiding people; but Malachi laid it on the line: you will never make any progress so long as you keep breaking the laws that you know. A nation of law-breakers is headed for a breakdown itself.

Further, Malachi did not fail to mention those two institutions, the church and the home. Put him into modern language, and we can hear him saying, better churches make better homes! Better homes make better churches! What was happening to homes in those days, this prophet says, grieved God himself.

No Short-Cuts

Quack medicines always sell because people want to get well of their troubles right away, they can't wait. Quack religion "sells," too, and for the same reason. People would be glad for God to "pass a miracle" and bring that better world right down from the clouds. They wish the "day of the Lord" would come. Anything at all to save themselves trouble. Malachi has no comfort for such persons. He believed there could be a better Jerusalem; but it would come only if God's people wanted it enough to work for it.

Why we built two cars for 1960 . . . as different as night and day

On October 2—for the first time in Chevrolet's 49-year history—you will be able to walk into your dealer's showroom and see two totally different kinds of cars. ■ One is the conventional 1960 Chevrolet, brand new in appearance and more beautifully refined and luxurious than you can imagine. ■ The other is unlike any car we or anybody else ever built—the revolutionary Corvair, with the engine in the rear where it belongs in a compact car. ■ We'd like to tell you why we built two such different cars, how we built them—and for whom we built them.

Why two kinds of cars? Because America itself has been going through some big changes in the past few years. Our cities have been straining at their seams. Traffic is jam-packed. Parking space is at a premium.

And our suburbs have spread like wildfire. People are living farther from their work, driving more miles on crowded streets. There is new leisure time—but more things to do. There's a new standard of living—and more need for two cars in the family garage.

In short, America's automobile needs have become so complex that no one kind of car can satisfy them completely. That is why we at Chevrolet, keeping tab on these trends, have had a revolutionary compact car in the planning stages for more than nine years.

Thus, when we decided three years ago to prepare for production of such a car we were ready to build it the way it should be built. There was no need for a hasty "crash" program that would create only a sawed-off version of a conventional car.

That is why the two cars you will see in your dealer's showroom October 2 will be two entirely different kinds of cars. One is the conventional '60 Chevrolet—brand new in beauty, with new space inside, new spirit under the hood, a new feeling of sumptuousness and luxury never before attained by any car in its field. There is great V8 power linked with new thrift, plus Chevrolet's superb 6-cylinder engine. It is a traditional car that comes even closer to perfection—in silence, in room, in ease of control, in velvety ride—than any other car we have ever made.

The other is the Corvair, a compact car that is astonishingly different from anything ever built in this country. It has to be—because this is a six-passenger compact car, with a really remarkable performance . . . a car designed specifically to American standards of comfort, to American traffic needs.

The engine is in the rear. Among the basic advantages resulting from this engine location are better traction on a compact 108-inch wheelbase and a practically flat floor. But to be placed in the rear, the engine had to be ultra light and ultra short. So Corvair's engine is totally new—mostly aluminum and air cooled; it weighs about 40 per cent less than conventional engines. It is a "flat" horizontally opposed six—so it is only three cylinders long . . . and that leaves a lot more room for passengers.

Another weight saving: like modern airplanes, the Corvair has no frame; the body-shell supplies it great structural strength . . . it's a welded unit that is virtually rattle-free.

The ride is fantastic. But to get it we had to design independent suspension at every wheel; conventional springing would give a compact car a choppy ride. Right now we'll make one prediction: no other U.S. compact car will ride so comfortably, hold the road so firmly and handle so beautifully.

Now there are two kinds of cars from Chevrolet—because it takes two kinds of cars to serve America's needs today. If you love luxury—the utmost in luxury—and if you want generous interior space, breath-taking performance, automatic drives and power assists—then the conventional '60 Chevrolet may be your choice.

If easy parking, traffic agility and utmost economy are high on your list—then you should seriously consider the Corvair. But the best thing to do is to look these two new cars over at your Chevrolet dealer's . . . take them out for a drive. It may be that the only logical choice for your family between two cars like this is—both. They make a perfect pair.

Spencerville News

Janice Hollabaugh, Reporter

Mrs. John Weidner died Wednesday morning of this week. Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon at the Baidinger - Walter Funeral Home in Spencerville.

It is good to have Mrs. Rosie Widdifield back home in Spencerville. She was a patient at St. Joseph Hospital in Fort Wayne, stayed at her daughter's home in Garrett before coming home.

The Clinton P. Shultzes celebrated their golden wedding anniversary last Sunday with a family dinner. Mr. and Mrs. Shultz live on a farm east of Spencerville.

On Thursday, September 17, a son, Matthew Kevin, was born to Shirley and Henry Markle, Jr., at the Hicksville Community Hospital.

Sunday afternoon guests of their aunt, Mrs. Jessie Sommer, were her niece and husband, Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Adams, of Fort Wayne.

Week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Daring were his mother, Mrs. Daring, and grandmother, Mrs. Faller, of Fort Wayne.

Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Rediger and Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Rediger of Leo visited in the home of their brother, Eli, and wife at Ranson, Ohio.

On Saturday evening the Clayton E. Bakers had as supper guests Mr. and Mrs. Ted A. Hollabaugh and Miss Maxine Miller of Fort Wayne.

Sunday Mrs. Carrie Ransom visited with Mrs. Goldie Bassett at Harlan.

Rev. and Mrs. D. W. Salisbury and daughters, Kay and Connie, of Shelby, Mich., spent the last three days of their vacation with Mr. and Mrs. Vaughn Allen. On Friday afternoon they called on their former neighbor, Mrs. Jessie Sommer, and in the evening had dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Brace near Scipio where Rev. Salisbury served while he was minister of the Spencerville Methodist Church 10 years ago. The Salisburys, also have a son, Monte, who was unable to visit Spencerville as he was attending a youth organization meeting in another state at this time.

Mrs. Edna Hudson has improved somewhat during her confinement at Sanders Hospital in Auburn.

Mrs. Angela Lloyd visited in the John Weidner home over the week end.

It is reported that Mrs. Barbara Carter is again in Parkview Hospital. She recently underwent surgery there.

The Donald Bakers of Norfolk, Va., had a birthday dinner for their cousin, Tom Hollabaugh, last Friday night. Tom expected to be home and out of the Navy by that time but didn't make it until Monday and arrived home by plane on Tuesday. Tom is happy to be home after serving in the Navy for three years aboard the USS Spiegel Grove.

On Friday evening, September 18, the Live Wire Class of the Methodist Church had a pot luck supper and party in the church basement with Rev. and Mrs. Trout and children, Mrs. Robert Hollabaugh and children, Mr. and Mrs. Chalmer Beaty and family, Mr. and Mrs. Vaughn Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Graham, Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Zimmerman and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bissell and children present. The next meeting will be an adult Halloween party which will be held at the Methodist Parsonage on Friday, October 16, at 8:00 p.m. with the Trouts as host and hostess.

Six friends of Mrs. Hazel Washler took well-filled baskets on Tuesday, September 15, and went to her home as a surprise for a farewell dinner. On Friday Mrs. Washler went to the home of her son, Charles, and family at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, where she will stay during the school term as Mrs. Charles Washler is attending college this year. Those enjoying the day with Hazel were Mrs. Marie Ward, Mrs. Ella Crothers, Mrs. Berniece Wilder, Miss Elizabeth Hart and Mrs. Flossie Rediger.

Sunday evening the D. L. Morgans drove over from Toledo to have supper with Margery's parents, the M. H. Hollabaughs.

Who Are THE LUTHERANS?

Early in the 16th century, there was only one Protestant in the world. He was Martin Luther — a Roman Catholic priest, scholar and theologian.

Through years of inner agony — long days and nights of Bible study — intensive comparison of the theologians — Luther had come face-to-face with the painful fact: 13 centuries had gradually changed the historical church into something radically different from that which had been founded when God came to earth and died on a hill called Calvary.

Luther's open "protest" began when he nailed the Ninety-Five Theses to the church door in the little university town of Wittenberg, Germany, on October 31, 1517.

Less than 50 years later, the Lutheran rediscovery of New Testament Christianity had touched the whole western world and was flourishing across most of northern Europe.

Today, it is the faith of 70 to 90 million people. No one knows exactly how many they number — because once again millions of Lutherans are martyrs, this time behind the Iron Curtain.

The "Mother Church of Protestantism" is by far the largest of all Protestant churches. She includes more than one-third of all the Protestants in the world. You, too, may wish to learn more of her faith and life.

NOW...'60 CHEVROLET TRUCKS

WITH REVOLUTIONARY CHEVROLET TORSION-SPRING SUSPENSION THAT GIVES ASTONISHING NEW SHOCKPROOF ACTION !!!!!

Chevy's done the next best thing to paving every road in America!

First they threw out the front axle and put in torsion-spring independent suspension. Then they built wide-base coil rear springs into most light-duty models, variable-rate leaf springs into heavies. That made it—a ride you have to feel to believe. A ride that lets you move faster to get more work done in a day's time.

Brawnier bulldozer build!

Frames are stronger, cabs 67% more rigid. Front wheels and tires are precision-balanced. And that new suspension cushions jars and road shock that used to spell slow death for the truck's body and sheet metal.

More comfortable cabs!

Easier to hop in and out of too. Many models are a whole 7 inches lower outside. Yet there's more head room inside, plus more width for shoulders and hips. More real comfort!

Big in the power department!

With the industry's most advanced gas-saving 6's. With high-torque Workmaster V8 performance in heavyweights. With new 6-cylinder or V8 power available in L.C.F.'s.

More models than ever!

New 4-wheel-drive models and tandems and high-styled Suburban Carryalls. It's the handsomest, hardest working Chevy fleet ever to report for duty. See your dealer soon for a ride!

Anything less is an old-fashioned truck!

The following officers were elected:

Nancy Coburn, president.

Laura Washler, vice president.

Doris Yeiser, secretary.

Myrtle Pugsley, assistant sec.

Emma Strombeck, treasurer.

The social hour was in charge of Laura Washler. Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Ethel Wineland and Mary Kinsey.

The October meeting will be held at the home of Mary Baker.

Kenny Foundation Sponsors Probe of Neuromuscular Ills

Minneapolis, Minn.—Pioneering surgical techniques developed by Dr. Irving S. Cooper, with financial assistance from the Sister Kenny foundation, offer new hope to thousands of persons afflicted with neuromuscular disabilities, including Parkinsonism and dystonia.

Dr. Cooper, a member of the Kenny Foundation Medical Advisory committee, is professor of clinical neurosurgery, New York University Post-Graduate Medical school, and director of neurosurgery, St. Barnabas hospital, both in New York city.

His pioneering surgical techniques, chemopallidectomy and chemothalamectomy, are directed at relief for victims of Parkinsonism or shaking palsy, dystonia and other physical conditions marked by tremor and involuntary movements. The operation, hailed as a major breakthrough in brain surgery, has already provided relief for many hundreds of patients.

This far-reaching activity is supplemented by Kenny supported programs at University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, Minn.; Montreal Neurological institute, McGill university, Montreal, Canada, and at Children's hospital, Buffalo, N. Y.

Although neurological relief of involuntary movements is, in effect, the treatment of a symptom rather than the cause of these diseases, it does constitute an important first step in the rehabilitation of such patients. Relieved of the disabling and often exhausting and deforming effects of their involuntary muscular movements, patients are ready for rehabilitation through physical and psychiatric therapy, with orthopedic surgery sometimes required. In the past, orthopedic and psychiatric measures frequently were difficult to apply in many such cases.

THIS 21-YEAR-OLD MAN is making "excellent progress" toward recovery at a Sister Kenny foundation facility, where he was admitted, completely helpless, for treatment and rehabilitation, after having suffered a fracture of the neck, with paralysis in all four extremities, in an automobile accident. Punching the keys with the eraser end of a pencil, he is shown practicing typewriting. An occupational therapist supervises the exercises, designed to teach the patient to raise his paralyzed arms and to provide him with a means of communication. Under its expanded program, the Kenny foundation provides treatment and rehabilitation for mishap victims and patients with neuromuscular [illegible] polio.

"We save time, work and space by heating our home ELECTRICALLY"

Says Mr. Donald Bieber

The Bieber family considers electric heat a wise investment, and they've had two other types of heating. Mr. Bieber says, "I save a lot of time and trouble because I don't have to bother with opening and shutting registers, checking the fuel supply, changing filters or anything else. My wife spends less time with her cleaning because electric heat is clean. It doesn't make any dirt or soot. And since there is no bulky heating unit with electric heat, we have more room for living and storage in our home."

Post Office Moves To New Quarters

Postmaster Lehr Wilder and postal clerk Mrs. MaDonna Wade, this week began moving post office equipment and materials from the present quarters located on the main street of Saint Joe to the new post office building just around the corner. Patrons of the Saint Joe post office have been served in the vacated quarters since 1934.

Negotiations were completed recently for leasing the cement block building erected by B. E. Vinson, owner of Vinson's Market, with whom the old lease was held. Approval of the move was obtained from the proper postal authorities in Fort Wayne and Cincinnati before the new building could be used.

Moving of equipment began Wednesday of this week and is expected to be completed to a major extent by Thursday.

Patrons will be served in the new quarters starting Thursday.

Change In Methodist Worship Hour

Members and friends of the Spencerville Methodist congregation are asked to note a change in Sunday worship and church school services.

The official board of the Spencerville Methodist Church has changed the worship service from 10:30 a.m. to 9:00 a. m. The church school hour has been changed from 9:30 a. m. to 10:00 a.m.

Beginning next Sunday, October 4, Rev. Rod Trout will conduct the worship service at 9:00 a. m., church school to follow at 10:00 a.m. October 4 is World-Wide Communion Sunday.

Record Hop At Sp'ville Saturday

The Winners 4-H Club of Spencerville will sponsor a record hop this coming Friday night, October 2, at the Spencerville Community Hall.

The hop will be held from 7:30 to 11:00 p.m. Admission will be 40c per couple or 25c for singles.

All profits from the hop will go to the Spencerville Community Club.

Members of the 4-H club will serve as disc jockeys. Refreshments will be available.

Public Invitation Given For Festival Singers

A meeting of pastors and church choir representatives was held Tuesday evening at the Saint Joe Church of Christ to further plans for the December preesntation of the community-wide Christmas Choir Festival on Sunday afternoon, December 13.

Working in cooperation with Mr. Robert Lowry, music director of Riverdale High School, a tentative program was set up. Rehearsals of the adult choir, under the direction of Mrs. Omer Hansen, will begin Tuesday, October 13, and continue on succeeding Tuesdays until the festival date.

To clear a misunderstanding concerning participation in the festival, it was emphasized at the meeting that all persons in the community, from junior high school age on up, are invited to sing in the adult choir. These people are urged to attend the first rehearsal on October 13.

Music will also be presented by the school band and a vocal ensemble from the high school. Elementary children will also have a part in the festival.

Homecoming At Coburn Corners

Rally Day and Homecoming services will be observed at the Coburn Corners Church of Christ on Sunday, October 4. Services will begin with the church Bible school at 9:30 a. m.

Brother Grant Strong of Fort Wayne, a member of the Saint Joe Christian Church, will teach the combined adult classes. The lesson will be, "You Shall Be My Witnesses." This will be followed by the morning worship service at 10:30 a.m. with the minister, J. Paul Hill, speaking on the subject, "Homecoming With Jesus."

A pot luck dinner will be enjoyed by all in the church fellowship hall at noon.

The afternoon homecoming service will begin at 2:00 p. m. Brother Robert Carter, minister of the Christian Church at Redkey, Ind., will be the guest speaker. Special music will be brought by the Farmer, Ohio, mixed quartet.

The minister extends a personal invitation to the public to attend these services where "old friends meet new friends and all meet Christ."

The Ladies Literary Club met at the home of Mrs. Roy Baker on Wednesday evening, September 23. 8 members were present.

Mrs. Wayne Storer led the collect and pledge to the flag.

Mrs. Weldon Shafer presented a very informative lesson, "Our Dictionary." Mrs. Maurice Kline discussed two interesting magazine articles, "Loas" from Life magazine and "Amelia Earhart" from the Speed Age magazine.

Mrs. Wilbur Yeiser conducted entertainment.

After a short business meeting, club was adjourned and the hostess served light refreshments.

Local News

Rain stopped a lot of planned activity at the fair Saturday afternoon and evening. Included in the cancellations was a concert by a combined band made up of musicians from all county school bands. Riverdale band members who were to participate in the combined band were Andy Crow, Wanda Holman, Judy Impton, Carol Stark, Merle Wagner and Mike Haberkorn.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hart of Waterloo are the parents of a 7 pound 11 ounce daughter, Kimberly Elaine, born Saturday, September 19, at Souder Hospital in Auburn. This is their first child. Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Smith of Waterloo and Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Hart of Saint Joe are the grandparents.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Swing and baby of Muncie visited a while Sunday in the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Inlow.

Mr. and Mrs. Dave Amstutz of Harlan spent Sunday afternoon in the Ray Means home.

Dianne Mayer, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Mayer, showed the grand champion 4-H steer at the DeKalb County Fair. The winning entry was a black Angus.

Phil Haberkorn, 8, was one of four Cappy Dick puzzle contest winners two weeks ago. The contest is sponsored by the Fort Wayne newspapers.

Lavon Kline was shaken up Saturday night when his car struck a fallen tree on the black top west of Saint Joe. Wind toppled the tree and rain hindered the driver's vision resulting in the mishap.

Miss Judy Inlow spent Friday and Saturday in Auburn with a girl friend.

RADIO ACTIVITY — West Berlin — It's a small world all right — just look at how portable radios have shrunk in the last 30 years, in these pictures from Berlin. Way back in 1929 (left), a girl could only listen to radio programs outdoors if her boyfriend was a weightlifter. But now (right), German film starlet Maria Perschy shows off a tiny new portable to be shown at the German Radio, TV and Phonograph Exhibit.

Rev. Trout Addesses Lions

Pastor Rod Trout of the Spencerville Methodist Church addressed the Saint Joe Lions Club at its meeting Monday night at Chaney's Restaurant.

Pastor Trout pointed out a few revelations concerning the visit of the Russian dignitary to the United States, the main observation being that Americans were being "sold" on communism by a super-salesman, but no one from the United States seemed to have any sales talk to present to the Russian premier. Pastor Trout pointed out that Americans depend on their wealth of worldly goods to impress other nations and this materialism has little to back it up.

Pastor Trout closed by saying that we have Christianity to sell and only this will prove lasting and reassuring.

Local News

Concern

As my Father hath sent me, even so send I you.
John 20:21

Lutherans call their ministers "pastors." The man who answers God's call to the office of the Word and Sacraments shares with his Lord a shepherd's concern for souls. He is the human vessel through which Christ assures men of forgiveness and renewed life. In the name of the Good Shepherd and bishop of souls he speaks the word of life which he hears from his Lord. The Lutheran pastor stands ready to answer any call for Christ's good news of salvation.

QUIET REVOLUTION! ON DISPLAY FRIDAY! HOORAY! SMALL WONDER!

THE REVOLUTIONARY
Corvair
BY CHEVROLET

There's nothing like a new car—and no compact car like this de luxe Corvair 700.

Here's the car created to conquer a new field—Chevrolet's low-priced compact Corvair.

The product of nine years of research and development at the auto industry's most advanced facilities, it's America's first truly compact, economical car that retains the ride and 6-passenger comfort you're used to in a big one.

The key to this small miracle: America's first and only modern rear-mounted aluminum engine—a lightweight 6 that's so revolutionary it can be packaged with the transmission and drive gears as one compact unit.

By putting the engine in the rear, Chevrolet has made the floor practically flat, front and rear. There's plenty of foot room for everybody, including the passengers in the middle.

Shifting engine weight to the rear also makes for smoother, easier compact car handling and gives glued-to-the-road traction on ice, mud or snow.

Corvair's size—some 5 inches lower, 2½ feet shorter and 1,300 pounds lighter than conventional sedans—makes it a joy to jockey through busy streets, a pleasure to park (no need for power assists). Its revolutionary Turbo-Air 6 gets up to 30% more miles on a gallon of regular (a real magician on mileage). And, because the engine's air-cooled, you never have to fuss with antifreeze, you get quicker warmup with less wear on parts even on the coldest mornings (even heat for passengers comes quicker—almost instantly—from an airplane-type heater*).

Yet, wonderfully practical as all this sounds, you'll find the most practical thing of all about this new Corvair is its remarkably low price. Your dealer's the man to see for all the short, sweet details.

America's only car with an airplane-type horizontal engine! America's only car with independent suspension at all 4 wheels! America's only car with an air-cooled aluminum engine!

The engine's in the rear where it belongs in a compact car!

STYLING—PURE AND SIMPLE
Clean, uncluttered lines shape both 4-door models—the de luxe Corvair 700 and the standard Corvair. Each has its own distinctive trim, and you get more visibility area than in many full-sized cars.

FOLD-DOWN REAR SEAT*
Works easily, instantly, adding to Corvair's versatility by enlarging rear seat cargo space to 17.6 cu. ft.

FLAT FLOOR
Corvair is America's only compact car with a practically flat floor, the only one with the kind of relaxing room that U.S. motorists are used to.

UNISTRUT BODY BY FISHER
Does away with conventional frame, incorporating all structure into a rigid body-frame unit that gives you more inside room with less weight.

UNDER-HOOD LUGGAGE COMPARTMENT
Trunk's up front (like an elephant's) where it's convenient for groceries, luggage.

4-WHEEL INDEPENDENT SUSPENSION
There's no conventional axle—front or rear. Wheels, cushioned by coil springs, take bumps independently of each other, for smooth, road-hugging ride.

REVOLUTIONARY TURBO-AIR 6
Gets up to 30% more miles on a gallon, needs no antifreeze, provides quicker warmup with less wear on parts.

ONE-PACKAGE POWER TEAM
Wraps rear engine, transmission and differential together into one compact lightweight unit. Takes less room, leaves you more.

*Optional at extra cost

DISTINCTIVE! SATISFYING! ENDURING! SPLENDID! SPIRITED! JOYFUL! SWEET!

Elegant Impala 4-Door Sport Sedan—one of 16 spanking new Chevrolets you can choose from.

THE SUPERLATIVE '60 CHEVY

This is the one that says '60 like no other car. From its clean-thrusting grille to its dapper rear deck, there's so much that is new and different about this superlative Chevrolet it stands out from the rest like a fresh-minted coin. And you'll be just as wide-eyed over what's inside—the relaxing roominess, tasteful trim, hushed elegance, all comfortably cradled by Full Coil springs at all four wheels. Yet, sumptuous as this new Chevy is, you'll find new economy of operation, new dependability, new longer life. Here, then, we're confident both you and your budget will joyously agree, is the nearest to perfection a low-priced car ever came!

Here's the car that introduces a whole new decade of design—with so much that's new and different the other ones can only hope to come close.

It's the superlative '60 Chevrolet—with new space inside, new spirit under the hood, new splendor in every clean-etched line.

Freshly shaped contours rake back from the unified new grille to the jaunty rear deck, fitted with craftsmanship you'd expect only on the most expensive makes. Inside, there's room to sprawl in, room to sit tall in—generously provided by Chevy's sofa-wide seats and extra margin of hat space. And there's even more leg room for the man in the middle—thanks to the way Chevrolet engineers have shaved down the transmission tunnel.

Out on the road, as Chevy's Full Coil ride will persuade you most gently, there's not a car near the price that comes close to the hushed comfort of this one. And, adding to your sense of silence and solidity are thicker, newly designed rubber body mounts that do an even more efficient job of filtering out road shock, tire hum and vibration.

Quiet, quick-responding power is provided by a choice of two standard engines—Chevy's famed Hi-Thrift 6 and a new Economy Turbo-Fire V8 that gets up to 10% more miles out of a gallon of regular while delivering greater engine torque at normal speeds.

Chevy's accent on comfort and convenience even extends back to its easier-to-load (and tremendous) luggage compartment. You'll also find a convenient new parking brake that automatically returns to normal height after application, a new clutch linkage that filters out even the smallest engine impulses more effectively than ever and a trim new two-toning motif that's available on all 16 fresh-minted models.

But, impressive as all this may look in print, there's really only one way to tell how near to perfection this superlative '60 Chevrolet actually comes . . . and that's to drop in on your dealer and drive one!

Around the Town

With the Editor

Just to give you an advance notice, those hard-working band members are going to hold a "tag day" soon asking your support to help them obtain something like 10 new uniforms. With Mr. Lowry's guiding hand, the band has grown by leaps and bounds. The supply of uniforms is no longer adequate. So, for the past two years the band has been building up a fund by appearing at the county fair, giving a concert and appearing last week at LaGrange at a county fair with good results. But a little more money is needed yet.

Look for band members to be selling band booster ribbons pretty soon. And if you can, give a donation and help the members obtain outfits for all the members. They deserve them.

Talk about close bowling scores, last Wednesday The Classics of Saint Joe lost their first game by one pin, tied the second and won the third by two pins.

Community Club To Hold Dance, Auction

The Spencerville Community Club reminds residents of this area of the community auction to be held on Saturday, October 17, at the community hall. The auction will be preceded by a square dance this coming Saturday evening, October 10, also to be held in the community hall. Hours for the dance are 8 p.m. to midnight.

Young and old are invited to the square dance. Admission prices will be $1.00 per family or 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for students.

Anyone having articles to donate to the auction is asked to call Spencerville 46F2 or 92 and the items will be picked up. Donations, no matter how small or how large, will be greatly appreciated.

The Spencerville Community Club is sponsoring these and other activities to raise funds that the club may continue recreation programs for the young people of the Saint Joe and Spencerville areas.

125 persons attended the record hop last Friday night sponsored by the Winners 4-H Club and held at the community building. Proceeds from the hop were given to the Spencerville Community Club.

All had an enjoyable time.

School Study Act To Be Set In Motion Wed'day

Riverdale school patrons are included in the numbers of county residents who are invited to attend the DeKalb County School Re-organization Convention to be held Wednesday, October 14, in the assembly room of the court house at Auburn. Meeting time is 7:30 p.m.

Judge Harold Stump has given legal notice of the convention as provided in the school re-organization bill passed by the 1959 Indiana legislature.

Township trustees of DeKalb County, members of school boards and supervisory school officials are requested to attend. The meeting is open to the public and all interested persons are invited to attend.

The provisions of the legislative act authorizing the county school study commission will be explained and there will be an opportunity for discussion.

Judge Stump will present a general explanation of the act which provides a vehicle to permit citizens to work out their own plans for school development and avert a drastic revision of state aid to schools which would reduce aid to small school units that are not now and cannot be operated efficiently and economically.

Under the act, units have 4 years to effect changes without interference from the state. In recent years, the Indiana General Assembly has shown reluctance to continue full state aid to school units that are unable to opeate efficiently.

Riverdale principal Joe Smith will present a discussion on "Creation, Powers and Functions of the State Committee" at the convention. Other presentations will be as follows:

County Superintendent of Schools Clarence Bowers — membership and organization of a county committee and method of financing their activities.

McKenney Junior High School Principal Roger Hess—functions of the county committee in adoption of the preliminary plan.

Ashley Principal Fred Frederick—function of the county committee in adoption of a comprehensive plan.

Garrett-Keyser and Butler Township Superintendent E.V. Minnear—manner of submission of plan to registered voters and the election.

Waterloo Superintendent Edward Barton—organization and functions of boards of re-organized school corporations.

County Attorney Winslow Van Horne—opportunities and procedures for opposition and re-organization plans.

Butler Metropolitan Principal Leonard Lowe—financing and disposition of existing school plants and facilities under re-organization act.

Festival Choir Rehearsals Start Tuesday

Next Tuesday evening, October 13, will begin a series of rehearsals in preparation for the Christmas Choir Festival to be presented Sunday, December 13, at the Riverdale High School gym. Mrs. Omer Hansen is serving as adult choir director.

Rehearsals are scheduled for each Tuesday evening at the Saint Joe Church of Christ at 7:30 p.m.

Age group of the adult choir includes junior high age and up. Anyone who can and will help prepare for the holiday program is invited to attend rehearsals and appear in the program. The festival is the first try at a commnity-wide program of music for the Christmas season.

Thus far approximately 72 persons have indicated that they will sing in the choir. A total of near 100 voices is being sought by Mrs. Hansen for the choir numbers selected for the program. Men's voices are especially needed to provide a balanced blending of voices.

Residents of this area are asked to keep Tuesdays in mind for rehearsing numbers to be presented by the adult choir.

Mrs. Carlos Church is serving as secretary of the festival and chairman of the committee seeking volunteers for the choir. The festival was originally undertaken at the suggestion of Mrs. Church.

LADIES' MAN — Chicago — Wowing the ladies, pianist Van Cliburn is surrounded by admiring fans here. About 1,000 persons jammed the piano salon at a local store where Cliburn appeared to autograph copies of his latest recording, Rochmaninoff's Third Piano Concerto. Cliburn expressed hopes he will be invited to pay his respects to Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev during the latter's visit here in September. Cliburn spoke warmly of the friendly reception given him by Khrushchev in Moscow last year.

Meeting For Band Prospects

Robert Lowry, music director at Riverdale High School, will hold a "get-acquainted meeting" for students from the fifth grade and up, and their parents, who wish to begin taking music instruction in preparation for playing in the school band. Mr. Lowry has sponsored these meetings in the past, this being the third year he has done so.

The meeting will be held at the high school in Saint Joe next Wednesday, October 14, at 7:30 p.m. A representative of a music store will be present to answer questions concerning acquisition of instruments.

In announcing the meeting, Mr. Lowry pointed out, "The primary aim of instrumental music in schools is to develop an appreciation and understanding of music. One can develop more understanding of music in a year of performance than in many years of listening. However, there are many worthwhile values to be gained aside from purely musical ones. A child must learn to work in close co-operation with a group in order to play in a band. He develops poise and self-confidence in making public appearances. He develops co-ordination and a sense of rhythm. He learns to breathe properly. He takes part in an activity which gives prestige and personal satisfaction. Thus, instrumental music frequently is more beneficial to a student's personality development than any other school activity."

A MIRACLE? — Rome — Published by a Rome, Italy, newspaper as "photographic proof of a miracle," these pictures were taken at different times of the same painting of Christ displayed in the church of the Sicilian village of Rosolino, near Siracusa (Syracuse), Sicily. Published on the front page of "Il Tempo," the pictures show the "movement" of the fingers in the painting, according to the newspaper, which reports that many pilgrims are flocking to the tiny village church. Church officials have not yet made any announcement about the painting or the photographed "miracle."

School Act In Motion

The school reorganization act passed by the 1959 Indiana General Assembly will be put into motion in DeKalb County next Wednesday evening at the county court house. This will be the beginning of action prompted by legislators' concern for public education in the state of Indiana, with the support of various organizations within the state.

Next Wednesday's meeting will be the official opening of the program which will see a committee appointed in the county to study the school situation in an over-all picture and arrive at some conclusions as to the condition of the educational system in DeKalb County. For some schools, the study will not be too significant. For others, there will be a great deal riding on the conclusions of the committee. While Riverdale is bursting at the seams, the school must yet wait for this two year study period to be utilized before any action on the upper grade level can be undertaken with any chance of favorable reaction from the state. It may not require all of two years to arrive at some conclusions. But it will be some time under the circumstances before our high school situation undergoes any revamping, in whatever form that might be.

Riverdale patrons are interested in our school. They want to know what is going on and why, and so on. And they are entitled to know. They can gain a lot of information by attending the meeting next Wednesday evening. For Riverdale patrons, this meeting is a "must." We necessarily must know the general pattern of things before we can begin applying available means to Riverdale's plight. It is to be noted that the attorney general of the state has ruled that the reorganization act applies only to high schools, not to elemenary grades, in the restrictions on new construction. This would seem to remove the ominous appearance of the act in the eyes of some who consequently vigorously denounced it. Riverdale isn't as stymied as it appeared before, in light of the attorney general's ruling, because elementary construction can be undertaken without the restrictions now imposed upon high school construction under the reorganization act. And our elementary grades are being squeezed.

With the passing of time and with the act in its first stage of operation, it appears that there can be a lot of good gained from it if we set aside personal and often selfish considerations and think in terms of improved public education.

It behooves all Riverdale patrons to attend next Wednesday's meeting.

Special Sermons In Lutheran Churches

Rev. Ivan O. Miller, pastor of the Lutheran congregations at Saint Joe and Spencerville, has announced a series of three sermons of particular importance to the Christian faith to be delivered at Lutheran worship services for the coming three Sundays. The sermons will be delivered by guest pastors.

Next Sunday October 11, Rev. George Hoog will reveal the importance of stewardship in the living of the Christian faith. Rev. Hoog is assistant to the president of the Indiana Synod, located in Indianapolis.

On the following two Sundays, October 18 and 25, Rev. Herbert C. Wolf will deliver sermons stressing the importance and place of baptism in the living Christian faith. Rev. Wolf is Professor of Bible at Wittenberg University, Springfield, Ohio.

An invitation is extended to area residents to attend these significant services to learn not only of these phases of the Christian faith but also of the attitude and approach as practiced by the Lutheran church.

Worship services are held at Spencerville at 9:00 a.m. each Sunday and at 10:30 a.m. at Saint Joe.

DIRTY WORK AFOOT — Dallas, Texas — Legging it at the last minute, the sailor at the end of the line is hoping that his shine-'em-up technique will enable him to pass inspection in Dallas. For his sake, we hope the inspecting officer doesn't walk around behind him. Then he'd really be a gob with a black mark.

Local News

Payments to wool producers in DeKalb County under the wool incentive program for the 1958 marketing year had reached a total of $29,404.99 as of the end of August, according to Ray W. Miller, chairman of the DeKalb County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Office. This represents substantially the total amount of incentive payments to be received by local growers for wool and unshorn lambs marketed between April 1, 1958, and March 31, 1959.

Mrs. Daisy Keeler, Mrs. Lynde Murphy, Mrs. Dewey White and Mrs. Viena Rude spent Friday afternoon with Mrs. Elizabeth Milliman honoring her birthday. The ladies played bunco after which a delicious lunch was served. Mrs. Milliman received several gifts and cards.

Directors of the DeKalb County Farm Bureau met September 28 at the Farm Bureau Building in Auburn. The county picnic in 1960 will be at the Waterloo shelter house on Sunday, July 31. Two insurance agents, Robert Gecowets and Ernest Zigler, were introduced. The board will meet again October 19. There will be a district meeting October 9, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the 8th Street Mennonite Church, Goshen. The state convention will be November 11, 12 and 13 at Indianapolis. The county annual meeting will be October 22 at 8 p.m. at the assembly room of the court house.

Mrs. Dorothy Ellen Hart of Spencerville has begun the first semester studies at Saint Francis College in Fort Wayne. Mrs. Hart is a senior at Saint Francis College and is majoring in English.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Hull were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Hull and family at Sherwood, Ohio, Sunday. Then all went to Holgate and visited Mr. and Mrs. Ray Moore and family, former residents of Saint Joe, and saw the third game of the World Series. Mrs. Marie Meese went as far as Sherwood to visit her aunt, Mrs. Mae Openlander.

Mr. and Mrs. Baxter Bowling and Mrs. Herbert Miller and Diana spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. William Strouse and family near Quincy, Mich.

The R.H.C. met with Mrs. Mary Baker as hostess Tuesday afternoon, October 6. 11 members answered roll call and hints on how to better the programs for next year were given, also hints on table decorations. Berniece Wilder baked a cake for the birthdays of the hostess and several other members this month. The hostess served lunch. A happy time was had by all.

The spectacular Royal Navy Gun Team competition, making its first appearance in America, will be the feature attraction of the International Horse Show, November 27 to December 5, at the International Amphntheatre in Chicago. The horse show is held in conjunction with the International Exposition.

Mrs. Elizabeth Milliman was a Thursday evening supper guest of Mrs. Shirley Christlieb and family.

Harvey Hull spent Saturday in Fort Wayne while his wife was working.

DeKalb County will participate in a family study of the why's and wherefore's of cancer, seeking to determine factors contributing to the occurrence of the disease.

Ray W. Miller has been re-elected chairman of the DeKalb County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

Membership in the Indiana High School Athletic Association will drop to 696 schools this year. The number will be below 700 for the first time in 35 years. The drop is due to consolidations, discontinued schools and status of 13 schools as modified or associate members offering less than three years of high school.

Mr. and Mrs. Chalmer Beaty and family of Spencerville and Mrs. Viena Rude spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hartsough at Goshen. Mrs. Rude remained to spend the week with her sister and husband.

Mrs. Carlton Curie submitted to a mastoid operation at Ohio State University Hospital Columbus, Ohio, on October 5. She will be hospitalized for five or six days before returning to her home at R1, Killbuck, Ohio.

The Baxter Bowlings are entertaining Mrs. Bowling's mother, Mrs. Hazel Scott, of Fort Wayne this week.

Ralph Sechler and Son, and Casey's Mobil Service are among county businessmen sponsoring the distribution of safety manuals to students in county schools.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Haberkorn and sons report pretty good fishing Saturday and Sunday at Lake James. Ed Storer says is was extra good at Hog Back.

GOD'S POWER

Lesson for October 11, 1959

Is God only an "oblong blur"? Somebody is said to reported that every time he tried to think of God, all he could get before his mind's eye was a kind of oblong blur. If God is as dim and shadowy as that, then the Holy Spirit must be even more so—a blur so dim that one cannot tell whether it is oblong or not.

The story of the earliest Christians, in the book of Acts, does not tell us all about the Holy Spirit that there is for us to know; it does not by any means clear up all the mysteries. But it does help us to understand a few important truths about the Holy Spirit.

The Spirit of God

It makes no real difference whether we speak of the Holy Spirit or the Sipirt of God. The Holy Spirit is God's Spirit, and only the Sipirt of God is the completely Holy Spirit. A simple definition of the Holy Spirit is this: God at work in the life of man. The Spirit is not a messenger from God, and not an "influence" —as when we say that a young man has the "spirit" of his father, or that the "spirit" of a school is to be seen in all the students. The Spirit of God IS God, God here-and-now, God-in-us. The first Christians did not understand this till after the Spirit came on the day of Pentecost (one of the great Jewish festivals). They had been brought up as Jews, and Jews of that time never supposed that God's Spirit was for every one, but only for a very few exceptional persons. It was at Pentecost that they learned that the Spirit is to be "poured out on ALL flesh," that is to say all sorts and conditions of men. They recognized the coming of the Spirit as the coming of God in a new and mighty way. No one is ever nearer to God than he is to the Holy Spirit.

What the Holy Spirit Is Not

When an African chief is converted, it takes some persuading to induce him to give up all his magic gadgets. Even the humblest and poorest African savage has a few such gadgets, but a big chief will have them all. He has a variety of charms—it may be a thing to hang around his neck, or in his belt, or on his wrist, or otherwise—one to ward off lightning, and another to protect him from his enemies, and another to make him live a long time, and one to bring him many boy children. Now the Holy Spirit is not that kind of thing at all.

The Holy Spirit (as the New Testament shows) does not guarantee freedom from suffering. We know Christ had the Holy Spirit always in him, but yet he suffered terribly. All the Apostles felt the presence of the Spirit, yet all of them, tradition tells us, died martyrs' deaths. The Holy Spirit does not guarantee that the spiritual person will never make mistakes. There are many mistakes recorded in the New Testament committed by persons who had surely received the Spirit. More than this, the Holy Spirit is not a kind of magic charm to keep the wearer from sin. We know that Simon Peter received the Holy Spirit. But we also know that he was not always free from sin after that. (See Galatians 2:11-14.)

Power—For What?

The Holy Spirit, in the Bible, is always associated with POWER. Jesus himself had said to his disciples, "You shall receive power when the Holy Spirit has come upon you." Now the Christians in Jerusalem had some kinds of power at Pentecost which most of them never seem to have had again; it came like a blazing wind and did not come again. Speaking with "tongues," for instance. But there was another and more lasting power, the power to "witness" to Christ. This always includes three things: the power to GROW more like Christ; the power to GO on his business, in his name; and the power to SHOW by testimony and by living what it means to be a people called by Christ's name. If a "Christian" is not growing nor going nor showing, one wonders if he has even known the Spirit's power.

Services For Sada Washler

Mrs. Sada Washler, 81, died Friday at noon at the hospital in LaParte, Ind. She had been staying at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Sylvia Ruhl, in Teegarden, Ind., and had been taken to the hospital the day before her death.

Mrs. Washler was born March 16, 1878, in Farmer, O., where she spent the early part of her life. On September 15, 1914, she was united in marriage with John Washler. They started housekeeping in Newville and she spent the remainder of her life in that vicinity. Mr. Washler died in 1943.

Mrs. Washler was a member of the Newville E.U.B. Church and the Newville Township Home Demonstration Club.

Surviving are the daughter; a foster son, Louis Noirot of Saint Joe; five grandchildren; and a brother, Clarence Horn, of Orlando, Florida.

Funeral services were held Monday at the Newville E.U. B. Church at 2 p.m. Rev. Kaye Casterline, pastor of the church, officiated. Burial was in Riverview Cemetery at Newville.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish in this manner to thank all of our friends and neighbors, Rev. Miller and Rev. Trout for their kindness and prayers during the illness and at the death of our loved one.

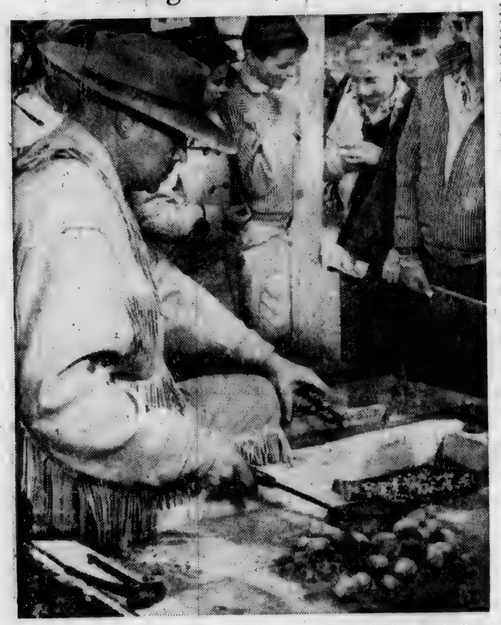
Youngsters' Favorite



Big attraction for children at the Fifth Annual Midwest Muzzle Loaders Turkey Shoot October 10-11 at Greenfield Village, Dearborn, Mich., will be Max Schwartz (above) of the Wyandotte (Mich.) Muzzle Loading Club. An expert marksman himself, Max prefers to spend his time at the Shoot making lead souvenir balls from oldtime molds for the youngsters. Boys and girls alike ring his booth constantly both days and it keeps him humping to keep up with the requests. Frontiersmen garbed like Max will be joined by teams of Civil War soldiers, both Union and Confederate, all blazing away with oldtime firearms against breakable targets. Individual marksmanship matches and men's and boy's costume judging will be held on Saturday, with team contests and women's and girl's costume judging on Sunday. The Jackson (Mich.) Zouaves will give a demonstration both days of the precision drills that have made them world famous. The Greenfield Village Shoot is patterned after those of Colonial times sponsored by local innkeepers around Thanksgiving.

IS THE LUTHERAN CHURCH

"too catholic"?

Let's look at that word, "catholic."

It doesn't mean just one particular denomination. In fact, it means quite the opposite.

It comes from two Greek words — one meaning "down," the other meaning "whole." And that is precisely the Gospel: The downward movement of God for the whole human race — never the upward climb of a few humans who feel they can qualify!

In Christ: God comes down to us who have no way up to Him. In Scripture: God comes down to us who can know nothing of Him except whatever He chooses to reveal. In the Holy Communion: Christ comes down to bring forgiveness to us who can offer Him nothing except our guilt.

That is why the most catholic doctrine in the world is "justification by grace, through faith."

It means simply that God comes down and does everything that needs to be done. He has to, because we are helpless — because the very effort to save ourselves by our own "good works" is blasphemy, idolatry, arrogance, presumption, the very essence of sin.

Let God be God. That is the catholic faith.

Let Him be born in a stable for you! Let Him agonize on a Cross for you! Let Him forgive your sin simply because He wants to — not because but despite what you are and do! Let Him save you!

If you have not understood the catholicity of genuine Protestant faith, you owe it to yourself to find out the facts.

Kenny Foundation Conducts Many-Point Program to Aid Physically Handicapped

Minneapolis, Minn.—The Sister Kenny foundation—a non-profit, charitable organization, with national headquarters here—carries on a year-around program to aid persons of all ages with nerve, muscle or joint disabilities, regardless of race, creed or financial circumstances.

As outlined by Marvin L. Kline, national executive director, the Kenny program includes:

TREATMENT: Since Kenny medical and treatment techniques used for polio cases have proven beneficial in the treatment and rehabilitation for other crippling disorders, the Kenny foundation has expanded its services to include victims of other neuromuscular diseases and disorders.

REHABILITATION: In addition to aiding post-polio patients, the Kenny foundation is helping to rehabilitate victims of strokes, spinal cord injuries, congenital disabilities, cerebral palsy (spastic paralysis), spina bifida, amputees through prothesis training, arthritis, post-fracture disabilities, Parkinsonism, dystonia musculorum deformans and meningo-radiculo-myelitis.

RESEARCH: The Kenny foundation, in line with its policy of providing assistance for acquisition of new scientific knowledge, continues important medical research in its own hospitals and makes medical research grants to leading hospitals and universities throughout the country.

SCHOLARSHIPS: The Kenny foundation is continuing its program of five-year scholarships to encourage outstanding young doctors to embark upon careers in research in the broad field of neuromuscular disabilities, including polio.

FELLOWSHIPS: The Kenny foundation continues to provide funds for development of under-graduate, graduate and post-graduate teaching programs in the medical and allied rehabilitation fields.

TRAINING: Along with training registered nurses and physical therapists to become Kenny Therapists, the Kenny training program offers instruction in rehabilitation techniques to medical doctors and rehabilitation technical personnel.

MEDICAL EDUCATION: The Kenny foundation conducts medical seminars and symposiums to better acquaint doctors with Kenny treatment techniques and research in the field of neuromuscular disorders and rehabilitation procedures.

OUT-PATIENT SERVICES: As an important part of its rehabilitation program, the Kenny foundation provides follow-up treatment. This service enables patients to return for periods of up to five years or more for the purpose of periodic check-ups.

"Public contributions, in the main, make possible this ever-expanding program," Kline said.

Around the Town

With the Editor

Have you noticed the new paint job on the truck of Jerry Baker, the floor covering man? It's good and bright, and there are little men pictured on the panels.

Prety cute.

Esther and I went bowling with Carlos and Louise Church at Bud Laub's alleys at Hicksville Saturday night. We bowled the usual three, then kept on for more. Along about the fifth or sixth game, Carlos lit up a seegar and, boy, what it did for him. He reeled off six straight strikes and ended up with a 237 for the game.

He offered me one of those lucky seegars, but I was afraid that if I smoked one, all I'd feel off would be my feet.

—Then there's Harold Yeiser who rolled a 90 last week.

—End of Editor.

Benefit Auction Saturday

The Spencerville Community Club auction will be held Saturday, October 17, at the Community Hall in Spencerville. The sale starts at 11 a.m.

Many donations have been received by the club for sale in the auction, with other articles given on consignment. Russell and Dean Kruse will be the auctioneers. Lunch will available at the sale.

A listing of many of the articles to be sold appears elsewhere in this paper.

Proceeds from the sale will be used for club activities and expenses incurred in the upkeep of the community building.

Repair To Begin On Streets, Drainage

The Saint Joe Town Board has contracted for installation of two blocks of new drain pipe and repair of streets in a program of town improvement. Work on the drain installation was scheduled to begin Thursday of this week.

New drainage facilities will run on the south side of the main street east from the school street to the Lutheran Church corner where they will hook on to the drain installation put in a few years ago. The new installation is designed to eliminate the waterhole at the school street corner when rainfall occurs.

The street repair will include patching and filling in of holes.

Film For PTA Next Tuesday

The October meeting of the Riverdale P.T.A. will be held next Tuesday evening, October 20, at 7:30 p.m. at the high school in Saint Joe.

The program for the evening will be centered about showing of the film, "Not By Chance," showing and explaining that good teachers are the result of good training and education, that public schools are served by good teachers "not by chance."

Ted Haberkorn, president of the P.T.A., announced that a request has been made that the organization lend its support to the school band and Mr. Robert Lowry, as they work for sufficient funds to purchase much-needed uniforms, by contributing to the band treasury. At Tuesday's meeting the request will be presented for consideration.

Refreshments will be served following the business meeting.

Dues for 1959-60 are now payable. Membership cards will be available at Tuesday's meeting at $1 per family.

Band To Sell Booster Ribbons

Band Booster Tag Day will be held in the Riverdale area Saturday, October 17, with members of the Riverdale School Band soliciting for donations to their uniform fund treasury.

Mr. Robert Lowry, director of the band, has announced that the band members will distribute ribbons, bearing the words "Riverdale Band Booster," in house-to-house solicitation and on-the-street solicitation to those making donations of any amount to the uniform fund. The ribbon sale will extend through the entire day.

With the increase in the size of the band under Mr. Lowry's leadership, approximately 10 additional uniforms are needed for current school year. The band has been adding to its treasury for the past two years by performances at the county fair, a band concert and an appearance at LaGrange a few weeks ago. But additional funds are needed before the new uniforms can be bought. It is anticipated that in the school year 1960-61, there will need for another 10 to 15 uniforms. Any surplus in the uniform fund this year will be kept for this future need.

Residents of the Riverdale area are asked to give the band a boost and help obtain needed uniforms.

Men Wanted-- For Festival Choir

The adult choir of the newly organized Christmas Choir Festival got off to a good start Tuesday evening with approximately 45 members present for the first rehearsal. Mrs. Omer Hansen is director of the choir.

Rehearsals of the choir are scheduled each Tuesday evening until presentation of the festival on Sunday afternoon, December 13.

Though the response for the first rehearsal was good, there is need for the voices of more men. There were about eight men present for Tuesday's rehearsal. The balance of the choir will be improved if men in the community will respond to the call for singers and assist those original eight in future rehearsals.

Mrs. Hansen asked that each one present at the first rehearsal bring another with them to the next rehearsal.

Several young people of junior high and high schol age were present for the choir rehearsal.

First Aid Class

Mrs. Dors Yeiser, first aid instructor at Saint Joe, has announced plans for a new class in first aid instruction starting Thursday night, October 22, at 7:30 p.m. Sessions will be held at the fire hall in Saint Joe.

Anyone may attend the classes. The only expense involved is the cost of a textbook, 75c or one dollar.

Continuation of the class will depend upon public response. If there are not enough to justify continuing the class at the present time, it will be disbanded until a possble later date.

LADIES LITERARY CLUB

The Ladies Literary Club met on October 7 at the home of Mrs. Lora Leighty in Auburn. There were 13 active members, three emeritus members, one honorary member and one former member present.

Mrs. Charles Krise led the collect and pledge to the flag.

Mrs. Roy Baker presented three film strips on Indiana, bringing out historical sites, conservation and other interesting facts about the state.

Mrs. Wayne Storer conducted the entertainment.

After a short business meeting, the club was adjourned and the hostess served light refreshments.

The guests were Mrs. Charles Krise, Mrs. Renner and Mrs. Everett Mavis of Auburn and Mrs. Avis Staman of Saint Joe.

TV 'Rigged'? So What?

Personally, I don't understand the big hullabalu about the TV quiz shows and their "rigging." It's a big fuss over something that didn't hurt anybody, actually; but it is somewhat disappointing, perhaps, to have our confidence betrayed. There are more important things to be worried about, however, than a bunch of fixed TV quiz shows which provided little useful value for the masses and a lot of cash for some few.

I don't like crookedness any more than anybody else. But what's crooked about "fixing" shows that were only of entertainment value? "Fixing" is going on all the time in other TV entertainment programs and no one hollers about that. Marshall Dillon always ends up on top, Superman manages to take or trick the villains into custody just when his thirty minutes of time run out, the playhouse dramas which occasionally give the impression of true-to-life connections in their stories fill their allotted time exactly. Nobody says a word about those "fixes." Why? Because they expect them in the entertainment field. So, if quiz shows are good entertainment, it seems to me that the producers and the "players" on those shows have as much right to plan better entertainment as anybody else.

It doesn't matter to me what happens in the current investigation of the quiz shows except that I don't want to see anyone done any wrong. I never did make an effort to get home in time watch those poor contestants (much less watch them when I did get home) fret and wring their hands and bite their lips in agony as they tried to answer the questions. If they didn't know the answers, I feel sorry for the mental anguish they went through. If they did know them and were just playing out their part, then there are some pretty good actors running around loose in the general public today. They did better than some of the theatrical celebrities who appeared frequently on the quiz shows and whose hesitancy in answering sometimes was almost obviously faked.

I'm more bothered about influences on our thinking by some of the dramatic shows than I am about somebody's getting quiz answers ahead of time. The authentic air about some of the purely fictitious presentations, done in all seriousness, is more detrimental to our social health because we quite naturally combine true facts with pure fiction. But then, we like to drift into a world of make-believe every so often to get away from it all; so there probably is more good than bad to be had from fictitious writings if we can remember that that is what they are.

Anyhow, as far as the TV probe is concerned, I say we're wasting too much time on it. Some contestants got some help, so what? TV ratings showed that people watched the shows, the sponsors were happy, the contestants got paid for their time, some of them got too much maybe, the public was entertained which is what the show was for in the first place.

Now if you'll excuse me, I gotta run. Red Skelton's coming on.

The Pot and the Kettle

I wondered how long it would be.

Despite the shadow of the steel strike, the general economic picture didn't look too bad. Employment was up; buying was up. Then it happened. The scare technique was called upon as a public statement was issued to the effect: we'll have a recession in a couple of years if the administration doesn't change its economic program.

The statement came from—a union leader. This statement in the face of the recession that is impending due to prolonged shutting down of the steel industry.

There must be a lot of bolstered egos in this country with the evidence of power to be seen as the steel strike threatens to reach into every American home.

Others say . . . .

GREEKS HAD THREE WORDS TO EXPRESS THEIR LOVE

In English there is only one word for love; if there are synonyms they do not have very definite shades of meaning. For example, "I love Paris in the Springtime," "I love crepes suzettes," "I love Mary" all use "love" indifferently. Rightly it has been said that the Greeks had a word for it—in fact, they had three.

The first word for love was "Eros" which is generally what is meant by sex-love; it is something biological, glandular, instinctive, emotional. It does not always distinguish between the pleasure and the person. Too often the wine can be drunk and the glass forgotten. The illusion is created that there is deep affection for the other person, but what really happens is that the ego is projected into the other person. What is actually loved is the pleasnre which the other person gives. The frosting on the cake is eaten but the cake is ignored.

This erotic love sometimes turns to hate. This could never be if the other person were really loved because love would exist whether the other person reciprocated love or not. When the ego feels that it no longer is receiving the pleasure it expected, there develops a contempt on the grounds that one has been "cheated."

This is a very immature kind of love and that is why its sponsor, Cupid, is generally pictured as a child that has never quite grown up. When one reads of divorces after a few years of married life, one can be sure that it was an erotic love which was at its base. As a Russian writer has so well put it: "If unresiprocated love is hard on the heart, sometimes reciprocated love can be worse."

The other Greek word for love is "Philia." This is the kind of love which exists both in friendship and in marriage. In erotic love, the other person is replaceable; in philia, the other person is irreplaceable. No one can take the place of an intimate friend or a devoted wife or a consecrated mother.

Philia is based on some kind of community of feeling, interest or service; the intellect rather than the glands dominate the affections; the relation existing is that of an I-Thou relationship rather than the I-it relation; affection is based on the responsibility of the I for the Thou. This was the kind of love that Damon had for Pythias, that made Jacob serve seven years to win the heart of Rachel, that a wife has for a husband such as is expressed in the poem of Elizabeth Barrett Browning, the last lines of which read:

"I love thee with the breath, smiles, tears of all my life!
And, if God choose, I shall but love thee better after death."

The third word for love was not much used in classical Greek, it was a love so noble and divine that Christianity alone made it popular—that word is "Agape." It was used only ten times by Homer; it is found only three times in Euripides; later on, it was used a bit in the popular Greek which was spoken throughout the world after Alexander conquered it. The Greeks did not need such a word because Plato held that there could be no real love between God and man, inasmuch as the gods being perfect desired nothing; therefore, they had no love for man. Aristotle argued in the same way. He said that there was too great a disproportion between man and God for any love to express existence between the two.

When God sent His only Son to this world to save it, and when His Divine Son offered His life on Calvary to redeem it, then was born a love between God and man which the Greeks could not and did not understand. That kind of love was expressed by "Agape." In contrast to it, the word "Eros" is nowhere found in the New Testament; the word "Philia" in all its form is found forty-five times; but the word "Agape" is found three hundred twenty times.

Once this Agape began to exist, then it flowed down to illumine even the Eros; Eros became the sensible expression of the Divine love; fraternal and friendly love was also sanctified by the Agape inasmuch as we were to regard everyone else as better than ourselves. The only true lovers of friends are those whose love is explained by the Agape of Him Who so loved the world He sent His only begotten Son to redeem it.

—Bishop Fulton J. Sheen.

Services For Frank Akins

Funeral services were conducted Sunday afternoon at the Baidinger-Walter Funeral Home in Spencerville for Frank Akins, 82, of Saint Joe, a retired livestock buyer and lifelong resident of this area.

James Beck, pastor of the Saint Joe Church of Christ, officiated at the services. Burial was in Riverview Cemetery at Newville.

Mr. Akins died Friday at the Butler Rest Home where he had resided for four and one-half months. He had been in failing health since he suffered a stroke of paralysis six years ago.

He was born near Newville October 1, 1877, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Hollis Akins.

Survivors include two sons, Hollis of Fort Wayne and Karl of Saint Joe; a sister, Mrs. Inez Bartholomew, a patient at the Betz convalescent home north of Auburn; two grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. Mr. Akins' second wife died about three years ago.

Letters to the Editor

September 21, 1959

Dear Publisher:

I pick up your esteemed publication this morning and come across an item concerning the reunion of graduates of the Concord Township High School at Alton Park, Sept. 13th. The report stated that the undersigned was a member of the class of 1899. Your reporter was in error in that I was a member of that class. The 1899 class was the first organized class of the school and contained two members, both long deceased, Walter Ulm and Ray Sheffer.

The second class of the high school included four members: Dessa (Reasoner) Potter, Zion, Ill.; Mary Wiers, deceased; John Dilley, Waterloo, and myself. We received our diplomas in 1900.

It might be of interest to recall that I was superintendent of the high school during the year of 1906-07. The graduating class members of that year were Blanche Woodcox, Ray Herrick, Ralph Patterson and Vera (Copp) Stout, Hamilton, Ind. All are deceased except Mrs. Stout.

Progress of St. Joe High School has always been of interest to me. I am pleased that a reunion of graduates is in progress. In earlier days we had an annual alumni banquet but that event has long since been discontinued.

Yours very truly,
Lee O. Tustison

Only 100 Attend School Meeting

Approximately 100 persons attended the DeKalb County Convention called by Circuit Court Judge Harold Stump for the purpose of explaining the procedures and workings of the 1959 School Re-organization Act passed by the 1959 Indiana General Assembly.

The meeting was held Wednesday evening, October 14, in the assembly room of the court house.

School administrators from the various schools in DeKalb County were present to explain the many provisions of the act. Included were the "do's" and "don'ts" of school reorganization as provided by the Indiana statute.

Following the explanations of the various provisions, the meeting was opened for questions from the public.

Judge Stump closed the meeting with the request that the trustees and school boards turn in their recommendations of those whom they consider qualified to serve on the county reorganization board.

CONCORD JR HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

Norma Diederich was hostess to the Concord Jr. Home Demonstration Club Monday evening, October 5.

In the absence of the president, Ellen Fetters opened the meeting and all repeated the club collect.

Devotions, a poem and the history of the song of the month were given by Edna Perkins. Reports were given on the county building fund, new county officers, achievement day and the dates of the Christmas workshop.

Roll call was answered with telling of, or bringing, a favorite hat.

June Baker, health leader, conducted a polio quiz.

The meeting closed with the singing of the prayer song.

A homemade auction was conducted to replenish the treasury. Garnet Wasson conducted several games. Lunch was served by the hostess and co-hostess, Eunice Rennecker.

Here are four reasons why the Leonard Browns installed ELECTRIC heat in their 50-year-old home!

1 "WE WANTED MORE COMFORT! And we got it," says Mr. Brown. "Now we have an even heat with no more drafts or cold floors. And with electric heat, we have a thermostat in every room. We all feel more comfortable."

2 "WE WANTED MORE LIVING AREA!" According to Mrs. Brown, "Our new electric baseboard heaters are attractive and out of the way. The old stoves took up too much room and were an eyesore."

3 "WE WANTED A CLEANER SYSTEM!" Mrs. Brown finds, "Electric heat does not create any soot or greasy scum."

4 "WE WANTED MORE CONVENIENCE!" Mr. Brown explains, "It was convenient (and economical, too) that we did not have to rebuild our chimney, buy a bulky heating unit, install hot water pipes or hot air ducts, or have yearly inspections."

Do any of these four reasons apply to your home? See your electric heating dealer or call I&M today!

Bible material: Acts 3.

Devotional reading: Psalm 103:1-8.

SHARING

Lesson for October 18, 1959

Christianity is a religion of sharing, but not all sharing is Christian. Sharing when you have to isn't it, otherwise everybody who pays taxes would be a Christian. Sharing very rarely is hardly it, either, because Christian sharing is a constant habit, not an occasional spasm. Giving away what you don't want, cleaning out your closets and giving to Volunteers the benefit of your junk, is some distance yet from Christian sharing. Sharing THINGS can be Christian; indeed the Apostle John inquires whether we can imagine we have the love of God in us if we do not share with the needy (I John 3:17). But Christian sharing is something over and beyond letting other people use some of the things we call ours, some of the time.

Sharing Christ

It can all be put into two words. At its best and highest, Christian sharing means SHARING CHRIST. But in order to understand those two simple words, put together in that way, we have to do some further thinking. A short story in the book of Acts (Chap. 3) helps to make this clear. Peter and John have become such famous men that we forget how poor they actually were. They had been fishermen, and they had been away from their lake a long time. When they told the beggar they had no silver nor gold, they were as good as saying they had nothing but pennies. Yet they gave that beggar something far better than money; they gave him the power of Christ. What happened is recorded as a miracle; and miracles are not in our times granted to most men to perform. Yet sharing Christ is still possible. Observe that the poorest Christian, the one least able to share money or THINGS of any kind, still has what the wealthiest person who is not a Christian lacks; namely Christ.

An Amazing Case

Here is a spectacular case that occurred less than five years ago, a miracle too of a sort. It illustrates what "sharing Christ" can mean. In the city of Philadelphia a foreign student was walking along doing no one any harm. Some young hooligans happened to see him. They had just been talking about how they would get money to go to a dance hall that night. So—being hooligans—they rushed this foreign student and not only took what little money had, only a dollar or so as the newspapers reported it; but they murdered him then and there. They were arrested and the State of Pennsylvania took steps to convict them of the murder and execute them. All a familiar pattern, too familiar in big cities. Murder — arrest — conviction—the pen or the chair.

But the astonishing thing happened. The family of the dead student were Koreans, and Christians. They wrote to the authorities in Pennsylvania asking them not to prosecute those boy murderers, but to help them. More than that, this Korean family went to the length of getting up a fund (all by themselves) to be used for the education—ordinary, and also moral and religious—of the boys who had killed their young relative.

Bringing Christ Into It

No doubt many American church people, when they read about that case, felt irritated and maybe even angry. "Those hooligans committed murder, let 'em burn for it. What business have those Koreans bringing religion into it?" But that's just the point. They didn't bring "religion" into it, they brought Christ into the situation. That is what sharing Christ means, bringing him into every situation of need. Christ is (we hope) in a church situation, for instance, in the worship on Sunday morning. Christ is in the offering we give to missions. But the hard way—and the best way—to share Christ is not to sing about him or to employ others to talk about him. To share Christ is to make every situation, even tragedy and murder, different because you have invited Him to help you help others.

SISTERS OF THE SKILLET HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Sisters of the Skillet Home Demonstration Club met September 17 at the home of Dorothy Markle.

The meeting was opened by the president, Jean Moore, with everyone repeating the collect. Devotions were given by Dorothy Markle. The history of the song of the month, "Believe Me, If All Those Endearing Young Charms," was given by Connie Hollabaugh, who then the singing of the song.

Roll call was answered by 12 members and one guest. It was announced that the county rummage sale would be held October 23 and the Christmas Workshop November 5. Dorothy Markle gave a very interesting report on the state's seals.

The following were elected to office for 1960:

Sharon Bowser, president.
Edith Arnett, vice president.
Sue Richmond, secretary.
Gladys Akey, treasurer.
Paula Roberts, song leader.
Arden Dwyer, news reporter.

The meeting then closed with the prayer song.

During the social hour Doris Yeiser showed some of the members how to do huck towel weaving. The flower committee sold homemade ice cream, cake and coffee for refreshments to help their finances.

The car with the year's hottest style is getting the warmest reception of all! And it's no wonder . . . when you look at all the new and different things Chevrolet has for 1960! Come and see it!

THAT'S CHEVY!

You can tell already, by the growing number of new Chevrolets you see on the road, that this one's the sizzler for Sixty! It was bound to happen. People look over Chevrolet's 16 freshly styled '60 models. They see a choice of 24 engine-drive combinations, including a new Economy Turbo-Fire V8. They drive a Chevy. They like the way the ride has been polished and perfected with new rubber-cushion body mounts muffling road hum and vibration. They like Chevy's wide seats, its wonderfully easy handling, the whole feeling of cruising along smoothly and comfortably in a car that never tires of travel. They just can't see a good reason for looking any farther.

Matter of fact, it looks like Chevrolet has a corner on quality and fine features in its field. Even costly cars have to look to their laurels—Chevrolet sets a new standard by matching elegance with economy. By offering luxury you've never seen before in Chevrolet's price class. Electronic Device Used by Kenny in Testing of Muscles

Minneapolis, Minn.—Measuring muscular force in pounds of pressure by electronic devices to aid in the diagnosis of various neuromuscular diseases is one of the newest methods of determining the ravages left by disease on the muscular system, according to physiatrists.

At Elizabeth Kenny Institute, here, such a measuring unit, a myodenometer, the only one of its kind now being used for medical research in the country, is turning up useful facts regarding muscle development or deterioration, according to physical therapists there.

Prior to introduction of the myodenometer as a testing device by Dr. Willis C. Beasley, Bethesda, Md., doctors had no better guide in determining the effects of disease on a patient's muscular system than the personal impression they got from actually feeling the muscles. Previously, individual judgment, said physiatrists, whether expressed as a percent rating, a numerical scale or such descriptions as "normal" or "poor" made uniformity and accuracy impossible.

Testing has been carried on among some 2,000 normal and handicapped persons at Kenny institute to date. Among these were "pledge" classes from fraternities and sororities at University of Minnesota who volunteered their services as "guinea pigs" or normals in order to establish a base for normal muscular force.

IMMERSED in the warm, soothing waters of a Hubbard tank, this 14-year-old girl is shown receiving Kenny treatment for spastic paraplegia (paralysis) from a Kenny Therapist at one of the Sister Kenny foundation centers situated in strategic cities across the nation. Through tank baths, pain is relieved, muscles exercised and strengthened and coordination improved. Under its expanded program, the Kenny foundation provides treatment and rehabilitation for persons of all ages with neuromuscular disabilities, including polio.

Recovery, rehabilitation and research are the "3R's" of the Sister Kenny foundation treatment and rehabilitation program for persons of all ages with neuromuscular disabilities, including polio.

Church Men To Meet Oct. 28

The Rev. James A. Scherer, dean of the Foreign Mission School of the Chicago Lutheran Seminary, Maywood, Illinois, will address the fall meeting of the Lutheran Men of Northeastern Indiana on Wednesday, October 28, at St. Mark Lutheran Church in Butler. The Rev. Scherer is a native of Fort Wayne and is an ordained pastor of the Indiana Synod of the United Lutheran Church in America.

Following graduation from Yale University, he served for three years in China as an English instructor for the Yale-in-China Association. This was followed by theological study at Union Theological Seminary in New York and the Chicago Lutheran Theological Seminary leading to a B. D. in 1952. In the same year Pastor Scherer was ordained by the Indiana Synod and commissioned by the Board of Foreign Missions of the ULCA for service in Japan.

In Japan he engaged in general evangelistic and pastoral work and assisted in literary and radio evangelism. Returning in 1956, Pastor Scherer pursued graduate studies toward the doctorate in the field of mission at the Union Theological Seminary. During 1956-57, he was a member of the Program for Advanced Religious Studies, a 25-member ecumenical study program.

In 1957 he accepted the call to become Dean of the newly established School of Missions at the Chicago Lutheran Seminary in Maywood.

Men of the Saint Joe and Spencerville Lutheran congregations have united with men of seven other Lutheran congregations in this area to present the quarterly meetings of the group. The other churches represented are St. Mark of Butler, Zion of Corunna, St. Mark of Auburn, Mt. Pleasant of Albion, St. Mark of Albion, Emmanuel of LaOtto and Bethlehem of near LaOtto.

Around the Town

With the Editor

Mrs. Gertrude Borthwick set me straight about this choral society business that we're working on now. I guess the paper said the choir festival efforts were the first in Saint Joe; but Mrs. Borthwick notes that years ago there was another choral society which was going pretty good.

The group hired Dr. Johnson of Auburn to serve as director and members paid 50 cents a rehearsal to cover expenses. Mrs. Borthwick was in the organization and she remembers some of the other members at that time: Roy Koch, Bill and Avis Staman, Pauline Baumgartner, Lora Leighty, Cora Curie and Esther Bowman.

I'm glad to hear about these past activities. And it just goes to show there ain't NUTHIN' new in this old world.

Edna Amstutz remarked at P.T.A. the other night about the coloring of the leaves on the trees right now, particularly the trees now bathed in red.

I like summer. But for looks you can't beat even just taking a gander down the main street west from the News Office for sheer beauty in the changing shades of green, yellow, brown, red, etc.

Has anybody noticed? The basketball season is sneakin' up on us real quick. It won't be long now, as the monkey said when he got his tail caught in the lawn mower.

Rally Day

Rally Day at the Saint Joe Church of Christ will be held Sunday, October 25.

Chester Davis, Jr., will be the guest teacher for the Adult Bible School Classes. A program will follow the Bible School hour. Musical selections will be given by Mr. and Mrs. Omer Hansen and the ladies trio. Recitations will be given by the children.

All Bible School members are urged to attend and visitors will be most welcome.

Hallowe'en Party Oct. 31

The Saint Joe Volunteer Fire Department is again preparing to entertain the community at a big Hallowe'en Party to be held Saturday evening, October 31. Final plans were made at the department's meeting Monday night.

The auxiliary of the department also met Monday evening to plan for its operation of the refreshment table at the party.

The usual parade will be formed on the main street in the downtown district between 7:00 and 7:15 p.m. The Riverdale band will lead the marching to the gym with the party to get underway there at around 7:30 p.m. Master of ceremonies Derwood Ridgway will then take over with presentation of the entertainment and awarding of prizes for costumed guests.

Adults are invited to come in costume to the party and try for one of the prizes, in addition to adding to the fun. Treats are in the offing and it is possible that several movies will be shown.

Committees are as follows:

Parade—Roy Bowser, Maurice Kline, Dick Roberts.

Entertainment— Joe Robinson, Bud Shockley.

Prizes—Paul Moore, Babe Coburn, Donald Yeiser.

Gym and band—Merl Guilford.

Treats—Mose Yeiser and Roy Reidenbach.

Band Gets $800

The Riverdale Band received two big boosts in their drive to obtain funds for new uniforms during the past week.

On Saturday the members of the band sold "Booster Ribbons" to the general public through door-to-door solicitation and person-to-person contacts. The public responded to a welcome degree by donating approximately $286.00 to the uniform fund. This amount does not include an additional $10 received as a donation the week before from a Bunler insurance firm.

Then on Tuesday evening, the Riverdale P.T.A. voted to contribute $500.00 to the uniform fund following discussion of the matter and presentation of a motion for vote.

With the money received from these two sources, the band can now obtain the uniforms needed for the current year and have a good start on the amount needed to fill the anticipated requirement of another 15 uniforms for the 1960-61 school year. A dozen new outfits are needed for the current year.

Cost of the uniforms is $53.50 each, plus an additional charge for hat plumes.

Rash Of Vandalism

Two 16-year olds living near Garrett called Sheriff Dorsie Likens Friday night to confess that they had burglarized Riverdale High School and had stolen a milk truck from the Holsom Dairy in Saint Joe Wednesday night. One of the boys had admitted to a guardian that he had been in on the break-in and theft; the guardian then urged the youth to give himself up.

Taken from the school were $1.35 in change and a pocket knife. The youths broke a window in the front door to gain entry, then removed the glass in the door of the principal's office to gain entry there. Classrooms were ransacked but apparently nothing was taken.

The truck was taken from the dairy, then abandoned in a woods near a gravel pit near Garrett. The truck was found late Thursday afternoon. Work men at the pit saw the truck and notified authorities.

The youths were released after being detained in the county jail to appear later before Judge Harold Stump.

Three Saint Joe boys, 8, 10 and 12 years old, were seized Sunday afternoon as they broke windows in a drag line at a gravel pit and admitted to Sheriff Likens that they also caused over $100 damage to B&O Railroad property in Saint Joe. The boys were caught by A. D. Inlow at his gravel pit. Three windows in the drag line were broken.

Investigation showed that the boys damaged the railroad property before going to the pit. 12 signal lights were shattered and three windows broken in the B&O depot at Saint Joe. The boys left after placing several boards across the westbound tracks at the station. The boards were removed before a train passed through town.

The boys were scheduled to appear in DeKalb County juvenile court.

Senior Play Next Week

The Senior Class of Riverdale High School will present their class play on Thursday and Friday nights; October 29 and 30, at the high school gym in Saint Joe.

The play is a fast-moving comedy entitled "Love Is Too Much Trouble" and is directed by Miss Joann Allison of the high school faculty.

The action centers around the troubles of college students in their social life with the local "sweet shoppe" as the hub of activity. The play is filled with laughter from beginning to end.

Admission prices are 65 cents for reserved seats and 45 cents for general admission.

Curtain time is 8:00 p.m.

Brass Tacks - 17th In A Series

Most people nowadays seem to seek methods of eliminating causes of worry. That may appear to be a desirable goal to seek, at first glance. But if we analyze it, I think we can see that worrying, in one form or another and in varying degrees, is what makes us prosper and progress. Worrying gives life meaning.

If I were not worrying about where our food for today's meals was to come from, I wouldn't be sitting here punching the typewriter to fulfill part of the responsibilities of a newspaper editor. Similary, if others were not worrying about the food for their families' tables, they wouldn't be headed for their places of employment. If we were not worrying about education and the fitness of our schools for the changing times, we would not be attempting to improve the educational system. It should be noted, however, that there are those who seem to do little worrying in this respect and the educational system suffers for it.

Worrying is an absolute necessity or the human race would be absolutely worthless. Channeling this worry in the right direction is important or we become obsessed with desires and wants which lead to chaotic conditions in society. For instance, we worry too much today about security and in seeking to become secure only increase our worry. What meaning would there be to life if Americans had it the way they seem to want it, to be born in a land of plenty, to be raised in an atmosphere in which any crisis or emergency is automatically taken care of by some state or federal government program, to be employed in a system wherein working or not working there is always an income, to be cared for by insurance which automatically takes care of any emergency which may arise, and so on. A lot of people think, "What's wrong with that?" Possibly a good answer is the insecurity Americans feel today because they strive so constantly for security. Oddly enough, the power in the destructive forces which we have helped to develop, along with others, wipes out any possibility of gaining security as is it popularly pictured. Perhaps that is what is so discomforting and disturbng - we don't want to admit that what we want is impossible. What we want is enough money for everything we want and somebody to have the money ready for us when we want it. Americans cry out about the increasing cost of living, inflation, high taxes, government spending. At the same time we ask for more government service, social security, unemployment compensation in increasing amounts, more money for less work, longer paid vacations, hospital and medical benefits taken care of by somebody else, etc., etc., etc.

From what smattering of history I have been exposed to, I seem to sense that other nations have gone through the same cycle we are now experiencing. We are too much inclined to think that "we are different," such disaster which befell nations in past history as they decayed under the burden of prosperity just isn't in the cards for us. And this impossible disastrous end is impossible for us because we associate our country as a special favorite child of God; we're SUPPOSED to have it so good. When we institute welfare programs in our country which at their inception take away the God-given responsibilities to provide for ourselves as individuals, we are still right and those other socialistic and communistic nations are wrong. For too many Americans, Americans can do no wrong. Whatever we do, even if the end result is the same as the end result of systems we abhor, we are still right. I imagine other great nations of the past have felt the same self assurance, under different circumstances but with the same fundamentals at stake; and they were destroyed.

The lesson is there for mankind to learn. The only security is in God. His security relegates money and material possessions to a position of lesser importance. They are a welcome part of life, not the driving force behind it.

Americans would do well to practice what they preach.

DID MARTIN LUTHER "Go Far Enough?"

"Luther made a fine start," a man wrote recently, "but he didn't go far enough! Other denominations had to finish the job."

How about it?

Let's look at the facts. Take, for example, the central doctrine of Christianity: Salvation.

The medieval church taught that if a man strives desperately enough, if he engages in enough "good works," if he climbs part way up the ladder—then God will be willing to reach down and give him a helping hand.

But, returning to the New Testament, the Reformation Church learned that we are saved by grace alone!—that we can not even want salvation unless God first kindles our hearts, that we are utterly helpless by ourselves, that God lifts us up all the way, that we can contribute nothing, that Christ does it all.

In brief—medieval religion stressed human effort, but Lutheranism trusts solely in God's activity.

How could any church "go farther" than that?

In actual fact, most efforts to "go farther" have ended up closer to the Middle Ages.

For example: Whenever attention is shifted from the Atonement of Christ to a certain "mode of living"—then religion has become a human activity. Or When the Real Presence of Christ in the Holy Communion is denied—then the Lord's Supper is turned into a human ceremony.

And thus, "liberal" Christianity is often the very closest to the medieval.

NEWVILLE TWP. HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Newville Twp. Home Demonstration Club held its regular meeting on October 14 at the home of Mrs. Elsie Meek with Mrs. Grace Robertson and Mrs. Mary Guthrie as co-hostess.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Cynthia Sipe, with club members repeating the club creed.

Devotions were to have been given by Mrs. Sada Washler who passed away October 2. In her memory the club sang the song of the month, "Steal Away To Jesus," then held silent prayer.

Roll call was responded to by 25 members. There were 3 children present. Mrs. Bertha Ricketts was welcomed into the club. Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

Mrs. Lois Guiff reported on the club trip to Fort Wayne. The club treated the 4-H girls to the trip making a group of 38. Everyone enjoyed the trip.

Mrs. Lucille Nelson reported on the Council meeting and also announced the appointment of a new home demonstration agent, Miss Patricia Young.

Birthday contributions were made by Mesdames Nellie Richards, Ida Brush, Della Hart and Kathryn Kreig, also little Miss Robin Inlow.

The meeting closed with the repeating of the club collect.

Mesdames Leta Shafer, Daisy Roberts and Delores Inlow were in charge of recreation.

The hostess then served light refreshments after which club adjourned. Next month's meeting will be held with Mrs. Edna Michelson.

RAILROAD FEATHERBEDDING:

$500,000,000 LOSS

TO THE NATION—INCLUDING YOU—EVERY YEAR

Featherbedding on the railroads — pay for work not done or not needed — is costing the American people the shocking total of more than $500,000,000 a year.

You pay for it every time you shop, because featherbedding costs are hidden in the price of everything you buy.

Obsolete union work rules, involving the railroad operating employees, are responsible for this gigantic burden. Right now, for instance, these rules require every diesel locomotive to carry a fireman — even though diesels have no fires to stoke, no boilers to tend.

The forthcoming negotiations between the railroads and the unions are urgently important to the whole nation.

In asking the unions to drop these featherbedding rules, all the railroads ask for is a fair day's work for a fair day's pay.

BRAVE MEN

Lesson for October 25, 1959

Christians have always had a tradition of courage. But there is a special quality about Christian courage that gives it distinction.

Two of the original Apostles, Peter and John, demonstrated a specially Christian variety of bravery when they bearded the Sanhedrin. The experience would have frightened almost anyone. The men whom Peter and John faced at their trial were the very same who had "legally" murdered Jesus only a few weeks before this time. The Sanhedrin was a combination of Pope, Supreme Court and Cabinet. They were the supreme authority in the land. They could get people killed. Nobody would think of "bucking" them. Yet Peter and John did exactly that.

There Is One Higher

One special feature of Christian courage is that it is not frightened by high authority. When asked how he managed to have the nerve to defy Hitler, Martin Niemoeller (who had been a naval officer under Hitler) said, "It was simple. I had a higher Fuehrer, a higher Leader." Christians always know that above every human, earthly authority they have an allegiance to the All-Highest. They may realize that human authorities can make it very unpleasant for them; but that makes no difference.

Take the case of Ambrose, a bishop of Milan nearly seventeen centuries ago. Emperor Theodosius appeared one morning at the bishop's church, expecting the red-carpet treatment as usual. But not this time. For Ambrose was at the door and would not let the emperor in. Theodosius as emperor had just been in a war. Ambrose was not a pacifist, but he knew that his royal highness Theodosius had slaughtered over 7,000 people in the city of Thessalonica — most of whom were non-combatants. That was a war-crime. Bishop Ambrose pointed out. It was like the slaughters of old King David. "And you must do penance as David did," he said, "or I will never admit you to my church." The emperor could have killed Ambrose; he had killed many for less; but Ambrose's courage conquered him. He actually did public penance, too, and there were no more slaughters of the innocent.

Two Thousand Tumults

"I have put down two thousand tumults," said another Christian preacher, at the close of his life which had been packed with narrow escapes. His name was John Calvin. Starting out as a student and writer, a shy sort of scholar, he had been drafted into becoming a virtual dictator of a city that needed a dictator if one ever did. The city threw him out, but before long they discovered they could not get along without him, and persuaded him to return. He had a different kind of courage, the courage needed by a man in authority, in high position.

Against Madness

If one kind of Christian courage is to stand up against higher authority in the name of the Highest, if another kind is to stand against the crowd for what a man knows to be right, there is a third kind of Christian courage which is needed sometimes. It is often a losing kind, at the time, but it is thrilling all the same. A roaring Chinese mob, one day at the beginning of this century, all with murder in their hearts and knives in their hands, surrounded a missionary named Horace Pitkin. "Have you anything to say before we kill you?" they screamed. "Yes," said he. "Tell my son to come out to China and take my place." Now emperors can be persuaded, and crowds can be controlled; but a mob with the taste of blood is simply mad; and with madness there is no argument. So they cut Pitkin to pieces. Yet even this seemingly hopeless courage had its reward. When Horace Pitkin's son went out to take his father's place, as he did, he found, as one of his first converts, a man who as a boy had watched that missionary die. "From that moment," this Chinese said, "I wanted to know more about the religion of a man who would not be afraid."

"We invested in solid comfort when we bought our new ALL-ELECTRIC home,"

Says Mr. Joseph Mesalam

"The cost? Only $46.52 each month, and we heat 2,200 square feet of living area!" The Mesalam family pays on the convenient I&M budget plan.

"To me, solid comfort means the ability to do what is profitable and fun and let electricity do the rest of the work. My family receives a lot of enjoyment operating our roller skating rink. But we wouldn't have much time for the rink if it weren't for our electric helpers. Clean electric heat, the automatic washer and electric dryer, the wonderful electric surface units and wall oven, and countless other electric appliances help us quickly accomplish most household tasks."

Roddy says: "I&M electric rates have never been increased. If your electric bill is higher, it's because you're using electricity to take over so many more of your household tasks. Actually, the more you use each month, the less you pay per kilowatthour. Living better electrically costs so little, yet means so much."

The Lowrey Organ Club held its monthly meeting in Waterloo at the Loos Music Center on October 15. A short business session was held at which time it was decided to hold the annual turkey supper at the next monthly meeting. Mr. Marion Baker gave a report on his trip through the Lowrey organ factory. Two girls from Edgerton entertained with selections on the organ. Also enjoyed were solos, duets and trios on the piano and organ by Mr. Richard Porter of LaOtto, Mr. Marion Baker of Garrett, Mr. Dale Meyer of Butler, Mr. Sonders of Fort Wayne and Mr. Jack Loos of Waterloo. Doughnuts and cider were enjoyed by the members and guests.

Charles Koch of one mile west of Butler Center will observe his 90th birthday Friday. Mrs. Koch at present is hospitalized in serious condition following a fall in which she suffered a broken hip. Mr. Koch's parents cleared 200 acres of land three miles west of Saint Joe to build a home and in this house Charles Koch was born October 23, 1869. On May 2, 1893, Mr. Koch and Arline Curie were married. 47 years of the Kochs' married life were spent in the same house in Saint Joe prior to their moving to their present home. Two sons are living, Joe Koch of Garrett and Stanley Koch of Fort Wayne. A daughter, Opal, died in 1914. There is one grandchild.

The Ronald Emenhisers and Mr. and Mrs. Cal Laux and Lenare Jolly spent the week end in Wheeling, W. Va., and with relatives in Somerton, O.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pickering and daughter, Diane, of Defiance were Sunday October 11 guests of Rev. and Mrs. Rod Trout, Mr. Pickering is president of Tri-State Yokefellow. It has long been their dream to give their lives to God's work and they have given several acres of land and a barn to Yokefellow, now being made into a Retreat Center. Mr. Pickering is doing much of the work himself, although the Retreat Center will be maintained by donations and gifts of interested Christians.

Mr. John Weidner has been quite ill with the flu this past week.

Cancer Study

A nationwide cancer study survey is now underway. DeKalb County is participating in the survey and two local women are serving in leadership positions.

Mrs. Carl Perkins of Saint Joe is serving as coordinator of the rural area of DeKalb County and Mrs. Virgil Kimes of Spencerville is serving as a volunteer research worker.

The study is the largest ever undertaken in the field of cancer research. Personal habits of American citizens will be studied in the testing of theories related to the spread of the disease.

An organization meeting was held Tuesday for county personnel who will work in the survey.

You've heard of the cameraman and no film in his camera? That was me Tuesday afternoon as I tried out the Polaroid on the basketball team. The bulb flashed and I pulled the tab, as you're supposed to do with a Polaroid—and all I got was a blank sheet of paper. It took another three tries before I got a decent exposure and it wasn't the best. But time was awastin' and the coach wanted to get the boys started on some defensive maneuvering.

Earlier Tuesday morning I finally got a picture of Dick Freeburn. I would have had one Monday night, except for the fact that I had a bunch of burned-out flash bulbs and hadn't noticed it.

Oh well, I'll learn.

A funny thing happened in regard to that camera. It was advertised in the want-ads last week in Fort Wayne so I called up about it Saturday. A little girl answered and the conversation went something like this with me leading off:

"Hello, is this the party that has a Polaroid camera for sale?"

"O Mom, it's somebody about the Polaroid - - - Daddy's getting the mail right now."

"O.K."

" - - - -He'll be here in a few minutes . . . . . O, this is so exciting, everything is happening today."

"Why, what's happening to you?"

"Oh, my boy friend is coming over. He doesn't come over very often."

—I thought it was kinda cute. She must have been about nine years old.

Fiction—

"Something the matter?" asked Dick of the young, well dressed customer who sat staring sullenly into his beer.

"Two months ago my grandfather died and left me $85,000," said the stranger.

"That doesn't sound like anything to be upset about," said Dick as he polished a glass. "It should happen to me."

"Yeah," said the sour young man, "but last month an uncle on my mother's side passed away. He left me $150,000."

"So why are you sitting there looking so unhappy?"

"This month—so far—not a cent."

Town Election Next Tuesday

Eligible voters in the town of Saint Joe will select their three town board members and the clerk-treasurer for the next four years at an election Tuesday, November 3. Waterloo, Ashley and Corunna also will hold town elections. Altona has no contest, so present officials will carry on their present duties. City elections will be held in Auburn, Garrett and Butler.

Candidates in Saint Joe are as follows:

Trustee Ward I — Albert Wade, Democrat; Roy Bowser, Republican.

Trustee Ward II—Joe Robinson, D; Ted Haberkorn, R.

Trustee Ward III — Frank Monroe, D; Hearsel Shockley R.

Clerk - Treasurer — Harvey Carr, D; Sharon Bowser, R.

No registration is required to vote in a town election. Requirements are: residence in the state six months, residence in the township 60 days and residence in the ward or precinct 30 days.

Former Local Resident, 16, Killed In Crash

Harold Gobel, 16, a student last year at Riverdale High School but residing since last summer on R2, Butler, was one of two youths killed in a near head-on-collision Sunday evening. The accident occurred on state road 1 north of Butler.

Also killed in the accident was Joe Anthony, 18, of R2, Butler, who was driving a pick up truck in which Gobel and James Sattison, 18, of Butler were passengers. Sattison suffered broken ribs, shock, bruises and lacerations. The driver of the car involved was Gerry Weber, 17, of R1, Edgerton, O. He suffered multiple cuts and bruises.

Anthony died at 7:45 Sunday evening at Souder Hospital in Auburn, having suffered a ruptured bladder. Gobel died at 8:50 p.m. at the hospital. He had suffered a basal skull fracture.

Investigating officers said that Anthony was driving north on the state highway when he attempted to pass a northbound car near the crest of a hill .8 of a mile north of Butler. Weber came over the hill and was unable to swerve from the path of the truck in his lane of traffic.

The crash occurred at 5:50 p.m. The three youths in the pick-up were thrown from the truck. Both vehicles were demolished.

Double funeral services were held for the victims Wednesday at the Evangelical United Church in Butler. Burial was in the Butler cemetery.

Harold Gobel was the son of Raymond and Ellen Davis Gobel. The family resided in Saint Joe last year when Mrs. Gobel taught in the Riverdale elementary grade school. The Gobels had come from South Charleston, W. Va. They moved to Butler this summer when Mrs. Gobel accepted a position in the Butler school system.

Harold will be remembered particularly by Riverdale basketball fans as the big boy on the "B" team (he stood 6'-3" or better) who was learning the hard way. The likeable youth was visibly awkward, explained by the fact that he had never played organized basketball until donning a Riverdale Comet uniform in his junior year of high school.

Parties Set For Saturday

Observers of Halloween will have their opportunity for a good time Saturday night as the Spencerville Community Club and the Saint Joe Volunteer Fire Department prepare programs in their respective communities.

Both parties will be favored with appearances of the Riverdale High School band which will lead the parade at Saint Joe, then travel to Spencerville to play several selections there. Featured at the Spencerville party, in addition to the costumed fun, will be a record hop, cake walk, prizes, etc. Refreshments will be served.

At Saint Joe the parade on the main street to the school house will precede festivities beginning there at about 7:30 p.m. There will be prizes for winning costumes, treats, refreshments and entertainment.

Adults and young people are invited to participate in the community parties.

ELECTION NOTICE

Notice is hereby given the voters of the Incorporated Town of Saint Joe, DeKalb County, Indiana, that an election of town officals will be held Tuesday, November 3, 1959, at the Saint Joe Town Hall. Ballots may be cast by eligible voters for candidates for three offices on the Town Board and the office of Town Clerk-Treasurer. The polls will be open from 7:00 a.m. to 7:00 p.m., daylight saving time.

Chili Supper

The Tri Mu Class of St. Mark Lutheran Church School will serve its Election Night Chili Supper on Tuesday evening, November 3, starting at 5:00 p.m.

The menu will include chili, vegetable soup, chicken and sloppy joe sandwiches, potato salad, cottage cheese, relishes, pie, coffee and milk.

The community is invited to attend with particular emphasis in the invitation extended to Saint Joe town voters who are urged to cast their ballots in the town election, then stop in for supper in the church basement.

Community Club Meets Monday

Glenn Moore, president of the Spencerville Community Club, has announced that the organization will hold a meeting next Monday night, November 2, at 8:00 p.m.

The meeting will be held at the community building.

Senior Play

The Senior Class of Riverdale High School will present their class play on Thursday and Friday nights, October 29 and 30, at the high school gym in Saint Joe.

The play is a fast-moving comedy entitled "Love Is Too Much Trouble" and is directed by Miss Joann Allison of the high school faculty.

The action centers around the troubles of college students in their social life with the local "sweet shoppe" as the hub of activity. The play is filled with laughter from beginning to end.

Admission prices are 65 cents for reserved seats and 45 cents for general admission.

Curtain time is 8:00 p.m.

TINY FIREBOAT DOES A BIG JOB — Boston, Mass. — The city's smallest fireboat is this 16-foot addition to the Boston Fire Department's Waterfront Fleet. The advantage of the tiny craft is that it can fight fire beneath piers and in similar tight spots. At a recent waterfront blaze it got under a burning building and extinguished most of the flames. Although small in size, the little boat can pump 500 gallons of water a minute.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

Anyone reading the little speel in the paper about the Choral Society of years ago which I was telling you about would think I knew very little about it myself. Dr. Crates Johnson lived in Saint Joe at the time. He started the plan to organize a Choral Society, he sang with us and gave a lot of time and the services of his secretary, who is now Mrs. William Quance of Auburn to getting the organization started, but he was never director of it at any time. We had a hired director, a Mrs. Brown from Auburn, if I remember the name rightly.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Borthwick

We stand corrected. —Ed.

Women Aid Census

Mrs. Francis Sible and Mrs. Richard Strombeck of Saint Joe are among the group of personnel now participating in the 1959 Census of Agriculture. The two women received training October 26 in preparation for the start of the field canvas and listing of farms on October 27. Mrs. Sible is assigned to Concord and Spencer townships and Mrs. Strombeck will seek data in Newville Township.

The first phase of the census will last seven or eight days. Another training school will then be held before the second phase of the census begins.

Dick Freeburn Rolls 715 Series

Dick Freeburn, above, dem onstrates his bowling technique for the News' camera. When he rolled the ball for a photograph, sure enough, it was a strike!

Dick Freeburn, Saint Joe's most active and enthusiastic bowler, rolled a blistering 3-game series of 715 last Thursday to gain a place in bowling's elite. Dick scored a 221, a 263 and a 231 for the whopping total of 715 fallen pins.

The high series was scored in competition at Hicksville.

During the evening he scored a total of 25 strikes. During one period, the last five frames of the first game and the first six frames of the second game, he rolled 13 consecutive strikes. He had only three open frames during the evening, all coming on splits.

The 715 is the highest total scored thus far in the history of the Hi Lanes alleys, according to Bud Laub, owner of the bowling establishment. Dick scored his masterpiece while bowling with Yeiser's Standard Service in the early Thursday night league. He is a familiar figure on the lanes in this area, usually bowling five and six nights a week.

Guest Speaker At Coburntown

Mr. Tibbs Maxey, president of the College of the Scriptures (Negro), Louisville, Ky., will speak Sunday evening, November 1, at the Coburntown Church of Christ. The service is scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

Mr. Maxey has just completed an evangelistic tour of Japan, Korea, Okinawa and Hawaii. A select group of slides taken during the tour will be shown. Along with the slides Mr. Maxey has beautiful Japanese-Christian music produced on tape at the Osaka Bible Seminary and music of the negro choir at the college.

Any congregation that is seeking something new in missions and a general approach that covers several fields can be helped by this program. All churches and the public are cordially invited to attend.

SAINT JOE VALLEY HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Saint Joe Valley Home Demonstration Club met at the home of Mary Baker.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Nancy Coburn, and all repeated the club collect. Devotions were by Nancy Coburn. Elizabeth Shull gave the history of the song of the month and all joined in singing "Steal Away." Secretary's report was read and roll call answered by 14 members.

Five members were appointed to attend the Christmas Workshop and four to help Thursday and Friday, October 23 and 23, at the rummage sale. A birthday auction was held and greetings given to those who have birthdays in October.

The meeting closed with all singing the club prayer.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, Mary Baker, and co-hostess, Edna Jenkins.

The November meeting will be a pot luck dinner at the home of MaDonna Wade.

Power

If ye shall ask anything in my name, I will do it.

John 14:14

"In my Name"... the accent is not on raw power—but on the right use of power. Christian prayer is not just a little chat with God prompted by selfish desires. It is a new engagement with God which leads to a deeper understanding of His will and grace. It requires spiritual sensitivity and God-given insight. Learn of Jesus Christ to pray—in the fellowship of those who are in His school of prayer.

SPENCER TOWNSHIP HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The meeting was called to order by the president, Nellie Allen. The club collect was repeated by all. Devotions were by Dorothy Kimes. Eleanor Crothers read the history of the song of the month and all joined in singing "Steal Away." Happy birthday was sung for all members having birthdays in September and October.

Secretary's report was given by Berniece Wilder. Roll call response was something I like to do when I don't have to. There were 17 members, 2 visitors (Elizabeth Hart and Nina Crone) and two children present. Nellie Allen reported on the council meeting. Eleanor Crothers gave the garden report. Berniece Wilder gave a reading.

The November meeting will be at Chaney's Restaurant. The hostesses will be Alwilda Walter and Izetta Chaney.

The meeting closed with all singing the prayer song. Door prize was won by Izetta Chaney. A delicious lunch was served by the hostess and cohostess, Ethel Webb.

Chicken Supper At Newville EUB

The Newville E.U.B. Church will serve a chicken and ham supper Thursday evening, November 5, starting at 5:30 p.m.

The menu will include fried chicken, baked ham, mashed potatoes, dressing, gravy, squash, corn, string beans, harvard beets, cabbage salad, pie, rolls, coffee.

The public is invited. Adult servings are $1.00, children 50c.

Ralph Sechler of Saint Joe has been named by Circuit Judge Harold Stump as one of eight men chosen to serve on the DeaKlb County Committee for Re-organization of School Corporations. The ninth member of the board is County Superintendent of Schools Clarence Bowers who serves by virtue of his office.

Mr. Sechler represents the Riverdale School Corporation area, Concord, Spencer and Newville townships. He has served on the Riverdale School Board as president in the past.

Other appointments were:

Orlo Deetz, Howard Kandel, Dr. Darrell Miller, James Habig, Raymond Burteh, Carl Becker and Ross Tipton.

The committee met Wednesday of this week and elected the following officers:

Dr. Darrell Miller, chairman.
Clarence Bowers, secretary.
Carl Becker, treasurer.

The next meeting will be held at the office of the county superintendent of schools on Wednesday, November 4.

LADIES LITERARY CLUB

The Ladies Literary Club met on October 21 at the home of Mrs. Forrest Bevington with 13 members present.

Mrs. Harvey Carr led the collect and the pledge to the flag.

Two very interesting and informative lessons were presented. The first was the "Mormons' Welfare Plan" or "The Saints Roll Up Their Sleeves" presented by Mrs. Don Burley. She told how the Church of the Latter Day Saints provides for their needy members by maintaining huge storehouses of food and clothing. The second lesson on porcelain china was presented by Mrs. Claude Laub who gave a history of some of the famous china manufacturers including Dresden of Germany, Wedgwood of England and Haviland of France. She had several pieces of china to show to the group.

Mrs. Maurice Kline conducted the entertainment.

After a short business meeting, the meeting adjourned after which the hostess served light refrsehments.

FELLOWSHIP OF . . .?

Lesson for November 1 1959

The Church is never called the "fellowship of believers" in the New Testament, but it is often called that, nowadays, by Christians. There is a good reason for the name. The early church was a fellowship of believers. This means as the record shows us, that the early Christians were of "one heart and soul." This does not mean that they thought alike, for the writer of Acts carefully avoids saying they were of one MIND. They were united not in opinions but in their faith. They were believers-in rather than believers-about. A perfectly unanimous church, all holding the identical opinions in the identical way, would not be a Christian church, but a congregation of parrots. Belief is more than opinion; and in this broader sense the church is indeed a fellowship of believers.

Givers

Is this all? It might be all, if Christian faith were the dead sort of thing some people think it is. But faith, as we see it in the lives of New Testament Christians, never appears by itself. We read that these believers worked out a scheme to eliminate poverty among them. The scheme did not work, for we know that some years later collections were being taken up for the benefit of the Jerusalem church. But all the same, nobody—especially no apostle—arose to say to that church, "All your concern with people's property and their living conditions is off the Christian beam. It is out of our line, it is not a Christian's business to know how other people live. Religion is belief, it is not distribution of worldly goods." There is little doubt that some must have talked that way, because some talk that way today. But the church of those days did find it their business to see to it that no one suffered want.

In an old American city of nearly half a million people there are many churches. The city government early this year decided that they could no longer help people who were unemployed. The consequence was that many families drifted closer and closer to starvation. There was an effort to enlist all the city's churches to help feed these helpless people; but barely half the churches made any contribution or showed any interest. These count themselves as "believing" churches — but what do they believe?

Doers

Every church congregation is a Fellowship of Listeners, or (if that is expecting too much) a Fellowship of Hearers. They all hear readings from the same Bible, week after week. But the Bible is not merely a book to be listened to. It is not only a book to be believed, either. It is a book TO BE DONE. Jesus drew his line, not between hearers and believers, but between hearers and doers. That early church not only distributed food and clothing, they distributed health. They did not simply accept the presence of disease and deformities; they were challenged by such tragedies, they did what they could, and it was a very great deal, to relieve and to do away with them. In short, this first church was a Fellowship of Doers.

All churches are fellowships of people who pray. But a peculiar feature of that early Jerusalem church was that those who belonged to it prayed together. That is, they offered the same prayer together. We do not have to suppose that the prayer in Acts 4 beginning "Sovereign Lord" was literally spoken in unison by the whole collection of believers. But we are not left in doubt that this was the prayer of every one there. When the minister says "Let us pray," he means it—let US pray. When the minister says "Let us unite in prayer," does the average congregation do it, or do they let him pray along while they think about something else?

Churches are too soon content with being Sitting Fellowships, or Suppering Fellowships; when Believing, Giving, Doing and Praying—what God really calls them together for—go half-done or not done at all.

Rehearsal Changed

The adult choir of the Christmas Choir Festival continues to grow. 57 were present Tuesday evening for the group's third rehearsal in as many weeks. The anticipated goal of 100 voices may not be reached. But if public cooperation continues as it has begun and some of the reluctant individuals in the community "pitch in," the 100-mark will not be far off.

A change in rehearsal was made for next week due to the opening of the basketball season on Tuesday, November 3. Mrs. Omer Hansen, director of the choir, announced that the rehearsal next week will be held on Monday night instead of Tuesday, at the usual time, 7:30 p.m.

An invitation is yet extended to men and women, boys and girls from junior high age on up, who have not attended rehearsals before, to begin next Monday night. The choir is progressing above expectations and is enjoying the preparation for the program in December.

Miss Cheryl Norris of Fort Wayne visited her cousin, Miss Susan Brendel, last week.

The Earl Lohses of Riverside, Ill., spent the week end at their home west of Spencerville.

David L. Morgan II spent last week with his grandparents, the M. H. Hollabaughs, while his parents vacationed in Canada, New York and Pennsylvania.

Last week Mrs. Angela Lloyd who teaches in Maumee, O., visited in the John Weidner home.

Sunday the Glenn J. Brendels visited her brother and family, the Earl Norrises, at Fort Wayne.

Mrs. Wayne Koch is recuperating from her recent operation at her home west of Spencerville.

On Thursday evening the Ladies of the Lutheran Church held a Halloween Party in the church basement.

On Monday evening several of the women from the Methodist Church met at Parkview Memorial Hospital and formed a guild for the purpose of doing volunteer work at the hospital.

On Wednesday evening several of the men from the Spencerville Fire Department attended the DeKalb County Firemen's Association meeting and annual turkey supper at the Auburn fire house.

Recently Mrs. Jocie Baltz and Mrs. Jessie Sommer visited Dr. W. W. Carey at Kendallville where he makes his home at The Lutheran Home For the Aged. The doctor, who is 90 years of age, was happy and looked fine. But he remarked, "I am not quite as pert as usual, for I was up with one of the men last night who had a bad case of asthma." Mrs. Sommer reports that they had a very pleasant visit with the doctor who said that he is staying in a fine home where everyone is kind and pleasant and of the Lutheran faith as the home is supported by the Lutheran Church, Missouri Synod. He stated it was started some years ago by a woman of the church who gave her home. Since that time it has been enlarged and can take care of over one hundred people. All eat in the main dining room except those who are ill or too feeble; they have trays in their rooms. The latest equipment is used to prepare the food and it is very good, reports Dr. Carey. He remarked that he walks uptown every day the weather permits. The older people in our community will remember him as he read medicine under a Saint Joe physician, Dr. Hiram Bowman. In those days anyone planning to enter the medical profession would read medicine a year or two with some doctor as a preparation course before entering college. We might add that Doctor Carey loves to receive mail and his birthday is March 3. His address is East Mitchell Street, c-o Lutheran Home, Kendallville, Ind.

Mrs. Audrey wade spent a week recently in Indianapolis with her grandson, Jerry Bowser, and family. Last week she and Mr. and Mrs. Gale Bowser visited the James Bowsers at Edinburg, Ind.

Mrs. Stella Goldsmith returned to her home in Port Richey, Fla., October 13 after spending the summer with her daughter and family, the Carl Tustisons. Before leaving she was honored at a party given by Mrs. Audrey Wade with Mrs. Gladys Hart, Mr. and Mrs. Fred High and Mrs. Gale Bowser attending.

Around the Town

With the Editor

Beverley Mansfield stopped in to point out that the Sisters of the Skillet are deeply appreciative of the time and samples Jerry Baker used in decorating the club's fair booth. The ladies feel that he helped them in winning third prize in booth competition at the fair.

I was visiting with J. H. Hollabaugh at the Shell station in Spencerville Monday morning and inquired about Halloween pranks in that community. It evidently was pretty quiet there except for the soaping of windows — and the rustic furniture set, chair and settee, perched atop the roof and chimney of Margaret Chaney's restaurant.

Evidently everyone had a good time at the parties in Spencerville and Saint Joe on Saturday night. Jean Moore reports that there were 300 at the Spencerville Community Club's party and I don't know how many were at the firemen's party in Saint Joe. But it was a good crowd one observer reports.

Mrs. Moore says prizes down there were donated by Fisher's Corner Market, the Shell Station, Chaney's Restaurant, Kenny's Motor Service, Hollabaugh Radio Shop, Spencerville Elevator, Dr. and Mrs. C. R. Baumgartner, Partee Pump Co., Furnish Barber Shop and Ray Foltz. Judges were Mr. and Mrs. Foltz and Mrs. Baumgartner.

Incidentally, the Community Club will sponsor a square dance Saturday night from 8:30 to 12 midnight at the community hall.

I think the young people deserve a pat on the back for their good conduct this Halloween. See, you CAN have a good time without busting something!

Mrs. Hansen got herself in dutch at the festival choir rehearsal Monday night. She said we would just run through the numbers without any extensive rehearsing "because you're not all here tonight."

Lazerne Keller asked that a note be made that she and Don are still at their same location and still in business. The expected change of faces at the garage didn't materialize.

I heard a story this week that indicates Roy Reidenbach's middle name ought to be "Warfarin" not because he's poison to anybody in particular but because he's death on rats. He's got the ability to sneak up on them, or something; anyhow, he gets 'em by hand.

Recently Russell Arnett tore down a chicken coop. Roy was on hand when the building came down and there obviously was a family of rats residing around the building. Roy got busy; he'd catch 'em and throw 'em to the dog. When they finished there were 18 rat corpses lying around.

'Busco Beats Comets 61-55

About four inches in height was the difference between victory and defeat as the Riverdale Comets opened their 19-59-60 basketball schedule at Churubusco Tuesday night. The difference was not to the Comets' advantage, however, and they dropped a 61-55 decision to the Eagles. Churubusco's center was too much of an obstacle to overcome as he controlled both offensive and defensive rebounds. He ended up with a total of 34 points.

The varsity trailed at 12-10 at the quarter, 33-19 at halftime and 48-41 at the three-quarter mark. In the final period they pulled to 49-45 and Comet fans' hopes began to rise. But Busco jumped to a 9-point lead at 54-45 and held it through most of the last period. Comet hopes again received a boost in the last 2 minutes as they trailed by 5 again at 58-53. But three of their shots rolled off the hoop and the Eagles scored 3 points to the Comets' 2 in the last minute to make the final score 61-55.

The reserve squad was swamped in the prelim by a 51-29 score.

COMET CNIPTIONS — Taller opponents was the biggest factor in both games with Busco. And the reserves had many of their shots rolling off when they could have as easily rolled in. — Busco's control of rebounds showed in the first quarter, though the Comets held their own in the first period. Fouling began at a fast pace and there were frequent instances of cocked elbows in the first and final periods as the Comets became ruffled. — There were sparks of brilliance despite defeat as Comet efforts reflect the deliberate and methodical pattern of Coach Price Brookfield's tutoring. — Jerry Vinson, who was absent last week when the photograph of the team was taken for The News, was very much in the picture Tuesday. He scored on a steal in the final period and took up where he left off last year with cat-like dexterity on defense. — Also in the picture was the Riverdale band which filled - yes, filled - the Busco stage. Remember just a couple of years ago when it was "the Mighty Fifteen"??

High School Day At I.U. Saturday

DeKalb County high school students have been invited to attend the 11th annual Indiana University High School Day Saturday, November 7, on the Bloomington campus. Between 800 and 1,000 students are expected to attend.

The day-long program for all classes of high school students will emphasize the academic features of Indiana University and will include group and individual conferences, information on all aspects of college life and a complimentary luncheon.

Samuel E. Braden, Dean of Undergaduate Development, will be the main speaker at the noon meeting in the I.U. Auditorium. Lunch will be served at 1 p.m. in Alumni Hall.

Morning activities include group conferences on opportunities in the College of Arts and Sciences and the Schools of Business, Education, Health, Physical education and Recreation, Music, Medicine, Dentistry, Nursing and Optometry.

Many departments will have special displays for the day.

In the afternoon students will meet with faculty members for individual conferences in their major interest areas and later receive information on housing, admissions, employment and scholarships.

Clum C. Bucher, Associate Dean of the Junior (Freshman) Division, and Paul E. Klinge, Co-ordinator for School Science, are in charge of the program.

Saint Joe Has GOP Board, Demo Clerk

138 of some 200 or more eligible voters in the town of Saint Joe cast their ballots in the town election held Tuesday of this week.

When the election board had completed tabulations at about 8:30 p.m., the results stood as follows:

Trustee Ward I — Albert Wade (D) 63, Roy Bowser (R) 73.

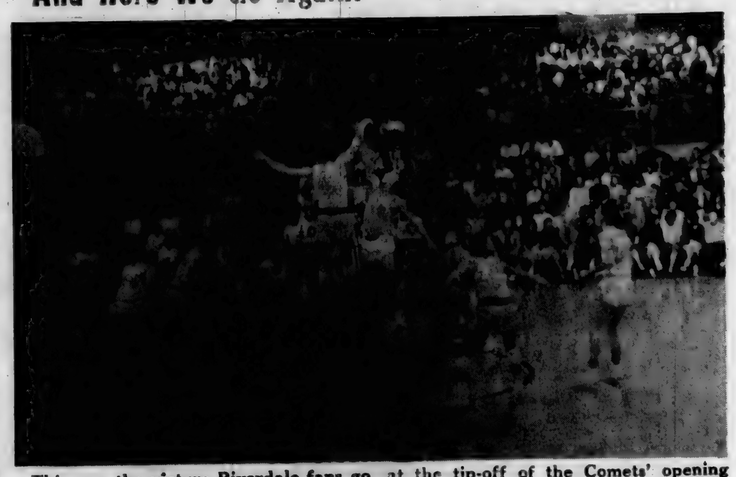
Trustee Ward II—Joe Robinson (D) 54, Ted Haberkorn (R) 79.

Trustee Ward III — Frank Monroe (D) 48, Hearsel Shockley (R) 89.

Clerk-treasurer — Harvey Carr (D) 78, Sharon Bowser (R) 59.

The newly elected town officials will take office January 1, 1960. Outgoing members of the board are Derwood Ridgway, Orville Coburn and Lester Pugsley. Retiring clerk-treasurer is Willard Hurni.

- And Here We Go Again!



This was the picture Riverdale fans go at the tip-off of the Comets' opening game at Churubusco Tuesday night. The ending was sad after a happy start as the 'Busco five downed the local team by a 61-55 score.

The Steel Strike - And Selfishness

It becomes evident with the continued "prosperous" times this nation enjoys, at least as far as material possessions are concerned, that such prosperity brings a breakdown in moral fiber. It is selfish of me, I know, to be rather irritated at the prolonged steel strike; but that strike is hurting even this smalltown newspaper right now, as it is hurting a lot of other people right now and will hurt for a while even after settlement of the strike. The steelworkers themselves are included. And I find it difficult to believe that the majority of the workers themselves are in sympathy with the work stoppage of which they are a part, not to the extent that they want now or wanted before to be without work for over 100 days. It looks as if the work stoppage is due to the ambitions of a handful of individuals who have the power to control the situation as they see fit.

If somebody I know has a grievance against his employer and I know about it, I think I would want to see justice done even if that somebody had to resort to a work stoppage in order to draw attention to his plight. But my sympathy would be governed by that great big "if" - if that somebody has a reasonable grievance. I have yet to see, in the present steel picture, any indication that there was abuse of the steelworkers in pay or general working conditions or what have you. It looks as if there is a strike now only because we have gotten in a rut - when a working agreement runs out, you automatically ask for more money. What a joy-spreader it would have been if a contract had been signed by the steel industry and the steel workers renewing the old contract. The offer of no pay hike no price hike sounded pretty good to me. And with our economy influenced so greatly by the steel industry, such an agreement would have had a needed stabilizing effect. But with the prolonged strike, I am afraid the big factor in any settlement now will be the concern of those few individuals in power over saving face. It will go down to the most minute detail now so that no one will fear the possibility of having been "taken" or outsmarted.

We all love our country. But I wonder how many involved in the steel negotiations are really aware of the peril the strike poses for their country. I wonder how many are concerned about the hurt they are causing others, or if they are more concerned about their own personal benefit. I wonder how much moral influence is being exerted by the minds of those individuals themselves, or if they have forgotten all except self. It's bad if the government has to step in and become a virtual dictator in such a situation as we now are experiencing. But if United States citizens are wont to cast aside all their ideals and forget the responsibility to others which they bear in addition to the responsibility to themselves, then we cannot criticize the influence which the government may find itself forced to exert.

It is to be noted that Senator Vance Hartke of the Hoosier state was "shocked" last week at the report that Russian pig iron was being shipped to this country during the steel strike. The Senator revealed his intention of introducing legislation next January which would curb such steel importations. I am disappointed in the Senator. He evidently doesn't appreciate that such importations are only a natural course to follow. If the Senator's source of supply were to be stopped, he also would buy elsewhere. And if the hidden implication of lack of patriotism is intentionally included in his pronouncement, then I must hasten to remind him that there is also a comparative reflection on the patriotism of those who force these foreign purchases.

Whatever the consequences may be in this situation or others to come, we will get what we ask for. The wheels of justice grind slow, but they grind exceeding fine.

Pheasants Released

Under the auspices of the local conservation club, two releases of pheasants have been made in this area in recent weeks. The stocking of pheasants in various local communities throughout the state is carried on through the program of the Indiana Department of Conservation.

Three weeks ago 20 birds were released on the farms of Jimmy Coburn and L. G. Fetters and another 10 birds were released at the Ray Reasoner property.

On Monday of this week six birds were released at each of four locations: the conservation grounds west of Saint Joe, and at the rural properties of John Mason, Bob Sechler and Lavon Brunson. The birds released at the conservation grounds and at the Mason farm were banded for study of migratory habits. Banded birds should be reported to area conservation officers who in turn relay the information to the state conseravtion department.

Local conservation officer is John Conrad of Waterloo.

I.U. May Require Entry Exam

An Indiana University professor said recently that entrance examinations may be required to enter that institution unless there is a marked improvement in teaching in secondary and elementary schools.

Dr. James Work, chairman of the Department of English, told the Bedford Kiwanis Club that entrance examinations have been discussed informally at all state-supported institutions in Indiana for several years.

Work said most colleges and universities have required courses in English composition and since most of the failures among students are caused by the English Department, that department actually becomes the "admissions office." He said I.U. students take thousands of hours of English composition courses which "could be much better spent in more serious studies in higher education."

Work urged that more money be spent to lighten the load of high school English teachers to permit time to carefully correct themes and then go over errors with the pupils.

The implication was that if high schools could produce students more learned in English composition, the colleges would not have to make that course a requirement.

Nevertheless, Work said, Indiana high school graduates are not inferior. He said the six-year average of Indiana U. freshmen on aptitude tests upon entrance to the school is 50, exactly the national median. But he said reading ability and comprehension test grades ranged between 34 and 37 compared to a national median of 50, and grades on a test on knowledge of grammar, punctuation and vocabulary ranged from 28 to 36 against a national median of 50.

Work said 10 per cent of all freshmen at Indiana leave after one semester, and an additional 19 per cent leave after the first year. More than half leave because of academic failures, he said.

How your neighbors live better electrically

"With an ALL-ELECTRIC laundry, our young son needs fewer clothes,"

Says Mrs. Louis Snow

"Yet he always has plenty of clean clothes, regardless of the weather outside.

"My little son, Mark, is two years old," says Mrs. Snow, "and you can imagine how hard he is on clothes. He's growing like a 'weed'! 4-H Enrollment Continues Upward

Figures on 4-H enrollment for 1959 again show an upward trend. If the increase is reflected in all 50 states and Puerto Rico, this year's final score could well be within touching distance of the two-and-one half million mark, predicts the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club Work.

While the number of 4-H'ers is steadily increasing, the annual crop of winners remains about the same, the National Committee points out, because the number of award programs is limited. Thus individual qualifications become higher and competition keener. At the present time the ratio for state and national winners is one member out of 2,000.

The national award programs in which 4-H'ers participate include clothing, frozen foods, entomology, safety, public speaking, and tractor. There are nearly 50 others, according to the National Committee.

All 4-H projects and activities endeavor to show how to improve the individual, the family, the home, farm and community.

Every 4-H member pledges ". . . my head to clearer thinking . . . my heart to greater loyalty . . . my hands to larger service . . . my health to better living, for my club, my community, and my country."

Besides the personal satisfaction of "learning by doing," 4-H'ers take great pride in their accomplishments, and outstanding records are rewarded, the National Committee reports.

Awards are provided annually by individuals and business firms among which are: Mrs. Charles R. Walgreen, Standard Brands, Coats & Clark, Carnation Co., Simplicity Pattern Co., Hercules Powder Co., Betty Crocker of General Mills, Whirlpool Corp., Montgomery Ward, General Motors, Firestone Tire & Rubber Co.

Also John Deere, Singer Sewing Machine Co., Colgate-Palmolive, Homelite, Armour & Co., the Burlington, Milwaukee, and Illinois Central railways, Wilson & Co., and Standard Oil Foundation, Chicago.

All 4-H programs are directed by the Cooperative Extension Service, USDA. Arrangements for the national award programs are made by the National Committee.

GOD FIRST

Lesson for November 8, 1959

"We must obey God rather than men." So said the Apostles long ago. It is one of the famed quotations from the Bible. Is this just something from "Bible times" or does it mean something today?

"In God We Trust" is a motto everybody has seen on his money. But how many people do trust in God more than in money? They say that the difference between North and South America is that the Europeans who came to settle South America came to find gold, but those who came to North America came to find God. Is this true? And if it is, could you guess it from what North Americans spend their time running after?

What Kind of God?

"Everybody talkin' about heaven ain't goin' there," an old spiritual sings. You might add, "Everybody talkin' about God ain't his real friend." With better grammar we might say that there is a lot of talk about God, in magazines and clubs and newspapers and even in the church, that is no more than talk. It does not go deep and it means very little. But even when it does go deep and mean something, does it mean the right thing? We don't want to be pessimistic about this. We don't mean to accuse the whole population of being hypocrites. Nevertheless, there is an appalling lot of loose talk (set to music sometimes) about God. "GOD FIRST" is a noble motto. A God who is not first is no God. But "God first" is noble only if it means the right kind of God—or in other words the true God, for the true God is the only right kind of God there is.

Therefore all wrong kinds of God are actually no gods at all, only make-believe images carved out in the minds of mistaken people. For instance, if people sing about "the Man upstairs," they may think they are singing about God, but they are not. God is not a man, not even an enormous, sky-filling man.

Rival Gods

It is not far wrong to say that whatever a person with all his heart puts FIRST, that is God for him. Religious people sing, "Praise God from whom all blessings flow." But if we may judge people's true opinions by their actions, we may have to conclude that some people, if they were absolutely frank about it, would prefer another doxology. They would have a revised version. It would be "Praise Wealth from which all blessings flow." Not only wealth, but public opinion, security, power, success (measured by height of tailfins and horsepower in the motor) may likewise be as God to those who expect all blessing from such things. Now a doll is perfectly harmless, indeed it may be a pretty toy, so long as it is only a doll. But if some one gets hold of a doll and sets it up as a god and prays to it, that is idolatry and it is bad. So wealth and success and security are good things; it is when they are set up as rivals to the true God that they become symbols of sin.

Loyaty Oath.

We hear a good deal about loyalty oaths. The fact is, every one who is a professed Christian has made a public vow of loyalty to God, when he has taken his stand as a member of the church of God. Now what? If that is the end of it, if he is seldom if ever seen in the church again, if he can never be counted on to share in any good work, if he cannot spare even a tenth of his income for the Kingdom of God, then what did his loyalty oath amount to? This is Temperance Sunday, and the essence of temperance, of the Christian sort, is living with consideration for others, not selfishly for your own comforts. A church "member" who habitually spends on luxuries (whether liquor or whatever) for himself, what he might be sharing for the help of the needy (in mind, body and spirit) through all the world, is a member in name only. If we really mean "God first," we mean we intend to obey God first. To live for oneself alone shows that God is, after all, a stranger.

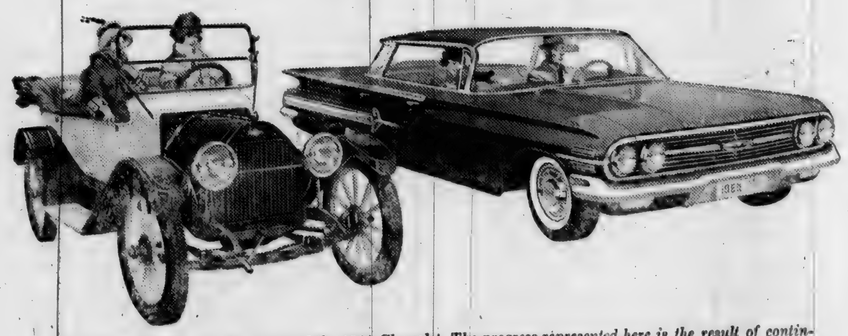
(Although this is addressed to Chevrolet owners, we'd be glad to have you read it, no matter what make you now own or plan to buy. It might well be as interesting and significant to you as to the Chevrolet owner.)

TO THE MORE THAN 16 MILLION PEOPLE WHO OWN CHEVROLETS



The first and the latest—the 1912 and the 1960 Chevrolet. The progress represented here is the result of continuing efforts to make your new Chevrolet always more beautiful, more useful and more valuable in every respect.

You belong to the largest family of owners in the automotive world.

We hope you're proud of that. It must give you great satisfaction to know that your judgment in choosing Chevrolet has been confirmed by so many other people.

We know that we can hold your preference and your loyalty only by meeting our responsibilities to you fully and completely from the day you buy your Chevrolet to the day you trade it in. And so we'd like to talk with you about our responsibilities as we see them, and what we are doing to meet them.

Our first responsibility, we think, is clear: To design and build products that satisfy your needs and your wants to the highest possible degree. To that end, we have done these things for 1960:

Made the 1960 Chevrolet more economical, roomier, more quiet and comfortable, easier to handle and maneuver. Introduced the compact and revolutionary Corvair. Produced a new line of Chevrolet trucks with unprecedented advances in efficiency, cargo handling, driver comfort and ability to get a job done.

But it isn't enough to design and build the kinds of products you want.

They must be built right. Solidly. Carefully.

Let us assure you of this: Chevrolet's fine reputation as a solid, well-built, dependable product is being safeguarded by more checks and inspections and tests, than ever before.

Along with your Chevrolet dealer, we want you to have available the finest and most complete service facilities. That is why we: Conduct training schools for Chevrolet dealer mechanics. Study and recommend improved service equipment and techniques. Maintain the industry's most complete parts warehouse system.

Finally, neither Chevrolet nor your Chevrolet dealer has any intention of forgetting you after you buy. To help keep you happy with your Chevrolet, we have established a department new to us, and so far as we know, new to the automobile industry. This is the Chevrolet Department of Owner Relations, whose only job is the coordination of Chevrolet and Chevrolet dealer activities so that you enjoy utmost satisfaction during your entire period of ownership. Through this department, and through all the other extraordinary steps we are taking, Chevrolet and your Chevrolet dealer hope to keep you a happy member of the Chevrolet owner family.

Big Stock Show

Two of the foremost livestock events in the United States will be combined into one huge exhibition by merger of the Internatonal Dairy Show with the 60th annual International Livestock Exposition.

Each ranks at the top in its field, one as a continental showing of the dairy breeds and the other the world's leading exposition of the meat-making breeds of farm animals.

The merger brings the five breeds of dairy cattle, Ayrshires, Brown Swiss, Guernseys, Holsteins and Jerseys, into the competitions of the International Livestock Exposition the first time in its 60 year history. The combined exposition will be held at Chicago November 27 to December 5.

This year's Exposition takes on added international color with the entry of Canada's top dairy animals, as well as beef cattle, sheep and horses. The management reports $130,000 offered in cash prizes in the competitions of 39 breeds of farm animals that the show will feature this year.

Other new events include a Quarter Horse Show, a pre-opening feature of the Exposition on November 23 and 24, winding up with a Quarter Horse auction sale on Wednesday morning, November 25.

The International Horse Show attracts entries from prominent stables in the United States and Canada. It will be held every evening and five afternoons November 27 through December in the air-conditioned Amphitheatre arena, seating 8,000. Its contests include 3 and 5-gaited saddle horses, hunters and jumpers, fast stepping roadster horses and dashing harness horses and ponies in fast and competitive action.

Spectacular feats of strength and skill will be demonstrated at each Horse Show by 50 crack British Royal Navy regulars in competing gun teams. Hailed as "The Pride of Her Majesty's Navy," they are coming to Chicago after attracting record-breaking crowds at their performances at Earl's Court, London, last summer.

Selection of the International Grand Champion steer, formerly made on Tuesday of exposition week, will be made on Saturday, November 28.

Scout Leaders To Meet

The North District Committee for Scouting will hold a training session for Cubmasters, Scoutmasters, Scouting Committees and Institution Representatives Sunday, November 8, in the town hall at Waterloo. The session will run from 1:00 to 5:00 p.m.

Registration will begin at 1:00 p.m. with the fee set at one dollar. Refreshments will be served following the training session.

The North District includes DeKalb, Noble and Steuben counties. The district is composed of 50 scout troops, cub packs and explorer posts. The training session for leaders within this large group will include an accelerated basic and advanced program.

Basic training of the leaders includes the acquisition of the concepts of leadership and committee work along with the fundamentals of troop operations. In the advanced session the training will include programming, financing and activities relationship work.

This training session is the beginning of an intensive training program which will prevail during the 1959-1960 scouting year. All scout leaders are urged to attend each such training period.

DO LUTHERANS BELIEVE THEIRS IS THE ONLY TRUE RELIGION?

Yes. But they do not believe that they are the only ones who have it.

Someone has aptly defined "true religion" as, "Accepting what God wants to give you." And Lutherans know that no one denomination has a monopoly on those who "accept what God wants to give."

But Lutherans also realize that again and again throughout history, men have tried to dilute that which God most wants to give: The Gospel of Christ.

And because the Gospel is the power through which God works in man, Lutherans know that any "watering down" of the Gospel is a blasphemy against God and a danger to human souls.

That is why Lutherans are not among those who say, "One church is the same as the next!" or, "It doesn't make much difference what you believe, just so you believe."

If you drink strychnine, believing it to be cough syrup, it makes a great deal of difference.

And if you trust your own goodness, believing God to be satisfied with it — or, if you belittle God-on-a-cross, believing Him to be merely a fine moral example — that makes a great deal of difference, too. An eternal difference!

That is why both children and adults are thoroughly instructed in the faith before being received as Lutheran communicants. It does make a difference what you believe!

GOOD SEWING NEWS!

For the convenience of our many customers in the Saint Joe and Spencerville area, we have established a "Parts & Service Center" at Spencerville at Mrs. Ray Hoover's. Here you will be able to get needles, bobbins, bulbs, etc., for our machines. Mrs. Hoover will also have thread, belts and many other items for people who sew. Service calls for repair work may be left with her and these will receive prompt attention. We can furnish parts for most all makes of sewing machines. We also carry a very complete stock of new machines.

MONKEY BUSS-NESS — St. Petersburg, Fla. — A real lovey-dovey shmacker, Jamie the chimp plants a kiss on his "foster mother," Mrs. Barbara Hatfield. An attractive blonde mother of two sons, she first met the nine-month-old chimp three months ago. Jamie wrapped his long arms around the housewife and wouldn't let go, so she decided to take him home. Says Mrs. Hatfield: "Rearing small boys and raising a chimp is about a 50/50 proposition"

Around the Town

With the Editor

If anyone wants a couple of tickets for the Matt Welsh ox roast at Vincennes, come and get 'em. It will be his political coming out party, coming out for governor, that is.

Saturday is the day.

And there are a couple of tickets for the International Livestock Show on my desk. That runs November 23 thru December 5. The tickets are good any day. If you're going, you're welcome to use them.

It's nice to have a musical family, or at least one that is learning to be musical. But it can be rather confusing to the ear at times. I wasn't there at the time, but Esther says here the other night all three boys wanted to practice at the same time, Dave on his cornet, Mike on the licorice stick (better know as clarinet), and Phil on the piano. So at one and the same time she was being serenaded by "O Holy Night," "The Star Spangled Banner" and "The Porcupine With the Prickly Quills."

—Thank goodness, we've got a big house.

We went out for Sunday dinner a couple of weeks ago and ended up at the airport restaurant at Baer Field where we had an enjoyable time.
